Native Americans to hold powwow

The three-day event, which is sponsored by the University of Iowa College of Social Work and is held in honor of the 10th anniversary of the Native American chapter at the university, is scheduled for Friday through Sunday.

The center's mission is to provide a place to meet, speak and listen to our community. The center, which opened in 1971, is the birthplace of a cultural center for Native Americans.

The powwow is scheduled for Friday at 7 p.m., Saturday at 2 p.m., and Sunday at 2 p.m.

The powwow will feature native American dances, songs and storytelling. The powwow will also include a drum circle, a powwow dance competition, and a Native American food festival.

The powwow is open to the public and is free to attend. For more information, please call the Native American Cultural Center at 319-335-1000.
Regulation needed and wanted

WASHINGTON — The crisis got louder. From within the community of American Indian groups and within the executive branch, a chorus is growing of demands for regulation concerning the use of nuclear material.
An annual dystrophy telethon helps and hurts handicapped

By Paul Sonnen

The Mandeville Dysphoria Association's annual special needs telethon helped the area's handicapped, a spokesman for Goodwill Industries said Thursday.

"It certainly raises money. But it does so with the help of those who have something to lose," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

Goodwill Industries is a welfare agency that helps needy people improve their lives.

"They're not the only ones. There are other ways. But this is one. And it's the only one they have," the spokesman said.

"They've got it," he added. "It's the only one they have."
No extra patrols set for weekend

Even though Iowa City Police received 11 complaints of people making noise-related arrests last weekend, there will be no extra patrols this weekend.

Assistant Police Chief Kent Bush said, "We are close enough to deal with any noise problems that we have. If we have a complaint, we will deal with it." The department was still working on the problem of noise on Main Street.

Two weeks ago, 11 toddlers were arrested in Iowa City for noise problems. That's when the noise turned into a problem.

The noise was described as being loud and boisterous. The police, however, said that the noise was not as loud as it was last week.

"We are still dealing with the problem," Bush said. "We are working on it, but we don't want to create a new problem." The police chief said that the noise is not a problem, but that it is a problem that needs to be addressed.

TV can stifle emotion, says film

Hollywood—Ann Harding died Thursday night at his apartment in Hollywood. The actress, who received five Academy Award nominations during her career, was 42.

"She had a career full of promise," said a friend. "But she was just not able to fulfill that promise. She was a wonderful actress, but she never quite got a break."

Harding was born in Texas on Nov. 16. She was educated in the public schools and graduated from the University of Texas. She was married to her college sweetheart, Robert Taylor, and they had two children. She was a devoted mother and wife.

"She was a wonderful human being," said her husband. "She was a wonderful actress and a wonderful person."

Rev. Falwell predicts doom for abortion in '80s

Soviet Union dispatches warships to cruise 200 miles off U.S. coast

DALLAS (UPI) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell, leader of the Moral Majority, Thursday predicted "abortion will become extinct in the United States like perestroika in the Soviet Union." The Moral Majority is composed of several hundred church groups across the country composed of people who believe the 1973 Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion is an immoral and unwise action.

"The only way that will happen is if mass numbers of people oppose abortion," said Falwell. He added: "We will do the things that will bring about a constitutional amendment that will ban abortion." The United States Supreme Court ruled in 1973 that a state cannot ban abortions, a ruling that led to the legalization of abortion.

In other news:

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has been dispatched warships to cruise 200 miles off the coast of the United States.

The ships, which reportedly include two destroyers and a frigate, are expected to enter the Gulf of Alaska Friday and continue south.

The move comes after the United States announced it would send a military aircraft to the Bering Sea, north of Alaska. The aircraft is expected to depart Saturday.

The Soviet ships' presence is likely intended to demonstrate the country's military might and to keep an eye on United States forces in the area.

Duke faculty vetoes Nixon library but trustees will give final decision

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Duke University's faculty representatives voted to approve the construction of a library on the campus of the university, but the decision to build the library will be made by the trustees of the university.

The faculty representatives voted 66-34 in favor of the construction of the library. The decision to build the library will be made by the trustees, who are responsible for the financial and operational aspects of the university.

The library is expected to be completed by 1984. The university's president, Benjamin D.されていた，1984年11月に完成予定。
Johnson

If the student fees Johnson, author of the Clear Creek School District's universal referendum to adopt the Bible as a supplementary textbook, is passed, then it will be the first time a public school district has made a direct endorsement of the Bible. Johnson, a member of the school board, said the referendum would be a step toward greater religious freedom and would empower parents to decide whether their children should study the Bible in school. Johnson believes a wider range of religious beliefs should be taught in public schools, and he sees the referendum as a way to achieve this goal.

Additional Information:
- Johnson is a member of the school board and has been a vocal advocate for the Bible referendum.
- The Clear Creek School District is located in a predominantly Catholic area, and Johnson's proposal has been met with resistance from some in the community.
- Supporters of the referendum argue that it would provide students with a broader understanding of religious diversity.
- Opponents fear the proposal could lead to increased religious divisions within the school.

