Funding cutbacks may hurt arts at UI

By Dan Flanagan

The University of Iowa administration is expected to trim its budget by millions of dollars to cut back on spending and maintain a balanced budget. The cuts are being considered due to the ongoing economic downturn and the university's need to conserve resources.

Tuition tax credit plan could keep many from UI

By Debra Renduba

The university's proposed plan to offer a tax credit to students who enroll in its undergraduate programs could be a significant boon for many students. However, the plan is still in the early stages of development and will require additional funding from the state to be fully implemented.

Increase in I.C. bus fares could include $16 passes

By Lyce Muller

Monthly pass for the Iowa City Transit system should be increased from $3.00 to $4.50 if the City Council increases transit fares for the 1976-77 fiscal year, said a transit official.

John Landell, transportation planner for the Johnson County Council of Governments, said in a letter to the City Council that an increase of $1.50 on the maximum monthly pass would result in a $9 price.

FIVE of the seven City Council members indicated two weeks ago they would support an increase in transit fares if the city does not receive $1.000,000 in federal transit funds from the U.S. Congress. President Reagan's budget program outlined Wednesday night has made the future of these funds uncertain.

The City Council this afternoon is scheduled to discuss the future of Freeway 518. The commission has made a report on the future of Freeway 518.

Witness still sought in Atlanta murders

The U.S. Attorney's Office in Atlanta is seeking the public's help in identifying a man who, according to a law enforcement source, was in the vicinity of a murder scene in the city on Feb. 13. The man is believed to have been seen near the scene of a fatal shooting that occurred on the evening of Feb. 13, in the 300-block area of South Peachtree Street. The man is described as a white male, approximately 25 to 30 years old, with short dark hair and brown eyes. He was last seen wearing a white shirt and blue jeans.

Students wear black bands

The University of Minnesota is calling for students to wear black bands to mourn the death of 20-year-old Patrick Bartoletti, who was killed in a gunfight on Feb. 13. The university has set aside March 19 as a day of mourning for the student and is encouraging all students and faculty to wear black bands in his memory. The university has also established a memorial fund to support the Bartoletti family and other families affected by the tragedy.

State workers brainstorm to save Iowa money

State workers in Iowa are brainstorming ways to save money, as the state faces budget cuts. The state's budget is expected to be $1 billion short for the fiscal year ending on June 30. The state has been forced to make cuts across all departments, including education, health care, and transportation. The state is looking at ways to reduce spending, such as reducing the number of state employees, consolidating services, and reducing the amount of money spent on travel.

Teenage suicides double since 1978

The number of teenage suicides has increased significantly since 1978. According to a report released by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the rate of suicide among teenagers has doubled since 1995. The report found that the suicide rate for teenagers aged 15 to 19 increased from 12.5 deaths per 100,000 population in 1995 to 25.3 deaths per 100,000 population in 2016. The report also found that the rate of suicide among young adults aged 20 to 24 increased from 31.1 deaths per 100,000 population in 1995 to 39.8 deaths per 100,000 population in 2016.
U.S.-Chile relations

President Ronald Reagan has initiated measures that signal a new era in U.S.-Chile relations. Chileans plan to use this time to learn from Mr. Reagan's record.

A Congressional ban on economic and military assistance to Chile is in effect, and for the moment Reagan's gestures are largely symbolic. Nevertheless, his actions, which appear to have been prompted by business interests, are a disturbing indication of future foreign policy decisions.

U.S.-Chile relations have been strained for several years because of severe human rights violations in Chile and the staying of former Chilean Ambassador Orlando Leedtke. White Chile's human rights record has improved somewhat during the past few years, there were at least 12 month's mail box subscriptions: $29.95 for one year. '

The Reagan administration has decided to reduce the economic and military assistance to Chile. This is a major change in policy, and it is unclear how the Reagan administration will respond to severe human rights violations; such actions can, in fact, be seen as internal terrorism.

The situation may be based on the traditional notion of non- interference in another state's internal affairs. The Reagan administration will tolerate a government's abuse of its own people, but not of Americans. However, some resolutions suggest that the Reagan administration will be more likely to overlook the Letelier slaying, which was committed by a military, political and economic concern. It appears to have dictated this classification because of its strategic, military, and political concerns.

Nevertheless, Reagan has not yet made any stance against terrorism. By overlooking the Letelier slaying, which was a military, political and economic concern, it appears to have dictated this classification because of its strategic, military, and political concerns.

The problem is that the Reagan administration will tolerate a government's abuse of its own people, but not of Americans. Nevertheless, some resolutions suggest that the Reagan administration will be more likely to overlook the Letelier slaying, which was committed by a military, political and economic concern. It appears to have dictated this classification because of its strategic, military, and political concerns.

Regarding the role of the Reagan administration in the current situation, the government agencies have taken a number of measures to ensure stability and civilian support. These measures include the establishment of a new National Security Council, which is responsible for the development and implementation of foreign policy and national security policies. The Supreme Council has been established to coordinate the various agencies involved in national security, and the National Security Council has been established to coordinate the various agencies involved in national security.

In conclusion, the Reagan administration's actions in Chile are consistent with U.S. ideals. The government's policies are aimed at promoting democracy and human rights, and the administration is committed to supporting these goals. However, the administration also recognizes the need for a balanced approach to foreign policy, taking into account the interests of both the United States and Chile. The administration's actions are consistent with U.S. ideals, and they are committed to promoting democracy and human rights in Chile.

Financially independent students generally pay 6% as the Admission tax credit would be helpful, Farrell said.

