County weed control policy criticized

By Lyne Moyer

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing Monday evening to consider the adoption of a county-wide weedicide policy. The hearing will be held in the Room of the Justice Center, 101 N. Washington St., at 8 p.m. The only agenda item on the meeting agenda is to hear public comments on the county weedicide policy. The board will make a decision on the policy during the meeting. The policy would apply to all properties within the county, including homes, businesses, and public areas. The board has been considering the policy for several months and has received input from various stakeholders. The policy would establish a standard approach to weed control, ensuring a consistent and effective approach across the county. The public hearing provides an opportunity for residents to voice their thoughts and concerns on the proposed policy. The Johnson County Board of Supervisors encourages community members to attend the hearing and participate in the discussion. The meeting will be open to the public and will take place at the Johnson County Courthouse, located at 101 N. Washington St., Coralville, Iowa. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

NEWER FIGURES FOR UI released

By Bob Lamby

Minority figures at UI released

Minority students made up 5.9 percent of the UI student body, according to a national survey showing the number of Hispanics at universities around the country. The figure compared with a 1.3 percent increase in enrollment of minority students at UI in 2004 and 2.4 percent at the University of Iowa.

The increase in minority enrollment is a result of the state's budget and the University's commitment to diversity, said UI President George Burges. "We're really pleased with the growth in minority enrollment at the University," he said.

DOUG NEESER — State Comptroller Ronald R. Neeley said the "worst of the recession is over" as state revenue grew at a 5 percent rate last month.

The figures indicate further budget cuts will be needed this year, Neeley said. Legislative Finance officials confirmed the figures to Neeley during a meeting Tuesday.

Neeley said he was tacking to keep his prediction the state revenue will fall 62 million dollars this year because of further budget reductions.

State revenue for January was down 1.0 percent, but Neeley attributed the drop to an additional week in which to count the receipts in January 1988. On the third week of January, receipts were up 1 percent. He pushed out that potential problem on to the former eight-day pattern used for the previous larger-than-normal figures.

These projections suggest that the state revenue for the month will be higher than expected.

For the first seven months of this fiscal year, state revenue was up 1 percent, compared to the previous 1 percent increase in the first five months.

"This will improve as the fiscal year goes on," Neeley said. "We'll see if this is the start of a trend or not."
Better late than never

Gov. Robert Ray has left a vacancy on the state Board of Regents, the board that governs the University of Iowa, when Regent Constantine Beil died. Ray promised to appoint a new regent by early January, but now has decided to wait until the state legislature convenes on Jan. 9 to review the candidates he will be considering - a serious oversight.

The board is an important state body that governs the three state universities, the Iowa Board and State University in Des Moines and the Iowa State University of Science and Technology. It is responsible for setting spending priorities for these institutions and for preparing an annual budget for the Board of Control.

The regents lobby for passage of legislation favorable to regents' concerns and raise money to support their institutions are involved. The regents decide, for example, to increase tuition by up to 15 percent of the fiscal year 2000 rate. The state treasurer's office, as a result, is being reviewed by an outside consultant for more than seven months - and it will be nine months by March 13. Failure to choose a new regent continues to leave the board short by 4 to 4½ key positions.

Rather than appointing one new regent, Ray will be replacing four regents at once, which will drastically change the make-up of the board. This decision may be politically expedient, but it is in a poor choice. Ray should have added another voice to the board last semester - before crucial decisions on tuition and budget matters had to be made.

Council defers services funding

The Iowa City school board Tuesday night rejected a proposal to cut $175,000 from the 1982-83 school budget, to order budget cuts.

"Some board members disagreed that the issue needs to affect the city," said board member Lynne Cannon. The district will hold two public meetings on the proposed $5 million budget on April 8 and April 22.

Ohio State University employees contributed to the school board meeting on Wednesday. The university's budget is $28.7 million, with 10 percent of its employees contributing to the school budget.

The board recommended that the budget cuts be made to the school board by the 1981-82 school year.

Smiley and Day to read fiction

By Pamela Merck

"In the title of the novel" will be executed, at least, in a 15-page, two-part piece. This is a special one, ranging from the beginning to the end of the work. The story begins with a brief essay on "the novel," followed by a series of short stories and a brief essay on "the work." The story ends with a biography, which is a short piece about the author. The book is a collection of essays, written by notable novelists, including the author, on the art of fiction and the craft of writing.

Robert Day

In addition to their teaching duties at the university, Robert Day has been the author of three novels. "It's a tough business, but I have a lot to learn about things like poetry and prose." The day was invited to the U.S. on the recommendation of her former mentor, whom he had met while working as a structural engineer.

Former hostage sues Iran

WASHINGTON — A Marine sergeant captured at the Iranian Embassy in Tehran has filed a $420,000 damage suit against the Iranian government for illegally arresting and deporting him to and from Iraq where he was held.

