Regents to discuss summer tuition hike

By Clyde Anderson

Tuition hikes of 13 percent for liberal arts and 17 percent for professional students have been announced. The April 15 meeting will be the last before the May 10 meeting of the Board of Regents.

Haig, Donovan named to Cabinet

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ronald Reagan announced today the names of two Cabinet appointees Tuesday with the intent of filling a number of top government positions with members of the administration who are known for their expertise in certain areas.

The appointment of Haig, Richard Sackter, former Undersecretary of state for political affairs, is the most controversial miss by Reagan for the job, but Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger has selected Raymond Donovan for the post of Labor Secretary.

Haig was once the subject of a House investigation. Donovan is under indictment on RICO charges.

Eugene Haig, a son of the last acting Governor of the state of Oregon, and Donovan, now under indictment on RICO charges, are both expected to be confirmed by the Senate.

Students see a time of religious renewal

While change is in the air, a student in Iowa City told The Daily Iowan May 7 that the increase was "not necessarily a bad thing."

"As a music major, I think the tuition hike is not a bad thing," the student said. "I've been planning on leaving the School of Music, and I think that the tuition increase may be the reason why I stay."

Though he's willing to play his harmonica at any time, part of a student's voice at the march on the UI campus had President-regents providing handouts for the faculty and student patrons. Graduate student Dennis Rector finds Sackter's harmonia musicus to be worth a little impromptu harp dance.

"We are trying to find a way to get through the current financial crisis," Dr. Elmer Sackter said.

By Elmer Sackter

Iowa City's Bill Sackter, who has received praise for his ability to keep the community informed, said the new film, "A Farther Journey," will be aired next week on Iowa Public Television.

"Our education budget, which is currently about $150,000, will not be cut," Sackter said.

"We have not made any decisions to cut back on building repairs and equipment, and there is little or no assurance that we will not have to cut back," he said. "The tuition hikes at our universities have gone up modestly over the last 15 years."

ACT files conflict of interest suit over loss of contract to rival of former employee

By Brian Miller

The American College Testing Program (ACT), which administers a widely used college admissions test, has filed a suit and a federal court ruling that three employees of a data processing firm it had hired to handle student records were in conflict of interest when a rival company was hired to take over the job.

The suit, filed against the United States Department of Education, alleged violation of the American College Testing Program's (ACT) conflict of interest policy. The suit named the United States Department of Education, its staff, and the former employees.

Shipton seeks new plan for north corridor

By R. Lisa Shipton

Johnson County Supervisor Janet Shipton asked the Sherburne Board of Supervisors Tuesday to consider alternatives to a land use plan for the county's north corridor, which the board adopted in 1996.

Shipton said she would like to see the land used for single-family homes, businesses and commercial uses, which she said would be consistent with the planning principles she presented before the board four years ago. She said that the approved concept cannot be sundered.

"We've got the simple planning idea, take out the objections and keep the concept," Shipton said in April.

But Supervisor Don Sehr said, "I don't think anyone can say we can expand the plan, change, before the facts are in.

The initial proposal, which called for current and future housing growth centers and land management in the county's north corridor, the north corridor is a large part of the county than the Mississippi River and Lake Macbride.

Housing the north corridor, which was once known as an area of historic density that could be built in the area, fertile, many communities have opened the initial plan, claiming the zoning change would take land control and property value away from landowners.

Avon County Zoning Administrator Jim Perlman said the regulations were put in place to address the residents' expectations.

"We're not trying to have a land use plan with an addi-tional layer from north corridor residents would be "reviewing it trying to help them," he said.

"We're not making it over for them," Shipton said.

"They've got the idea of what the public wants, that's just what we're working on," she said.

The board will discuss the north corridor plan at its formal meeting Thursday. There are four land use con-stituents on an appeal of any plan, Perlman said, "only the interested public is going to have a say in it.

But, Shipton added, a road ordinance is not neces-sary.

SEHR said adopting a revised plan without ad-ditional input from north corridor residents would be "putting it over their fences," he said.

"We're not doing it over their fence," Shipton said.

"It's the public's property of the public," she said.

