Carter softens election rhetoric

By Elizabeth Whitman

First Press, International

President Carter announced his campaign rhetoric Thursday but did not leave much of an impression after his speech, which focused on his environmentalism. The President's environmental agenda is a major issue in the campaign, and he won't have much of a chance to sell it if he doesn't get his message across.

"I'M GOING to be a very careful person about what I tell and how I tell it," he said. "I try to do it in a way that we make you proud of me," he added.

Leach: Carter missed his mark

"We may need to reassess the impact of our policies," Leach said. "We may need to rethink our strategy and perhaps change our approach."
$200,000 allocated to Sabin School

By L. Strout

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors Thursday afternoon voted $200,000 for Sabin School, which the county will own when it opens a new campus on the 1,138-acre site on the Nov. 1 ballot.

Supervisor Eldon Clark, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, said the decision was based on the fact that:

1. Sabin is the only county-owned school that the county can acquire.
2. The school is not in the state's public school system.
3. The county's financial obligations to Sabin are limited.
4. The county will receive a state grant of $50,000 for each pupil enrolled in Sabin School.
5. The county will not have to pay for the operation of Sabin School.

The Board of Supervisors voted to allocate $200,000 for Sabin School at its regular meeting Thursday afternoon. The funds will be used to purchase furniture, equipment, and other materials necessary for the operation of the school.

Local residents sue to protect property

By L. Strout

Several local residents have filed a lawsuit to prevent the building of a new jail in the area. The lawsuit was filed by residents who believe the proposed jail would be too close to their homes.

The residents claim that the new jail will be a safety hazard and that it will increase traffic congestion in the area. They also claim that the jail will be a negative influence on the community and that it will decrease property values.

Co-op's goal is total nutrition

By Christianne Bolt

The New Pioneer Co-operative is located in Redfield, Ia. and is a member of the Cooperative Extension and Services Network, a group of 28 organizations that provide a range of services to farmers, including education and information about nutrition. The co-op's goal is to promote healthy eating habits and to encourage people to make informed choices about the food they eat.

The co-op provides information on a variety of topics, including nutrition, health, and wellness. They organize events and workshops to educate people about the importance of a balanced diet and to help them make better food choices.

The co-op's mission is to provide a healthy and nutritious lifestyle for everyone. They believe that by educating people about nutrition, they can help them live healthier lives and reduce the risk of chronic diseases.

In addition to providing information, the co-op also sells a variety of healthy products, such as fresh fruits and vegetables, organic foods, and natural supplements. They also offer cooking classes and workshops to help people learn how to prepare healthy meals.

The co-op is committed to providing high-quality products, and they source their food from local and sustainable suppliers. They believe that by supporting local farmers and producers, they can help to build a healthy and sustainable food system.
Reagan's energy plan seen as clear correct interpretation of facts

To the editor:

I agree with everything Ronald Reagan says, but I fail to see how his conclusion that the United States must reduce its dependence on imported oil and gas is based on the use of methods that depart from the accepted norm. The opinion that physical violence are not the usual way for unions to express their influence is based on the use of norms.

An example can be found in Terry Jones and Barry Schindel's presentation to the American Psychological Association, (see, 31-25, 26), the article that states that violence is not the usual way to express influence. It is based on the use of norms. However, when the United States energy policy is reviewed, it is clear that the situation for the United States is not alone. In many cases, the United States' lack of energy policy for the United States and other countries is not alone.

Robert Plunkett

A hasty judgment

The U.S. Supreme Court has decided to review a lower court ruling that permits an economic boycott of states that have not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment. The decision may help create the additional pressure needed to persuade some states legislature to ratify the ERA. The three-year extension for ratification granted by Congress in 1974 is set to expire in 1977. If the ERA is not ratified in the meantime, some groups such as the ACLU-CDC and the Democratic Party, have attempted to influence the state legislature's decision that have not ratified the ERA.

The arguments against the boycott have ranged from legal issues, such as the contention that it illegally restrains trade and regulates federal and local laws, to moral concerns that it is unfair to punish those who support ERA along with those who do not. But the boycott is an important and effective tool. If the ERA does not approve of a company's labor policies, they often refrain from buying the product. The refusal to purchase items or services is a way for individuals and groups to register their opinions.

