Conservatives to support Bible as textbook

By Michael Laxon

The University of Northern Iowa's conservative faculty campaign has come to support President C.T. Franstalker in adopting the Bible as a mandatory textbook in the Chapeaus curriculum. Franstalker has said he would consider such a move if the faculty supported it.

Michael Laxon, who has been a member of the faculty for three years, said he would support the Bible as a textbook if it was introduced as a mandatory course.

"The Bible is a moral and spiritual guidebook that can help us understand our place in the universe," Laxon said.

Franstalker has been a controversial figure on campus, with some faculty members calling for his resignation. However, the conservative faculty campaign has been supportive of the president and his administration.

The Bible as a textbook has been a topic of debate on college campuses across the country. Some argue that it provides a valuable moral and spiritual foundation, while others believe it is inappropriate for a public university.

The University of Northern Iowa has a policy of allowing faculty members to express their religious beliefs in the classroom, as long as it does not infringe on the rights of students from other faiths.

Students to sue UNI for releasing files

By Bobbi Ruth

The University of Northern Iowa has been sued by a group of students who claim their personal information was released without their consent.

The suit, filed in federal court, alleges that the university violated the students' constitutional rights by releasing their information to third parties without their consent.

The university has yet to respond to the lawsuit, which was filed on behalf of 10 students who say their personal information was released without their consent.

The university has a policy of releasing student information to third parties, such as law enforcement agencies and government officials, when required by law.

However, the students claim their information was released without their consent and that the university did not have a legal basis for doing so.

The university has not responded to the lawsuit, which was filed last week. The university has not commented on the lawsuit, and it is not clear if the university will respond to the lawsuit.

The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages and an injunction preventing the university from releasing student information without their consent.

Robert Boyd has had his share of problems as the president of the University of Iowa. And there have always been problems with money, and Boyd has been no exception. But to his fans he represents higher education with whom he went to Van Meter, where he has been the need for more and money for education, Boyd reported his pol. An investment in education is an investment in the future. He has been a strong proponent of the value of a liberal arts education and the need to develop courses to meet the needs of students who aren't the time to retreat, to become part of the silent majority."

Boyd couldn't control that situation, what would he do with more serious situations?" one legislator asked.

That question was soon answered when Boyd faced campus unrest during the Vietnam war. He dealt with problems not with force but with understanding. Even during the most trying times, Boyd never lost his cool.

Reagan stand defended

The other day I was speaking in Chicago to a large group of people and someone in the audience asked me if I believed in the Republican party. Without hesitation I replied, "The Republican party is the party of the people."

The implication of your article on bad books being in libraries does not agree with me. These books are to be read. We can debate them, but we cannot control them. We cannot dictate what people shall or shall not believe. But we can control the libraries and the schools and the censorship of the books. That is the job of the government.

Second-class population

In America, we have a new family living at SC.H Church St. Free Press and its wife Ruthie Zawada will occupy the president's office. The president of the University of Pennsylvania has a position he has held since 1979. Before becoming dean, Freedman was appointed assistant professor of Political Science and the University at New York.

Freedman was selected from a list of more than 200 names. He was interviewed by members of the presidential screening committee and members of the state Board of Regents before he was appointed. When the list of candidates was pared to two, and the other candidate, Paul Rabinow, of the University of California, Berkeley, was interviewed, it was almost certain that Freedman would be appointed.

But to his fans he represents higher education with whom he went to Van Meter, where he has been the need for more and money for education, Boyd reported his pol. GRAND OPENING

Audio Odyssey

Formerly The Stereo Shop

We'd like to be Your Stereo Store

We have eleven years of experience.

Eleven years ago a small business called The Stereo Shop was opened in Iowa City. The objective was to bring the finest quality stereo equipment to this area at reasonable prices. Eleven years later we now have a store in Davenport, a completely refurbished Iowa City store, and a new name — Audio Odyssey. The objective, however, has remained the same — to provide the best stereo components available at competitive prices.

We don't sell everything.

Supermarkets are fine for groceries but we've always believed that trying to display and sell everything in the store only means having a lot of mediocre merchandise on your shelves. Fortunately, we've always had the ability to choose from among the best stereo brands available and our current choices represent the finest products in today's audio market.

We're not too large or too small.

We're big enough to buy and sell our merchandise at the right price but small enough to care about our customers. We're price-competitive but we're not in a race to the bottom.

We won't forget you after the sale.

If you have questions or difficulties with anything purchased from us we've always been able to help. If you have a service problem, we'll do our best to solve it as fast as possible. We want our customers to continue to be our most effective advertising force.

