Reagan meets on economy
Washington (AP) — President Reagan, determined to gain political leverage for his economic program, is expected to propose to Congress a "comprehensive" stimulus package to pump $15 billion into the economy over the next 12 months.

The package is expected to include tax cuts, a $10 billion program to buy more than 1 million homes and a plan to provide aid to state and local governments.

Brady jokes with president
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who has joked about the need to cut back on government programs, on Monday, April 15, will be asked by a reporter if he has any suggestions for budget cuts.

"Are you ready for a press conference?" Reagan asked. "Tell me, how do you feel about Cold War funding?"

"I'm a little bit tired," Reagan replied. "I've been doing my best to fight the Cold War for the last few years.

Spain's most violent day
MADRID (AP) — Spain's most violent day was today, with 13 people killed in a series of bombings across the country.

The bombings, which occurred in various parts of Spain, were described as the most intense violence in the country in recent years. At least 12 people were killed and dozens more were wounded.

British riot query begins
LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — British police have begun a violent probe into the recent riots in Liverpool, where 15 people were killed and 100 injured.

The police have arrested six people in connection with the riots, which began on Saturday night and continued into Sunday morning.

WHAT IS A SALE?

(And why are we having one?)

f you're like most people, you probably have a lot of things sitting around your house that you don't use anymore. Maybe it's an old computer, a broken bicycle, or a pair of shoes that no longer fit.

What you probably don't realize is that these things could be valuable to someone else. They might be able to use them or fix them up and sell them for a profit.

So why aren't you selling them? Because you're probably afraid of the hassle. You don't want to put the time and effort into advertising, negotiating, and shipping.

That's where we come in. We're here to help you make some extra cash by selling your unwanted items.

We'll take care of everything for you. We'll advertise your items, negotiate prices, and handle shipping. All you have to do is tell us what you have and we'll take care of the rest.

So why wait? Start selling your unwanted items today!

 сохраняя семью, и не пойдем на дополнительную поддержку для семей, которым это не требуется. Семьи не должны быть вынуждены искать дополнительную помощь, если они не нуждаются в ней. Вместо этого, мы должны продолжить поддерживать существующие программы и обеспечивать дополнительную помощь лишь в том случае, если это действительно необходимо.

В заключение, сохранение семейных ценностей и уважение прав семьи - это задача, которая требует совместных усилий всех, кто заботится о благополучии наших детей и их семей. Мы должны продолжить бороться за то, чтобы семьи имели возможность сохранить свою целостность и интегральность, и чтобы у нас было наше общее будущее.

In a memo to faculty members they have outlined reactions to the Academic Center Project, a program that the Liberal Arts Faculty Senate said "is in conflict with the academic mission of the institution." The move comes despite the recent creation of a new "Graduate and Undergraduate Studies" program, which was widely expected to be the future of the academic mission.

Students have continued to express concern about the fate of the Academic Center Project, which was introduced in November.

In a memo to students, Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs William C. Lorenz said, "The Academic Center Project was designed to provide a more flexible, student-centered approach to education." He added, "We believe that the Academic Center Project will allow students to pursue their academic goals more effectively and efficiently.""

Many of the elderly are at risk for accidental hypothermia. In the winter, few people are as physically active as older people, and so they may be at risk for accidental hypothermia. Accidental hypothermia is a condition in which the body temperature drops below normal levels. It can be caused by a variety of factors, including cold weather, alcohol use, and medications. The elderly are particularly vulnerable to accidental hypothermia because they may have a lower body temperature than younger people. As a result, they may be more susceptible to cold temperatures and may have trouble regulating their body temperature. The elderly may also be more likely to have underlying medical conditions that can affect their ability to regulate their body temperature, such as diabetes, heart disease, and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. Treatment for accidental hypothermia involves rewarming the body and addressing any underlying medical conditions. It is important to seek medical attention immediately if you suspect that someone is experiencing accidental hypothermia.
Shuttle

Mission: The space shuttle is due out 30 days early, the crewm ake a last-minute turn and level down with a puff of dust at Edwards Air Force Base in California, O'Krafler explained.

