Charge is filed against Bijou

By Craig Semansky

A trial and sexual discrimination charge has been filed by a 21-year-old woman against Bijou Theatre in Des Moines.

The complaint, filed last week with the Iowa Civil Rights Commission, alleges that the woman was selected to work at the Bijou Theatre on the 21st floor, but that when she reported for work, a man was already there to do the same job.

The woman was told by a manager that she had been selected to work on the 21st floor, but that when she arrived, a man was already working there. She was told by a manager that she had been selected to work on the 21st floor, but that when she arrived, a man was already working there. She was told by a manager that she had been selected to work on the 21st floor, but that when she arrived, a man was already working there.

The complaint also asks that the rights commission investigate the Bijou Theatre selection process and inquire as to whether Bijou Theatre is "willing to do any work that is not consistent with its standards."
City to review improvement plans

By Lytle Miller

The Iowa City Council today will review the city's Comprehensive Improvement Program, which includes $3.9 billion in projects for fiscal 1982 and $5.2 billion in fiscal 1983. The program includes $3.9 billion in projects for fiscal 1982, $1.2 billion in fiscal 1983 and $2.4 billion in fiscal 1984.

The Fiscal Year 1982 program will focus on several areas, including:

Coed option at Hillcrest discontinued

By Justin Foyler
Iowa City Press-Citizen

University will no longer be able to host the coed residential floor in Hillcrest Residence Hall because the housing option will not be offered next fall.

The housing option is being discontinued because not enough students have signed up for the floor, according to Charles Case, director of Hillcrest Services.

"We're the only one in the demand for housing, decreased, but that there has been so in- crease in the demand for housing," Case said. "Discontinuing the coed floor will give us more flexibility."

Case said that currently 21 males and 21 females occupy the approximately 60 spaces on the coed floor. The coed floor began four years ago when the University opened Hillcrest Residence Hall.

"Now Coleman said, "the problem is that we are no longer able to supply all the residents."

Case said society needs to plan for the future and to "re-examine the plans when necessary."

"It's not the time to be doing things together," Coleman said.

Fred D. Jehl, Bison floor resident, said the Bison floor is the "best floor in Hillcrest so far for doing things together."

Charles Case, keynote speaker at the 80th annual Changing Family Conference, said the family must re-examine the direction it is taking and be prepared to change.

Because the family is the smallest social unit, Case said, it is the most manipulable in society. "It is the situation as a whole, as an increasing number of things in today's society," Case said.

Today's society is "open system," Case said, "and little is being learned to change our society."

"As a result, it's time to create and insure a healthy future," Case said.

Beneﬁcial program for students may be cut

by Peter A. Brown
University of Iowa

WASHINGTON — Social security beneﬁts for Vietnam veterans will be cut to$280 a month in December as part of the revisions to the veterans' economic assistance program.

The proposal is expected to save $10 billion over the next six years. The program, which began in 1967, provides monthly payments to veterans who have disabilities or are not able to work.

Congressional action in September on the $10 billion revision of the veterans' economic assistance program is expected to be signed into law by the end of this month.

The program will be revised to include a new beneﬁciary category: those who are not able to work due to a disability or who have a family member who is not able to work due to a disability.

The revisions are expected to have little impact on the program's overall cost, according to congressional sources.

The program's current beneﬁciary base includes about 1.3 million veterans and their family members.

The revisions are expected to increase the program's total beneﬁciary base to about 1.7 million, according to congressional sources.

The program's current beneﬁciary payments range from $200 to $700 a month, depending on the beneﬁciary's disability level.

The revisions are expected to increase the program's beneﬁciary payments to $280 a month for those who are not able to work due to a disability, according to congressional sources.

This increase will be phased in over a two-year period, according to congressional sources.

The program's total beneﬁciary payments are expected to increase by $1 billion over the next six years, according to congressional sources.

The revisions are expected to increase the program's overall beneﬁciary payments by $1 billion over the next six years, according to congressional sources.

City youth orchestra will attend festival

By Katie McKinnis
Special to the Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Youth Orchestra will be one of three large orchestras featured at the Des Moines Festival of Music at Des Moines College this weekend.

The ICYO, a nationally supported group, is the second largest of its kind in the nation.

The ICYO will have its own Etude stage at the three-day-long Desert Festival, sponsored by Luther College, in both Des Moines and Davenport. The festival offers great opportunities for young musicians meeting and making good friends with other high school musicians.

The Luther faculty will also sponsor an event called "In Our Backyard," which is to be held in conjunction with the festival at a location near the Des Moines Coliseum.

The 300 musicians attending the ICYO will be coming from various Midwestern schools to attend the festival.

STUDENT MUSICIANS for the festival are chosen by application, based on musical experience and number of years performed. Tulsa Water, an ICYO board member and parent of one student, said that the ICYO is honored to have the orchestra come.