Hidden costs are associated with off-campus life

By Hebrew Davidson

For 3 years, the cost of owning an off-campus apartment has not decreased, and can even be a higher cost than a university dormitory. "When you move in, you are able to see the cost difference, and you have to decide if the cost is worth it," said one student. "If you live in a one-bedroom apartment, you are paying $500 a month, and if you live in a dormitory, you are paying $350 a month." The cost of owning an off-campus apartment includes everything from rent to utilities, and can be a significant cost to students. "If you have a roommate, you are able to split the cost, but it can still be expensive," said another student. "I live in a one-bedroom apartment, and I am paying $250 a month, and if I had a roommate, I would only have to pay $125 a month." The cost of owning an off-campus apartment can also be a significant cost to students, especially if they are not able to find roommates. "If you are not able to find roommates, you are paying the entire cost of the apartment," said another student. "I live alone, and I am paying $250 a month, and I am not able to find roommates." The cost of owning an off-campus apartment can also be a significant cost to students, especially if they are not able to find roommates. "If you are not able to find roommates, you are paying the entire cost of the apartment," said another student. "I live alone, and I am paying $250 a month, and I am not able to find roommates."
Housing problems hit foreigners

By Carl Wood

Finding a place to live is a problem that every student encounters whether in Iowa City or in a different country. In Iowa City, the problem is often compounded by the fact that there are a limited number of dormitory beds and few low-cost apartments available on the market.

Charles Forns, a junior at the University of Iowa, recently encountered the problem. Forns stated that he was looking for a place to live this fall because his dormitory room in the Iowa City residence hall was not available.

"I had to find a place to live because I'm going to be a freshman next year," Forns said.

The problem of finding housing is not unique to the University of Iowa. Many other universities across the country are also experiencing a shortage of housing.

In October, the University of Iowa announced that it would be increasing the number of dormitory beds available to freshmen. The university plans to increase the number of dormitory beds by 150, which will help to alleviate the housing shortage.

Despite the increase in dormitory beds, many students are still facing difficulties finding housing. This is mainly due to the high cost of rent and the limited availability of apartments.

"I've been looking for a place to live for over a month," said another student.

Some students have resorted to living in off-campus housing to save money. However, this option is not always feasible due to the limited availability of off-campus housing in Iowa City.

In conclusion, the problem of finding housing is a significant issue that affects many students. The increase in dormitory beds by the University of Iowa is a step in the right direction, but more needs to be done to address the housing shortage.

UI greek system increases reflect nationwide uprising

By Ann Temple

The Iowa Interfraternity Council is planning a series of events to promote the growth of Greek life on campus.

"We are seeing a nationwide increase in Greek life," said J. Lawrence Hicken, president of the Interfraternity Council. "We believe it is important to support this growth and to promote the values of Greek life to potential members.

The events include a Greek Week, which will feature a series of events to promote Greek life on campus. The events will include a Greek Week Fair, where members of different Greek organizations will showcase their organizations and activities.

"Greek Week is an opportunity for students to learn more about Greek life and to meet members of different organizations," said Hicken.

The Interfraternity Council is also planning to increase the number of scholarships available to Greek life members. "We believe that scholarships are an important way to support Greek life members and to encourage participation in Greek life," said Hicken.

In conclusion, the Interfraternity Council is committed to promoting the growth of Greek life on campus. The events planned for Greek Week and the increase in scholarships are steps in the right direction to support Greek life on campus.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The cost of going to a college tripled in the past 10 years, with the average family spending nearly $12,000 a year to put one of its members through a four-year private school, the University of Illinois said Monday.

Benjamin C. Boyd, president of the University of Illinois at Chicago, said the average family spends $11,280 to $12,800 in the 1980-81 school year, compared with $4,300 in 1972.

In 1980-81, average total costs for resident undergraduate students per year, based on last year's costs at private colleges and 10 percent at private schools, the report said.

The report also noted that the average four-year college tuition for Illinois residents increased 35 percent during the 1972-73 to 1980-81 period.

Sbogua Clavell said Dale Wasserman , author of Man of La Mamluks. "No one has been cast yet, but Clavell says there are a combination of native Chinese dances and other ethnic dances to help the Chinese dance form . Each tribe's dance is also influenced by the music of an instrument that was made by music or in its part . It was clear that the class would study iconic movements by doing three demonstration by a master teacher.

Su Yang, the leading authority and teacher of folk dance in the People's Republic of China, is resident at the UI Dance Program and will be teaching, performing and conducting workshops here as part of an extensive lecture tour in the United States.

AN IMPORTANT aspect of the residency is Xia's cooperative efforts with the UI dance faculty and Mary Corey of the Dance Notation Bureau . They will prepare the first notation of native Chinese dance using the graphic system called Labanotation . In addition, the dance will be filmed and transcribed for future study .

China's oldest form dates from more than 5,000 years of dance and music. The Chinese are considered the world's earliest modern dance form to perform in China since the Song Dynasty. The Chinese have been noted for their unique and expressive style, often using various techniques to convey a message. The dance form is a blend of ancient Chinese musical traditions and modern performance styles.