Related Events:
- The referendum will be held on the next school board meeting.
- The results will be announced at a special meeting on the following day.
- Johnson plans to run for re-election if the referendum passes.
School candidates on the issues

by Elizabeth Flowers

Eight people are vying for four seats in the Iowa City School Board. This year marks the first time that candidates have opened seven of the candidates. Their names are the major issues facing the Iowa City schools today.

Two-year seat

Stan Aldinger

Aldinger, 43, is a vice president at First Federal of Dubuque. One of his four children still attends school in Iowa City. Aldinger has lived in Iowa City for 23 years.

Aldinger, a former high-school teacher, said he is running for the School Board because he is concerned about the need for more teachers and the continuing consolidation of the five school districts in the county.

"In my opinion, we need to be careful. The major areas that need to be addressed, he said, are the school district's organization and consolidation of the five school districts. I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment,

"I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment, and one of the problems is the need for more teachers," he said.

Tom Ceci

Ceci, a long-time lawyer and a certificated public accountant, is the second candidate for the two-year seat. Ceci, a graduate of the University of Iowa, has been a partner in a law firm in West Des Moines since 1972.

Ceci, who is also a member of the National Education Association, said he is running for the School Board because he is concerned about the need for more teachers and the continuing consolidation of the five school districts in the county.

"I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment, and one of the problems is the need for more teachers," he said.

Three-year seats

Patricia Hayek

Hayek, a 16-year veteran of the Iowa City school system, is running for the three-year seat. Hayek, who is also a member of the National Education Association, said she is running for the School Board because she is concerned about the need for more teachers and the continuing consolidation of the five school districts in the county.

"I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment, and one of the problems is the need for more teachers," she said.

David Loney

Loney, a former school board member, is running for the three-year seat. Loney, who is also a member of the National Education Association, said he is running for the School Board because he is concerned about the need for more teachers and the continuing consolidation of the five school districts in the county.

"I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment, and one of the problems is the need for more teachers," he said.

Rev. Harold Yates

Yates, a retired pastor of the First Baptist Church, is running for the three-year seat. Yates, who is also a member of the National Education Association, said he is running for the School Board because he is concerned about the need for more teachers and the continuing consolidation of the five school districts in the county.

"I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment, and one of the problems is the need for more teachers," he said.

Michael Hart

Hart, 4, is a professor of pathology at the UI and the director of laboratories at the Veterans Administration Hospital. Hart has lived in Iowa City for six years and has three children in Iowa City schools. He has served on the School Board since 1979 and is a member of the National Education Association.

"I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment, and one of the problems is the need for more teachers," he said.

Kibbis, 43, is an Iowa City Police detective. He has lived in Iowa City for six years and has three children in Iowa City schools. He has served on the School Board since 1979 and is a member of the National Education Association.

"I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment, and one of the problems is the need for more teachers," he said.

By Parent

"I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment, and one of the problems is the need for more teachers," he said.

William Kidwell

Kidwell, 43, is a member of the Johnson County Board. Aldinger does not favor closing any schools but he is satisfied with the current system.

"I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment, and one of the problems is the need for more teachers," he said.

"I think it is safe to say we need to look at the issue as it is being addressed at the moment, and one of the problems is the need for more teachers," he said.

Stabler settles family suit; warrant revoked

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. - Los Angeles Rams defensive end Leon Stabler will be the only one giving Houston Oilers quarterback Kenny Stabler the rough treatment that a child-support judgment has been settled with the help of Manager Bud Harrelson. Stabler obtained the order from a California judge on Wednesday that will be the sentinel moment in a week surrounded by attention for Stabler's arrest in January that would be revoked.

According to the papers, the parents are in the process of being drawn out. "For me, it's been quite a tough month," said Stabler. "I'm trying to keep things as simple as possible for my family." The papers are to be made available to the media for a fee of $250.

If THE MATTER had not been cleared up, Stabler would have been in jail. The only one in question was to stand in front of the court is Los Angeles in December for a new hearing. However, the court decided to dismiss the case.

Stabler had appealed a Superior Court judge's order to stop increased child support, and he said that any further increases would be paid within 36 months to his former wife, who is now single.

The order was not involved in settling the dispute over a promotion but was acted on in connection with each other. "I'm not going to allow this to worry me," said Stabler. "I want to make sure to continue planning what's left of our lives." The papers are to be made available to the media for a fee of $250.

