Two bus routes change

Because of construction and because of heavier traffic on football weekends, two bus routes in Kamiah High School have been eliminated.

The second route, the Kamiah and Coolville route will be cut off on June 22, and will not serve the Glamrock complex until school is back in session. In addition to the bus change, the bus stop at the Glam Rock complex will be relocated.

In addition to the bus changes, the schedule for the bus route from the Kamiah High School to the Glam Rock complex will remain the same, except that the bus will not stop at the Glam Rock complex until school is back in session.

Senator GOP bills to synthesize nominees

Economic mainstays

Today the White House is expected to announce a compromise agreement on the economic mainstays bill. Republican leaders were approved by the Senate for the economic mainstays bill.

The panel turned down the GOP compromise offer, but then it approved the economic mainstays bill. It is expected that the panel will be able to pass the economic mainstays bill.

In addition, the panel is expected to pass the economic mainstays bill. It is expected that the panel will be able to pass the economic mainstays bill.

The other three nominees will be announced at a later date. It is expected that the panel will be able to pass the economic mainstays bill.
I.C. men raise money for ERA

By Tim Eleassor

In an effort to encourage support of the Iowa Equal Rights Amendment (E.R.A.), a group of Johnson County's Male Students of Concern have set up a table at City on Black Hawk Street to sell bumper stickers. Business was moderate, according to Neal Hofman, chairman of the organization.

The group, which is made up of men, said, "It is important that all people, not just women, be supported for their position in the fight for women's rights and ERA is what we're fighting for.

ALFRED (13 member) president of the organization's board of directors, said that the sticker campaign is important because the campaign is in order to keep the issue of ERA before the public. "We need to keep this issue before the public," he said.

"We are selling bumper stickers to raise money for ERA. The proceeds will be from our organization's board of directors." He also said that the campaign is important because the organization is trying to raise awareness among the public about the importance of ERA.

The first forum will be held next month at the Iowa State University of Iowa. The forum will be held on the campus of the university, according to Hofman. Hofman said that the forum will be held on the university campus because the organization is trying to raise awareness among the public about the importance of ERA.

TERRY REVELL, president of the board of directors, said that the forum will be held on the university campus because the organization is trying to raise awareness among the public about the importance of ERA. Hofman said that the forum will be held on the university campus because the organization is trying to raise awareness among the public about the importance of ERA.

"It's important that people understand the importance of ERA," he said.

Hofman said that the organization is considering holding more forums in the future. "We are planning on holding more forums in the future," he said.

I.C. booster, Keith Kafer, the chamber's executive director, said Thursday that at least three women and minorities faced complaints about the chamber's response to the women's Equal Rights Amendment (E.R.A.). Hoogerwerf, also a committee member of the chamber, said, "It takes a real fight to make things happen."

Herbst said that the chamber has a good track record of responding to the women's Equal Rights Amendment (E.R.A.). Hofman said that the chamber has not had problems attracting women to its meetings. "We have been working hard to attract women," he said.

A political wild card: uranium sale to India

In what is being called a major foreign policy victory for President Jimmy Carter, the U.S. Senate Wednesday voted 64 to 36 to override the White House veto of the bill to sell uranium to India. Senate approval clears the way for the first major foreign policy move of the new administration. It will also be the first major test of the Senate under the Carter administration as it tries to assert stronger influence in foreign policy decisions.

The uranium sale, which was debated for three days, was part of a bill that also included amendments on Chile, the Middle East, and the Panama Canal. The bill would also apply sanctions against the sale of items that could be used to develop nuclear weapons.

Carter, in his veto message, had said the sale would undermine the degree of control the United States had over its nuclear material and would increase the risk of proliferation. The Senate's decision is a clear indication of the strength of support for the sale, which was backed by both the Republican and Democratic parties.

The sale of enriched uranium to India is expected to be a major source of revenue for the U.S. government, as well as a key to building stronger relations with the Indian government. The sale is also seen as a way to counter claims that the Carter administration is soft on nuclear proliferation.

Rose Kennedy is recovering

BOSTON — Rose Kennedy, 87-year-old matriarch of the Kennedy family, who was critically ill after suffering a stroke last month, is recovering and will return to her Boston home soon, her family said.

Official spokesman for the family, Thomas M. Kennedy, who praised her as a "great humanitarian," said Rose Kennedy is "likely to recover" the national forecast for a farm recovery as farmers receive a boost from record prices and favorable weather.

However, she added, the forecast may be inaccurate because of the condition of the area's farmers.

The area's rate was far in excess of the 1.7 percent unemployment rate, said Rose Kennedy, who was able to walk around in her bedroom. Her condition was reported as stable, and she was expected to return home in a few weeks.

Revenue in the agricultural sector, which rose from 3.5% in July to 3.1% last month, was attributed to the financial recovery brought by relatively good weather, according to Rose Kennedy.

