By Anne Temple

While summer jobs are turning over, UI departments are reducing the number of faculty and line teaching assistantship recipients in an effort to increase their chances of being hired back.

The Institute of International Education (IIE) based in New York City has announced that it will not award any Peace Corps fellowships to American students for the 1981-1982 academic year. This decision was made due to the current economic situation and the need to conserve resources.

1980-1981 Summer Internships

In the past, these fellowships have been awarded to American students for summer internships in countries around the world. However, due to the current economic situation, the IIE has decided to暂停 this program.

The announcement has been met with mixed reactions from students and faculty members. Some feel that it is a missed opportunity for American students to gain international experience, while others support the decision due to the current economic situation.

UI also announced that it will offer a limited number of scholarships to students who have demonstrated exceptional academic performance and financial need. The scholarships will cover tuition and fees, but students will be responsible for other expenses such as housing and meals.

Closed classes prompt open course list

By Janice Rayner

Last week, the UI Registrar's Office announced that 24 courses would be closed due to a lack of enrollment. This is a significant increase from previous years, where only a few courses were closed.

The decision to close courses was made to ensure that UI can continue to provide high-quality education to its students. The registrar's office is working closely with the faculty members to find alternative solutions for courses that are currently closed.

###Postal service talks continue past deadline

Negotiations between the Postal Service and the labor unions continued until the midnight Monday conference, giving a glimpse of possible progress.

Postal Service for the American Postal Workers Union and Letter Carriers announced that talks with postal officials at a demonstration held on the city Monday were closed. The meeting was held in response to the release of a new labor contract proposal, which was negotiated by the federal mediator, Nelson Filmer, and agreed to by the Postal Service.

With the old-laws agreement expired at midnight, some officials have previously indicated that they might continue talks if there was some progress. However, the Postal Service and the labor unions have not reached any agreement.

IOWA CITY Postmaster Don Gregor said a new policy plan would be implemented in Iowa City at a city council meeting on Wednesday. He added that the plan would be more effective in handling the specific issues being consumed by the city.

Iowa Postmaster Darrell L. Shull said his plan would be similar to the current model but would be tailored to meet the local needs.

"We have a new program where we have a new team," Shull said. "We're working on it right now, and it's going to be very effective."

The plan includes using military and law enforcement officials to help with the delivery process and ensure that the service is provided in a timely manner.

"We want to make sure that we have a good delivery service," Shull said. "We're working on it right now, and it's going to be very effective."

The Justice Department has a plan to support U.S. Postal Service programs in other areas, including a telecommunication system.

"We're looking at it right now, and it's going to be very effective," Shull said. "We want to make sure that we have a good delivery service."

Barcelo named assistant dean

By Nancy Stabler

Annette "Rusty" Barcelo- the first black student to serve on the student personnel staff at the University- was named assistant dean of counseling and personnel services.

Barcelo, 31, is currently an attorney with the American Civil Liberties Union in St. Louis, where she works on civil rights issues, particularly as they relate to the disabilities community.

"I am very pleased and honored to be named assistant dean," Barcelo said in a statement. "I believe that my background and experiences make me well-suited for this position."

Barcelo, who is a member of the National Association of Black Women's licensed in social work, has worked in a variety of settings, including the ACLU, a law firm, and a community organization.

Her work has focused on civil rights, disability rights, and social justice issues.

"I look forward to working with my colleagues and students to further our mission of providing excellence in counseling and personnel services," Barcelo said.

The University seeks to diversify its student personnel staff, and Barcelo's appointment is seen as a step in that direction.

"Annette is a highly respected leader in the disability rights movement," said UI President Bruce Harreld. "We are thrilled to have her join our team as assistant dean."

Barcelo's appointment will be effective immediately.

Political prank bezets vandalism

By Nancy Stabler

What appears to have started as a prank has spun into a brutal political recruiting scam.

The controversy began July 14 when Thomas Graham, a member of the Iowa Secretary of State's staff, was targeted.

Graham, who works at the State Capitol in Des Moines, was found at his desk with a sign that appeared to be a political statement.

"It's a political statement," Graham said. "We've had this happen before."}

Graham said the sign was not a prank and that he is not concerned.

"We are not going to cave in to this," Graham said. "We are going to continue to support our political candidates."}

However, Graham's office said the sign was not intended as a political statement.

"We are not going to let this disrupt our work," Graham said. "We will continue to support our political candidates."

South Bend, Ind. — The University of Notre Dame's 37-year-old Opera Theatre, directed by Charles A. Landstreet, presented a scene from Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's 'Don Giovanni' for the benefit of the Notre Dame Foundation.

Landstreet, an experienced opera director, has directed several productions of the Mozart opera in the past. His staging of this particular scene was praised by reviewers for its innovative and dynamic approach.

The opera was presented in the DeBartolo Performing Arts Center and featured a cast of students and faculty members. The production was sold out, and the audience was praised for their enthusiasm and response to the performance.
Western leaders plan Soviet warning

By JOURDAN (1979) - Western political leaders are drawing a cautious line on Monday by preparing a united warning message to the Soviets. The warning is expected to be linked with joint statements from European states, Israel, and the United Nations. More than once, US President Ronald Reagan has been linked with the warning message. However, the US has not yet released a statement on the matter.

He said it is in order for leaders to be on the alert if the Soviet Union makes any more threats to its own people. They have not all been satisfied to see the Soviet Union as a threat to the world.
