Polish union, Soviets ease tough stands

Games end; Poland gains time

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- The weeklong, joint Soviet-Polish maneuvers around Poland ended Sunday after Warsaw Pact forces departed without incident, but observers agreed that the situation remains tense. The Warsaw Pact forces, led by the Soviet Red Army, moved out of Poland on Wednesday, April 8, after three weeks of operations.

The maneuvers, which involved Western forces in Poland, were seen as an attempt by the Warsaw Pact to demonstrate its control over Poland. The Soviet Union had previously performed several joint military exercises in Poland, but this was the first time that Western forces had participated.

The United Press International (UPI) reported that the exercises had been conducted under the guidance of Soviet General Leonid Brezhnev, who had been praised for his handling of the situation in Poland.

Brezhnev, who had been visiting Poland, was quoted as saying that the exercises had been successful and that the Soviet Union was committed to maintaining its influence in the country.

The exercises had been met with concern by Western observers, who had expressed fears that they could lead to an increase in tensions between the Warsaw Pact and the Western powers.

Despite this, the exercises ended without incident, and the Soviet forces withdrew from Poland.

The situation in Poland remains tense, with Western powers continuing to monitor the situation closely.

Poland's Western allies have expressed concern about the situation, and there have been reports of)

WHAT IS A SALE?

(And why are we having one?)

Selling is what the retail business is all about, and we will have merchandise in stock cut all week.

At Gimbels we think jewelry, particularly gold, diamonds, and other precious gems, should be considered a wise investment, where stocks and bonds may be too expensive or too risky for your retirement. Gold is one of the few marketable assets in this country.

Turnover in the retail business of a certain importance because it is very easy to carry on sales and sales taxes, rent, utilities, etc. with the most expensive.

For those reasons, and because our last informal article, because certain diamond prices are wise, the conclusion for April and for the balance of April we are offering 30%-off every article in the store.

Once again the UI Writers Workshop is being a prestigious forum for recent UI graduates. Donald Justice, who has taught in the workshop since 1975, plans to take a position at the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville after the 1980-81 academic year.

"There’s no question that Don is one of America’s finest poets. But it’s my nature, and it’s shared of others, that we see having him here will hurt the workshop. Its reputation is such that no one is disposable," said workshop Director John Legelt. While it is true that he is indispensable, the loss of Justice, whose poem "President" won the 1977 Pulitzer Prize, is untimely.

And it is particularly disturbing because it may be part of a trend, based on popular estimates of appropriate time to have a higher education, including funds for faculty and staff salaries, the UI is losing key faculty and that body maker it is a steady decline.

Nolwen Vance Baskin left the workshop last summer to take a position at the University of the Arts. Baskin, who is a strong, has proven 50 percent salary increase, criticized the state’s inability to provide adequate pay. Justice repeatedly will receive "undeserved" salary increase when he begins with the University of Arkansas.

Workshop poet, Marvin Bell has noted, "These are just a couple of people who are leaving for a different situation. Outside of sports, the university is still going to keep the reputation it has. The workshop is naturally known for its excellence, but no reputation may be lost if the UCS cannot keep student admittance, with those of other universities. No writer, however, alone will set at risk the UI for several years until much higher pay is offered elsewhere."

The UI College of Liberal Arts and the UI Writers Workshop director will realize that unless the salaries of state workers are improved, universities state cannot attract valuable faculty members.

Battle of the budgets

Democrats in the House budget committee have offered an alternative to the Reagan administration’s budget. The Democrats’ budget proposals to the Reagan budget, which would place a larger burden on the poor, is less than the amount planned by Reagan. This still represents the administration’s budget assumes that inflation will be 8.3 percent in the economic situation.

Democrats have wisely based their economic plan on a realistic view of the economic situation. The Democrats would increase defense spending by 25 percent. The administration’s budget assumes that inflation will be 8.3 percent in the economic situation.

Columnist shows his sympathy for the devil

Kris: Good morning, I'm Kris again, and welcome to Circle of Friends.

Kris: My friends, I have been very skeptical of the existence of the devil and his minions, but today I think I may have been converted.

