Diluted city noise ordinance feared

By Michael Leon aff Writer

The man who first proposed a city noise ordinance said the Iowa City Council may play election-time politics and do little to correct the city's noise problem.

"My concern is that the city is going to pass a watered-down version, and that would be worthless," said Larry Baker, a UI teaching assistant. Baker sent the council a copy of a Norman. Okla., ordinance Aug. 17 and served as a spokesman for citizens who favor a noise ordinance.

"I'm also afraid the noise issue is going to be picked up by some members of the council running for re-election who don't have their heart in it." he said. He added that those councilors would manipulate the issue to their advantage. Baker declined to name the councilors.

BAKER SAID the council's attitude toward a noise ordinance has led him to seriously consider running for the council. "There are other issues involved," he said. "I won't announce my decision publicly for a few days

Baker was among the dozen residents who attended an Aug. 25 council meeting where he spoke in favor of a noise ordinance. Iowa City Mayor John Balmer and councilors Robert Vevera, Glenn Roberts and Larry Lynch said. they did not believe an ordinance was necessary because noise violations are covered by present law.

At that meeting, several councilors said they did not want electronic devices used to measure sound. The council decided to have Councilor Mary Neuhauser check with the Iowa League of Municipalities on noise ordinances in Iowa. At an informal meeting Monday, the council instructed City Manager Neal Berlin to explore drafting an ordinance with the city legal and planning staffs and a representative of the league.

Senate claims majority to halt arms agreement

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Sponsors of a Senate resolution to disapprove President Reagan's proposed weapons sale to Saudi Arabia announced Thursday that they had 51 members - a majority - as co-signers, but one of the senators issued a denial.

An aide to Sen. H.I. Hayakawa said the California Republican is "leaning against" the weapons deal but has not agreed to sign the resolution.

That left 50 signatories for the resolution which includes 20 Republicans. Sponsors claim they have at least seven allies, including Hayakawa, who oppose the controversial measure but are not co-sponsors. A tie vote would mean Vice President George Bush, in his role as president of the Senate, could break the tie in Reagan's favor.

An aide for the resolution's author, Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., announced earlier Thursday that 51 senators had been committed. The aide also said Hayakawa had agreed to cosponsor the resolution but asked that a copy of it be sent to him.

THAT WAS done, the aide said, but that no answer was received from Hayakawa and Packwood assumed he was still a co-sponsor.

The Packwood representative said Hayakawa had not informed the senator of his apparent change in position until the list was released.

The Senate is considered the key to success for Reagan's hoped-for weapons package to America's largest oil supplier. The most controversial element is five advanced Airborne Warning and Command System aircrafts, called AWACS.

The House is all but certain to oppose the sale, but a vote of both House and Senate is needed to kill it. Reagan hopes to persuade enough senators to yet to receive a complete briefing from the administration. "The issue has been debated in public before the specific arrangements associated with the sale of the system have been divulged to those who were drawing value judgments," Haig said.

House opponents said earlier this week their resolution of disapproval is supported by 253 members - 35 more than the 218-vote majority needed to defeat the package.

These figures would indicate the Saudi package is doomed in Congress - unless minds are changed, the package is modified or the sale is withdrawn.

"If President Reagan insists on a vote on this package, I don't think he can win," said Packwood. "I don't think the president can turn around eight votes.

However, the administration still has six weeks to try to win the fight on Capitol Hill. Both houses must reject the sale by majority votes by Oct. 30, or it goes through

SEN. HENRY JACKSON, D-Wash., and Packwood released a list of 51 sponsors and said at a news conference that two more Republicans and four more Democrats have promised to oppose the package but not co-sign the resolution. Jackson is working wth Packwood on the resolution.

They did not name the six, but one of them is Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, who announced his opposition earlier Thursday during the Haig hearing. In Grand Rapids, Mich., White House communications director David Gergen said Packwood's allies "have indicated in private conversations with the administration that they continue to have an open mind on the subject ... and they want to hear the administration's case before they make a final decision. Gergen suggested the president's case for the sale will be so compelling that a majority of senators will not vote to reject it. "Clearly, the presi-dent does not believe this is the end of

THE COUNCIL instructed Berlin to explore an ordinance that does not use electronic equipment to measure noise. Baker thinks the council is moving in the wrong direction. "You have to define noise or an ordinance won't work," he said.

Baker suggests the city use a modified wording of the Oklahoma ordinance, defining noise in part as "sound plainly audible at the property boundary of the source, or sound plainly audible at 50 feet from a vehicle on a public right-of-way." He also thinks some form of electronic device is necessary to measure motor vehicle

Dr. Charles Anderson of the Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Center said he believes some form of electronic measurement is essential to the success of a noise ordinance. Anderson said the center, a research facility for the UI Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology, is one of 10 national noise research centers funded by the Environmental Protection Agency.

ABOUT 30 Iowa communities including Des Moines, Council Bluffs, Sioux City, Oskaloosa and Cedar Rapids have noise ordinances, he said. Anderson said he is frequently consulted by police departments about sound-testing equipment.

Accurate, reliable testing equipment can be bought at a cost of $500 to $1,000 per unit, he said. The equipment can be mounted on police cars and be set to sound an alarm when sound exceeds the noise level established by an ordinance

Reagan arrived in Grand Rapids in a rainstorm and stumbled on the steps of the plane. Ford - noted for a certain lack of sure-footedness himself in the past - steadied him. Former Presidents Jimmy Carter and Richard Nixon were not invited to the festivities.

In one of the few public comments from the leaders, Trudeau smiled and noted that it had been sunny when he left his own country.

A SENIOR U.S. official said of the meetings with Lopez Portillo and Trudeau, "This was not a heavy business meeting. And I hope everyone doesn't try to convey it that way. The official told reporters it would have been a missed opportunity for the leaders not to have met when they were at the same event.

But the official did acknowledge that a communications problem now exists between Washington, Ottawa and Mexico City on a number of issues, and Thursday's meeting was designed to clarify some of the confusion.

Among the topics requiring such clarification was the recent Mexican-French statement on El Salvador that was considerably more sympathetic to leftist revolutionaries in that nation than the United States preferred.

The Reagan administration has adopted a hard-line approach to the El Salvador question and has come down squarely behind the centrist government of President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

THE SENIOR official described El Salvador as the most important topic of the Reagan-Portillo conversation.

Reagan received a satisfactory clarification of the Mexican-French initiative, the official said without elaboration.

In his conversation with Trudeau Reagan discussed the problem of acid rain from American industrial plants that has plagued Canadian cities north of the border. In addition, they discussed the Alaskan pipeline and recent Canadian moves to nationalize some American multi-national companies in Canada.

The three will meet at breakfast this morning before Reagan departs for a speaking engagement in Denver.

Trudeau and Reagan last met at a July economic summit in Ottawa. Reagan and Lopez Portillo have exchanged visits in California, Mexico and Washington. Their last meetings were in Washington and the Camp David, Md., presidential retreat June Defense Attorney Leon F. Spies said there is no dispute that Bob shot Laura Vesely." Spies said he believes the evidence will show that Vesely was a "frail human being" whose problems included marital strife and alcoholism. The defense, Spies said, will try to determine the role that his alcohol problem had on his life.

The suit, filed Jan. 21, 1980, by Evelyn Barritt, asked for as much as $900,000 from eight faculty members, who Barritt claimed entered into a "conspiracy to wrongfully force her to resign her position and to falsely accuse her of wiretapping phones at the college.'