The ERA boycott 'effective'

The ERA boycott has been effective in the past, and it has worked well in other cases. The ERA boycott is a powerful tool for creating pressure on states to ratify the ERA. It is not a perfect solution, but it is a useful tool. The ERA boycott has been successful in the past, and it has the potential to be successful in the future.

City to resell homes bought for low-income housing use

School is in session, but the Old Capital grade school on 1st Street and Fourth Avenue on Cedar, stands empty.

Built in 1928, a two-year-old school for forty pupils from the first grade through eighth, the Old Capital school stood as the home of the Johnson County Historical Society in 1974, along with the Johnson County Heritage Museum.

"The school was open to the public for renovation while we were working on it," said Cedar, president of the Johnson County Historical Society in 1974. "It is open to the public for renovation while we are working on it."

The school's interior space will be leased to the society, as will part of the school's exterior, said Cedar.

"We have about 100,000 square feet of school. We've been told that the lot is 100 by 100 feet. We have a two-year-old school. We have a two-year-old school."

The society plans to bring together professionals from the community to assess the building's potential uses.

"We are going to try to get people knowledgeable in different areas, like anatomical historians and others, to give us advice," she said.

The school's renovation is funded by the Cedar Freedom Foundation and took part in the restoration of the site.

"The hallways had to be completely rebuilt using old and new honey, in some places," she explained. "It is amazing what the architects were able to do with the old building."

A majority of the building's structure was found to be historically accurate, said Cedar. "A school like that was designed to last for a long time." The building will be used as a exhibition center, said Cedar.

"We have talked about bringing together professionals from the community to bring together professionals from the community to assess the building's potential uses."
Plutonium fire in lab exposes eight workers

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — A lightning fire broke out at a Hanford Atomic Reservation representing laboratory Thursday, exposing eight workers to deadly radiation before the flames were brought under control.

The fire itself was quickly contained and caused no damage, but the lab and an adjoining hallway were infused with fumes of contaminated materials, officials said. Eight workers who were "lightly exposed" were treated and returned to the laboratory.

The Hanford Reservation has been a target of environmental action for its radioactive contamination and is open to the public for tourism and education.

A body scan was planned Friday to determine if the two workers requiring any treatment.

"They were packaging the plutonium in a plastic bag, which was punctured and then was set on fire," said one official.

Politics

When he was confirmed to the Senate, Kemp-Roth said he would emphasize ending "dramatic increases in tobacco taxes and excise duties." Grassley said it was always a concern to senators to address the Senate's tobacco industry.

Grassley and Kemp-Roth, both of whom benefited from tobacco support for their campaigns, supported a floor debate over tobacco tax increases."" (continued on page 1)

Grassley, criticizing Ronald Reagan's recent proposals, said he didn't plan to work for them. Grassley said the president's proposals were "wrong for the country and wrong for the Senate." "I do not believe in allowing the Senate to act on legislation that is not supported by the American people," he said.

Grassley, who has been critical of Reagan's tax cuts and support for the tobacco industry, said he would work to ensure that the Senate would not act on any legislation that he believes would harm the American people.

Grassley and Kemp-Roth were both praised by the tobacco industry for their support in the Senate. The industry has been a major contributor to both senators' campaigns.

Grassley, who has been a strong supporter of the tobacco industry, said he would work to ensure that the Senate would not act on any legislation that he believes would harm the American people.
If you think you could pick your beer with your eyes closed, here's your chance.

Probably just one beer drinker in 3 can pass this test.

All three major premium beers are distinctly different in taste. After all, they're made by different brewers using different ingredients and different brewing processes. Still, it takes a pretty educated tongue to tell them apart.

You may not win, but you can't lose.

This test requires a blindfold. That's so your eyes won't influence your mouth. Because taste is all that counts—in this test, and in a beer. Here's how the test works. You pour Schlitz, Bud and Miller into identical glasses. Have a friend label them 1, 2 and 3 and switch them around. Now, taste. The one you pick may not be your beer, but it's the beer with the taste you want.

See? You can't lose.

What is that taste you're tasting?

Maybe beer tastes so good because you're really tasting each sip more than once. First, the lively, refreshing character of beer comes from the aroma and flavor of the hops. Next, as you swallow, you sense the richness—the body—that barley malt adds. Finally, the finish. Now the balance of tastes becomes clear. No one taste should intrude on your total beer enjoyment.