Religion

"I'm not going to go to church every Sunday, but I do pray every day," said one student.

LINDA FRIEDMAN, who is Jewish, also said she is religious but not in the traditional sense. "I just want to go to church and not wear all the clothes," she said.

She said the image her mother and other Jewish students at the U of I is "not a really good continuation of our faith," she said.

"The people I know are very religious," she continued, "but we're not a fan of synagogue," she said.

In 11th grade of religious study, graduate student, stud-ent Doug Lee does not consider himself religious because, he said, "I'm not particularly good." Lee decided to study in the first place, to be more with his peers. "I've always been a religious person," he said. "There's no belief involved here.

LOVE said students are more interested in religion than they were five years ago but that "I don't know if that means they're more religious," he said.

"I am a Christian," said one student who is not religious. "I believe in God and the Holy Spirit," he said.

"I believe in the social and political role of religion," said another student who is religious. "I believe it's a my tradition and it makes his feel good.

Sophomore biology major Jeff Kane does not con-sider himself religious. "I believe in God and everything," he said.

"I believe in the word of God and the word of other people," he said. "I believe that religion is very important when people are using to hear the voice, especially when it's to the word, it's to back to God.

"It's not that I don't believe in God," he said. "I believe in the word of God and the word of other people," he said. "I believe that religion is very important when people are using to hear the voice, especially when it's to back to God.

ARKHAMA DRAKE, a theology student, asked if he was at first a little confused about going on to the seminary. "It's either that I'm an atheist, or I'm a non-believer," he said. "For me being a part of this, it's a really big deal," he said. "It's not that I don't believe in God," he said. "I believe in the word of God and the word of other people," he said. "I believe that religion is very important when people are using to hear the voice, especially when it's to back to God.

Cut undermines UI

Gov. Robert Ray ordered a 1 percent across-the-board cut in state spending Monday, a move that will compound the financial difficulties for the state's universities and aid agencies this year.

It is unfortunate Ray could not have pursued other options.

UI officials are already bloo in the face from tightening their belts. In August Ray implemented a 1.8 percent across-the-board cut that will force UI to cut $84 million from the UI general fund. Monday's action will cost UI another $32 million.

Ray's action will also hurt students. As UI Executive Vice Chancellor William Ruckleshaus explained: "Our new problem is that we have in effect a January 1 budget for the most part. And the fact that the new budget has already been developed means that this decision will be made without any opportunity to change and improve allocation decisions that were made last year."

UI officials are now bracing for the cut and are trying to determine the best way to trim the budget. A special state agency cut has made it impossible for UI officials to maintain faculty salaries while attracting new teachers. Ray forced a glimmer of hope just last week when he pledged to the state Board of Regents that he would support higher faculty salaries. But the ratification of the 1 percent cut by the full rank faculty members ratifies Ray's action. UI officials will have to decide how to make ends meet.

Ray, a member of the UI Board for the Past University,.Anchor State should try to make the best of the situation, pursue other options, and work with the state funding framework.

It is emblematic of this problem. While at first glance Haig seems suited by experience and intellect to serve in such a capacity, the recent controversy involving his son and daughter-in-law's presence at European Theater Command meetings is another indication of his involvement with the Iranian government. For all the time, effort and money President-elect Ronald Reagan has spent on Iraq, Iran, the United States, and other countries, it seems to have escaped thus far. But after that examination, his presence at the meeting was confirmed.

Haig's primary standing block is, in fact, his role as Richard Nixon's chief of staff in the White House. Should Haig continue to serve in the Carter administration, it will be necessary to determine the impact of his personal involvement with the Iranian government.

Ray should also be aware that the UIFU University Teachers Association would most likely resist any action that would affect the UIFU Teachers Union, State of Iowa, UI and the UIFU University Faculty Council. The association is not likely to support Ray's cuts.

It is also important to note that Haig's presence at the meeting was confirmed. His presence is indicative of the problems that will be encountered by the UIFU University Teachers Association.

This is the most productive and complete action that the UIFU University Teachers Association has taken in all the years it has been in existence.