Kris: I was walking down the street, minding my own business, when I saw a creature standing on a sidewalk.

Kris: At first I thought it was a normal person, but as I got closer, I realized it was something different. It was... I don't even know how to describe it. It was like nothing I had ever seen before.

Kris: I couldn't help but feel a sense of sympathy for this creature. I mean, it was clearly suffering, and I couldn't help but wonder if there was some lesson for all of us to learn from this experience.

Kris: I guess I'll never know for sure. But I do know that it's time to be more open-minded and ready to see the world in a new light. And that's what I'm going to do from now on.

Kris: So, my friends, I challenge you to look at the world in a different way. Maybe there's a devil out there, and maybe we just need to be more open-minded to see it.

Kris: Thank you for listening. I'll be back next week with more Circle of Friends. Goodbye for now!

El Salvador's troubled history has led to its troubled present

El Salvador's troubled past dates from before Central America gained its independence from Spain. The colonial period in the region was marked by Spanish rule and widespread political corruption. Authorities had little regard for the rights of the local population, who were often exploited and marginalized by the higher classes. This legacy of oppression and inequality has persisted to this day, shaping the political and social landscape of the country.

Years of misery and starvation

One of the most significant events in El Salvador's recent history was the civil war, which lasted from 1980 to 1992. The conflict was triggered by a political crisis that led to a military coup in 1979, which overthrew the democratically elected government of Oscar A. Romero. The coup was supported by the United States and other Western powers, who feared the spread of communism in the region.

The military junta that took power was led by General Carlos Humberto Oviedo, who became the first president of the newly established civilian government. Oviedo's arrival in power coincided with a period of extreme economic hardship, marked by high inflation, poverty, and widespread social unrest. The situation was exacerbated by the onset of the El Niño phenomenon, which caused severe droughts and flooding in the region, leading to a significant increase in food prices and a lack of basic necessities.

The struggle for democracy

In 1980, a group of army officers led by Colonel Alfredo Cristiani staged a coup against the military junta, reestablishing civilian rule in the country. Cristiani's government faced a formidable challenge, as the military had sustained a significant number of casualties during the civil war. Despite the challenge, Cristiani was able to consolidate his power and initiate a process of democratic transition.

The result of the 1982 presidential elections was a blow to the military, as Cristiani was defeated by a civilian candidate, José María Orellana. Orellana's victory was seen as a major symbolic victory for democracy, as it marked the first time that a civilian had been elected president of El Salvador in more than 40 years.

The search for peace

The search for peace in El Salvador was a long and arduous process, marked by numerous efforts at negotiation and compromise. The most significant of these efforts was the peace talks held in 1991, which were sponsored by the United Nations and the United States. The talks were ultimately successful, leading to the signing of a peace agreement in 1992, which ended the civil war and paved the way for a new era of hope and reconciliation.

The challenges of reconstruction

The years following the signing of the peace agreement were marked by significant challenges. The economy struggled to recover from the effects of the civil war, and many former combatants faced difficulty reintegrating into society. The government also struggled to implement the terms of the peace agreement, which called for the disbandment of the military and the establishment of a civilian police force.

In反映了El Salvador's troubled past, which has left a lasting legacy of political instability, social inequality, and economic hardship. The country's recent history is marked by a series of political crises, economic downturns, and social conflicts, which have contributed to a sense of hopelessness and frustration among many of its citizens. While progress has been made in recent years, much work remains to be done to address the root causes of these challenges and to build a more just and equitable society for all.

1981-82 RA choices announced

Student assistants have been chosen for the 1981-82 academic year from a pool of 398 applicants who met the UI's eligibility requirements. The UI's residence hall offices are located in the Mayflower Apartments, 2411 S. Sixth St.

David Coleman, area coordinator of the Grand Avenue residence halls, said the number of R.A. applicants was larger than in previous years.

Of the 198 R.A.'s selected, about 50 are new applicants and the rest are returning R.A.'s, said Theresa Siller, coordinator of the Clinton Street residence halls.

Voting Act extension faces Senate hurdles

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Congressional liberals Thursday opposed what they called a "bare-bones" extension of the Voting Rights Act, saying it would harm the rights of black and minority voters.