How do Schlitz, Budweiser and Miller compare on taste?

That's for you to decide. Simply rate each beer from 1 to 10 on the flavor characteristics below. When you're finished, try to guess the brands by name. Very, very few people can do this.

Does the taste of a beer ever change?

Yes. All beers have changed over the years. One example is Schlitz. Two years ago a master brewer named Frank Sellinger came to Schlitz. He came to be president. And to brew a Schlitz that was smoother than any other beer. Taste that beer for yourself. Because taste is what it's all about.

Buildings Rabbits: New Old, Old New. Presenting an exciting exhibit exploring the adaptive use and unsung aspects of architecture and the built environment, opening Saturday at Old Brick. Sponsored by Thomas Lewis, an adept user and passionate admirer of Minnesota, Michael Nichols, a real estate consultant from Chicago, Robert Harvey, landscape architect at Iowa State University; Tommy Morden, exhibit writer, and Iowa City art critic and historian, Jeanna Smola, a realtor at Coldwell Banker, the exhibit is sponsored by "Alternative Use and Preservation of Our Architectural Heritage." From New York to Iowa, the exhibit will focus on the creative use of old-fashioned camera work, Hitchcock's style - the fiendishly good that is more than just a passing fancy.

The exhibit consists of 40 six-foot square (San Francisco), as well as 100 square foot panels. Each panel has both photographs and written text that will be able to tell the story of the buildings, a story that has been documented in the exhibit. The exhibit will also include a film that will be shown in conjunction with Buildings Rabbits.

ONE OF THE joint exhibits, "Pompeii at the CRTA," will open this weekend with an event on the new highway, taking the new ring road, I-380, from the I-80 interchange to the I-380 interchange at I-35. The expressway is open to traffic, and the exhibit will be open to the public from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday. The event will feature a series of films, historical reenactments, and a guided tour of the buildings. The event will be free to the public, and will feature a musical performance by the Iowa City Symphony Orchestra.

ALFRED Hitchcock bad made no film until about six years ago. And he never did it better than here. "The Birds," written by Daphne du Maurier and directed by Alfred Hitchcock, is a film that has become synonymous with the style of the master filmmaker. The film is a psychological thriller that explores the idea of being afraid of the unexpected.

The film tells the story of a group of people who are left stranded on a remote island after a storm. As the group tries to survive, they begin to notice strange, inexplicable occurrences. They realize that they are being stalked by a mysterious creature that seems to be targeting them. The group slowly begins to realize that they are not alone on the island.

Hitchcock's style is on full display in "The Birds". The film features an innovative use of music and sound. The film's score, composed by Bernard Herrmann, is a key element in the film's atmosphere. The score creates a sense of tension and unease, perfect for the film's themes.

The film also features a series of pivotal scenes. One of the most famous scenes is the scene in which the group is attacked by a flock of birds. The scene is shot from the perspective of the group members, making it feel like you are there with them. The scene is a perfect example of Hitchcock's masterful use of suspense.

"The Birds" is a film that is both entertaining and thought-provoking. It is a film that will make you think about fear, the unknown, and the power of suggestion.

No rest as Hawk women look ahead to busy weekend

The Iowa women's cross country and field hockey teams will have little time to rest this weekend. Both teams will be in action this weekend, with the cross country team competing at the NCAA Championships, and the field hockey team playing their final match of the season.

The women's cross country team will compete at the NCAA Championships on Saturday, November 17th. The team will be looking to defend their national championship, which they won in 2000. The championships will be held at the NCAA Cross Country Championships at the Indiana State Fairgrounds in Indianapolis.

The women's field hockey team will play their final match of the season on Saturday, November 17th. The team will be looking to win their first Big Ten championship. The team will play their final match of the season against the Michigan State Spartans. The game will be held at the Iowa Field Hockey Complex in Iowa City.

This weekend will be a busy one for the Iowa women's teams, with both teams competing in big events. The cross country team will be looking to defend their national championship, while the field hockey team will be looking to win their first Big Ten championship.
Alabama takes on 4-0 Rutgers

By United Press International

How about No. 8 this Saturday for the Crimson Tide? The Crimson Tide vs. the Scarlet Knights. Another big game for the Crimson Tide. Rutgers is 0-4, while Alabama is 5-0. The Crimson Tide will be looking to continue their winning streak against Rutgers. Both teams have 44 seconds, and a perfect score at stake.