The family spokesman noted that the expected recovery was "likely to recover" the forecast, and Rose Kennedy was "likely to recover" the condition of the area's farmers. She was "likely to recover" the condition of the area's farmers.

Student Senate to fill seats via elections

By Ron Hewing

The process of filling vacant US Student Senate seats by petitioning was approved by the senate Thursday. Senators are presently expected to be seated as soon as possible.

The Senate has reviewed the applications of many students interested in filling the seats.

The Senate must then choose the applicants who best fit the criteria for the seat.

The Senate has also approved the creation of a new, separate committee to oversee the process.

Today's Western: fistful of sources

By Michael Horne

If you need further proof that a monolithic, homogeneous world culture is at work around us, look no further than a current item in the 'Enquirer' which can be found on page 2. "Unnatural入选" can be traced back to the very roots of the American West.

Director Stephen Gamon, an assistant

In the 1960s, the American pop-culture market was dominated by American Westerns. However, the American West was itself a product of a mix of influences from European, Native American, and Asian sources. The idea of a unified, homogenous world culture is at work around us, as can be seen in the current item in the 'Enquirer' which can be found on page 2.

Films

The Fistful of Dollars was so popular that it inspired a wave of quickie Westerns that were shot for shot, from Kurosawa's Yojimbo. The Western in cinema is, of course, inherently fantastical. Leone extends this quality through his use of landscape, which is inherently fantastical; this makes the Western a perfect canvas for Leone's style.

Tuesday's Special

Enquirer Award Winner

The Western is a genre that has been adapted for many other countries. "Don't Look Now" is a British film that was adapted from the novel by Daphne du Maurier. "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" is a science fiction film that was released in 1977.

‘Il Posto’ reveals Olmi’s comic gifts

By Gary Reynolds

I t is difficult to believe that I am standing in the great hall of the Danish Film Institute in Copenhagen, watching the film Il Posto, and without my glasses on. The screening is a part of the commission to preserve the Swedish film Il Posto, and it is directed by Ermanno Olmi. Olmi is an Italian director who has been active in the cinema for over 50 years. He is known for his realistic and often pessimistic depictions of life in Italy.

The setting of the film is 1934, and the film is centered around the character of Donatello, a young boy who lives with his family in a small town in Italy. The film is a study of the effects of the fascist regime on the lives of ordinary people, and it is a powerful critique of the regime’s ideology.

Il Posto is a film that is incredibly well-crafted, with a strong sense of place and a deep understanding of the characters. It is a film that is both visually stunning and emotionally resonant. The film’s cinematography is simply stunning, with a deep sense of the Italian landscape and the people who inhabit it.

The film’s narrative is slow and deliberate, and it builds to a powerful climactic sequence that is both shocking and devastating. The film ends on a note of hope, as Donatello looks out over the town and sees the future of fascism.

Il Posto is a film that is both a work of art and a work of politics. It is a film that is a testament to the power of cinema to tell stories and to engage with the world.

‘Angi Vera’ evinces communism’s effect on two girls’ lives

The film ‘Angi Vera’ is a powerful exploration of the effects of communism on the lives of two young girls in Hungary. The film is directed by Miklós Jancsó, a Hungarian film director who is known for his work in what is known as the Hungarian curtailed school of cinema.

The film is set in the late 1940s, and it follows the lives of two young girls, Angi and Vera, who are members of the Hungarian Communist Party. The film is a powerful exploration of the effects of communism on the lives of ordinary people, and it is a powerful critique of the regime’s ideology.

The film’s narrative is slow and deliberate, and it builds to a powerful climactic sequence that is both shocking and devastating. The film ends on a note of hope, as Angi and Vera look out over the town and see the future of communism.

Season ticket sellout seen for basketball

By Mark Moll

Student tickets for the 1980-81 basketball season are selling quickly and will probably be sold out within the next day or two, but UI ticket offices already display a season deficit. Last year was the first season ever for the UI men's basketball team.

"We sold out in student ticket last past is a show me week," said John Kupka, UI athletic ticket manager.

"I'm optimistic we'll sell out," Kupka said. "I think the basketball team will draw a strong crowd this season." The basketball seas-ton open this year will be Friday, November 8 against Indiana University.

"Season ticket will sell out," Kupka said.

"I think we'll sell out by Monday when the students return to campus." Kupka said.

The tickets go on sale at 8 a.m. Monday. The final deadline for purchasing student tickets will be Friday, October 31. A student who has not ordered by October 31 will have to go on the public price, but will be

Offensive sets change like wind

By Jay Christensen

The game of football can be very complicated, even for the most dedicated fan. Football is a game of strategy, with players being created each day, the average fan has trouble keeping up. The game isn’t that hard to understand; however, because they are very similar to the same game of the same era.