John Moore, Director of Financial Aid, said that approximately 35 percent of the UI students in the 1990 report to the state Board of Regents in October reported that they received some form of financial aid in 1984.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - There are strong indications that President Reagan’s tax cut plan is headed for approval by Congress. The administration has predicted Reagan’s recovery plan will move in the Senate along with President Bush’s appearance early in the morning to emphasize the need to pass the bill and provide Congress with time to consider it.

Reagan and Bush must now act to prevent legislation from getting stuck in the Senate. The administration plans to push for a vote on the tax cut plan this week. The Senate is divided between Republicans and Democrats, and the two sides have been at odds over the plan’s size and scope.

The Senate’s leader, Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, has said the chamber will vote on the tax cut plan this week. The House passed the bill last week, and the Senate is expected to follow suit.

Weather

The HEAVY snow that has been falling in Kansas City, Missouri, is causing power outages in parts of the city. Several fires were reported in the area, and at least one person was injured.

"Power lines are down near every area in the community," a person familiar with the situation said. "There's a lot of water on the road." A person who lives near one of the affected areas said they had lost power for several hours.

The weather service forecasts variable cloud cover today through tonight with low temperatures in the 20s and high in the 40s. These conditions are expected to continue through Thursday.

El Salvador

El Salvador has seen a rise in violence in recent weeks, with reports of armed clashes and kidnappings.

The death toll from recent violence has been high, with dozens of civilians and security forces killed in the past week. The government has accused rebel groups of responsibility for the violence, while the rebels have condemned the government’s actions.

The United States has been closely monitoring the situation and has threatened to impose sanctions if the violence continues.

"Bingo" is not a loser in one way: it's the winner of our discontent!

Drug Fair

The bavarian music of the week began with the reissue of "Jazz in Paris," the latest in a series of recordings presenting modern jazz in Paris. These recordings have been playing for months, and one has heard the same band again and again, but this time, it seems to have improved. The band is led by a jazz singer, and the music is a little more sophisticated than before. It's as if the musicians are trying to make jazz more accessible to a wider audience. The songs are simple and catchy, and the musicians are skilled at what they do. The rhythm section is particularly strong, and the overall sound is pleasing. Overall, this recording is a step in the right direction for jazz music.

Theater

Theater is now being presented in a new format, with the actors standing in the center of the stage instead of being seated on a platform. This change is part of a larger effort to make theater more accessible to a younger audience. The actors are dressed in jeans and t-shirts, and the stage is decorated with simple props and lighting. The audience is encouraged to participate in the performance, and there are opportunities for audience members to take part in the action. This format is a departure from traditional theater, which can sometimes feel stuffy and unapproachable. The new format is more experimental and less formulaic, and it's exciting to see how it will be received by audiences. Overall, I'm impressed with the creativity and boldness of this new approach to theater.

Iowa records fall as team wins

By Lisa Lambert

It took a lot of hard work to do it, but with some good offense, Iowa State is on its way to a Big Ten North title.

The first big win was the dual meet against Purdue. The Iowa State men's track team scored 137.5 points to put it on the board. The women's team scored 126.

Iowa swimmers fall in final dual, 58-55

by Forrest Woodard

The Iowa swimmers were just as anxious as anyone. Unfortunately for the Iowa fans, their team didn't have the last laugh in the season's final dual meet with Minnesota.

The Hawkeyes met the Gophers in the final dual competition of the season. The meet was held at the University of Iowa Aquatic Center in Iowa City.

The meet was set for 6 p.m. on Friday, March 18, with both teams dressed in their best suits. The Gophers arrived first and took their places in the pool, ready for battle.

The meet began with a series of individual races. The first event was the 200-yard freestyle, which was won by the Gophers' swimmer, Smith. The Hawkeyes' swimmer, Johnson, placed second.

The next event was the 200-yard backstroke, which was won by the Gophers' swimmer, Thompson. The Hawkeyes' swimmer, Wilson, placed second.

The third event was the 200-yard breaststroke, which was won by the Gophers' swimmer, Nelson. The Hawkeyes' swimmer, Lee, placed second.

The final event of the individual races was the 200-yard medley relay, which was won by the Gophers. The Hawkeyes placed second.

The Gophers then turned to the relay events, where they continued to dominate. The Gophers won the 400-yard medley relay and the 800-yard freestyle relay.

The Gophers ended the night with a 58-55 victory over the Hawkeyes. The meet was a tough one for the Hawkeyes, as they lost all but one event to the Gophers.

After the meet, both teams shook hands and exchanged pleasantries. The Hawkeyes were disappointed with the outcome, but they knew they had given their best effort.

The meet ended with the Gophers celebrating their victory and the Hawkeyes accepting their loss. Overall, it was a hard-fought battle between two strong teams.

Two years ago, it seemed as if Iowa State was a team that was on the rise. It was a team that had the potential to win the Big Ten, and it showed that potential throughout the season. The Cyclones, led by Jim Gable, were a force to be reckoned with.

The Cyclones' success was due to the hard work and dedication of the athletes. They trained tirelessly, pushing themselves to their limits in order to achieve their goals. The Cyclones were a team that played with heart and intensity, never giving up, no matter the score.

One of the Cyclones' most impressive performances came against the University of Oklahoma. The Cyclones won the match, 18-6, and it was a testament to the team's spirit and determination.

The Cyclones' success was not only limited to the Big Ten. They were also competitive in national tournaments, showing that they were one of the top teams in the country.

The Cyclones were a team that played with heart and intensity, never giving up, no matter the score. They were a team that would go the extra mile to win, and that was why they were so successful.