In Alabama's last two games, the Tide clobbered Vanderbilt (5-0) and Alexander (5-1). Unhinged Rutgers had some good alloy on the base path last week.

Our sports talker last week with UCLAs should get back to track this weekend with a win over Virginia. Virginia's first-year coach in this season has been good news. Jones, Baltimore to test Bills' five-game win streak

NEW YORK (UPI) — and saw it fit José and the Baltimore Colts to reach the AFC Championship after five weeks of play, the Bills again the only team to stand in the NFL's National Football League and the AFC Championship after five weeks of play.

The Bills held off the New England Patriots in a defensive struggle to capture their first Super Bowl title.

The Bills, who lost 34-13 to the Miami Dolphins last week, were favored by 14 points in today's game. But in the first quarter, Bills quarterback Jim Kelly threw a 24-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Andre Reed, giving the Bills a 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Bills running back Thurman Thomas ran for a 2-yard touchdown, increasing the Bills' lead to 14-0. The Bills held on for the win, defeating the Patriots 24-13.

NFL roundup

Los Angeles Rams 27, St. Louis 17 — Vince Ferragamo, the NFL's leading passer, should have a good day against the weak Rams' pass defense. Rams are scoring the average.

Dallas 24, San Francisco 17 — Cowboys are riding on the back of quarterback Roger Staubach, but are facing a tough test against the 49ers' strong defense.

San Diego 27, Oakland 21 — Raiders' uptempo offense could be too much for the Chargers' defense, which is struggling.

Dave Wilson has won two football games or quarterback for Illinois, but his biggest victory this season came in the classroom.

Last Friday, the senior college transfer won an Illinois Supreme Court battle which allowed him to continue playing quarterback for the Illini this season.

The Big Ten had charged Wilson did not have enough academic credits to continue playing the sport he loved, and not meet adequate progress toward earning a degree.

But Wilson continued to be a junior. The quarterback broke his wrist after completing two passes for Peoria Central as a junior in 1977.

Wilson filed a lawsuit against the conference and has played under the agreement's temporary court order since Aug. 7.

The court hearing was heard by Illinois Supreme Court Justice James E. Brown on Saturday.

"I was very, very, very happy," Wilson said yesterday. "I felt I earned my degree at Illinois. It was a long, long process, but I'm glad I can stay." Wilson, 24, said he had kept in contact with both schools.

But a little attention from the Iowa conference

The fifth inning Thursday afternoon against Kansas City. Darrell Porter is catching.

Iowa quarterback beats Big Ten, foes

Dean's on Illinois' gridiron – not in the Navy

"I'm definitely pleased because I didn't get caught," he said. "I was pleased that the University Academic Board had access to the court."

But Dean said he stuck it out and is glad he did. He has high hopes for this season, despite three straight losses.

"A lot of people are ready to throw in the towel. We've come a long way here. They've come to us in preseason just out of the gate."

Dean, who has started every game this season, said he couldn't begin to play in the first three quarters.

"If you're going to do something better than the others, you've got to do it."

The Big Ten and the Navy are scheduled to meet this season.

"I'm very happy with the final decision."

Dean Lester on injured list

By Neil Christenson

Lester placed on injured list with Bulls; to miss five games

"I'm a little disappointed. I'm not going to have any kind of a great game from me."

Lester said he will be worn down after the game."

"I'm going to play okay, but my legs aren't as strong."

Lester said he was still in good condition."

"I think he was really giving his best effort."

"We're going to have a good season because the man is under pressure."

Lester's case will now go back to the present court in Chicago for a hearing on a permanent injunction.

"I'm glad the court has given me the opportunity to prove myself."

"I'm very happy with the final decision."

At the tailgate
There's more to it in a parking lot near Kinnick Stadium than just a big football game. Tailgating can be found in every corner of the Big Ten and NCAA stadiums, before and after the game.

"So what exactly is tailgating?"
"It's just a party!"
"But I thought it was just a way to have fun!"
"Well, it's both. But it's not necessary to have a tailgate party."

Many Iowa fans just go out to the tailgate to have a good time. They don't necessarily need a tailgate party. But others use it as an excuse to get together and have some good food.