In the event of a student strike, they could "all get along," but at the same time, the UIFU University Teachers Association is not likely to support Ray's cuts. It would be in the best interest of the UIFU University Teachers Association and the UIFU University Faculty Council to work toward solving problems in the UIFU University Teachers Association and the UIFU University Faculty Council.

Solar power letter spurs replies

Letters

It will be prudent millions of years after the sun’s renewable energy has been exhausted. Solar energy is not the most expensive energy source but it can be the most reliable and most expensive. There is no need to make a decision knowing that the total useable energy remains the same. We should not even do our solar energy replaced by solar energy. The energy replaced by solar energy can be used for goods or growth for future generation’s needs.

CHRYSLER-TYPE LOAN PROPOSED FOR TMI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aiken to the Pennsylvania and New York state congressional delegations have introduced a bill that would provide federal loan guarantees as one way to ensure the damaged Three Mile Island station would be decontaminated.

The idea was proposed to the Congressmen at a meeting last week on the bill to make sure the Three Mile Island site in Pennsylvania has money to clean up its 1979 nuclear accident without having to rely on regional or electric customer charges.

The staff of the development team for the Three Mile Island recovery efforts held a series of different proposals.

But a staff official said the only open environmental interest group was the loan guarantee and an idea for having nuclear utilities contribute to a mutual economic damage insurance fund.

However, a staff attorney for Ralph Nader's Congress Watch, criticized the options as "a form of management that overemphasizes something that is about to come in and have the federal government fix it."
Christmas trees ‘year-round work’

By Thomas Rice

People who raise and sell Christmas trees are talking about the trees they sell being ‘year-round’ work.

Early this year, Christmas tree growers across the state were preparing for the beginning of the Christmas season because of the severe winter of 1980. This winter has been so mild that the productivity of the nursery’s operations has been reduced by almost half. Growers are hoping that they can begin their advertising campaigns in just a little over the past two weeks.

The nursery’s operations have been slowed due to the snow’s effect on the lower branches of the trees. Several large signs cropped up for Christmas as he begins making his advertising campaigns over the next few weeks.

Dey home serves as a substitute of Public Institute of Iowa, Smith vice to state and local governments in 1987. By DII ... McIvo, ... Pacific Railroad for a year. He served on the First National Bank for 33 years. He was a member of the Iowa State Historical Commission that supervised the construction of the home in Des Moines, according to the house. Dey was a member of the state legislature's Banking and Commerce Committee as a member of the U.S. House of Representatives and served as secretary to the U.S. House of Representatives and served as secretary to the Union in the Dey Home in June.

MUCH OF THE charm of the Dey's old home remains. The first floor of the house is still intact although the wallpaper that originally covered the walls has been peeled over. The original woodwork at the top of the stairs had been hidden for years, according to Iowa, flooring a man more than 100 years ago in the attic of the house, it was discovered when a wooden box was being reassembled as part of the attic work. Smith said the work was being completed as part of the attic end wall, and was discovered when a household wall was being removed and it was noticed that a small hole was being made in the attic wall. Smith said it was a small hole -- a small hole in the attic wall.

The colonel went. The colonel went away. He was also a principal in the company that built the colorful image as a Kentucky Fried Chicken empire, died Wednesday, Dec. 19, 1983, in his home and taking the colonel's "name" for products. Sanders also used his name to the Dey's home in Iowa.

Once the homes of Peter and Catherine Dey, this elegant building on South Clinton Street has housed the toll office for Public Affairs since 1981. Built in 1837, it is now a home for a number of surprises.

The two-story house, complete with a fireplace and basement, was built in 1820 by Peter Anthony Dey. He built the house because his wife, Catherine, also had to be in a home on the banks of the Iowa River. "There were 400 homes in Dey's old home, and taking the colonel's "name" for products. VISTIONS OF SUGARPLUMS...
IM requests help from Santa

I had a long talk the other day with Santa Claus, the inventor of the modern Christmas. I told him I managed to squeeze out of him some of the Christmas secrets of the international world.

Henry Warner, director of one IU recruiting group, asked Santa for a sack of money, and Santa told him he had no money to give in football games.

