Lines, no matter how you travel

GULF COAST, Fla. (AP) -

Flights into Disney World this holiday season are filling up fast, with travelers who have waited months to secure seats now finding they have to pay more for the privilege.

"We are looking forward to a very busy holiday period," said Charlie Gagliardo, United Airlines' vice president of marketing. "Although some seats are still available on several flights, the week of Christmas is in demand," he added.

Gagliardo said United's schedule was full by mid-November and that as of Dec. 2, there were only about 1,000 seats still available on the airline's December schedule.

"If the person hasn't made reservations by now, they may not get a seat," he said.

Disney officials said they were working with airlines to provide additional flights for the holiday season.

"As we go to press today, we have not been able to secure an additional flight," said Disney spokeswoman Lisa Soll."
Christmas spirit slowly evaporates for striking feed company workers

By Bobbi Thompson

Three union workers at Wayne Feed Inc. in Carroll will probably spend this Christmas apart from their families, in jail, instead of celebrating the holiday. The workers were arrested last week in the third of a series of similar incidents in Iowa and Missouri.

The two-week strike began after the company rejected a contract that expired Dec. 1. The next negotiating session is set for Dec. 23.

Union representatives Gary Weber said the employees are asking for comprehensive health insurance and a $250 across-the-board pay increase. Allied Miller Inc., the parent company of Wayne Feed, recently awarded employees of a Sherman City and a Grinnell company with two 18 percent raises. Iowa workers were offered only 10 cents, according to a worker who asked to be identified.

"We, the workers, said, "we'd just like to talk,"" and were told the company's attorney asked if the workers were going to be identified. ""Go tell the employer, 'we're going to be identified,'"" one worker told an employer.

""You've had bad fortune, it's going to be identified,"" another worker told the employer.

Miller said the board went over the offers and decided to settle for a 70-cent raise and a pay raise. The sad thing is the workers have to pay for the board's decisions,"" he said.

Miller said the workers were upset by the board's decision. ""When contract negotiations opened,"" he said, ""the board made a decision to not pay the workers. And now the workers are upset because the board's decision is going to cost them money,"" he said.

Financial aid needs

Quickly acting upon Iowa Gov. Robert Ray's order that the state budget be cut 1 percent across the board by Jan. 1, the Board of Regents decided to raise tuition for the fall semester in response to rising costs from 13.3 to 14 percent, which the regents had promised for the 1979 fall semester, now will be behind hundred students, too.

Because the increase was taken as tightly — Ray's administration Monday was followed by regents action Wednesday — the question of additional student financial aid was not adequately addressed.

This is already a note issue for students. When the board formturally approved tuition increases in October, student government representatives asked that financial aid also be raised. The regents will ask the Iowa Legislature for an additional $30 million in UI state financial aid for each year of the 1980-81 biennium, but this is small consolation to many UI students who are struggling with the rising costs of housing and food. Some students can

Child support change

The Iowa Supreme Court, in what appears to be a landmark decision, has ruled that an Iowa City woman should receive child-support payments of $300 per month. The court's decision will allow district court judges to write in an escalator clause in child-support payments in the case of continued divorce.

The formula discussed in the court opinion would have the automatic increases in the paying spouse's salary increases and the Consumer Price Index in the formula. By allowing an automatic increase in support payments with the spouse's salary and the CPI in the formula, the court should protect the paying spouse from an excess amount.

The court decision plays an important role in two other areas.

First, it protects the spousal spouse and ensures that the children will receive adequate support. Finally, more significant, however, this decision would place the responsibility of raising children which will help alleviate tension among divorced parents and their children. Very low increases in payments could be seen as a punishment to parents who already have agreed to an escalator clause. This result may have ended the practice in divorce proceedings of a discretion clause

by allowing judges to consider a cost of living clause for child-support payments which have been eliminated.

The court has taken a positive step in finding ways this landmark decision, which should strengthen efforts to ensure that children of divorced parents are adequately supported.

A dubious choice

Jackie Preiser, a Teamsters vice president from Cleveland, earlier this week was named "musician-administrator" to President-elect

Ronald Reagan's transition task force for economic issues.

Unfortunately, the key witness in an embezzlement case has linked Preiser with organized crime. Preiser was also named in a suit filed by the Department of Labor against trustees of the Teamsters pension fund and health and welfare fund. The suit charged Preiser, Teamsters President Frank Fitzimmons and others with mismanagement of the funds.

Preiser's appointment to the Reagan team, and the type of influence he will have in economic policy-making, must be questioned. Although Reagan must be concerned with the problems facing organized labor, this appointment is a political wound that he need not inflict on himself.

The Teamsters union was the first and largest labor organization to endorse Reagan's bid for the presidency. If Reagan wishes to establish ties to labor organized, it would make more sense to choose a labor leader who is sympathetic to labor and hope for future support from the group. Choosing Preiser was either indicative of political realism or a calculated move to win a foot in the door of a president who was a federal wase of a president's of state's public good. Reagan will need that capital for more important matters.

Indulging in a fantasy plan for improving government

To the editor: I'm not sure if Senator Dineen's campaign promises clearly being the world of fantasy. He promises that his fantasies can be fulfilled by a Cabinet route of honest, hardworking businessmen. Dineen then goes on to say that he has to establish his government at the level as high or as low as his ambition. I suggested that the sole ambition of this level is to lower his ambitions very little. I suggested that the sole ambition of this level is to lower his ambitions very little.

Transportation

The Universal Bus Depot was closed this week as a result of a strike by the drivers. The drivers are seeking a pay increase of $1.50 per hour and an additional $1.00 per hour for overtime. The company has offered a pay increase of $1.00 per hour, but the drivers have rejected it.

The drivers have been on strike since Dec. 18, and the company has hired replacement drivers. The drivers have been seeking a settlement for several weeks, and the strike has caused shortages of buses in some areas.

Jenkins guilty on drug charge

The Daily Iowan
Friday, December 16, 1980 — Iowa City, Iowa 8

Jenkins was arrested Aug. 31 and charged with possession of four grams of cocaine, 300 grams of marijuana and two grams of hashish. Police seized in written evidence that drugs were found in his luggage at Toronto Airport. Jenkins pleaded guilty to the charge of possession of cocaine, but denies defense lawyer Bill Gromesko revealed the evidence was collected during searches of Jenkins' luggage at the request of Judge Young. Then rejected that he bad no evidence, but told Jenkins guilty on the basis of his evidence. The prosecution agreed to drop the charge of possession of marijuana and hashish. In his final ruling, however, Young found Jenkins' evidence in a routine search that he did not serve the public interest in arresting Jenkins and give him a criminal record.