Because Iowa's tort claims act compels the state to defend and indemnify any state employee sued because of actions on the job, the state comptroller paid Barritt the $24,000 amount reached as a settlement. In exchange for the settlement, Barritt agreed to drop her suit against the faculty members.

Court records state that the settlement "does not constitute an admission of liability on the part of any person or entity.

Diablo Canyon

Protesters at the site of the new Diablo Canyon nuclear facility near San Luis Obisbo, Calif., chanted "the whole world is watching" as they scaled fences and occupied positions inside the power plant grounds.

Although there is little chance the protesters' blockade will stop the scheduled activation of the plant for testing next week, the effort has succeeded in once again focusing public attention on the issue of nuclear power. One question has been largely ignored in published reports on the protest, however. That is whether or not we need the increased electrical generating capacity that nuclear plants provide.

Some would say a flat no. Energy consultant Amory Lovins contends that little more than half of the electricity generated in the U.S. is actually needed. The rest, he says, goes to waste in the power grid system, which he likens to "using a chain saw to cut butter '

Representatives of the power companies that build atomic plants don't agree. They say nuclear plants are necessary to keep up with rising demand and to lessen our country's demand for foreign oil. But less than 10 percent of imported oil is used for generating electricity, and the increase in demand for electricity has slowed in many areas over the last decade.

Still, the federal government has lined up behind the nuclear industry. Huge subsidies for nuclear power are contained in the fiscal 1982 budget that takes effect Oct. 1, and President Reagan has promised to cut the red tape.

Ultimately, though, nuclear power will be used if alternative sources of energy are not developed, and if the level of energy consumption seems to require it. The long range success of protests like the one at Diablo Canyon will be measured in how much electricity Americans use in the years ahead.

Chemical warfare

On April 22, 1915, near Ypres, Belgium, a greenish-yellow cloud blew toward the lines of troops. The suffocating odor signalled it wasn't harmless; soon panicked soldiers were fleeing the battlefield, leaving behind thousands of the dead and dying.

The cloud was chlorine gas, introduced by Germany in an attempt to break a deadlocked battle during the First World War.

Such technological "advances" invariably begat others. While the Germans had relied on favorable wind direction to blow gas released from canisters, the French were soon able to retaliate using gas shells fired from cannons. Next the Germans one-upped the French with the use of mustard gas, which seared lungs, blistered skin and blinded.

Now Secretary of State Alexander Haig has accused the Soviet Union of using biological weapons. Haig's timing - the announcement was made in Berlin - was no doubt designed to blunt West Germans' criticism of U.S. policies, particularly the placing of missiles in West Germany.

The political opportunism involved in the accusation does not invalidate it. The use of outlawed chemical and biological weapons by the Soviets and their allies has been rumored for years, and accounts have been printed in the world's presses to support the same conclusion.

The danger lies in what course the U.S. may now pursue. Many

Thoughts on 7 kinds of solidarity

By Alan Nagel

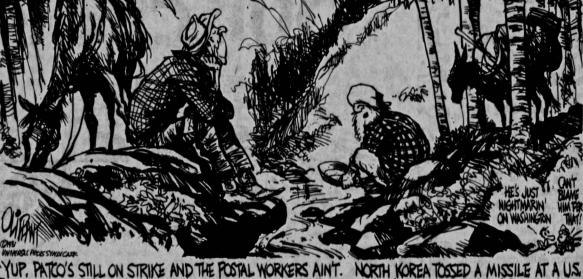

My car broke down the other day at the airport. My friends got off all right, but I walked out to an old slant six that would start but not run. My father and father-in-law and my wife all had, I am sure, told me about ballast resistors; that day I could manage to remember only enough to determine that it was electrical, and to retrieve the phone number of our mechanic. Ballast resistor, up against the fire wall, he said; unplug it and replace it from any auto parts store.

Nothing against cab drivers, but I was grateful when a fellow who had parked nearby put his head under the hood with me, asked what was wrong, and offered to drive me four miles to the nearest parts store. We got the resistor, the car started, and I got back to the office only an hour late. Pretty good, after all, but that's not the story.

THE FELLOW who helped me had put his brother on a flight for a short vacation, and he had an hour or two free before going onto the line at Harnischfeger, as a welder on the afternoon shift. He'd been laid off for quite a while a year ago, but the job paid well and union benefits had kept him going. We talked about work and pay and job satisfaction and politics.

His sister is a teacher, like me, but for much younger students. She makes less than half what he does; she took five years of college, he took fifteen weeks of welding after three years on an oiler in the Navy. He and I make pretty near the same, if we balance for my ten years longer on the job.

He voted for Reagan, he told me, because Carter was making a mess of things and we needed somebody tough. with new ideas. We found the part and I offered to take a cab back, but we decided on a beer. I was curious. I've not been a union member for fifteen years, but how, I wondered, can somebody who just came out of a three-month layoff, who recognizes the inequity of his sister's being paid less than the poverty level for a family of four while educating the next generation in the second largest city in Iowa, who works on a factory line and knows how much the union has made his working conditions safer; how in the name of my academic common sense or his real sense of justice, could he vote for Reagan?

WE TALKED about Delavan, about the corn sweeteners plant in Clinton and ADM in Cedar Rapids, about Iowa Beef and Rath and Dubuque Pack. If he does not see any threat to break unions in Iowa, who am I to tell him I think it. is a real threat, and a serious one? We agreed, though, about how and why we must try to avoid any more adventures like Vietnam, that perhaps he and I and his sister should get paid something in range of each other, that his pay while laid off - he is a little embarrassed about it, getting around 80 percent of base pay - was a darn good thing and a mark of what unions can do. I bought us another beer; he drove me back to the airport.

Since then, the AFL-CIO has given PATCO something close to the cold shoulder. That makes some sense because the air traffic controllers have ignored the pilots' strikes and the machinists' strikes over the past couple of years.

There has been some solidarity from air traffic controllers in Canada and abroad. A few clear-cut job actions alert air travellers and the U.S. government that unions are no kids game that somebody in Washington can call out of order at will, like a not very good father.

IN POLAND there is a lot going on with a single pervasive union move-

Wearing blinders

The Reagan administration's public posture, whether it be defense matters, foreign policy, air traffic controllers or cutting federal contributions to public school lunches, has been to "get tough." To do so, it casts a black-and-white picture of the world. Such simple-minded conceptions make for successful electioneering but they do nothing to encounter a more complex world.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig recently announced that the guerrillas in El Salvador were resorting to "straight terror." Translated, the expression meant they were attacking government food sources by burning crops and disrupting communications by cutting down telephone lines, something government troops had been doing for years. The administration has repeatedly questioned methods, but not purpose: why are El Salvadorans in revolt and why do people join them? Such basic and crucial questions get lost in anti-communist rhetoric.

The same kinds of questions should be posed with regard to Africa. But instead, the U.S. Government automatically refuses to consider that a popular revolution could have causes other than "Communist instigation." Curiously, American corporations, presumably the bane of underdeveloped countries, have negotiated 'separate peaces" in several African countries in which there is civil conflict.

To exclude from our national thought processes anyone who does not think like us is to operate with blinders. Some nations, including West Germany, France and Mexico, think we do see as though we wore blinders - at least as far as Latin America goes. It is one thing for the Reagan administration to attempt to explain complex situations in simple languge, but the complexity must first be realized.

WASHINGTON - There was President Reagan on television, on vacation, boasting that he is the first American leader to lay down an arms talks ultimatum to the Soviet Union. If the Soviets don't agree to some genuine, verified reduction in strategic weapons, he said, they are going to find themselves in an arms race "that they cannot win

It was the kind of rhetoric that warms the hearts of beer hall patriots in every precinct of America.