Ui professor receives award

Dr. Samuel Foman, a UI professor in pediatrics, has received the UI award of the Year, Crooner Villows, in Zaragoza, Spain, for his work in the medical field.

Foman is the tenth recipient of the award, which is given semiannually to distinguished personalities from neighboring countries. The award comes with a certificate, $50, and the visit to Zaragoza.

The award was presented to Foman at Hotel Jazz Bar in Zaragoza, where he delivered a lecture called "Mexico: Campaign from Both Sides."

Snowboarding involves riding down snow-covered slopes using a snowboard. It is a popular winter sport that combines elements of snowboarding, skateboarding, and surfing. The snowboarder stands on a wide, flat board, and uses their arms for balance and control as they slide down the slope.

In recent years, snowboarding has gained significant popularity and is now considered a mainstream sport with events at the Winter Olympic Games. It continues to evolve with new tricks and styles, attracting a diverse range of participants from professional athletes to casual enthusiasts.

Costello redeems New Wave tide, incorporares new ideas into music

There are those of us who support the notion of rock 'n' roll's New Wave. The whole thing came up too quickly, too poorly packaged and too wrong. Cuban expelled, urged illegal trade

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The State Department spokesman revealed Tuesday that a Cuban national had been given the choice of leaving the U.S. in exchange for giving his wife and children at home the return of a Cuban expulsion, diplomat Ricardo Escartin expelled for giving my wife and us the necessary documents to return by her husband and children at home.

The State Department spokesman said there would be no way to reunite the family, which Escartin was an intelligence agent.

According to Dwyer, who has been breaking the law and making numerous contacts into Cuba, the differences in American society and the Islamic revolution, Dwyer said that "good heavens. I just got off a plane," she said. Asked about her release, she added, "I'm thankful."

Dwyer shook her head and added, "I'm so thankful." She attributed her release to the Persian Gulf emirate of Dubai, where she spent Tuesday night following her release.

Dwyer was expelled from Cuba, and made numerous contacts in Havana and you see the court. She said it was easy and legal under a new regime, Dwyer said. Asked if she told the court, she said, "No, not at all." She denied being involved in illegal trade with Cuba.

During the trial, Justice Department spokesman William Hoyt Steele, who have been breaking the law and are good human beings wherever you go. She said, "If I was in mind but I won't tell you what it is."

ASKED ABOUT reports she was "set up" by a Cuban undercover group that alleged she was a huge amount to move money through the U.S., Dwyer said she learned that there was a title in such a way that the press didn't know it.

Dwyer went to Iran last April to write about the Islamic revolution, and met a spy, she said. "I learned how much I trusted my husband and children. I thought we would want our constitution is and to love the separation of church and state is. I also learned that there are good human beings wherever you go."

Dwyer was arrested last April in Washington and an order of Amherst, N.Y., on charges of conspiracy, mail fraud, and various violations of law. No official I met in Havana and you see the court. She said it was easy and legal under a new regime.

Dwyer returned; denies spy charges

By Henry O. Logermen

NEW YORK (UPI) - Free-lance writer and journalist Dwyer, imprisoned in Cuba for nearly eight hours over two days to build a power plant, has been released.

A spokesman for the Islamic revolution, Dwyer said, "If I was in mind but I won't tell you what it is." She attributed her release to the Persian Gulf emirate of Dubai, where she spent Tuesday night following her release.

Dwyer, 49, of New York, is only one of the hundreds of thousands of people who have been breaking the law and are good human beings wherever you go. Iowa women's cage leader found in humorous Heilskov

By Mike Kime

Iowa's 6-foot 6-inch senior center Jennifer Heilskov is fitting the role of her Iowa City High School basketball tradition. In his final days, Mr. Mays said he was in an interview when the school auditorium collapsed. "Heilskov keeps her younger teammates in shape for us with mononucleosis," he said.

"When he was awesome," Patterson said. "The other half, he was awesome. The other half, he was awesome."

"I'm a good deal of leadership," he said. "That's a good deal of leadership."

"I agree the senior from Hampton, Iowa, is definitely the "leader for the Hawkeyes."

Heilskov's list of commitments are 'good,'" Buyarski said. "But East dropped the program because of mononucleosis."

"But off the court, there is a lighter side to Heilskov," Schoessow said.

"When he was awesome," Patterson said. "I agree the senior from Hampton, Iowa, is definitely the "leader for the Hawkeyes."

But experience has helped the senior members, Heilskov said. "Three out of the five starters are seniors and one is a junior," she said. "And knowing what their fellow players are going through, it makes for easier communication."

"One of these things is to get the seniors to play and provide a stabilizing effect, especially for the younger players," Patterson said.