The Vivon Offense

The I formation "Vivon" after its inventor, Erland "Vivon" is known for football. Using both California and the innovating tactics, Vivon became a favorite of the fans through the years.

In the "I" the ball is held by itself, and the right tackle plays behind the fullback as his normal defensive posture. The quarterback still has the same responsibility as the passer.

The fullback is one of the main components of the "I" formation. Again, the same center from the same two split receivers are used. But the backs are split and the quarterback takes the half yards behind the center. The pro set is regarded as a better offensive package of the two.

Another one to watch is the "T" set formation. The offense was made popular in the 1960s by the Kansas City Chiefs. The "T" set is a three-man formation with the split receivers on the outside. The center makes up the "T" set. The most unique aspect of the offense is the "T" formation, which makes the quarterback the center of attention, while the wide receivers split out to receive the passes. However, the fullback is still the one to watch.

THE HAWKS

The Hawks are an example of an "I" formation. In this case, the Iowa Agricultural College at Ames turned to Iowa City to meet the Iowa State University of Iowa. The Iowa trio was that three yards, eight, and the third was five. The Hawks favored the fullback position, but the third was five. The Hawks favored the fullback position, but the third was five. The Hawks favored the fullback position, but the third was five.

In 1934, the series of all-Canadian relations were suspended until 1935. The Hawks favored the fullback position, but the third was five. The Hawks favored the fullback position, but the third was five.

In this year, the game was moved to Iowa City, because of the outbreak of influenza in Ames. The Hawks came out of this year's series.

THE SERIES

No. 1 Iowa and No. 2 Iowa State were the teams in the series. Iowa State was ranked No. 2 in the nation, while Iowa was ranked No. 1. The series was held in 1918 and continued until 1919. The two schools, however, disagreed on the final score in 1917. Iowa scored 14 of 28. In 1918, the Hawks scored 14, but in the first half the Hawks scored 14. In 1919, the Hawks scored 14 at the half, and in 1918, the Hawks scored 14.

Iowa All-American ‘scandalized’

By Bob Pressler

Sports scandals as much as sports figures have - and will continue to have - a significant impact on America’s athletic and political landscape. The question is whether the occasional fraud, or a whole series of them, has taken so much of the sportswriters’ time as to rob them of their credibility. According to this year’s All-American - a resident of Iowa, the University of Iowa football team - the answer is no.

Iowa quarterback, Clyde Williams, right of playing football, beyond the Hawkeyes’ 1950, 7-1-1 season.

In 1950, Williams became an outstanding player and the head baseball coach at Iowa State. For years, he has been the figurehead for Iowa and has made a name for himself in the world of sports. At the same time, he has also been working on his Indiana State University football field. As a result, he has been able to combine his love of the game with his love of teaching.

Iowa’s first All-American, Williams played in the defensive back position. He was a wonderful treat for the Iowa fans and earned him the honor of being named its high school football field. The honor was true to the Iowa fans, who were very proud of him.

Last year on a freshman, the 6-4, 250-pounder played in the defensive back position. Fry, however, decided to put the freshman against him in the starting backfield. But that’s not all. To top off everything, Oleszak pushed a new scrimmage for the Iowa football team last spring. Iowa fans are now an all-around team.

I played both offense and defense in high school (football) and enjoyed every minute of it. The most important thing is that the Iowa fans can be proud of him.

The biggest difference is that the Iowa fans don’t have to worry about him. We wouldn’t have any problems with the defense staying on the field. The defense might try to cover up, but the Iowa fans don’t have to worry about that.

Iowa’s last All-American, Oleszak

Iowa’s last All-American, Oleszak, is a resident of Ames, Iowa. He is the business manager of the Iowa State football team. The honor was true to the Iowa fans, who were very proud of him.

‘There’s gold in them there Hawks’

By Cawde Reynolds

“Why do J. Hayden Fry?” one window-shopper asked.

“Biker Types in the window,” I joked.

Eight women browsing through the “Fry Hawk Shop” at the downtown corner of Sixth and Washington in Des Moines, Iowa, laughed. In fact, they came in from three towns. They were members of the Ohio State women’s basketball team, on the road to play the Hawkeyes.

You can tell your gold or black pants or sweatsuit or belt or suspenders. To judge the height, there are hang tags to are short or leather. Left on your past legs then to your hair gold and black clothing works.

At Kinnick, Hawking is scalping for big profits

By Mike Kent

"At the moment, to scalp tickets is to be..." Yea, that time of year when ticket holders make a point of selling tickets at a price that would make ORGIC nation drool.

And like the old saying, "The rich get richer and the poor get more of the same..." Scalping tickets is to be a thriving business in the Hawking.

These innocent-looking $25.00 tickets are being swapped by students as if their only purpose is making each other richer. These tickets, known as "scalpees," are being claimed by students who want to make a buck.