Then, like thunder following lightning, came Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, off his vacation in the Crimea, warning that if the United States builds and deploys neutron bombs and other "more terrible types of weapons," the Soviet Union "will be in the possession of a proper counterbalance

Reagan already has projected expenditures of $1.6 trillion for defense over the next five years. The Soviets will spend at least as much. So we already are in an arms race that neither the Soviets nor we can win.

THAT MEANS that all mankind must tremble through years of tension between the two superpowers, with the possible destruction of this planet linked to just one grievous misstep by either of them.

But this arms race carries dangers which, while not as cataclysmic as nuclear war, are still painful and destructive to both societies.

U.S. failure to condemn S. Africa criticized

To the editor:

The purpose of this letter is to express outrage at the United States' failure to support UN sanctions against South Africa for its invasion of Angola. Not only is such a stance a slap in the face to America's black citizens, but also a total disregard for human rights.

The fundamental guiding principle of South African apartheid is denying the Bantu (Native Africans) political and social rights equal to those of whites. Presently well over 87 percent of the land in South Africa is owned by whites, and those lands belonging to Bantus are subject to arbitrary seizure by the government.

Nowhere else today is racism so blatantly and unashamedly embraced, so brutally imposed and enforced as in South Africa. Yet the U.S. has flashed the green light to the South African racist regime.

Nonetheless, the U.S. is developing closer ties with the regime in hopes of obtaining a foot into a country overflowing with valuable natural resources. Unfortunately, the U.S. does not see the inherent defeat of such a system and the great economic cost.

The recent attack of SWAPO is only a temporary set back to the resistance movement. There will be continued unrest and financial loss in the country. Unless America realizes its errors, the tide of revolutionary resistance will grow and develop until it covers the whole of Southern Africa.

Faculty urged to take stand for better pay

By Jennifer Shafer

The purchasing power of U.S. college and university faculty salaries has declined an average of 25 percent in the past 10 years and John Huntley, president of the UI chapter of the American Association of University Professors wants to reverse that decline

Huntley, a UI English professor, said UI faculty members need to organize into one voice to get the attention of the state Board of Regents, Iowa Legislature and Iowa taxpayers.

"We're the only profession that's so disorganized to the point of being the continued victim of budget slashes," Huntley said.

THE ASSOCIATION - an organization of professors of all academic subjects - deals with many aspects of being a university faculty member. There are about 300 UI members.

Huntley said he would like that membership to double and become "active and involved," not passive and automatic."

Huntley's "ultimate goal is to raise faculty salaries until they are competitive with industry and secure against inflation.

That goal can be obtained if faculty members "get the message to the state legislature and the people that this valuable service (teaching) can't be bought" cheaply, he said.

organize and "make a case" of the faculty salary situation, he said. He said the faculty also has not suggested having a recognized collective bargaining

"There is reluctance on the part of the present faculty, like our own, to bargain collectively" because they "feel it is not professional," Huntley

Collective bargaining is not currently necessary because "the regents appear to be aware of the plight of faculty salaries and are fighting for us," he

But if the faculty did organize "we may be able to alter our circumstances and strengthen our sense of collectivity without going to the bargaining table," said Huntley.

RON ALLEN, UI Faculty Senate president, said he does not think there is a lack of organizaton for UI faculty members.

'They're all represented by the faculty governing procedures, namely the Faculty Senate," he said. And Allen said the senate will work for faculty pay increases this year. "University and faculty members have addressed themselves more vigorously to these issues. We'll have to see what the future br-association has had difficulties in organizing the UI faculty to fight for improved salaries. Cater said Iowa law states that bargaining units must be defined as one unit and UI colleges have not wanted to cooperate together. One reason for lack of cooperation "is the tremen-

Group's request to leaflet denied

Members of the Socialist Party Iowa City Collective, a UI student group, claim they were discriminated against when they sought permission to distribute anti-military leaflets.

Karen Kubby, a Socialist Party member, said she called Geraldene Felton, dean of the UI College of Nursing, Monday and asked if the group could distribute literature to nursing students in the lobby of the nursing building. Kubby said Felton "flatly refused" the request

But according to Philip Hubbard, UI vice president for Student Services, Felton was merely enforcing the UI policy on solicitation that states, "The only building in which solicitation may ordinarily take place is the Iowa Memorial Union.

Kubby said the group plans to distribute material outside the Nursing Building today and will appeal Felton's decision to acting UI President D.C. Spriestersbach.

Page 6-The Daily Iowan-Iowa City, Iowa-Friday September 18, 1981 Marathon teeter-tottering finished, ups, downs end in expected $5,200 FRY ~ CLONES!

By Mary Schuver

Members of the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, 222 N. Clinton St., finished their 168hour teeter-totter marathon Thursday, and fraternity Vice President Mike Andreski expects to donate about $5,200 to the March of Dimes after pledges are received and counted.

The marathon, a seven-year tradition for the UI fraternity, began Sept. 10. The fraternity has worked with its neighbor, UI sorority, Alpha Delta Pi, on the project for the past three years.

The two groups set a goal of $5,000 for this year's marathon, Andreski said. In 1980 the two groups raised about $4,500 for the national organization - $500 short of their goal.

The money is raised through pledges gathered by members of the two groups and through change tossed into the group's fishbowl outside the fraternity, Andreski said.

"Everything indicates that we will make it (the goal of $5,000)," Andreski said. The group does not have all its pledges received and counted but Andreski plans to have a more definite idea of the proceeds this afternoon, he said.

ABOUT 114 sorority women and 54 fraternity men shared see-sawing responsibilities during the marathon, which culiminated in a taco-eating contest Thursday at Diamond Dave's Taco Co. in the Old Capitol Mall. About 12 entrants competed to see who could eat the most tacos. The winner received $50 and a Diamond Dave's teeshirt

Organizing the marathon has "been a lot of work for me, I know that," Andreski said. The groups canvassed Iowa City requesting pledges from dormitory residents and other greek organizations. Andreski said the minimum pledge was 1.68 - a penny for each hour of see-sawing. Fraternity and sorority members also solicited funds from merchants to be used to sponsor events and prizes.

The fraternity or sorority pledge group that raised the most money will receive several prizes that were donated by Iowa City merchants or paid for by the March of Dimes.

ALTHOUGH ORGANIZATION of the marathon was time-consuming, Andreski said the project is worth the effort. "It's a project that everyone in the house can do. You get to know the new guys better."

Ross Rayner, a member of the fraternity, said the biggest problem of the week-long marathon was the cold weather. "It gets kind of chilly out there," Rayner said, adding that some marathoners wore winter coats on the teeter-totter.

To prevent loneliness and boredom, the marathoners studied and "played catch with a football or Frisbee or whatnot," he said.

Jodie Elmore, a member of the sorority and spirit chairman of one of the sorority pledge groups, said people have inquired about the validity of the project.

FCC asks abolition of 2 rulings

Federal Communications Commission Thursday recommended the abolishment of two controversial parts of the 1934 Communications Act: the Fairness Doctrine and the "equal time" provision.

The action came as the commission acted on a legislative package for Congress that would overhaul the landmark act. Congress would have to pass legislation to make the recommended changes.

The Fairness Doctrine, enacted in 1959, requires broadcasters "to afford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The reasonable opportunity for the discus-sion of conflicting views on issues of public importance.

> The equal time provision states that if a broadcaster allows "any person who is a legally qualified candidate for any public office to use a broadcasting station, he shall afford equal opportunities to all other such candidates for that office."

