Residents air opinions on Bible issue

By Michael Low

Two hundred residents of the Cedar Crest School District voted on a referendum last week to adopt the Bible as a supplementary text in the school curriculum. The "Yes" vote was 176 to 24 and the "No" vote was 24 to 176. The 200 residents who voted made up one-third of the school's 600 voters.

The Bible issue divided the school district into two camps. The "Yes" camp was led by Superintendent John F. Birnbaum, who argued that the Bible is a "supplementary" text and should be included in the curriculum.

The "No" camp was led by several parents who argued that the Bible is a religious text and should not be included in the school curriculum.

The results of the vote were announced on Friday, September 30, 1988.

Prep-oyster days descend upon Iowa City

By Scott Greenwald

Our lives really are just melodies, but let's be honest, we're not good at understanding these things. Maybe you're not a "prepper," but everyone has a story about someone they know who is.

The stories are as diverse as the people themselves. Some are about friends who have controlled their own food supply, others are about those who have prepared for the "end of the world as we know it." In either case, the stories are compelling.

Here's one from the Des Moines Register:

"I'm preparing for the worst," said Sarah Thompson, a 25-year-old teacher at Central High School in Des Moines. "I don't think I'm going to be able to do too much, but I'm trying to be prepared.

"I'm saving money, trying to pay off debt, and trying to live within my means. I'm also trying to be as self-sufficient as possible, but I don't have a lot of time for that."

Amtrak funds cut

Those who want to rail the Amtrak Blackhawk from Denver to Chicago should think twice. The rate was eliminated in a recent round of budget cuts, and the service was cut from July 1 to September 30.

It would have been hard to make a case for keeping the Blackhawk, for any given day, the train carried only a handful of passengers. Amtrak officials concede that the ridership on this route is very low. The Blackhawk train must carry at least 100 passengers on each of its daily round trips and must gross more than 80 percent of the cost for every passenger it carries.

The Blackhawk was eliminated because it isn't being run at a profit. It's a low volume and a low producing run for Amtrak. Later, Amtrak officials will look at the Blackhawk service to see if it can be subsidized by the government.

Aberth "rights"

To the editor:

I must respond to a recent article (Aug. 12) by Michael Herriott. Mr. Herriott makes a valiant attempt to define the word "rights" and to use the word appropriately. I take exception to his use of the word "rights" in the same category as the word "liberty".

Mr. Herriott states that the word "rights" is a word of consequence and that it should be used with care. I disagree. I believe that the word "rights" should be used with caution and that it should be used only in the context of the rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States.

The word "rights" is a word of great importance, and it should be used with care. I believe that the word "rights" should be used only in the context of the rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. The word "rights" is a word of great importance, and it should be used with caution.
Delta Zeta holds 'special rush' to boost pledges

By Jackie Reeder

The Delta Zeta sorority held its "special rush" two weeks in April in an attempt to boost membership in the chapter. Many sororities and fraternities hold special rush in order to fill their houses with new women before the end of the school year.

The rush was held for two weeks in April and included social events and sorority tours. The sorority had a total of 22 women in the house, and the special rush was held in order to increase the number of members.

The sorority was founded in 1902 and is one of the oldest sororities on campus. It has a strong tradition and is known for its focus on academic excellence and community service.

Two I.C. historic areas nominated for inclusion in National Register

By Jerriexcs State
to Twllet

Iowa City will nominate two historic areas for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places, taking it to the next level in the nomination process.

The two historic areas are the North Side Residential Historic District and the City Historic Preservation Commission.

The North Side Residential Historic District, located east of the North Side Commercial District, is nominated for its unique architectural style and historical significance.

The City Historic Preservation Commission is nominated for its role in preserving and promoting the city's historic resources.

Tenants' association delays action on silty, odorous water problem

By Claire Davidson

Residents of Parkway Trailer Court plan to take action against the water filter问题.

The Parkway Tenants Association submitted a letter to the city on September 28th expressing concern about the water quality in their trailers.

The letter states, "We have been experiencing issues with the water filter for several months. We have experienced odors and discoloration, and have been forced to boil the water before use."

The association is requesting that the city take immediate action to address these issues and provide a solution.

Moped instruction required by new law

A new law requires anyone who wishes to operate a moped to pass a written and driving test.

The test covers topics such as traffic laws, safety, and emergency procedures.

The law is effective immediately, and anyone caught operating a moped without a valid driver's license will face fines.

The Iowa Department of Transportation is working to develop a curriculum and testing program for moped instruction.

The department is also seeking input from the public on the best way to implement the new law.

Akasha best Iowa bar-band; 'keeps it all in perspective'

By T. Johnson

There is nothing more to the world that looks like a rock musician. The clothes, the hair, the look: everyone recognizes it as a recognizable form of the arts and entertainment. Akasha, anyone of the street can do it. It is the original material. There is apparently with the grail in sight to get anyone to listen to one song. No one knows what it is that lies between the time someone starts listening to a band and becomes a fan. They just get slicker and slicker and more familiar.

There are millions of bands in garages and basements. Rock is suffering from that. They either self-destruct or end up in a Holiday Inn on 426 Hwy. 1 West, Mon.-Thur., 12:00-5:00 Sun.

There is only so much one can do about hitting the road and getting anyone to listen to one song. No one knows what is important. What is important is that Akasha is trying. The clothes, the style and verve - of John Davidson singing "Happy birthday." They keep it in perspective. "We KEEP it in perspective," explains Marty Fauchier, the band's keyboard player. "We do this to get here, to get there. This is the reason for this. We look forward to the day we can pay all our own rent out.

The highlights of Akasha's performance at Rockport, Iowa, consisted in how much I like them. I like them. I love them. I'm a huge fan of their sound system was fairly clear and they seemed to have some good equipment.

The band was invited from the Los Angeles Times/Mercury,úbout eight months ago, and representative Michael Cramen.

I don't think if people stand up if they love them, but I don't find it very commercial. So said. "This is the worst bar-band we've ever seen."

Western rockers expect fuel, reaching the values that being an artist means is a process. The band is the Kansas City colleague of former Israeli Foreign Minister Aloni's Brooklyn. A面料 of the future at the American Jewish Yearbook. 1981. The original plan was not confirmed.

No worry to Hawks on losses of players

By Steve Rattner

It's always an emotional time when seniors leave a basketball team. But as the Hawkeyes prepare to face Michigan this weekend, one of their seniors—Scott Meekins—will be missing.

Meekins, who transferred to Iowa last summer from Long Beach State University, was a key contributor on the Hawkeyes' run to the NCAA tournament. He averaged 8.4 points per game and started in all 32 games.

"Scott was a great player for us," said Iowa head coach Fran McCaffery. "He was a great leader on and off the court, and he'll be missed by our team."

Meekins, a 6-foot-4 guard, transferred to Iowa because of academic reasons. He was granted a waiver by the NCAA to make him immediately eligible for the 2011-2012 season.

"I'm excited to be here and to play for Coach McCaffery," Meekins said. "I've been working hard this summer and I'm ready to contribute to this team."

The Hawkeyes are currently 4-0 in conference play and are looking to maintain their momentum against Michigan on Saturday. Meekins will be a key to their success, as he is the team's leading scorer and best defender.

"Scott's presence will be huge for us," McCaffery said. "He's a very talented player and he'll give us a boost on both ends of the court."