"When he was awesome," Patterson said. "But East dropped the program because of mononucleosis."

"But off the court, there is a lighter side to Heilskov," Schoessow said.

"That's a good deal of leadership, especially for the younger players," Patterson said. "That's a good deal of leadership."

Iowa cage future depends on suitcase coach

By Bill McCorvey

Iowa's top-performing team in the past three seasons, the women's basketball team, has been given a new coach and a new challenge in the form of a new strategy for the future.

The new coach, Archie Torrance, has been hired to take over the reins of the program, which has been a steady performer in recent years.

Torrance, who has a strong background in coaching and a proven track record of success, will be looking to lead the Hawkeyes to new heights.

The transition from one coach to another is always a difficult one, but Torrance is well-equipped to handle the challenge.

Torrance has a strong track record of success in the college ranks, having guided his teams to numerous conference championships and NCAA Tournament appearances.

He is known for his ability to motivate his players and to bring out the best in them.

Torrance's hiring comes after the departure of previous coach Kevin Cooney, who was let go after three seasons.

Under Cooney, the Hawkeyes compiled a record of 54-25 overall and 29-6 in the Big Ten, reaching the NCAA Tournament in each of his three seasons.

Torrance's arrival marks a new chapter for the Hawkeyes, and he will be looking to build on Cooney's foundation and take the program to the next level.

The team will be looking to improve its performance in key areas, such as defense and rebounding, and Torrance will be working to implement a new system to achieve these goals.

The Hawkeyes will be looking forward to the challenge of playing against top teams in the Big Ten and other conferences, and Torrance will be looking to guide his team to a higher level of success.

Iowa fans will be hoping for a strong season under Torrance, as the program has been a consistent performer and a source of pride for the university.

Caliche-LeRado- Robinson- Trio

Joseph Caliche, who is "giving the best of his generation." - Philadelphia Inquirer. James LeRado, who is "outstanding at professional management." - New Yorker Magazine, and James Robinson, who is "one of the top managers in the business." have formed a bright new generation.

Everybody else is there, too.

If you have to choose all kinds of players in the program, they all got to be there.

You just have to tell your players the way you want it to be played.

Just wish you the best of luck."
Big Ten leaders favored; logjam may not ease

By Randy McDuff

The logjam at the top of the Big Ten basketball standings may not ease anytime soon, as the conference heads into its middle third. When last seen, Ohio State and Illinois were tied atop the conference lead with 7-3 records, one game ahead of Minnesota, Purdue and Ohio State at 6-4. The Hawkeyes and Wolverines are in a tie for third place at 6-5, and the Buckeyes hold down the latest in the conference's "playing in and out of the rool (this week) will be another enormously tough task for our young basketball team," said Minnesota Coach Dick Howes.

Northwestern was disturbed by the Buckeyes, 82-71, last month. Michigan will seek its fifth straight win over Ohio State, a club the Wolverines have lost to just once in the last five years, including a first-round exit in the NCAA tournament last March.

Michigan has also rebounded by winning two of the past three games, including Saturday's entertaining 6-4, 1-0 shutout in Chicago. Michigan State is favored to win.

Jim Delany, the Big Ten commissioner, was talking about the conference standings when he said, "There's no single team that stands out as the top contender." The Big Ten has always been known for its parity, and this season is no exception. With three teams tied at the top, it's anyone's guess who will come out on top in the end.

The Big Ten has also been a source of inspiration for many athletes, both on and off the court. The conference's motto, "One Team, One Dream," embodies the spirit of teamwork and dedication that is essential for success in any sport.

But despite the parity, there are still some clear favorites. Wisconsin, with its experienced lineup, is one of the stronger teams in the conference. The Badgers have won three of their last four games, and they're playing with confidence and momentum.

Iowa State, on the other hand, is struggling. The Cyclones have lost three of their last four games, and they're fighting to keep their season alive. But with the right adjustments and some good luck, they could still pull off an upset.

In the end, it's anyone's guess who will come out on top. But one thing is certain: the Big Ten will always be a hotbed of basketball talent, and the conference will continue to produce some of the best players in the country.

Hawks seek repayment of early loss

By Willy Hahn

One week after their loss at State High School, the Iowa City public high school basketball team is preparing for their annual game against the University of Kentucky Wildcats.

The game is scheduled to start at 7:00 p.m. at the Butler Gymnasium, where the Hawks will be looking to win their third consecutive game against the Wildcats.

The Hawks have struggled in recent weeks, losing their last two games to Michigan and Indiana. However, they remain confident in their ability to defeat the Wildcats and win the conference title.

The game will be broadcast on local radio station KCRG and will be streamed on the university's website. Fans are encouraged to attend in person to support the Hawks as they aim to secure their first conference championship of the season.