BOTH ARE contained in Section 315 of the act. The commission voted to repeal them on identical 4-2 votes, with commissioners Joseph Fogarty and Abbott Washburn dissenting.

"Today, we strike a blow in the cause of freedom," said FCC Chairman Mark Fowler, "The Constitution specifically chose the press to improve our society and keep it free ... I would rather have the editor make these choices than the government."

Both policies have been under attack by broadcasters for years as denying them the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of the press that newspapers enjoy.

The networks, the National Association of Broadcasters and National Public Radio contend the provisions particularly interfere with their coverage of political campaigns, and argue that other provisions of the Communications Act would bar broadcasters from abusing candidates' rights.

On a 5-1 vote, the FCC also recommended repeal of a provision requiring broadcasters to give candidates "reasonable access" to time on their stations during political campaigns. Washburn was the lone dissenter.

Market hits 16-month low, experts foresee recession

NEW YORK (UPI) - Stocks plunged to a 16- alarmed at a 10.7 percent drop in August housing month low Thursday when an early rally collapsed under the weight of news that indicated the economy, hindered by high interest rates and deficits, might be headed into a severe recession.

Trading was moderately active as the Dow Jones industrial average, which had been ahead about three points at midday, skidded 11.51 points late in the day to 840.09, the lowest level since it finished at 831.06 on May 21, 1980.

The Dow has fallen 32.72 points the past four sessions and technical analysts said selling accelerated after it failed to hold at its previous 1981 low of 851.12 set last week

The New York Stock Exchange index lost 0.99 to 67.83, a new 1981 low, and the price of an average share decreased 42 cents. Declines routed advances 1,170-355 among the 1,903 traded.

Investors still are worried about high interest rates, prospects of a huge federal budget deficit and a steep recession.

NEWTON ZINDER, vice president for E.F. Hutton, said, "Bad economic news is hurting the Big Board volume totaled 48,300,000 shares compared with 43,660,000 traded Wednesday.

Composite volume of New York Stock Exchange issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over-thecounter totaled 53,773,600 shares compared with 48,689,600 traded Wednesday.

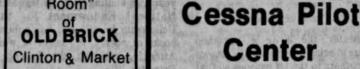

The American Stock Exchange common stock index plunged 7.64 to 305.67 and the price of an average share dropped 37 cents. Declines topped advances 441-139 among the 700 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 5,180,000 shares compared with 4,760,000 traded Wednesday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers' index of over-the-counter issues lost 2.11 to 185.71.

Oswald exhumation okayed

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) - An appeals court Thursday gave a stunning victory to efforts to open the grave of Lee Harvey Oswald, dissolving an injunction preventing an exhumation and dismissing attempts by Oswald's brother to keep the grave closed.

In a five-page ruling, the Texas Court of Appeals essentially gave approval to efforts by Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter, to open the grave of the suspected presidential assassin in Fort Worth's Rose Hill Burial Park.

The court dissolved a temporary injunction issued a year ago by state District Judge James E. Wright banning British author "Michael Eddowes and all persons in active concert or participation with him from seeking to exhume and re-autopsy the remains of Lee Harvey Oswald."

Attorneys for Oswald's older brother, Robert, were expected to go before a Fort Worth judge Friday with a motion for a temporary restraining order against Porter and the cemetery to prevent any attempt to open the grave.

IN ROCKWALL, Texas, Oswald's widow cited but cautious

"The war is not over yet and I'll claim the victory when the grave is opened," Porter said.

Porter's Dallas attorneys, Jerry Pittman and Michael Pezzulli, were elated and immediately began strategy meetings to chart their next moves on behalf of a recent lawsuit filed by Porter.

She instituted her own suit against Robert Oswald, charging that her late husband's body had been illegally removed from its grave and either cremated or secreted in a mausoleum.

"Based upon the information we have received regarding the opinion of the Court of Appeals in Fort Worth," Pittman said, "it appears the only in-terested party is Marina Oswald Porter, our client, and so we are going to immediately take all steps legally necessary to have the trial court grant our re-quest to allow Porter the right the exhume the body contained in the grave."

Court asked to end teacher strike

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - Charging that a strike by 22,000 teachers prevented students from receiving the education required to function in society, the Philadelphia School District Thursday asked a court to order the educators back to work. In the petition, the district alleged that the strike, in its 10th day, posed a threat to the health and welfare of students because it threatened the district's ability to provide the state-mandated 180 days of school, a district official said.

The petition alleged that the strike prevented 213,000 students from acquiring the education they need to function in society

Members of the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers walked out Sept. 8, contending that district-ordered layoffs and a pay raise cancellation violate their contract signed last fall after a three-week strike

A City Council hearing was to resume today on proposals to help solve the financial problems that led to the district's decision to lay off 3,500 teachers and cancel a 10 percent wage increase scheduled to become effective July 1, 1981.

City Finance Director Edward DeSeve told council members Wednesday the district's estimated budget deficit for the current fiscal year was $236 million. The district's approved budget for 1981-82 was $701 million

Elsewhere in Pennsylvania, five public school districts and two community colleges remained closed Thursday because of strikes, but one strike was settled by tentative agreement on a pact.

Arts and entertainment Writers Workshop opens season with readings by renowned poets

By Bob Hart Staff Writer

This semester, the Writer's Workshop will continue to bring internationally-known poets and authors to the UI campus so that hey may read their works and meet with students. The season of readings opens at 8 p.m. today with a poetry reading in Room 1 of the Physics Building. The five featured poets are all current members of the vorkshop staff.

Donald Justice, a professor at the UI since 1970, has received grants for poetry and theater work from the Ford Foundation, the Rockefeller Foundation and the National Endowment for the Arts. His first collection of poems, The Summer Anniversaries, was the 1959 Lamont Poetry Selection, and since then, Justice has published many books of poems. He crowned his career last year when he won the Pulitzer Prize for his Selected Poems.

Larry Levis, another participant in today's reading, received his doctorate degree from the UI in 1974 and returned last ar as a visiting poet. He was awarded an National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship in 1973 and has published two books of poetry, the latter of which, The Afterlife, received the Lamont Poetry Prize for 1976.

MARCIA SOUTHWICK comes to the workshop as a lecturer for the first time. She has published a pamphlet of prose poems with Larry Levis entitled The Leopard's Mouth is Cold and Dry Inside, and in 1980 received a Stanley B. Young Fellowship.

Henri Coulette earned both his master's and doctorate degrees from the UI and has previously been a visiting lecturer here. He won the Lamont Poetry Award in 1966 for his first book of poems, The War of the Secret Agents and was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1976 and an NEA grant in 1978.

PAUL ENGLE founded the Writer's Workshop and acted as its director for the first 25 years of its existence. His first book of poems, Worn Earth, was perhaps the first such work to be submitted as a graduate thesis anywhere, (he submitted it to the UI). After it was published, it won the Yale Series of Younger Poets prize for 1932. Since that time, he has written and edited numerous publications. He has received fellowships from the Ford Foundation." the Rockefeller Foundation and the Guggenheim Foundation and acts as the only poet on the National Council for the Arts in Washington, D.C. Recently, he and his wife, novelist Hualing Nieh, were awarded the Iowa Governor's Award for Distinguished Service to the Arts.

In past years, workshop lecturers have included John Cheever, Philip Roth, W.D. Snodgrass, Kurt Vonnegut, John Irving, Philip Levine and Mark Strand. Next Thursday, workshop authors Clark Blaise and Barry Hanna will read from their works of fiction. Later in the semester, readings will feature such literary artists as Reynolds Price, W.S. Merwin and Walter Abish.