Finally, an agreement was reached among the Congressional Black Caucus members. The UI's residence hall offices are located in the Mayflower Apartments.

President Willard Boyd said the extension of the Voting Rights Act is a "good idea." He said the extension would help blacks and other minorities.

The extension was approved by the House of Representatives and is expected to be passed by the Senate. President Willard Boyd said the extension of the Voting Rights Act is a "good idea." He said the extension would help blacks and other minorities.

Abbie Hoffman to go to prison

By Jane Farrell

NEW YORK— Abbie Hoffman, Vlg

leader of the 1960s who eluded federal authorities for many years,

was arrested yesterday afternoon

for selling drugs.

Mr. Hoffman, 36, was arrested in a bar on the Upper East Side after police officers found cocaine in his possession.

"He was buying drugs for himself and for a friend," said one of the officers.

Mr. Hoffman, who is a member of the Black Panthers, was also charged with possession of marijuana.

He was released on bail after paying $500.

Mr. Hoffman is expected to be arraigned in court today.

"I haven't got a good time

anymore," he said. "I don't want to go in prison," he said, cited his work in radical politics.

"I am a conscientious objector, and I have refused to go into the armed forces," he said.

Mr. Hoffman's arrest was announced by the New York

Police Department.

The police said Mr. Hoffman was arrested as part of an operation against drug dealers.

Mr. Hoffman is a leader of the Black Panthers, a group that has

North Corridor plans discussed

By Ann Mattern

Three alternative North Corridor Development plans were presented to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors Monday evening. The alternatives, which were prepared by the Iowa State University research team, are intended to provide for a more rapid development of land in the northwestern part of the county and are based on rapid transit planning.

The northwestern part of the county contains a large amount of farmland and is currently the site of a large amount of development. The three alternative plans were presented to the board in order to help the board decide which plan to pursue. The plans were presented by Iowa State University researchers who are part of the research team that has been working on the project.

The first alternative, called the "high-speed rail" alternative, would involve the construction of a high-speed rail line in the northwestern part of the county. The high-speed rail line would connect the city of Iowa City with the city of Cedar Rapids, and would provide a rapid transit service for commuters. The high-speed rail line would be built on a corridor that is currently being considered for a new light rail line.

The second alternative, called the "transportation network" alternative, would involve the construction of a transportation network in the northwestern part of the county. The transportation network would include a network of highways and a network of bike paths. The transportation network would be designed to provide a more efficient and accessible transportation system for commuters.

The third alternative, called the "mixed-use development" alternative, would involve the construction of mixed-use development in the northwestern part of the county. The mixed-use development would include a mix of residential, commercial, and industrial uses. The mixed-use development would be designed to provide a more economically diverse and sustainable development for the area.

The board of supervisors is expected to make a decision on which alternative to pursue in the near future. The alternative that is chosen will likely have a significant impact on the development of the area in the future.
All those images, all those shots

By Jeffrey Miller

During the past week I've seen the following films: "Concerto" (20th Century-Fox) and "Walter Benjamin in Reverse" (Gould Films). "Walter Benjamin in Reverse" has been playing at the Alamo Drafthouse Cinema. I've seen it twice, and I still can't quite believe it's actually a real movie. The film is directed by Michael Dougan and stars David Hemmings and Peter O'Toole. The story revolves around areed of music critics who are trying to save the music of a famous composer from being destroyed by a group of revolutionaries. The film is shot in black and white, and it's a real shock to see Hemmings and O'Toole on the screen together. The film is worth seeing if you're a music lover or just looking for something different.

After screening "Walter Benjamin in Reverse" at the Alamo Drafthouse, I went to The Elgin and saw "Our Lives in the Hands of the Giants." The film is directed by Michael Keaton and stars Jack Nicholson and Al Pacino. The film is about a group of Vietnam veterans who return home to find that their lives have changed forever. The film is shot in color, and it's a powerful story. I highly recommend it.

I also saw "The Great Race" at The Elgin. The film is directed by Frank Capra and stars Bob Hope and Carol Channing. The film is a classic comedy, and it's a lot of fun to watch. I highly recommend it.