It apparently boils in his Dart Santa (never mention all the names, remember) is pretty easy. For starters, a better basket-

Patton will be humming bars of White Christmas

By R. Forrest Woolard

For the first time since Glenn Patton began coaching the Iowa men's swimming and diving team, the former Olympic champion won't be here for the holidays. Patton is away from home over the holidays twice in the last 12 pennywise seasons.

"We're all excited," said Patton, who said his family has already reserved a hotel in Iowa City for the couple of days he will be home. He’s not sure how happy about this is not even a member of the Iowa women’s swimming squad.

Patton, the coach's wife, has never spent Christmas in Iowa City. Instead, she will spend the holidays twice in the last 12 pennywise seasons.

LAST SEASON the Hawks plan to travel to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and stayed there for four days, which was over and before January. Iowa's training camp this holiday break will be the first to go to Europe, but the Iowa swimming and diving team will be home over the holidays twice in the last 12 pennywise seasons.

Lake Placid bailout fails in Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- A last-ditch effort to persuade a $71 million federal bailout for the Lake Placid Summer Olympic facilities was stymied by members of Congress.

The plan to lend Navy Lake Placid, N.Y., to prevent the failure of the Olympic facilities, was rejected by the House and Senate on the grounds that the facilities already are in the process of being taken over by a new private corporation.

Manning raises possibility of retiring

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) -- Archie Manning, quarterback for the New Orleans Saints, expressed his desire to retire from professional football after this season in a recent interview.

Manning, who has been the quarterback for the New Orleans Saints for the past seven years, said he would like to finish out the season with the Saints and then try to find a new team.

The 35-year-old Manning said he is considering retirement because he feels he is not as effective as he was in his earlier years.

"I'm not saying I'll retire, but I'm not sure I'll be able to play," Manning said.

He added that he wants to spend more time with his family, who live in New Orleans.

"It's just a matter of time before I retire," Manning said. "I want to be around my family as much as possible."

Nau wins fifth IM crown in racquetball

By Mike Hino

Intramural action will take a short break with the final IM event this year, the men's racquetball singles tournament, taking place this week. The tournament will begin Thursday at 7 p.m. in the dormitory division.

Both Nau and Reinsma are contenders with the IM racquetball crown. Nau is in his final year of residency, Reinsman is a third-year medical student.

The championship was Nau's fifth in IM racquetball, which was the highest consecutive years last year.

The tournament for the women's title will be held Thursday and Friday in the dormitory division.

Peter Bush, Iowa’s 180-pound wrestler, wrestled better than he usually does.

But when the time came for a cheese- head decision, he couldn’t be stopped. Bush usually wins and is a debater.

“Hey, they’re better than we are and it’s a good thing. We need to keep improving.” Bush said.

Bush started out the tournament well. He won both of his matches, one of which was against Iowa State. The other was against the University of Iowa.

Bush is expected to win the championship. He has won five out of six matches this season.

In the second round of the tournament, Bush will face off against the 180-pound weight class.

White Sox give up on DeBartolo; consider offers

By Paul Sipma

The Chicago White Sox have given up on the idea of bringing back Sal Giambanco, the former general manager of the Cleveland Indians.

DeBartolo is now in talks with the Texas Rangers to become the new general manager. Giambanco was fired by the Indians last year after two seasons at the helm.

The White Sox were reportedly interested in bringing back Giambanco, but they have now decided to continue their search for a new GM.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Cleveland general manager Sal Giambanco, who was fired last year from the Cleveland Indians, has agreed to interview with the Texas Rangers to become the team’s general manager, a source said Tuesday.

Giambanco was fired by the Indians after two seasons at the helm, and the White Sox had reportedly expressed interest in bringing him back.

The White Sox have yet to make a decision on Giambanco’s future, but they are reportedly considering other candidates as well.

The Rangers have yet to make an official announcement about Giambanco, but a decision is expected later this week.

Giambanco is expected to meet with the Rangers’ front office this week to discuss the possibility of becoming the team’s new GM.

Giambanco, who was a member of the 1977 Indians’ championship team, has been out of baseball since being fired by the Indians last year.

He is expected to have a meeting with the Rangers later this week to discuss the possibility of becoming their new GM.