The suit, filed Monday in U.S. District Court in Seaford, Del., charged Iran conspired with the United States and Iran under which the 52 American hostages were freed. It is believed to be the first suit filed by a former hostage and challenges the agreement between the States and Iran to deprive the hostages of their human rights.

The suit said the Iranian government did nothing to prevent militants from seizing the embassy Nov. 4, 1979.

Persinger, one of the Marine security guards, captured from his companion to deprive the hostages of their human rights as it is yet "unilateral recognition of the grievances against the former Shah of Iran and the United States.

The suit stated Persinger was repeatedly interrogated and accused of plotting against the Iranian government, and denied with opportunity to firing squad.

WASHINGTON — A Marine sergeant captured at the Iranian Embassy in Tehran has filed a $420,000 damage suit against the Iranian government for illegally arresting and deporting him to and from Iraq where he was held.

The suit, filed Monday in U.S. District Court in Seaford, Del., charged Iran conspired with the United States and Iran under which the 52 American hostages were freed. It is believed to be the first suit filed by a former hostage and challenges the agreement between the States and Iran to deprive the hostages of their human rights as it is yet "unilateral recognition of the grievances against the former Shah of Iran and the United States.

The suit said the Iranian government did nothing to prevent militants from seizing the embassy Nov. 4, 1979.

Persinger, one of the Marine security guards, captured from his companion to deprive the hostages of their human rights as it is yet "unilateral recognition of the grievances against the former Shah of Iran and the United States.

The suit stated Persinger was repeatedly interrogated and accused of plotting against the Iranian government, and denied with opportunity to firing squad.

IM officiating not an easy job

Quite often the Temporal Office gives the idea for this column. Last month the Fifth Earth was given a cuckoo clock. This year, however, it seems to be in the office, and the task is to fill in some of the holes with the help of the Daily Iowan.

Now, the officiating of the IM office is actually a very difficult one. Not only are you expected to be fair, but you must also be prompt and accurate. Some of the answers that have been turned in recently are not up to par.

Not this time. I'm not going to give off any Eloqua of myself or any of the other IM officers. I'm going to give off my own ideas on how to improve the officiating of the IM office.

First of all, I think that the IM officers should be more fair. Some of the answers that have been turned in recently are not up to par. I think that the IM officers should be more fair. Some of the answers that have been turned in recently are not up to par. I think that the IM officers should be more fair. Some of the answers that have been turned in recently are not up to par.

Second, I think that the IM officers should be more prompt. Some of the answers that have been turned in recently are not up to par. I think that the IM officers should be more prompt. Some of the answers that have been turned in recently are not up to par. I think that the IM officers should be more prompt. Some of the answers that have been turned in recently are not up to par.

Finally, I think that the IM officers should be more accurate. Some of the answers that have been turned in recently are not up to par. I think that the IM officers should be more accurate. Some of the answers that have been turned in recently are not up to par. I think that the IM officers should be more accurate. Some of the answers that have been turned in recently are not up to par.

I hope that this column has helped to improve the officiating of the IM office. I think that it has. I hope that this column has helped to improve the officiating of the IM office. I think that it has. I hope that this column has helped to improve the officiating of the IM office. I think that it has. I hope that this column has helped to improve the officiating of the IM office. I think that it has.
Iowa’s Waite aiming for ‘inside instict’

By Mike Ford

Statisticians may know what to do with numbers, but it was a group of women who put the highest figures on the board on the concentrated Tuesday night’s effort of the Bulldogs’ 10-6-35 loss to the Iowa Hawkeyes.

The Hawkeyes’ 63-62 win Tuesday night was a result of a lot of hard work. When Iowa Coach Judy McMullen said, “It’s been hard for him to get playing time this year but he’s going to do just fine,” it wasn’t a surprise. He’s a smart player. He doesn’t make many dumb mistakes to the box. Waite bad 10 points and his Waite sure paid off. Krafcisin points and Waite’s good, too.

In Iowa’s loss to Illinois Saturday in Champaign, Olson said one out of the four bright spots was the correct percent. Waite had a few points when Iowa lost.

“I’ve been concentrating on making points and not being smart,” Krafcisin said. “I’ve been doing my best to develop my shooting ability and learn how to play against big teams.”

McMullen said she was pleased with her team’s performance overall. “We played with a lot of energy and were able to get back into the game,” she said.

The Hawkeyes led by 11 in the first half, but Iowa fought back to take the lead in the second half.

“Iowa shot better than we did,” McMullen said. “They had a lot of open shots and we had a hard time stopping them.”

The Hawkeyes were led by Olson with 10 points and Waite with eight. Krafcisin had six points and Davis four.

“Iowa’s loss to Illinois was a wake-up call,” McMullen said. “We need to play better if we want to compete against the Big Ten teams.”

The Hawkeyes next game is against Purdue on Friday night in Iowa City.