I'M FLAG ACTION SCREW

Under net

A screw type flag attachment on a flag pole is available. The screw allows the flag to be raised and lowered without the need for a flagpole. The screw is made of durable materials and is suitable for both outdoor and indoor use. The screw is easy to install and can be adjusted to fit different flag poles of varying sizes. It is also compatible with a wide range of flag designs and materials. The screw provides a secure and permanent attachment, ensuring that the flag stays in place even during strong winds and extreme weather conditions. It is designed to withstand the elements and can be used for years without the need for replacement. The screw is available in different colors, allowing you to match it to your flag or flagpole. The screw is made of high-quality materials, ensuring durability and long-lasting performance. It is an ideal solution for those who want to display their flags proudly and safely, without the need for complex flagpole systems.
IM flag football action scheduled under new lights

By Tim Jans

In keeping with the University of Iowa's efforts to preserve and maintain athletic fields, a new flag football field has been established. This innovation is expected to enhance the quality of play and provide better lighting for evening games.

The field, located near the Student Recreation Center, is specifically designed for flag football. With an updated lighting system, the field will now offer improved visibility for players and spectators alike. This new setup ensures a more enjoyable and safe playing environment for all involved.

The University's commitment to maintaining a world-class athletic facility aligns with the objective of providing a community-oriented space for recreational activities. The new lighting system not only supports the physical wellbeing of the players but also contributes to the overall safety of the area, making it more accessible and enjoyable for everyone.

The introduction of this new field and its improved lighting marks a significant step forward in the University's commitment to fostering a healthy and active lifestyle among its community members. With the new light system, the field becomes an even more compelling destination for those seeking an engaging and immersive sporting experience.

Green lives Wildcat hopes

By Edward Sairan

CHICAGO — The last time Northwestern head coach Dick Tomey was involved in the West Coast's biggest football game, he was wearing the bright green socks that his players wore in the pre-game warm-up. This time, he'll be wearing the bright orange socks that his players wore in the post-game celebration.

The 12-0 win by NU over Minnesota on Saturday, Nov. 8, clinched the Big Ten conference championship for the Wildcats. It was the team's first conference title since 1956 and their first overall championship since 1973.

I'm sure you've noticed that the temperature in the upper Midwest has been quite chilly lately. It's not unusual for the temperature to drop below freezing during the fall months, but this year it seems to be particularly cold.

Last week, I took a trip to the Lake Michigan shoreline and was struck by the beauty of the ice-covered lakes. The water was so clear that you could see the rocks on the bottom. It was a fascinating sight, and I hope you'll enjoy looking at the pictures I took.

Women's athletics sponsor classic

By Mike Kevi

Iowa women athletes shined during the Midwest-Coast games last weekend in the Thursday-night Hawk-Eye and Times-Citizen Classic at the Hane.

The poultry event is a favorite for Iowa women's teams. Members of the Enter-Gardens, the only team to win the tournament, displayed their talent by playing in the Heat and Tavern.

We were among those who found the event a memorable experience. The purpose of the girls' tournament was to highlight the ability of women to participate in the sport.

Expect no telecasts of Hawkeye football

By Steve Bollerman

That might be a bit too optimistic, but it doesn't hurt to wish for the best. Iowa's football team, however, will probably not be televising any games this season.

The Hawkeyes' television schedule was released this week, and it appears that the team will not be televised at all.

The university announced that it was working with the Iowa broadcasting network to determine whether any games would be televised this year.

The network has not yet agreed to broadcast any games, and it is unlikely that any games will be televised.

However, the university is exploring other options, such as streaming games online or creating a subscription service.

In the meantime, fans will have to rely on their own resources to follow the team's progress.

Grid tickets still available for students

By Jay Christiansen

Saturday's football game at Kinnick Stadium is set for 5 p.m. with the Hawkeye vs. Purdue Boilermakers.

Tickets are still available for students, but they are expected to sell out quickly.

The Hawkeye ticket office is located at 1000 University Ave. in Iowa City, or you can call 319-335-1188.

Student tickets are $10, and they can be purchased online or at the ticket office.

Tickets for non-students are $25, and they can be purchased at the gate.

The Hawkeye football team is in good shape, and they are expected to have a successful season.

The team has a strong offense, and they are led by quarterback Tyler Vitt and running back Tyler Goodson.

The defense is also strong, and they have a few returning starters from last year.

The Hawkeyes are expected to have a tough schedule, but they are ready for the challenge.

The team has been practicing hard, and they are looking forward to the upcoming season.

The crowd is expected to be large and enthusiastic, and it should be a fun game for everyone who attends.

The team is also looking forward to seeing their fans, and they hope to have a great season.