A particularly malicious gremlin went to work on the programs printed for violinist Sung-Ju Lee's recital (the first in Hancher Auditorium's 1981-82 Young Concert Artists eries) in Clapp Recital Hall Wednesday evening.

Not only was there an insufficient number of them, so that Lee had to announce each piece, but there were grave misprints ("fehr" for "sehr" and "dewegt" for "bewegt" were unknowingly relayed to the audience in Lee's announcement of the Schumann sonata) and improper layout of movements. The first piece on the program was improperly identified, in more than one way, and the name of the pianist was entirely absent. It is hoped that future programs in the series will not be similarly plagued.

Lee is clearly a seasoned performer, and her biographical sketch shows her to be widely experienced in competitions. She ossesses a big, attractive tone and couples this with grand, generous impetuosity, genuine spontaneity and an absence of inhibition that is quite refreshing.

ON THIS occasion, however, her technical equipment was rusty. Her intonation was all too frequently suspect, and the tone could, and did, break at any given moment. These faults were aggravated Music mances of the works that preceded it.

THE FIRST PIECE on the program was listed as the Mozart Sonata in D-flat major, K. 570. K. 570 is a piano sonata in B-flat major, published with a violin obbligato (regarded as inauthentic by most authorities) shortly after Mozart's death. In place of this work of questionable lineage, Lee played the Sonata in B-flat major, K. 454, a major work of unquestioned authority and maturity.

The violinist favored a dramatic, robust style in the piece, and Stephen Lazarus, an admirable ensemble player, provided a nice foil to this approach with a sober, stylish and quite clean account of the piano part (no mean achievement on the piano in Clapp, a notoriously difficult instrument to control).

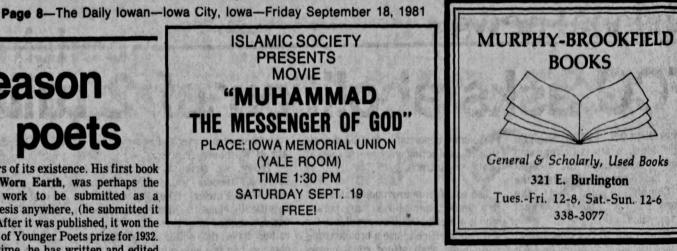

THE DEBUSSY Sonata No. 3 in G, the first piece after intermission, found the partners in closer agreement than in the Mozart, although here too Lazarus proved to be a steadying influence on Lee's disruptive tendencies. The sonata is the last important work Debussy completed. It is, of course, one of the glories of 20th-century violin literature, and a work that is prototypical for later French sonatas (those of Poulenc, for example, spring to mind) Its appeal cloaks a careful, almost tortured structure fashioned from small ideas. Lee's performance rightly de-emphasized the materials from which the work is constructed: Debussy's success in getting the music to sweep forward despite its many details and disparate elements is worthy of celebration. Lee, too, swept convincingly, but her playing was generally too gooey, both here and in the Mozart, to make the pieces sparkle as they should have.

freely atonal, its rhythms pert and incisive. The somewhat tentative performance made it clear that the other pieces on the program were more familiar to the performers.

The recital's highlight was Schumann's relatively seldom-heard Sonata in D minor, op. 121. It has become a cliche to say that Schumann was uncomfortable writing in prescriptive forms, but this late work shows the composer still trying to find a solution to the problem of "sonata form." In this case, he tries to integrate it with cyclical form. The main theme of the scherzo is employed in the slow movement for dramatic contrast, while the principal theme, on which variations are based in the slow movement, first appears as a chorale tune at the end of the scherzo.

THE FIRST and fourth movements are linked by various similarities of material and structure (both are in "sonata form"), including a switch to the major mode near the end of each (a switch curiously unconvincing and ultimately short-lived in the first movement).

The performance was not ideal. The approach was streamlined, with taut, brisk but plausible tempos that succeeded in unifying each movement, so that the omission of repeats in the outer movements was puzzling. The first movement was unsatisfactory because the main mottos were undercharacterized, especially in developmental passages. The tempo relationships between the second and third movements were inconsistent, and the beginning of the third movement, with its pizzicato chords in the violin, was performed in a way suggesting that Lee had not adaquately considered the various possibilities available to her. The last movement had admirable drive, but here Lazarus's normally poised playing got scrambled in the rush to the finish. Throughout, there was an unwillingness to give individual phrases sufficient weight, and too often points of arrival were skimmed over, resulting in a smooth, superficial, inadequately-sculpted representation of the sonata. The drive the performance provided, however, was exciting. Even a far worse rendition would have been welcome for presenting this infrequently-

The Mozart and Debussy works in particular were poorly served by the kinds of technical problems Lee repeatedly encountered, and the virtuosic requirements of the closing Paganini-Kreisler "La Campanella" were entirely beyond her abilities: this music is meant to be fun, and it is only bearable when the soloist has enough control of the notes to make them cajole, entice and astound the listener. In Lee's disastrous rendition, a mere approximation of the notes was a grim battle. The performance of the work turned the program

A neglected statistics book rests on Joan Zimmerman's lap. Her pencil lay dormant on a blank page of loose leaf paper. Luke and Laura are stranded on a tropical Greek island, and Joan Zimmerman is right there with them.

She's not alone. Each day hundreds of UI students in the Union, dorm rooms, fraternities and sororities crowd around television sets to follow the roller coaster lives of Cliff and Nina Warner of "All My Children," Brad and Jenny Vernon of "One Life to Live," and Robert Scorpio and Dr. Lesley Webber of "General Hospital," among others.

"I refuse to do any of my homework during 'General Hospital'," Zimmerman said while watching the popular soap opera in the Union. "This is a great way to release tension."

FOR MANY, soaps have become a release from studies and the "real" world. Some people claim to be only casual viewers, others admit they're addicted because they order their lives to fit their soap opera schedule.

"Every semester I arrange my schedule primarily to watch GH

BUT SOAPS, both in form and in content, accomplish what TV is supposed to: they get us involved. The close-up shots, quiet familiar music and detailed sets featured on soaps create an almost voyeuristic intimacy, and the technology and technique used for scenes in which a character's mind is entered (dreams, flashbacks) add immediacy to that intimacy.

More important, however, is the fact that the stylistic attributes of soap operas are used to tell a story. In an age defined by the visual qualities of media, soap operas are perhaps the last vestige of the ancient oral tradition - of presenting characters who have to act in and react to their situations and who have to live with the results of those actions and reactions.

EXCEPT FOR soap operas, most TV shows have lacked any concern for the change necessary to a story: Laverne gets Shirley's ring stuck on her finger one week; the next week she jams the finger into a bottle of Schatz. So what's new? But when Doug and Julie more.

Williams got divorced three years ago on "Days of Our Lives," their action changed not only their own lives but the lives of many of the residents of their home town in ways that are just now becoming apparent.

In many ways, soap operas today fill the same functions as the serialized novels of a century ago, particularly those of Henry James. Like the serialized novel, the soap opera adapts to massive changes in the production and distribution of its medium by relying on traditional stories of love and death. And like the novels of Henry James, the ordered contemporary worlds of the soaps' characters is shattered by the chaos of their inner. emotional "other worlds."

