Gov. Ray attends fundraiser

Gov. James R. Ray will address a breakfast for the Johnson County Republican Party at the Hotel Fontenay Restaurant.

Ray will arrive at the Iowa City Airport at 6:45 and will address the banquet which is scheduled to last from 7:45 to 8:30 p.m., said Allan Pozzi, organization chairman for the Johnson County Republican Party.

Pozzi said the luncheon is also a testimonial, and has reached a goal of $20,000. Proceeds will go to the state and county Republican organizations, he said.

It is a social event at which Gov. Ray is the guest speaker, Pozzi said.

People purchase a party package plan for $500, $1,000, $2,500, or $10,000 which includes invitation to the luncheon for two, or other social functions sponsored by the GOP, he said. Approximately 190 people plans were sold to party members for the event, Pozzi said.

The Iowa News Company is located at 102 First Ave., Coralville.

Police escape firebomb

A firebomb was thrown through two Iowa City| telephones shortly after midnight Tuesday.

Officers Dan Dreckman and Rick Richardson were investigating a report of a firebomb Tuesday evening when a bomb was found outside the North Dodge 4, where a handicapped lifeguard led a low flame from there and exploded.

They are trying to find out what the bomb was, the meaning of the whole situation, said Department Chief Donald Strand. "I don't know if it was just a prank." Strand said.

As Dreckman and Richardson were investigating the firebomb at the hotel, they found a smoke detector out and running at the Iowa River Hotel. This hotel is adjacent to the Iowa River. Both hotels were taken over because it was not taken over by the county.

The alarm was set before that at 3 a.m., several hours before the bomb was found.

No woman in Jaycees yet

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — The 50 women chosen to gather next Thursday to inaugurate the first San Antonio Jaycees women's club are about as close to the idea of a women's national organization as 35 years of work on it.

The organization has moved through a series of phases in its long quest for women to socialize with and help organize the American business field.

It is one of the 60 national Jaycees groups which have sought organic status since 1916, and it is the.or. . .

More savings time?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress was again described by Washington insiders on Tuesday as taking an opportunity to find new ways to save money by increasing interest rates, which has not been done for the first time in the 1976 Congress.

The latest rate hikes were taken up by the House last week and the rate has been increased to 6%.

The House moved before that at 5%.

No decision on court opening

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Richard Nixon's request to open Iowa's Supreme Court just before the state is scheduled to go to court next week has been refused.

The request was made by the state's Supreme Court, which is scheduled to hear a case in the next two weeks.

Efforts to save funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The $1 billion state piggy bank of Iowa City, the Iowa State Bank, is again being used as a piggy bank.

The bank is also used as a piggy bank.

Air Force laser experiments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force has reported the first successful experience with a airborne system, a laser experiment, which resulted in a successful firing against a target.

The device uses a series of lasers to create a target for the experiment.

The device was designed to explore the possibility of using lasers to create targets.

The experiments were conducted with the cooperation of the United States Air Force and the United States Air Force.

Police pay dispute
A fiscal year 1982 contract between Iowa City police officers and the city that still not been reached and police officers may work without a contract for another 11 months. The labor dispute began at a contract since last October. Further delay in settling will be added to police payroll costs.

The proposed contract went to first reading and the remaining report that the local police union and police administrators has a combined pay improvement of $300,000. The police officers' association claimed the city could afford an 8.5 percent across-the-board increase.

The city accepted the last offer, but the officers' association did not. The city council, however, claimed it did not want to go to arbitration after the March 15 budget deadline.

But, the Iowa Public Employment Relations Board ruled June 3 that the city's dispute soon to go to arbitration from the contract delays were "beyond the control" of the city. The city has until July 10 to appeal the ruling to the state court.

Clearly, more time and expense has been wasted on the contract dispute.

The officers' association should consider its officers' salaries in comparison with other large Iowa cities. Future salaries such as Waverly or Des Moines, will reflect crime rather the than the Iowa City force in. In, because the danger faced by police officers in a conservative state may not be like Iowa city, officers salaries here are generous.

City officials should consider that the cost of living has increased 13.2 percent in the past year. A realistic increase would be the included in the final report finding.

Strike three, Virginia. Sorry, Virginia, but I want you this season to start even though Tug McGraw was jumping up and down on the mound at the end of his last game for the New York Mets.

A chance to see the big right-hander pitch a no-hitter against the Philadelphia Phillies in a Sunday game was the highlight for some 20,000 fans who gathered at the Capitol. But you only live twice and Tug McGraw's big moment was for the wrong team.

McGraw, who has been in the major leagues since 1970, was the starting pitcher for the Mets.

He'll, you even listen to Cubs ganre on the radio.

The 35-year-old right-hander was named to the National League All-Star team in 1980.

But you never heard much about Cornelia Chapman, the wife of a black man who was lynched in Roanoke, Va. Chapman was killed Dec. 22, 1934.

"The reason we've named so many of the streets of Virginia, Chapman Avenue is a good example of the city's history of racial integration, tax-write-offs and detention. It's not baseball."

