Bill to abolish law clinic proposed

By Bert Kinson

A bill introduced in the Iowa Senate Friday would eliminate the school's student-run law clinic, which provides legal services to low-income people.

The bill, which would be introduced as a resolution in the Senate, would require that the law school's administration provide information to the legislature about the clinic's operations and future plans.

Faculty members have been discussing the future of the clinic in recent weeks, and the bill could reflect their concerns.

The bill was drafted by Sen. Bill McCawley, a Republican from Des Moines, who said he introduced it because he believes the clinic is not necessary and that the state should not fund it.

McCawley's bill would require the law school to submit a report to the legislature every two years, starting in 2024, on the clinic's operations and future plans.

The report would include information on the clinic's mission, services provided, funding sources, and any changes to the clinic's operations in the past two years.

McCawley said he is concerned about the clinic's future and believes the state should not fund it.

"I don't think it's necessary," McCawley said. "I think the state should focus on other things."

Slockett offers budget proposal

Johnathan County Auditor Tom Slockett, the man who authored the county's new $1.3 million budget which was released last week, has come under fire from some staff members who feel the councilors are not doing enough to support the county's needs.

Slockett, during an interview with the Daily News, said the councilors could have prevented the county from going in the red if they would have cut some unnecessary expenses. The county, he said, has spent over $981,000 this year on advertising, which is much more than was necessary.

Earlier this month Deputy Auditor of County, Tom Carlson, said the county's property needs and post mail did not justify the amount of money that was spent on advertising. Carlson said the money was spent on a new turntable, which has only been used a few times.

The county, he said, is trying to be more efficient and is looking for ways to cut costs.

Requests for the fiscal 1982 budget have been turned down by the councilors, who said they would like to reduce the rates, but there is no money available to do so.

"It's a tough decision to make," said Tom Carlson. "But we have to make sure we are spending our money wisely."

Slockett offered to provide more information about the budget proposal, but was told by the councilors that they would not consider it until next month.

Citizens to discuss historic North Side

The Iowa City Property and Planning Department will hold a neighborhood meeting to discuss a variety of issues, including the renovation of a building on the north side of town.

The meeting, which will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, February 18, will be held at Horace Mann Elementary School. The meeting is open to the public, and all interested citizens are encouraged to attend.

The purpose of the meeting is to determine whether the city should proceed with the renovation of the building. The meeting will include presentations by city staff, as well as an open forum for public discussion.

The city is currently considering a number of options for the building, including turning it into a community center, or using it for other purposes. The decision will be made after the meeting, and the community is encouraged to provide their input.

Faculty violinist to present recital

Dan Reano, a member of the string faculty of The School of Music, will perform a recital at 8 p.m. Wednesday, accompanied by faculty pianist Paul Schaeffer.

For the opening work, an early two-movement sonata by Mozart, Reano will play a violin solo just for me and his camera燕 for a private audience. "It is difficult for musical pictures to be performed, but the works of Bach, Mozart and the late violin music ofancer Caudalid, played by Reano, are an exception," said Fred Wilhelm, violin faculty member at the University of Iowa. Reano will play the violin on a stage at the Edith Estevez Auditorium. There will be no admission fee.

The concert is at 8 p.m. in Clapp Hall.

Hawkeyes in state

By Joie Delmarce

The winning in over the football program will come when the players get to the field. The Iowa players are working hard to improve their game. The main focus is on the defense, as they are trying to stop the opposition.

The Hawkeyes are looking forward to their upcoming games, as they aim to continue their winning streak. The team is confident in their abilities and is determined to give their best in every game.

The players are working hard to improve their skills and are focused on their goals. They are determined to give their best in every game and are confident in their abilities to succeed.

Duke aims for parity

By Randy Winsett

Chapel Hill, N.C.

Duke avoided any embarrassment at Cameron Indoor Stadium Wednesday, as the Blue Devils rolled to a 94-64 victory over the Hawkeyes.

The Blue Devils (27-2) will now enter the NCAA tournament as one of the top seeds.

The Hawkeyes (16-13) did not play their best game, and Duke was able to take advantage.

Duke's defense was solid, holding the Hawkeyes to just 14 points in the first half. The Blue Devils scored 29 points on the Hawkeyes in the second half.

Mark Turgeon, the head coach of the Hawkeyes, said after the game that his team had a rough day.

"We didn't play well today," Turgeon said. "I thought we would have a better chance to win this game, but it didn't happen."

Duke's win means that the Blue Devils will likely be a top seed in the NCAA tournament. The Blue Devils are currently ranked No. 2 in the country.

"This is a big win for us," said Duke head coach Mike Krzyzewski. "We've been playing well all season, and we're happy to have a chance to go deep in the tournament."
Finding little success in past years, I expect them to make a surprising move in the tourna-mament atmosphere.

Next move up to owners as baseball strike looms

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball labor relations has been downgraded to negative in the ongoing labor dispute between the owners and the players.

"We had a successful season last year, but this year we've been let down," said Jack Hackenburg, general manager of the New York Mets. "I don't expect this to be as good as our fans want it to be."
Arnold's schoolyard play ending

By Harold Merfett

Arnold, 21, a former Iowa basketball player, got the idea of starting a schoolyard basketball game in Davenport, Iowa, while working as a police officer. The game was played on the playground of a local elementary school and drew a large crowd of spectators.

With Iowa's abundance of depth this season, Arnold said, "A lot of our players are able to play at different positions, so we're looking for the frontcourt to come in and give us a boost.

"The key to the game will be how well we can play defense, but we're looking forward to the challenge.

"I'm excited about playing in front of our fans again and contributing to our team's success.

"We're ready to go and look forward to the upcoming season.

Gambler's should bet on Hawkeyes to win

By Jay Christensen

The University of Iowa's men's basketball team has a strong chance to win the Big Ten Conference this season. According to Jay Christensen, a sports gambling expert, the Hawkeyes have the skills and experience needed to compete at the highest level.

"In terms of depth and talent, the Hawkeyes are a top-tier team in the conference," Christensen said. "They have a strong core of players and are capable of outplaying any team in the league.

"I expect them to win several conference games, but their biggest challenge will be to maintain consistency throughout the season.

"Overall, I believe the Hawkeyes have a good chance to win the Big Ten Championship and make a run in the NCAA Tournament.

FINANCIAL AID WORKSHOPS

February 18, 1981

New York, N.Y. - For the sixth consecutive year, the University of Iowa has been named the winner of the Financial Aid Information Distribution Award. The award recognizes excellence in financial aid information and service.

"The Hawkeyes' commitment to financial aid is evident in their dedication to helping students finance their education," said NCAA President John O'Banion.

"With the Hawkeyes' strong performance in the financial aid realm, we look forward to seeing them continue to excel in the future.

"Congratulations to the University of Iowa on this well-deserved award.

"We are proud to recognize the Hawkeyes' efforts in providing accurate and comprehensive financial aid information to students and parents.

"This award is a testament to the university's commitment to excellence in financial aid.

"We look forward to seeing the Hawkeyes continue to lead the way in financial aid.

"Congratulations once again to the University of Iowa on this award.

"The Hawkeyes have set a high standard for others to follow in the world of financial aid.