The joy and power of soaps, though, is that when you watch the other worlds of Doug and Julie, of the Wolek family, of Luke and Laura, you forget about Henry James and technology, form and content. You're lost in a story a story which, for all its contradictions and flaws, does what all good stories should do. It makes you want Live" is now. Numerous cast changes and storyline shifts have not entirely ruined this Agnes Nixon creation, but the show is considerably less interesting than it used to be. Ruth Warrick (Phoebe) and James Mitchell (Palmer) are wonderful villains, but any show with Mike Minor (formerly Steve Elliott on "Petiticoat Junction") as the male lead can't be all good. Grade: B • "Another World" (NBC). More than any NBC soap, "AW" has tried to adopt a

"General Hospital" style: lots of muscular young hunks and busty beauties in skimpy costumes and active plots. Unfortunately, the show's conservative production values work at cross-purposes with the sexy storylines. The strong suit of "AW" is still its long-standing mythic theme of generational conflict; when Douglass Watson (Mac) takes on the kids, "AW" virtually becomes another Zeus story. Grade: B-MINUS

. "As the World Turns" (CBS). Though a traditional soap for the most part, "ATWT" has derived from Agnes Nixon's shows a strong ethnic storyline with the Andropoulos family. Otherwise, "ATWT" is downright staid -- tears and romance, Harlequin style, and not much action. Good location work, especially in Greece, makes up for a slow studio style, and Larry Bryggman as the dastardly Dr. Dixon is a real treat - he puts the histrionics of self-proclaimed star Eileen Fulton to shame. Grade: C PLUS

. "Days of Our Lives" (NBC). Once the most innovative and racy soap on TV, "Days" has recently been showing its age. But even with its slow plot lines and sudden character shifts, "Days" is still fascinating to watch. The expressive, shadowy lighting and sparse interiors make "Days" something of a soap noir; those stylistic devices and the show's heavy themes of one to wonder why "Days" wasn't called 'Jung and the Restless." Grade: B "The Edge of Night" (ABC). If "Days of Our Lives" is soap noir in style, then "Edge is soap noir in content. More people get ned around, beaten up and bumped off than on any show not starring Robert Stack The excess violence and hackneved scripts are more than balanced, however, by good characterizations and a definitive everything everywhere is dark. "Edge" also features the weirdest names you'll hear on TV - the marriage of Sky Whitney and Raven Swift is truly a match made in heaven. Grade: B • "General Hospital" (ABC). Ridiculous plots, lousy acting, amateurish direction why do millions live and die by this? Partly because producer Gloria Monty realizes that form follows function: soaps depict worlds in chaos so why shouldn't they look chaotic? "GH" has more action, more motion, more crowds and more noise than most prime time shows. Famed heartthrobs Tony Geary and Genie Francis (Luke and

The triumph of Monty's "GH" is that they actually seem attractive. Grade: B-PLUS • "The Guiding Light" (CBS). Harding LeMay, head writer of "Another World" during its finest years in the early 1970s, now ds the same job on this soap. As a result, "GL" has acquired the young versus old en-tanglements of the old "AW," as well as some of the heavy psychology of "Days of Our Lives." LeMay is a legend among soap writers, but his zippy scripts are undercut by the usual CBS-Procter & Gamble conservatism. Changes to make "GL" more com-petitive with "General Hospital" are due soon — LeMay could end up in the emergency room. Grade: B-MINUS • "One Life to Live" (ABC). Filled with hookers, dopers and drunks, "Life" is the seamlest soap on the air — and the best. "Life" most fully realizes noted producer Agnes Nixon's liberal vision: the junkies and whores who manage to escape their lower-class surroundings find inevitably that life at the top is even more corrupt. It can boast of strongly-structured storylines, distinctive lighting, excellent scripts and even better acting. Judith Light (Karen) makes Jill Clayburgh look like a teenybopper ingenue. Grade: A

• "Ryan's Hope" (ABC). Since the murder of rotten Michael Pavel, "Hope" has been dimming. The show's strong family theme has become a Cosa Nostra theme, and the Ryans themselves seem to be slowly sinking into the Hudson. A strong central family is the sine qua non of soaps; without that, "Hope" could be in trouble. Outside of Helen Gallagher (Maeve), the cast has little to offer. Grade: C- MINUS •"Search" for "Tomorrow" (CBS). This may be the most "typical" soap on the air: plots are still heavily romantic and visual ef-fects are pretty much limited to close-ups. Like "As the World Turns," "SFT" serves the long-time fan of traditional soap operas it's the finest remaining example of what the right-wing Procter & Gamble corporation likes in their productions. New soap viewers, however, are recon keep on searching. Grade: C

Liz Taylor to debut on 'General Hospital'

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - Elizabeth Taylor, whose first stage effort, "The Little Foxes," last week broke all-time box-office records for a play, will make another debut next week - in a soap opera.

Zev Bufman, the producer who talked Miss Taylor into trying the stage after 53 films, announced the actress' decision to make a guest appearance on "General Hospital" when "Little Foxes" leaves New Orleans for Los Angeles.

"I congratulate the producer who talked her into it," Bufman said Thursday. "She does watch soaps almost every day when she has the time." Bufman said the Lillian Hellman drama, which grossed $286,000 its best week on Broadway.

EVEN THOUGH its plot is more farfetched than other soaps, "General Hospital" has a flowing supply of infidel marriages, as well as one character who portrays an insane mother. "General Hostpial" is currently the number one soap nationwide, drawing at least 8.3 million daily viewers, and it

The House of Cassidine (a family) has frozen over Port Charles (the soap's hometown) with diamond dust, exhibiting its treacherous power

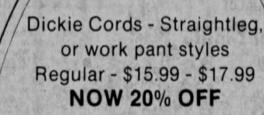

"The acting they do is a different kind of acting requiring different skills," Hedley said. "In terms of emotional resources, you don't have to sustain them for as long a period of time (in a soap opera.)" But Hedley also said, "You must have complete honesty in your (soap opera) acting because the camera is so close.

For some, the "soap habit" came with college, where television is more accessible during the day. But for others, like freshman Bill Kamper, the habit started long before then. Kamper said he has been watching his favorite soap, "Days of Our Lives", since second grade. "My mother got me hooked on it when I watched it with her," he said. "I'll always be dedicated.

• "Texas" (NBC). A spinoff of "Another World" and a ripoff of "Dallas," "Texas" has vet to catch on, despite inexplicable boosting by the fan magazines. The show's sloppy writing is matched by its production cameras frequently miss cues and the sets are garishly overlit. The cast seems to change every month - former star Donald May (Grant) has just been added, while former "General Hospital" star Kin Shriner (Jeb) may be leaving soon. This shoddy, ove affair is the kind of thing that gives soaps and the Sunbelt a bad name. Grade: D

"The Young and the Restless" (CBS). 'Y&R" is just starting to adapt to its hourlong time slot. New characters are being added and new storylines are being oped. Grade: B-MINUS

Art of Africa to be discussed by students

Three African graduate students will lend a per-sonal view of art when they talk informally with UI residence hall students Sunday afternoon at the UI Museum of Art.

The museum, together with the Associated Residence Halls Arts Council, is sponsoring an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday to acquaint students with the museum. A special feature will include African students Francis Musa Boakari, of Sierra-Leone, West Africa, Casper Ekeman, of Nigeria, and Gatsinzi Basaninyenzi from Zaire in a discussion of the museum's extensive African art collection.

Art

Boakari explains he and the others will talk informally about the role art plays in Africa.

"OUR MAIN message is to emphasize that unlike the Western world, Africa's art is something which is not yet supposed to be looked at," he said. "Art is functional - in the agricultural life, in daily life. The art consists of things which are found in homes."

None of the three is an expert in art, as such, but will respond to students' questions based on their personal experiences and attitudes toward art.

