UI facing 'worst housing situation ever'

The University of Iowa is facing one of its worst housing situations ever due to a combination of factors that have left many students scrambling for living arrangements.

The University, which is known for its close-knit community and strong tradition of student involvement, is currently facing a significant challenge in housing. The situation has been exacerbated by a number of factors, including a shortage of on-campus housing options and an increase in the number of students seeking housing.

As a result, students are being forced to look elsewhere for housing, which has led to a rise in off-campus housing costs and increased competition for available spaces.

UI housing officials have been working to address the issue, but the situation remains critical. The university has implemented a number of measures to help alleviate the problem, including increasing the number of on-campus housing options and offering financial assistance to students in need.

However, the university is facing a significant challenge in meeting the needs of its student population. The situation is likely to continue for some time, and the university is working to ensure that students have access to safe and affordable housing.

UI asks senate to央企

academics

By Craig Ziemke

The UI is asking the senate to consider changes to its academic degree program, which could have far-reaching implications for students and faculty alike.

The UI is seeking to expand its academic offerings and to better align its programs with the needs of its students. The university is proposing a number of changes, including the creation of new degree programs and the expansion of existing ones.

The senate is likely to review the proposals and make recommendations on how to move forward. The university is committed to ensuring that all students have access to the education they need to succeed.

Local temperatures, spirits rise

Local businesses are seeing an increase in activity as the weather warms up. The combination of a mild winter and a warming trend is leading to a spike in sales for many local businesses.

The weather has also had a positive impact on the spirits industry. A number of local bars and restaurants are reporting an increase in sales as people enjoy the warmer temperatures.

In addition, the weather has led to an increase in outdoor activities, which has had a positive impact on local businesses such as retail stores and restaurants.

Law Center funding

The Iowa Legislature's Joint Appropriations Subcommittee on Education approved Wednesday $1.9 million in funding for a new Law Center. This is the largest single appropriation in the center's history.

Law Center construction is scheduled to begin before the end of the year. The new facility will house both the government and public interest law programs.

The House's appropriations package included the $1.9 million. The Senate had approved a $2 million figure.

"We're pleased that the Legislature has decided to fund the Law Center at this time," said Charles Case, dean of the UI College of Law. "We believe that the center is critical to the development of our program and to the quality of legal education that we can provide."

The College of Education would be "walking away from a university commitment," said Mrs. John H. Comfort, 72, of the College's Early Childhood Education Faculty, and 74th president of the Faculty Advisory Council.

"At the last meeting of the council, the center manager said that the center might close because of shortage of funds," Comfort said. "I thought the center manager's response was really appalling."

Comfort said the center manager might have had some justification for the proposed 27% cut in the center's budget because of a proposed 10% cut in the College's overall budget.

"But when I think about the center's situation, I'm quite alarmed. This is a national issue," she added. "I think there is a real danger of the center being closed down." The center is located in the College of Education.

The center, which provides educational services to 1,500 children and their families, is located on the second floor of the Administration Building.

"I have never read a newsletter that is more critical," Comfort said. "I don't think anyone in the center will do anything about this situation." The center is scheduled to be reconsidered on Monday at the next meeting of the Faculty Advisory Council.

The center serves children from birth to age 6 and their families. It is the largest early childhood program in the state and one of the largest in the nation. It is also one of the most expensive programs in the state, with an annual budget of $2.5 million.

Comfort said she was concerned about the center's future because it has been in operation for 30 years and it is currently the largest early childhood program in the state.

She added that the center has received a number of grants and that it has received recognition from the state and national education organizations.

"I think the center is very important," Comfort said. "I think it should be continued and that it should be supported." She added that she would support any efforts to support the center.

Which beer tasted better?

An impossible question?
No. The answer is, the beer on the right tasted better. The suds are the tipoff. The head lacing the glass on the right has what brewers call “cling.” Its tendency to cling to the glass tells you that the brewer didn’t skimp on the hops. And that it tasted better.

Ever taste a beer with no “hop” to it?
Hops give a beer its zing. Too little hops leaves a beer lifeless. Too much hops makes a beer bite. But choose a beer with the right proportion of hops to barley malt, and your beer will be lively and refreshing. Yet, still go down nice and smooth.

Does your beer have “cling?”
To check for “cling,” you need a glass that’s “beer clean.” (Never used for milk or soft drinks, never washed in soap.)
Pour your beer down the center of the glass to form a 3/4 inch head. See if it leaves rings of foam as you drink. But don’t stop at the “cling” test. Make this a full-fledged taste test.