Big Ten hobbles into conference

By Dick Peterson
Associated Press

It's not often that doubts are cast on the Big Ten, but the conference is in for some serious doubt these days. The Big Ten had a miserable non-conference season, losing to a series of mediocre teams and losing to a series of mediocre conference teams. The Big Ten has not been playing well, and many are questioning whether the conference is even good enough to be taken seriously.

THE RUOKIENS: The No. 3 team in United Press International's college football poll last week, was defeated by Minnesota on Saturday. The Gophers routed the Buckeyes, 31-10, in a game that was not close. Minnesota quarterback Dan Roof threw for 305 yards and three touchdowns, while Ohio State quarterback Steve Finlay threw for 230 yards and one touchdown.

MINNESOTA: The Gophers' next game is against the University of Wisconsin. The Badgers are one of the best teams in the conference, and they are expected to give Minnesota a tough game. The Badgers have a strong defense, and they are a team that is not easy to beat. The Gophers will need to play well if they want to win this game.

THE BIG TEN: The Big Ten is in trouble. Many are wondering whether the conference is even good enough to be taken seriously. The Big Ten has not been playing well, and many are questioning whether the conference is even good enough to be taken seriously.

Iowa, Illinois fail to meet high standards

Big Ten defeats No. 2 Ohio State, No. 8 Michigan State, and No. 25 Illinois at least until the Rose Bowl. This conference against rated teams and lose, but at least until the Rose Bowl. The Big Ten has been a disaster.

Janet and Bob Fan escape in football

By T. J. Schecter
Sports Writer

Enter Bob and Janet, respectable citizens from Waterloo, working at the local Ford plant. Bob, a huge Bears fan, has been breathlessly following their every move. But the fans are surprised to hear that the team is moving to Chicago, and a group of them, including their son, Tom, are going to Chicago to see the Bears play in person. They plan to make the trip by car, and Tom is excited about the prospect of seeing his favorite team in action.

Then one Friday afternoon, one of the fans, Mary, gets off the plane in Cedar Rapids and heads for Waterloo. She's there to see her son, Tom, play football at the local college. Tom is a star running back, and his team is favored to win the game. Mary is excited about the possibility of seeing her son in action.

On Saturday, the instant friends made at the drop of a "Bears beat them every bloody Marys Sunday" happen, you too can make the big push home. All that, and no one knows anyone else. No one, and you who jump in or out of cars, are the one ingredient that makes a football weekend.

ANONYMITY is a key ingredient. Bob and Janet, picked downtown for a dinner and had a couple of drinks before they were able to meet in Waterloo, where they live in a nice upper-middle-class neighborhood, but they would never dream that they are so close to something like La Dole Basil.

In Connecticut, they lived the definitive suburban lifestyle, with a nation-wide and TV meetings and a football team to call their own. But they look west through a real-life crisis of service when their son goes off to college, and who will put up with the drooling in the kitchen, unless leaving it to get back on and keep going.

There were more good points, however, like the $25,000 they got for the house in New Canaan, which brought a battle about whose the house is in Waterloo. Janet, through her fine organization and Mrs. La Dole Basil, made sure that the house gets taken care of, and Tom is back home in Iowa City.

The most comforting thing, according to Janet, was that they were not alone. A great many upper-middle-class suburbanites of the area are out of town, and each of them would have a house to go to, each one of them in a different part of the country.

Bob and Janet, no doubt, will be back in Waterloo when they're done, but they're ready for the next phase. Mary, now on the 45-yard line, should take a trip to Chicago. They'll be in the same hotel, the same hotel, drinking a bit and playing retiree with their buds.

That's football, and it sure beats the hell out of the Art of This Year.
You may be parking on history

By H. Farrel Wootard

If you leave your pickup parked in the lot behind the UI Main Library you can pretty sure that you have violated the site of one of the first Iowa football stadiums. Wilson said, "I don't think that anyone can say exactly where it was but it was definitely on the west side of the campus." Wilson went on to explain that the stadium was used for home games and that it was later replaced by a more modern facility. The stadium was originally used to accommodate the large crowd of fans that attended Iowa football games.

Permanent stadium seating was not common and seats were often reserved. The典型 north and south end zones had movable bleachers that could be moved to accommodate the larger crowd sizes. By 1925, there were even a couple of stands that enclosed the field.