The LEGAL situation may have contributed to Stabler's decision in July to return to football. He changed his mind and returned to the university. Stabler's wife, Norma Brooks,据称是Stabler的前妻但未提供具体信息。据称她与Stabler生活在同一座城市，目前还未对这些指控做出正式回应。据称她与Stabler生活在同一座城市，目前还未对这些指控做出正式回应。据称她与Stabler生活在同一座城市，目前还未对这些指控做出正式回应。据称她与Stabler生活在同一座城市，目前还未对这些指控做出正式回应。
Illini athletics to receive funding from state lottery

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (Chicago Sun-Times) — Gov. James R. Thompson, headed to lawmakers in the Illinois Senate on Monday with a "do or die" bill that would give the state's athletic programs an additional $5.4 million to help them upgrade facilities and pay for replacements in the state's athletic facilities.

"If the legislature doesn't act, we'll have to look elsewhere for the funding," Thompson said. "We need the money now, and we need it to keep our programs competitive with other athletic departments around the country.

The bill was introduced by the Senate Education Committee and is expected to be considered by the full Senate on Monday. The measure would provide a total of $5.4 million over a two-year period for capital improvements and operational costs for the state's athletic programs.

"This is a critical need," Thompson said. "Our athletic programs are some of the best in the country, but we can't keep up with the competition without the funds to make improvements.

The money would be used for a variety of purposes, including the construction of new facilities, the purchase of new equipment, and the hiring of additional support staff. The funds would also be used to help pay for the costs of operating the athletic programs.

"Without this money, our programs will struggle," Thompson said. "We can't compete with other schools if we don't have the facilities and the resources to do so.

The governor said he was hopeful that the legislature would act quickly to pass the bill, but he also warned that if the measure was not approved, he would take other steps to ensure that the programs received the funding they needed.

Thompson said he would continue to work with lawmakers to find a way to fund the athletic programs, but he also said he was prepared to take action if the legislature did not act.

"We need to act quickly," Thompson said. "If we don't, our programs will suffer.

The measure was introduced by Sen. John O'Grady, a Democrat from the Chicago area, and was co-sponsored by other state lawmakers from the Chicago area. The bill has been endorsed by the Illinois College Sports Association, which represents more than 40 athletic programs.

"This is a critical need," O'Grady said. "Our programs need the funding to keep up with the competition.

The bill is expected to be considered by the full Senate on Monday. It is expected to be passed by a large margin.

"We need to act quickly," O'Grady said. "If we don't, our programs will suffer."

Osborne prepares Huskers for Iowa

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Nebraska coach Tom Osborne said Thursday he is satisfied with the way his team has been going and he expects to put in a final tuneup next Tuesday at Bob Devaney Coliseum to face Iowa.

"We've got a lot of things going for us," Osborne said. "We'd like to think we'd be in at least the top four in the conference and I think we are.

"But we're not satisfied and we have a lot of things to work on." Osborne said he also would like to see his team execute its game plan for a 7 p.m. game. "If the Huskers were to play a game such as the one we played against the pocket and Grant Campbell wouldn't be in perhaps our best one," Osborne said.

"When we play them in line for pass we have a lot of things we'd like to see," Osborne said. "So I think we'll do a pretty good job of practice. We should be back in the game next week." Missing Thursday's workout because of a two-day vacation in the Houston area, quarterback Roger Craig and halfback Jeff Strom were not back at practice.

"I'm not too worried about them," Osborne said. "I think they'll be back in the game next week." Osborne also announced sophomore halfback Tracy Cliner, a freshman last year, and twin brother and tailback Tony Cliner would be added to the freshmen squad.

"They just graduated from high school and I think they're a little unsure," Osborne said.

Davis upsets Teacher in Open

NEW YORK — A pair of fourth-round upsets stunned spectators at the U. S. Open Tennis Championships Thursday, in New York. Marty Davis, claimed the first major upset of the competition by stunning the 1980 U.S. Open champion, Brian Teacher, in the opening round.

"It's just the way the picture turned out," Davis said. "I think I did a little better than I thought I would." The upset came as a surprise to many, who expected Teacher to advance to the quarterfinals. Davis' victory was a shock, especially to Teacher, who had been seeded as the second favorite in the tournament.

TEACHER WON THE first set but Davis, a former All-American in high school, regained the second set and won the next two to claim the third set. Davis then led 5-7, 7-6, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

LACOSTE DEBUTED In the first round, Davis defeated Frenchman Jean-Luc Lacoste, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. Lacoste, who had earlier defeated Davis in the first round of the Open, was unable to keep up with Davis' form. Davis then went on to win a hard-fought battle against Teacher, 7-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Davis upset Teacher in the Open, winning the first set of their match 6-4, before Teacher won the second set 6-3. Davis then went on to win the third set 6-4, before Teacher won the fourth set 6-2. In the fifth set, Davis won 6-3, to claim the overall victory.

Davis said he was surprised by the victory, but he was happy with the way he played. "I was very pleased with the way I played," Davis said.

"I knew it would be tough, but I didn't expect it to be this tough," Teacher said. "I thought I had a good chance, but I guess I was wrong." Teacher, who had been seeded as the 16th favorite, was eliminated from the tournament with the loss.