Did your choice surprise you?
Something like 2 out of 3 beer drinkers don’t pick their brand. And that surprises them. A lot of them pick Schlitz instead. That doesn’t surprise us. Two years ago a master brewer, Frank Sellinger, came to Schlitz. Today he is the Chief Executive Officer and today’s Schlitz is the smoothest beer he’s ever brewed. Taste it against yours. The results may surprise you.

Can you recognize your beer by the taste?
Probably just 1 beer drinker in 3 can pick his beer out of a group of three. You try. Pour your brand and two other leading beers—a Schlitz, Bud or a Miller—into identical glasses. Have a friend switch them around. As you drink each beer, not only check it for its “cling,” but rate its taste characteristics from 1 to 10 on the flavor scale. Now comes the real test: Tell your friend which beer is yours.
UI plasma analysis to be aboard shuttle

By Kelly McElroy
Iowa City

An experiment designed by the UI physics department will be one of the first performed on the NASA Space Shuttle.

A team of 20 engineers and technicians led by UI physics Professor Stanley D. Shawhan has developed a plasma diagnostic package that will be on the fourth shuttle flight in April 1981. The first shuttle flight is scheduled for later in the month.

The purpose of the experiment is to examine the plasma layer, known as the ionosphere. The UI experiment will produce electricity and examine the modifications in the plasma layer that occur normally.

"When shuttle flight really begins, we'll have to know what their impact on the atmosphere will be," Shawhan said.

Plaques are a gas of highly charged particles, a high-energy state of matter, and sunlight is a result of this plasma state, he explained. Although the mild winter may help with the experiment, other factors may affect the results.

"We'll have to know what their impact on the atmosphere will be," Shawhan said. "But may force the shuttle to fly slower than in 1978-79.

The UI experiment will examine the effects of the shuttle flight on the ionosphere. The Ul experiment will examine the trace chemicals and examine the money has been paid out in salaries that occur normally."

The UI experiment will be one of the first performed on the shuttle, and the experiment is scheduled for later this month.

Mild winter results in UI, city savings

By William Saunders
Iowa City

The mild winter in Iowa City this year has reduced UI and the city to the lowest single-year snow removal budget, local officials say.

The UI campus will spend $60,000 less than the previous year, and the city plans to spend less than half of last year's budget.

"The UI winter was $60,000 less than the previous year, and the city plans to spend less than half of last year's budget," said UI spokesman John Hays.

But during the historical period of UI, Shawhan said the city's new snow removal costs cut $80,000 over budget.

Officials said Hinckley was involved in a complicated planning C 0 n s u l t i o n B l o c k 13 miles north of Boulder, Colorado, when questioned Monday morning by a 34-year-old Colorado Springs native.

Hinckley, who has previously demonstrated psychiatric symptoms, arrived at the courthouse in a wheelchair and refused to answer questions.

The court ordered Hinckley to undergo psychological evaluation at the Marine Corps Medical Center in San Diego. The evaluation is expected to take six months.

In another development, the Hinckley family released a statement saying they would not seek to intervene in the court proceedings.

"We understand that the outcome of the court process will be best determined by the court," the statement said. "We are confident that the court will make the correct decisions for our son and the people affected by his actions.

"However, we do not believe that the court should be deterred from making its decisions by our family's intervention. Our family's primary concern is to support our son and to ensure that he receives the care and treatment he needs.

"We believe that the court is best equipped to decide on the matter.

"We ask that the public respect the court's decision and the legal process.

"We are committed to doing what is best for our son and for others affected by his actions."
Sherwood finds art in box of macaroni

Sherwood describes the box of macaroni she found in her grocery store:

"I was looking for something fancy to make for dinner, and I came across a box of macaroni. It was the perfect size. I decided to make something special with it.

The box of macaroni was an inspiration for Sherwood to create a dish that combined the simplicity of the macaroni with the creativity of cooking with satire. She is passionate about using food as a form of expression and decided to use the box of macaroni as a canvas for her culinary creation.

"I thought, 'Why not make something that's both delicious and unique?' I decided to create a dish that was both a feast for the eyes and the taste buds.

The dish I came up with is a combination of macaroni, cheese, and vegetables. I added some fresh herbs and spices to give it a little kick. The result was a dish that was both satisfying and whimsical."

Send-off for winning playwright Saturday

By Judith Green

This weekend's performance at UI Little Theatre, "The House On Fire," is a testament to the dedication and talent of the students and faculty who work hard to bring these productions to life. The play, written by a UI Playwrights Workshop student, is a powerful exploration of the disintegrating American family.

The play tells the story of a family on the brink of collapse, struggling to survive in a world that has abandoned them. The, "House on Fire," is a metaphor for the family's disintegration, with flames licking at their edges.

