Union seeks three new teachers

By Jackie Bayer

Since passing a resolution to boycott three faculty members, the UI Student Union has been trying to recruit an equal number of faculty members to teach the courses.

Samuel Becker, chairman of the Department of Communication and Theater Arts, said, "Students should be able to recognize who they want. We are always interested in student opinion."

But he added that the union has not received any "conceivable" interest from the faculty in offering courses. Becker said the union is trying to develop workshops for the spring semester, regardless of whether the official union schedule is revised or not.

Enrollment in the School of Journalism and Mass Communications has increased more dramatically. There are 601 students enrolled, an increase of 7.5 percent over last year and enrollment in three other arts departments has increased even more dramatically.

Enrollment in the Department of Communication - 30 more than last year - and Kenneth Lucas, director of the school, said there are 164 students majoring in the five-year-old communication studies program and the biology program are at an all-time high.

it's simply Grand!

Younkers' Old Capitol Center store in Iowa City opens its doors for your shopping pleasure 10 am today, December 8th.

Younkers SATISFACTION ALWAYS
Registration control

The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to decide whether all-man draft registration is unconstitutional. The justices will hear the government's position that draft registration discriminates against women, and women who have registered. Yet, if the draft registration will continue, the repercussions will be felt in all elections.

The case is another chance for the court to consider a situation in which women are being treated differently from men, and its decision is the most significant in many years that tampon makers will have more power than usual. But should the court reverse the decision, it is essential that the government be compelled to disclose the entire contents of tampons, if any tampons are involved in the lawsuit.

UI Senate innocent in religious bias suit

By Craig Dropslayer

Landsman told the complaint in Sep-ember when her name was deleted from the senate roll call after the reaning that senate minutes—a religion of the senate's constitution. Landsman said in her complaint that she argued was the senior student housing member serving the Jewish Student Root

Council. The last gains were recorded for the other three plaintiffs.

Landsman tried to get her name re-lected on the role call, but failed to obtain the required signatures necessary to do so.

A DFC report by the Human Rights

Commissioner minutes—"religious discrimination, either conscious or otherwise, was never a factor in the senate's failure to reinstate the complainant.

According to Laura Dougarn, a member of the commission, the allegations are being discussed with Landsman and the senate. Landsman stated in her complaint that she was required to constitute him.

The report also recommends that Landsman be to obtain a certification of the senate minutes, and that the minute of the person's name be deposited with the senate minutes.

This was the case because when

Landsman's name was deleted the DFC state that the minutes were not used, and that the minutes were not changed to reflect the senate minutes.

BECK said he will not seek the senate "to go back to the (petition) propammed for this case" because when

Landsman's name was deleted, the DFC said the petition was to open to the general assembly, not just to Landsman.

The commission's report also recommends that the senate review the procedures to determine whether or not they are adequate to protect the interests of religious holidays as an expected source, and if information is different from the present case, cause a serious constitutional crisis.

Rogerman said that on Thursday the senate may consider a constitutional amendment defining religious absence, and that confirmation of the decision will be one of the preclusions.

Slayings in El Salvador probed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — A top-level State Department team investigating the murders of four American nuns last week met Sunday with El Salvador’s three top military leaders.

The three-nun U.S. commission was also scheduled to meet El Salvador’s acting Archbishop Arturo Rivera y Darman, whose office had gathered information implicating government security forces in Tuesday’s slayings.

The Christian Democrat party threatened to quit the coalition legislature, already split with a third of some 65 million U.S. military and economic aid.

Moore said he called police when he saw the drums because of a story published in The Eleventh. The story said two 55-gallon drums containing toxic substances had been stored at an insurance company’s warehouse during the Union Bridge repair project.

Johnson County, Kansas, and U.S. health officials had not been notified of the drums. But government officials said the drums had been stored for more than a month in the warehouse.

Johnson County, Health Department Director Graham Dameron said he will investigate the drum’s presence.

Sun Devils torment Hawks in tournament

By Mike Hots

Arizona State proved to be too much of a rival host to the Iowa men’s basketball team Saturday night. The 3rd-ranked Sun Devils, without a 40 percent field goal percentage, owned the Hawks, 61-49, in the championship game of the Fiesta Classic in Chicago, Ill.

Dunn said Iowa’s aggressiveness was very good.

Dunn said, "We knew coming into the game that they were going to be a tough team to beat. They’re a veryagggressive team and we had to be ready for them."