'We'll give a human dimension to the artifacts." said Boakari. "We'll provide a non-professional attitude, which is sometimes more relevant to people." The three will be attired in traditional African dress

Besides the discussions on African art, Sunday's open house will include an animated film called Norman the Doorman, refreshments and discussions by museum staff members and volunteers on other exhibits and museum programs.

Concert features Anita Ward in critical condition versatile cantata TUPELO, Miss. (UPI) adapted to film

Sergei Prokofiev's cantata, "Alexander Nevsky," which will be featured in the UI Symphony Orchestra and University Choirs concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Hancher Auditorium, has a rich history. It is one of the few film scores which have been adapted into classical music form.

The cantata was constructed from Prokofiev's score to Sergei Eisenstein's 1939 film Alexander Nevsky. In conjuction with the musical performance, the film itself will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Phillips Hall Auditorium. The special showing is sponsored by the Hancher Circle for the Performing Arts and is free and open to the public.

The screening will be introduced by a panel that will include UI Symphony Orchestra conductor James Dixon, who will discuss Prokofiev's film score.

Eisenstein's film dramatizes the exploits of Grand Duke Alexander, the 13th Century Russian patriot who repulsed the invasions of the Swedish kings and Teutonic invaders. The film and its music became a rallying point for the Russian people when, a few years after its release, the army of Nazi Germany invaded the Soviet Union.

SHORTLY BEFORE he was commissioned to compose the film score. Prokofiev visited Hollywood studios where he learned about sound production for film. He put his new knowledge to work in the production of Eisenstein's film, For instance, the composer segregated the orchestra and chorus to achieve more control in sound mixing. He also placed quiet instruments near the microphones and loud instruments further away to create balances impossible in live performance. At one point, he divided the orchestra into four sections, each facing a different microphone.

The film marks a full collaboration between director and composer. In some sequences, Prokofiev created music to fit completed scenes, and in other cases, Eisenstein was so impressed by the expressive quality of the composition that he edited the film to match the rhythms and melodic developments of the score.

After the film was released, Prokofiev worked on bringing the disparate elements of the film score together to create the unified musical statement of the cantata. Much of the score had to be rewritten and re-orchestrated.

Besides the Prokofiev cantata, which will be performed by mezzo-soprano Jocelyn Reiter and the University Choirs, the UI Symphony Orchestra will be joined by pianist Kenneth Amada in a performance of Beethoven's Concerto No. 4 in G major. The concert marks the UI Symphony's new season

Tom Alberhasky, owner of Bon-Aire Mobile Home Lodge, said the hearing was "good because all of the park owners I know will completely agree with you. We need cooperation among us all. cooperation and clout to get tenants to go along with it (the ordinance)." Ron Fairchild, owner of Coral Trailer Park, said the county health department should help owners if lawsuits are filed against them by tenants who receive eviction notices. The new provision should also include tenants' responsibilities in cases of code violations, he said.

ALBERHASKY SAID "as far as health hazards are concerned, it is up to the tenant, because it's the people themselves that create the health hazards by not maintaining their property.

Graham Dameron, director of the county health department, said his department "can certainly be a disinterested third party" in cases involving tenants who have violated the code. After the preliminary hearing, the board of health must take action on the ordinance, Lahey said. If they approve it, the proposal will go before the Johnson County Board of Supervisors for approval and, if approved, will become part of the county health board's regulations.

The cost of a yearly license for a permanent mobile home park is $25. Dameron said. There are 21 permanent and five seasonal parks in Johnson County, he said. The health department receives half of the license fee or $281.25 per year, Dameron said, while the other half goes to the state.

A PARK OWNER must submit an application to the state Department of Health. A county officer inspects the facilities and returns the application to the state, Dameron said.

Requirements that park owners must meet include spacing between trailers, maintaining water quality, removing garbage and general park' upkeep.

All mobile home park owners were notified by mail of the public hearing, Dameron said. Eight attended the meeting.

The board voted earlier this week to delay tentative approval of a tuition hike proposed by the board office. Senate President Tim Dickson said

Thursday night he still opposes the proposed tuition hike for the three state universities. But annual tuition increases will probably become the regents' new policy, he said.

The majority of the Big Ten institutions already have annual tuition increases The regents decided Wednesday to wait for more information on the possible effects of the proposed increases, which range from 9.5 percent for resident undergraduates to 33.3 percent for nonresident medical students.

During the next two weeks, senate executives plan to revise the tuition proposal and recommend more reasonable increases, he said. Student government executives also plan to present information about the rising costs of living in Iowa City to the board when it meets in Iowa City in October. In other business Senator Brad Knott said the senate had registered approximately 260 UI students to vote. He said the group had until today to register students for the Oct. 13 City Council primary election.

The senate's goal is to register 5,000 UI students for the Nov. 3 City Council election, Knott said. In 1979 the senate registered 3,000 students. He said the senate will also work to educate UI students about the election and the candidates.

"the last few years."

Randy Nielson and Senator Andy Piro, members of the UI Board and Control of Athletics, said the board is considering ways to distribute UI student basketball tickets, and student input is needed.

There are 6,000 tickets available to UI students, Piro said. Approximately 600 students that applied for basketball tickets last year did not receive them, he said.

Nielson said it may be possible to distribute tickets to all UI students with priority - students who have applied for a ticket in the past, including students who did not receive tickets last year - and still have a significant number of tickets left over.

The extra tickets would be converted to "split-season tickets" and would be distributed on a random basis to students. The tickets would admit students to half of the home basketball games, Nielson said.

'Most (students) wouldn't get any at all" if the split-season plan is not implemented, Nielson said. "At least (with the split-season tickets) they would get to see half the season."

Piro said it is up to UI students how 1981-82 basketball tickets will be distributed. Input from students is essential, he said

Basketball tickets will be on sale from Sept. 28 to Oct. 9.

The Iowa-Iowa State football game isn't the only contest this weekend between the Hawkeyes and the Cyclones. The Iowa softball team opens up its season at the Iowa State Invitational in Ames Friday and Saturday.

Iowa Coach Ginny Parrish, entering her second year as the Hawkeyes' mentor, will be seeing some familiar faces this weekend.

"We've played everybody who is there with the exception of Northwestern," Parrish said. "All of the other teams there are real tough and it won't be easy. We'll definitely be looked upon as underdogs. We didn't beat any of them in our meetings last vear.

BUT PARRISH believes it will be easier for her as well for her team this time around. "I will know what to expect from the other teams and their coaches as far as coaching strategies go," Parrish said. Parrish plans to start all six of the team's pitchers in a game at Ames. "I want to get a good look at all of our pitchers and see how they do in a game situation," Parrish said. "We don't go out there just for a good time. We're definitely going for the wins, but I'm looking on it as a learning experience, too. We'll see what areas we need work in and we'll find out how the pitchers are coming along. They're all very

The UI Division of Recreational Services is sponsoring a bus trip to Chicago for the Kansas City Chiefs-Chicago Bears football game on Nov. 8. Rec Services will be taking one bus for the overnight trip, and the cost of the trip will be $55, which includes bus fare to and from Chicago, hotel accommodations, a ticket to the game and a tailgate lunch before the game.

There must be two persons to a hotel room, so UI Intramural Director Warren Slebos requests that those interested register with a friend. There is a 45 person limit, with registration ending Oct. 1. Interested individuals should contact the Rec office, Room 111 in the Field House.

THE BUS IS scheduled to load in front of the Field House immediately following the Iowa-Purdue football game Nov. 7. The estimated time of leparture is 5 p.m.