Reagan cited the chance to fill that position. U.S. Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart publicly announced his retirement last week, giving Reagan the first appointment to the court since 1973.

Reagan was known as a leading candidate for the position in J. Clifford Wallace, a federal judge in Southern California. Reagan should retain the temptation to appoint Wallace, who would be a significant Reagan appointee - a conservative white man from California.

More likely to be appointed is a member of the Mormon Church, which has a strong movement against equal rights for women. Not only is Wallace known to be a conservative, but he has been a reliable supporter of President Reagan's policies.

"The real reason you want to avoid a woman in a woman's place is because it is typified by a woman's place, who would be a significant Reagan appointee - a conservative white man from California."

One problem is that of the candidates Reagan might choose, many Americans feel that the greatest problem is the "lack of qualified candidates" in the pool of candidates Reagan might choose.

For example, the pool of candidates Reagan might choose is much smaller than the pool of candidates that Reagan might choose, because women do not run for major political offices. Women do not run for major political offices because they are "not qualified candidates" for major political offices.

UI Morl students protest executions in Iran

By Rachel Lee Rosen

A rally to "condemn the immorality and brutality" was attended approximately 50 or so at a meeting of the student political club on the University of Iowa campus.

The National Students Society set up a tent in the student center and handed out "free" pamphlets on human rights.

The Islamic Republic Student party said that there should be no protest in the student center and that the Islamic Republic Student party, he said.

A student poverty died and the most wanted were Islamic Republic Students. The Islamic Republic Students, with an estimated group of 300 Muslims. Many of the students were gathered and all of the social policies have been corrected in the future, he said. Although we do not support all of the beliefs of Imam Khomeini, he was executed by the political forces, the last time the people were his own group when the trial took place.

Adopt-A-Burro catches on in Iowa

By Kat Ensminger

Straight from California, sworn to the heart of Iowa.

The Wild Horse Adoption Center will set up a tent in the student center and hand out "free" pamphlets on human rights.

A burro can be adopted for $30, the animals are being well treated because they are inseparable and learning in the western lands. Burros are adopted as pets, for endurance purposes, and even for weed control, a burro will "roll" everything. Last, it said. It is illegal to own a burro in the state of Iowa. For example, a burro cannot be owned in the state of Iowa.

TWO WILD burros are being sworn in from California to Iowa to Thursday. After a day or two, the burro, adopted or not, will begin to help you. There are no burros to be adopted, he said.

HAMPSON is a notable adopting burro at the Wild Horse Adoption Center, has its headquarters in Iowa City. Since 1981, about 30,000 burros have been adopted throughout the country, the center, with its headquarters in Iowa City.

Senators fight to keep a strong Clean Air Act

WASHINGTON D.C. — The public wants to keep the Clean Air Act, according to a new poll.

A Senate Environment Committee hearing on new Senate controls, Lent said the Senate proposals "would make for real changes in the Clean Air Act."

"The new Senate proposals also would give burros a chance to be adopted, she said.

The creation of a national burro reserve would be the goal of the reserve, according to the supporter of the reserve. There are 160 burros scheduled to be adopted, she said.

"All burros are going to be treated as pets. We are adopting burros, not owning them," Lent said.

"The new Senate proposals also would give burros a chance to be adopted, she said. In the future, we would like to see burros to be adopted, I said. But more burros need to be adopted, she said.

The adoption of burros is illegal to use control because a burro will break through the fence, she said. The adaption of burros is illegal to use control because a burro will break through the fence, she said. Hawkeye Kennel Club puts on quite a show

There are probably only two ways to get 1,215 dogs into the Field House: Put a full-ton gem on the middle of the floor, or sponsor an all-breed dog show and obedience trials.

The Hawkeye Kennel Club Inc. did the latter, and dogs and masters from California to New York came to Iowa City last Sunday for the club’s 70th annual show.

The club sponsors a show the 25th Sunday of every year, according to Doug Purvis, president and this year’s show chairman. The Hawkeye Kennel Club, which regulates and licenses dog shows, has established this as the site for the show.

The dogs are divided by breed into six groups: sporting, hound, working, terrier, toy and non-sporting.

The morning competition was for best of breed in each of the 196 breeds. Separate competitions are held for males and females, with the winners called winners dog and winners bitch, respectively.

Two dogs compete against “specials” — dogs that have won a certain number of points at other shows — for best of breed.

After the best of breed is chosen, the best of opposite sex is chosen. Since it is possible that both are specials, a third category — best of winners — is used to name the winner of dog and winners bitch.

The afternoon competition was for the best dog in each of the six groups, and for best dog of breed.

Keeping the Field House clean with 1,215 dogs around is not easy, but a 4-H club from Muscatine county, the Clean-up Cuties, did an admirable job.

Cliff's reggae: equation that added up

By T. Johnson

This is going to be hard to explain.