"WE ORDERED the tickets in advance and planned to sell them at a profit," one student said. "But the Hawking is too large and the prices will go up."

"I'd sell them to my friends maybe for a $5 profit," another student offered. "I'm not the only one who's doing it."

Cy-Hawk goes to victor of Iowa-Iowa State tilt

For two years, the Cy-Hawk Trophy has been proudly displayed in the Field House at Iowa City. The trophy, which was donated by the Alpha Delta Theta Golf Club of Iowa City, consists of a silver golf club and a plaque. The trophy is awarded annually to the winner of the high school golf tournament at the Iowa State Fair. The trophy is sponsored by the Iowa Golf Association and is open to all high school golfers in the state. The winner of the tournament receives the trophy and a plaque, while the runner-up receives a plaque as well. The trophy is a symbol of the great tradition of golf in Iowa and the importance of the sport in the state. The trophy is also a symbol of the close relationship between Iowa and Iowa State, which is reflected in the naming of the trophy after Cy, the Iowa State mascot. The trophy is a reminder of the rich history of golf in Iowa and the importance of the sport to the state.

‘Brothers’ separate over Iowa

By Robert Woolard

Although Bill Snyder, the offensive coordinator for the Iowa football team, claims he has no plans to leave Liberty, Mo., to join the Cyclones next season, his younger brother, Paul, is expected to make the trip to Ames.

"It was pretty hard for us to come to Iowa State, but my brother was there and he was doing pretty well. He went to a junior college, and I was pretty happy about that," Coach Snyder said in August.

CRUTCHFIELD, a senior wide receiver at Liberty, Mo., has been studying for a physics degree at William Jewel, a junior college in Independence, Mo. He didn’t have his way, he said.

"I’m pulling for Iowa all the way," Coach Snyder said.

All-American has been directing Cyclone backs, and he believes his brother will be just as good. "I’m sure he’ll be a good one," Coach Snyder said.

When transfer time came, Coach Snyder said, he was not content to sit in the background, as he believes the Cyclones have a chance to win this year.

"Itried to push the guys to my brother’s potential," Coach Snyder said. "I think he’s got the potential to be better than (Donnie) Moore. They just got to give him the chance."
If history does repeat, Iowa wins

By Harold Markert
Sports Editor

If history really does repeat itself, then Iowa Football Coach Fran Fry, the Hawkeyes should win Saturday's game with Iowa State.

"Iowa has won nine of the last 11 games against Iowa State in the Big Ten. In those wins, "Iowa's three losses came when Fry was in the right spot at the right time." said Fry. "The Hawkeyes have been a tough team to beat in recent years." Fry added, "But I think this year's game will be different. We have a lot of confidence, and we're ready to face the Spartans." Fry went on to say, "The Hawkeyes are in good shape, and we're looking forward to the challenge." Fry concluded, "I think we'll come out on top this Saturday."
The Daily Iowan - Monday, September 26, 1960

An Iowa State football player's nightmare

The Trees of the football field and Kinnick Stadium combined with a similar image on a T-shirt seem to scare the players. When two players are placed next to each other a pattern begins to evolve. But by reviewing the negative image and playing it opposite the original, top to bottom a symmetrical pattern appears. One would not expect while watching a football game the least of the stadium could be made to look like an Indian Sioux.

Father Bob: The Voice of Iowa

By Steve Bolshammer

As fate for two Kiechla Holzhammer, its a familiar voice that leave welcome and begin to summarize the events of Iowa City. The Iowa City Trinity Episcopal Church, entered the sport business while reeling in Iowa's native Ironman to the games of the Iowa's famous Ironman to the games.

Holzhammer has been the public address announcer at Iowa football and baseball games since 1968. He is the voice of the Iowa football radio announcers, the Iowa State football player's pronunciations, but be still had his own pronunciacion at Iowa's home basketball games. He also has the job of identifying names and numbers of all the players on the field. He simply enjoys it.

Holzhammer also announces all Iowa's home basketball games. Holzhammer, a senior for what seems forever, said he hasn't minded the job. Holzhammer, a native of southeast Iowa, was said to be also assistant award home games during the reign of the Iowa's famous Ironman to the games.

As FOR THE visiting team, Holzhammer likes to go to the game.

Father Bob Holzhammer

Holzhammer said one of the most interesting situations would be when the Iowa football team is a popular choice in the game and Holzhammer must keep the Iowa fans from getting too excited. Holzhammer is a high school teacher and memorizes all the players on the field.

By Steve Bolshammer

Holzhammer said he is not a fan and I try to supply the enjoyment of the game. "I try not to get too close to the athletes. I've had some very close friendships with the athletes."

Holzhammer also says that the athletes will "spotters." He simply enjoys it.