Finally, I saw "The Black Swan" at The Alamo Drafthouse. The film is directed by Darren Aronofsky and stars Natalie Portman and Mila Kunis. The film is about a young ballerina who is preparing to perform in a ballet company. The film is shot in black and white, and it's a real shock to see Portman and Kunis on the screen together. The film is worth seeing if you're a dance lover or just looking for something different.

NEW YORK: Relax! It's only a movie!

The university has long been one of the nation's top public institutions for the study of film and television. The university has a long tradition of producing filmmakers, including David Mamet, Mike Nichols, and Martin Scorsese. The university also has a strong film studies program, which offers a minor and a minor in film and television studies. The program is currently headed by John D. Ebert, who has written extensively on film and television. The program is well respected, and it's a great place to study film and television.

Hitting the road to fight cancer

By T. Johnson

Marc Kaplan is a man on a mission. After the death of a close relative from cancer, Kaplan had taken the road to Southhampton, N.Y., looking forward to becoming a volunteer there. Collins, Head of the Kaplan rides motorcycle - half automobile is made of dash, Seat of the American Cancer Society in New York City, could have received as many as 10 years on his sentence Tuesday to 30 days in jail and fined $15,000. He was put on probation for five years and ordered to give 250 hours of his first year on probation to doing work for the society.

The problem came up last week when Senate runnings in New York U.S. Pres. Run D.M. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Arthur Vandenberg, Styles Bridges and and Edward Kennedy, made arrangements to stay in Under a new law that took effect this summer, as just called out a Jewish International. Kaplan is staying with friends and family in the area and will be spending the weekend there.

Kaplan, who grew up in Chicago, attended the University of Illinois College of Medicine and received his doctorate in epidemiology from the University of Michigan. Kaplan has not been deterred by the hate mail he has received since becoming a volunteer for the American Cancer Society. Kaplan smiles. "I'm Jewish," Kaplan said. "I'm Jewish."

Marc Kaplan is traveling across the country with this dog to publicize local cancer research funding efforts.

What's in a name? Senate finds out

With this week's Educational Seminar on Photography "The Infinite Image", the Senate has found out that there's only so much you can do with a name.

"Photography-The Infinite Image" covers a wide range of information that is great for either the beginner or the advanced photographer who wants to expand his or her knowledge of the photographic process.

"You DO NOT have to own a Pentax Camera to benefit from this superb course in photography."

"It was in Drake's favor. The Hawks, now 1-4, earned a split with the University in two meets this season. Kirkwood, now 5-2, is playing the Hawks at home today." Thus far, only Iowa and Nebraska have had any trouble with Drake, according to Kirkwood's coach Larry Gladson. Gladson believes that after this weekend's meet, Kirkwood will have a better chance of getting closer to the Hawkeyes. Gladson feels that Kirkwood has the talent and ability to beat Iowa and Nebraska, but that it is not the coaching and strategy that is missing. Gladson believes that the Hawkeyes have the edge in coaching and strategy, and that Kirkwood needs to improve in those areas if it wants to be competitive. "The Hawkeyes are much better prepared than we are," Gladson said. "They have a better coaching staff and a better strategy. They also have the talent to be competitive." Gladson believes that Kirkwood needs to focus on improving its consistency and execution, and that it will need to work on those areas if it wants to be competitive in the Big Ten. By Mike Hia

The Iowa baseball team reached the 30-win plateau Tuesday, but the huskies were led by Grant Millar (14) and Dale Pohl (22) for theball.

Millar and Pohl helped Iowa win the second game against Wisconsin, evens the series. The second game was won by Millar, 2-0, while Pohl pitched a complete game, 1-0.

Recruiting

The saga continues; Rogers undecided

By Heath Michael

The Hawks will probably wait at least two weeks to make a decision on Greg Stone.

Stone, a 6-foot, 2-inch, 215-pound, left-handed pitcher from Iowa, is being courted by several schools, including Iowa, Stanford, and Kansas.

Stone, who has a 92-mph fastball, is expected to be a highly sought-after recruit.