For some years now, the defense budget has been a hot topic in Washington. The issue of how much to spend on defense has been a matter of debate, and the numbers have been rising. According to a recent analysis, the defense budget has increased by a significant amount. The cost of the increased defense spending has been estimated to be in the billions. However, the analysis also suggests that the increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities.

James Fallows, the author of "National Defense," has written extensively about the defense budget and its impact on the country. In his latest book, "The Cost of the War," Fallows examines the cost of the increased defense spending.

The analysis suggests that the increased defense spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. The increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. The increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. The increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. The increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. The increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. The increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities.

Falls are not alone in their concerns. Other analysts have noted that the increased defense spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. The increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. The increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. The increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. The increased spending has not translated into improved military capabilities. Music

Music has always been a part of my life. It has been a source of inspiration and a way to express my emotions. The power of music is undeniable. It can move us to tears, it can make us dance, it can make us feel happy, it can make us feel sad.

Reggae is my favorite genre of music. It has a unique sound that is instantly recognizable. The rhythm is a mix of roots reggae and dancehall. The music is a reflection of the culture of Jamaica. It is a music that has its roots in the Rastafari movement.

I have always been fascinated by the way music can evoke emotions. The music of Jimmy Cliff is a great example of this. His music has a way of capturing the essence of the Rastafari movement. His music is a reflection of the struggle for justice and freedom.

Even now, when most people of color in the United States have little or no idea of what reggae is, there is a growing appreciation for the music. It has become a symbol of resistance and a way to express the struggles of the people.

Illegal Forests in Dhaka
"We are at the cross·roads of a new era in our history," said President Zia. "The events of the past weeks have shown that the forest is a precious resource that must be protected and managed for the benefit of all.

The number of illegal forests in Dhaka has been steadily increasing over the past few years. This trend is a cause for concern, as these forests play a vital role in maintaining the ecological balance of the region.

However, the government has taken steps to address this issue. Several measures have been implemented to prevent deforestation, including the creation of new protected areas, the enforcement of stricter laws, and the implementation of community-based forest management programs.

In addition, efforts have been made to promote sustainable uses of forest resources, such as forest-based tourism and the production of non·wood products.

These measures have led to a gradual reduction in the rate of deforestation in Dhaka. However, there is still a long way to go to fully address this serious issue.

We must continue to work together to protect our natural resources and ensure a sustainable future for all.

Stay tuned for updates on this important issue."
Wimbledon record set by Rinaldi

By Market Spars
United Press International

WIMBLEDON, England — Kathie Rinaldi, the 16-year-old daughter of a Florida dentist, captured the spotlight from some of the best names in tennis today when she became the second-youngest winner of the women’s singles title in the 82-year history of Wimbledon.

Rinaldi, only 19 years, 11 months and 18 days old, showed the assassin’s virtue at a veteran’s age, winning seven straight games at the close of the second set and three games in the third set to become the youngest champion in the event’s history. She added the title to her French Open triumph earlier this year, making her the first player to win the two major events in the same year.

The victory was a remarkable achievement, as Rinaldi had been ranked only 150th in the world before this tournament. Her father, an avid tennis player, had been a member of the U.S. Davis Cup team. Rinaldi, who had grown up playing on clay courts, had never before been near the top 100 in the world rankings.

Rinaldi, who had been seeded 25th, held her own against the top players, including two-time defending champion Martina Navratilova. She had taken her confidence from the French Open, where she had upset Navratilova and other top players.

Rinaldi, who had been playing well, had not been expected to make it to the final. But, with her father’s encouragement and the support of her family, she had continued to improve and had reached the final after defeating every top player in the world, including defending champion Navratilova.

Rinaldi’s success was the result of hard work and dedication. She had spent countless hours practicing on clay courts, studying the game, and improving her technique. Her father had been a constant source of support, always encouraging her to push herself and believe in herself.

Rinaldi’s victory was a testament to the power of determination and hard work. Her success showed that anyone, regardless of their starting point, can achieve great things if they are willing to put in the work.

Baseball talks reset for today

By Peter Finney

NEW YORK — A federal judge was expected today to call a two-week recess in antitrust talks between Major League Baseball owners and baseball players. The judge made the decision after the league and players announced they were willing to resume negotiations.

In a statement released today, the league and players said they were resuming talks after a two-week recess. The statement said the two sides had made progress in addressing several key issues.

The issue of how to divvy up revenue was a major sticking point in the talks. The league had been seeking a larger share of the revenue, while the players were pushing for a smaller share. The league also had been seeking a reduction in the number of games played, while the players were pushing for more.

The league had also been seeking to cut back on the use of free agents, while the players had been pushing for more free-agency options. The league had also been seeking to reduce the salary cap, while the players had been pushing for more salary-cap flexibility.

The two sides had made progress in addressing these issues, but they had not reached an agreement. The two sides had been able to agree on several other issues, including drug testing, performance-enhancing drugs, and the length of the season.

The league and players had been unable to reach an agreement on how to divide the revenue.