"The crew got some extra training, and we looked in multiple landing sites, and settled on Edwards."

"I didn't think we'd be seeing any shuttle coming back from space."

"From an air traffic standpoint, we don't really care if it's on the water. These guys are flying into a deficit, and they're still going to be in a race to land."

The commander on the space station:

"I'm really seeing the atmosphere coming back from space."

"As soon as you're floating, you're going to try to avoid the water. These guys are flying into a deficit, and they're still going to be in a race to land."

The commander on the space station:

"A lot of people are watching this."

"A lot of people are watching this."

COLUMBIA is the largest and most suborbital space machine ever launched.

During the return journey from an orbit of 168 miles up, it became the world's largest glider, but was not being flown in service as an aircraft. When the shuttle was about 100 miles above the earth's surface, it reentered the atmosphere and began to descend, reaching a speed of about 29,000 miles per hour. The Space Shuttle Columbia's reentry was marked by a puff of dust at Edwards Air Force Base. The shuttle was powered by two main engines, and had one auxiliary engine, each capable of providing up to 200,000 pounds of thrust. The shuttle's reentry was watched by a crowd estimated at 350,000, including non-astronauts, to witness the first landing of a spacecraft after a successful mission. The Space Shuttle Columbia's flawless landing confirmed the successful completion of the mission, marking a significant milestone in space exploration.

Video art from Portugal here

By Adelaide Nickel

The Contemporary, Gallery of New Emergencies will present the first American showing of new video art from Portugal today, as part of the continuing series of video art and performance projects sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts and organized by critic and curator Dan T collective.

The show, which is the first of its kind in the country's cultural history, is the result of a year-long effort by the collective to bring a cross-section of Portuguese video art to a new audience. The exhibition includes works by 18 artists, including a number of women, who are among the most innovative and experimental in the country's art scene.

The show is part of an ongoing project by the collective to promote video art in Portugal and to create a more accessible and diverse audience for the medium. The group has been active in the country's cultural scene for several years, and has organized numerous exhibitions and events in support of video art.

The show opens today at The Contemporary, Gallery of New Emergencies, and will run through May 30. The gallery is located at 900 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago. Admission is free.

Baseball recruiting stresses academics

By Matt Gold

The life of a baseball player in the spring is a busy one. When it isn’t practice or team meetings, he’s usually hitting the books. This is the case for the Iowa Hawkeyes, who have had to balance academics and athletics for years. The challenge is compounded by the fact that baseball is a sport that requires a significant time commitment.

According to head coach Rick Heller, the players are aware of the importance of academics. "It’s not just about winning games," he said. "It’s about being a scholar-athlete." Heller added that the players are encouraged to maintain good grades and to take their studies seriously.

However, the players are also faced with a demanding schedule. They have to balance practice, games, and travel with their academic responsibilities. "It’s not easy," said senior outfielder Jack Fishel. "But it’s all about time management and prioritization." Fishel added that the players have a support system in place to help them with their studies, including tutors and academic advisors.

Despite the challenges, the players are committed to being successful both on and off the field. "We’re committed to being the best athlete and student that we can be," said junior pitcher Ben Hymas. "It’s not just about winning games, it’s about being a complete athlete."

Hawks led by Rummels in golf win

By Jay Christian

In expected, the Iowa men’s golf team stumbled last week at the NCAA Final Four in Columbus, Ohio, but the Big Ten title win didn’t come with a bang.

The Hawks turned in a solid performance on a course that was hit by rain Saturday, and they finished in second place after winning the Big Ten title.

Iowa State University, ranked No. 12 in the nation, finished in third place. The Hawkeyes were third after the first day of competition.

The team’s final score was 899, 12 strokes behind Iowa State’s total of 887.

"It’s a great finish," said Iowa head coach Chuck Rummel. "We played well under the conditions. We were in third place at one point yesterday, but we had some good breaks today." "The course was a little tough, but we were able to make some birdies," Rummel said.

"The Hawks are a young team, but they are improving," Rummel said. "They played well, and they played well under the conditions." "The Hawks have been practicing hard," Rummel said.