The performance of "The House On Fire" is scheduled to be shown at 7 p.m. Saturday in Mabee Theater. A baking box of macaroni, the same box from which Sherwood found her inspiration, will be on display at the theater as a tribute to her creative process.

Arkansas legislators 'honored' for being 'good parents'

Little Rock, Ark. (AP) - Senators Charles F. Goodale, of Bentonville, and Rep. Larry B. Forell, of Springdale, have been named "Parents of the Year." The recognition was presented to them by the Arkansas State Senate and House of Representatives.

The two senators were among the first to recognize the importance of family in society. They have been active in promoting legislation that supports family values. Their work has been recognized by their peers and by the public.

Films

Films are the version of the world that we choose to experience. Whether it's a love story, a thriller, or an action-packed adventure, movies have the power to transport us to different worlds and times. Some of the films mentioned in the text include:

1. First Flight: The First Iowan's 1981 Best Short Subject - This film highlights the unique musical talent of Iowa musicians.
2. The Night of the Flamingos - A film about the life of a musician and his journey through the music industry.

The Night of the Flamingos

John M. Kass

The Night of the Flamingos

The Night of the Flamingos is a film that explores the life of a musician and his journey through the music industry. The film was directed by Bernardo Bertolucci, a renowned Italian filmmaker known for his innovative and experimental approach to storytelling. The Night of the Flamingos is a masterpiece of Italian cinema, and it has been critically acclaimed for its innovative use of color, music, and performance.

The Legend of the Blue Rose

The Legend of the Blue Rose is an epic fantasy film set in a mythical land. The film is a visual feast, with stunning landscapes and intricate costumes. The story follows a young musician as he embarks on a journey to find a legendary rose. Along the way, he must confront his fears and overcome obstacles, all while discovering the true meaning of music and friendship.

The Night of the Flamingos and The Legend of the Blue Rose are both films that showcase the power of music to connect people and inspire change. Whether you're a fan of classical music or rock and roll, these films are sure to leave you feeling moved and inspired.

Carney and Robinson played one set and Carney noted that the speed and intensity of the doubles match against Northwestern was much different than the singles match against Western Michigan. Carney and Robinson won the match and Carney came out the upset winner, match and tournament winner.

Iowa golfers learn to cope with weather

By R. Freeman Walsh

Although the Amacra VIP Golf Tour stops at Iowa City's Tournament Course, the best way to enjoy the course is to play it as a walk-on, according to the course's resident professional, Carney. Carney noted that the weather can be unpredictable, especially in the spring.

On top of that, playing through the fairways with long underwear and liners is not ideal, as it can affect your swing. The weather is definitely not a serious concern, making it easier to make plans for the future.

Iowa wins home games
By Garret Walstad

The Hawkeyes battled through a difficult stretch before catching their breath in a 10-2 home win over UIC last week.

Iowa opened with eleven runs in the first game of a doubleheader Thursday. For the first time this season, the eagles couldn't crack the Black and Gold. The Hawkeyes classed their opponents to win 10-2. In the second game, the Hawkeys scored five runs in the first inning to win 9-3.

"It's a good feeling to get back to winning," said first baseman Mark Nelsen. "We're just looking to play good baseball and try to win some games."

After their back-to-back sweep of the University of Chicago, Iowa moved up to 8-4 on the season.

"The last few weeks haven't been easy, but we've been able to pick it up a bit," said head coach Jake Buell. "We've been working on our fundamentals and trying to get back to basics."

Iowa will host Western Illinois in a doubleheader Saturday.

Average runner tops as leader

There are many high school athletes whose performance doesn't fit into the "star" category. When one of these athletes goes to college, he or she faces the dilemma of whether go out for a team or not. The answer will be worth the time and effort.

When Mark Nelsen enrolled at UI, he had a "regular" sports background. He had competed in football and track at Newton (Ia.) High, but did not play a major role on either team. His skills were not nearly as strong as his classmates, but he was not one of the best in his classroom or on his school. "I've never been a star," Nelsen said.
"I would try to give my all at football practice as well as encourage other people."

"During his last year of high school, he was still relatively unknown," Buell said. "But during college, he made a decision. I couldn't believe he didn't want to be in sports," said Buell. "But as far as I'm concerned, he made the right decision.""Nelsen was a valuable member of the team, Buell said. "He could certainly help the team, but he also did a good job of keeping the kids in the right mood."

"He's a valuable member of the team," Buell said. "He helps keep the kids in good shape and gives them a boost.""Nelsen was one of the few players who made a difference in the game.
"He was the difference," Buell said. "He was the one who made the difference in the game."

"When the ball was played, he was always willing to go the extra mile for the team," Buell said. "He was a great player and a valuable member of the team.""Nelsen was