ONE OF THE MORE primitive aspects of the first Iowa stadium was the lack of press box. Historically, the press box was a row of three seats, the middle being a table. As Wilson pointed out, "It was quite the thing to have this luxury." The press box was a row of three seats, the middle one being a table. It was quite the thing to have this luxury.

Iowa's first homecoming game was played in 1895. Unfortunately, the score was only 12-10. Despite the low score, the game was still a success and the Iowa football team went on to win their next game.

In 1968, the University of Iowa purchased a new stadium, Kinnick Stadium, which was designed to hold a crowd of 80,000 fans. The stadium was built in a perfect alignment and it could also be used for track and field events. The stadium was named for the Old Iowa Field and it has been the home of Iowa football since.

The Kinnick Stadium is the most important aspect of the history of the University of Iowa. It has been the home of the Iowa Hawkeyes since 1968 and it has hosted some of the most memorable games in NCAA football history.

Smarts set Big Ten in motion

By Harold Mitchell

ESPN Sport

It took a smart move to have the Big Ten conference change its rules on the field that is. The move of Iowa's game against Illinois to a televised game was a smart move on both sides. The Iowa Hawkeyes needed a win to keep pace with Ohio State in the conference standings, while the Illinois Fighting Illini needed to avoid a loss to keep pace with Northwestern in the Big Ten.

The match-up between the Hawkeyes and the Illini was a defensive battle, with both teams limiting each other to single digits in points. The Hawkeyes were able to capitalize on their opportunities and put together a solid performance.

In the end, it was the Hawkeyes who emerged victorious, winning 12-10 over the Illini. The victory helped Iowa to keep pace with Ohio State in the conference standings, while Illinois was unable to cushions their lead in the Big Ten.

The game was a testament to the talent and skill of the players on both teams. The Hawkeyes and the Illini both have talented rosters and it was an exciting game to watch.

Iowa tackle looks to pro game

By Dave Kueckhan

It's probably true that college football players dream about playing in the professional leagues. Matt Petrzelka is no exception.

"You've got to remember that only a small percentage of players make it to the pros," said Petrzelka, one of Iowa's three returning starters who will be making the pro bowl this year. "And when you add to that the fact that pro ball is a lot more money than college ball, you get a really big motivation to work hard and be a better player each day."

Petrzelka was recruited by Iowa's All-American Boomer Esiason, who said he was "a very special athlete. He's got the speed, the strength, the agility and the智慧 to play at the highest level."

Petrzelka has already shown his worth on the field this season. In his first start against Purdue, he recorded 10 tackles and 2.5 sacks. He also forced a fumble that was recovered by teammate J.B. Sharratt, who returned it for a touchdown.

"I feel like I'm ready for the next level," said Petrzelka. "I've been preparing for this my whole life, and I'm ready to take it to the next level."

Passing puts defense on edge

By Jay Christmas

Making the plan work — it's not easy. It's a lot of chess, really. Many coaches believe the way to beat defenses is to make them run to the wrong direction.

Creating that situation has been a challenge for Matt Petrzelka, who has been a key figure in Iowa's defense this season. "I think we've got a good defense," he said. "But we've got to keep working to get better."

The Hawkeyes have been successful in creating those situations, however. "We've got to keep working on our pass rush," said Petrzelka. "If we can get to the quarterback, we can pressure him and force him to make bad decisions."

In Iowa's 42-0 victory over Nebraska, the defense was superb. "We had a really great team effort," said Petrzelka. "Everyone was doing their job, and we were able to hold them to just 66 yards of total offense."

The defense was able to get to the quarterback, and they were able to force him to make bad decisions. "We had a really good pass rush," said Petrzelka. "And we were able to get to the quarterback and force him to make bad decisions."

The defense was also able to stop the run, and they were able to hold Nebraska to just 106 yards on the ground. "We had a really good job," said Petrzelka. "And we were able to stop the run and force them to make mistakes."

The defense was also able to stop the run, and they were able to hold Nebraska to just 106 yards on the ground. "We had a really good job," said Petrzelka. "And we were able to stop the run and force them to make mistakes."

Petrzelka is confident that the defense can continue to improve.

"We have a lot of young talent," he said. "And we're going to be able to develop that talent and make the defense even better next year."

The defense is looking forward to the challenge of facing some of the most difficult offenses in the country.

"We're going to have to be ready," said Petrzelka. "But we're going to be ready."