Upon arriving in Chicago, the con-tingent will stay at the Ramada Inn East, located just a couple of blocks from Soldier Field, home of the Bears. Preceeding the Bears-Chiefs game will be a tailgate lunch outside the stadium. Immediately following the game, the contingent will return to Iowa City and unload in front of the Field House

The Rec office is also sponsoring bus trips to the Iowa-Northwestern (Oct. 3) and Iowa-Illinois (Oct. 31) football games. There is already one bus filled for each game and another bus could be secured if more interest is expressed. Final registration dates for the Northwestern and Illinois trips are Sept. 25, Oct. 15 respectively. Contact the Rec Services office for more information

On the line

If you go by the 149 ballots that were turned in to this week's On The Line contest, and the opinion of this week's guest prognosticator, Jim Zabel of WHO-TV and radio in Des Moines, Iowa will be victorious against Iowa State Saturday.

A total of 110 readers tabbed Iowa a winner while 39 defectors apparently stuffed the ballot box. Zabel, whose station is in its 50th year of broadcasting Iowa football games, says, "Iowa 21, Iowa State 14." By the way, Zabel hasn't done every Iowa football game the past 50 years. If you remember, he took broadcasting lessons from Ronald Reagan. Previous to that, he was editor and chief of The Daily Iowan, 1943-44. Our most one-sided game is Michigan State at Ohio State. Only one person picked the Spartans. Big Ten powerhouse Northwestern, along with Indiana and Wisconsin, will lose according to the readers. The Wildcats received four votes, the Hoosiers six, and the Badgers 12.

Other solid favorites are Illinois, Michigan and Purdue. Nebraska, even in losing to Iowa, gained respect. The Cornhuskers earned 133 victory votes to 16 for Florida State.

In the feature game of the week, John Carroll against Hiram, the readers say the Blue Streaks of John Carroll. Zabel calls the game a walk-er.

The gracious provider of this week's brew, a 16-gallon keg, is the Fieldhouse bar. The winner of the On The Line contest will tie, the names will be placed in a hat and a ble. drawing will be held.

Upsets erupt in grid ranks; Notre Dame faces Michigan (UPI) - The top of the mountain in college football this season has all the earmarkings of being about as stable as Mount St. Helens.

Three of the six top ranked teams in the pre-season ratings were upset last Saturday, including No. 1 Michigan, and a trend could easily be established be announced in Monday's DI. In case of a this weekend as three of the top 10 are in for big trou-

> Notre Dame, which took over the No. 1 spot this week, could find its stay at the top short-lived. The Irish must travel to Ann Arbor, Mich., Saturday to meet Michigan, and the Wolverines are eager to prove that last week's upset at the hands of Wisconsin was just a fluke.

> "MICHIGAN HAS A lot of psychological factors working for them," said Irish Coach Gerry Faust. "First there is the crowd, second is the fact that they are coming off a loss and third they have lost to Notre Dame the last two years."

Notre Dame edged Michigan on a Harry Oliver field goal at the final gun last year and outlasted the Wolverines two years ago.

Faust predicted that Saturday's game at Ann Arbor is likely to be a more wide open affair than a defensive struggle

"I think that would probably aid Michigan," Faust added

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler said his team will have to come off more adversity than at any other time in his career with the Wolverines.

"What is worse for us than coming off a loss is that we didn't play well," Schembechler said. "It's tougher to prepare for such a big game when you're coming off such a poor performance. It's a very key week of practice for us. I've always felt that a team shows its greatest improvement from its first game to its second.

"I KNOW THAT we will play better in Michigan Stadium on Saturday than we did last week against Wisconsin. Only the next few days will tell us if we've improved enough. That's the key question."

Georgia, ranked No. 4, also will be in for a rough time Saturday against Clemson at Clemson, S.C. Georgia narrowly beat Clemson 20-16 last season and Bulldogs' Coach Vince Dooley knows the Tigers will be out for revenge.

"The percentages are against us winning," said Dooley. "This game will be a lot different than the first two. There is absolutely no comparison between Clemson and the first two teams we beat. They are an excellent football team that has a lot of experience and a big motive for beating Georgia."

Clemson opened its season with victories over Wofford and Tulane and has 11 offensive starters back from last year's 6-5 squad. Georgia, though, still boasts one of the nation's most potent offenses centered around the running of All-America Herschel Walker and quarterback Buck Belue.

UCLA, RANKED NO. 10, is another top-rated team which will be severely tested. The Bruins journey to Madison, Wis., to meet 20th-ranked Wisconsin, which is still on a high from last week's upset of Michigan.

In beating Arizona last Saturday night, UCLA rushed for 366 yards and added another 146 through the air. Moreover, the rugged Bruins' defense gave up just 34 yards on the ground.

"They're a great football team," said Wisconsin Coach Dave McClain. "I regard them in the same class as Michigan. They're big, strong and fast They've dominated us the past two years. We're shooting for two in a row. It's not going to be easy.

Carey cancels rugby game

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — An Albany rugby match involving a South African team was canceled Thursday because Gov. Hugh Carey said New York could not guarantee security against possible violent demonstrations protesting apartheid. Groups opposed to South Africa's policy of strict racial segregation had said that up to 10,000 people would demonstrate at the game involving the Springboks if it was played as scheduled Tuesday at Bleecker Stadium.

A state police report that said local law enforcement officials could not provide adequate security apparently convinced Carey to take action.

THE REPORT ALSO said that out-of-state members of the Ku Klux Klan and the Communist Workers Party, who have clashed violently in the past, could be expected to converge at the controversial match.

"This (match) is a sporting event that requires stadium protections which we (the state) would be called upon to provide. We cannot provide them," Carey told reporters before boarding a helicopter for New York.

Earlier, in a statement announcing his action, Carey said, "There is an imminent danger of riot and breach of the peace."

He also said the presence of the state police or National Guard might make a tense situation worse. Carey also blamed the federal government, in part, for creating the controversy.

Sportsbriefs

"THIS IS AN area that could have been avoided if, at a higher level of government, this team was not visa'd to come to the United States," Carey said. "It sort of violates, I think, our national policy on apartheid."

Initially, Carey spokeswoman Jill Schuker said the governor had not canceled the match and that a local official would have to make the final decision.

But Albany Mayor Erastus Corning II, who had insisted all along he had a constitutional obligation to allow the match to be played, said Carey had flatly ordered the contest stopped.

"He didn't recommend that I cancel the game, he prohibited it," said Corning, adding that in his conversation with the governor's representatives "they considered it (Carey's action) a unilateral prohibition.'

Schuker later said that the governor "in effect" had stopped the contest by his decision not to provide state police or national guard protection.

Thomas Selfridge, president of the Eastern Rugby Union, which was sponsoring the Springbok's United States tour, said his group was "saddened."

Fry's Hawkeyes ready for Duncan's Cyclones

By Jay Christensen orts Editor

The coaches names are not Lee or Grant, and neither side has cannons or artillery. But that doesn't diminish the importance of Saturday's Iowa-Iowa State game - called by some the state's modern-day version of the Civil War.

Once again, the winner will be presented the Cy-Hawk trophy by Gov. Robert Ray. The trophy is the official traveling trophy for the rivalry, and has spent two winters in both Ames and Iowa City.

The Cyclones are expected to be emotionally ready for this one, just like their fans. They have reason to be; it's the first time in 47 years that the two teams have met in Ames.

Many of the media covering the two schools' football programs believe the oppposite will be the case with the Hawkeyes. They are coming off a 10-7 upset against Nebraska in Iowa City last Saturday.

BUT IF the Iowa needs any incentive to beat Iowa State, it may come from bragging rights. Donnie Duncan, Iowa State's head coach, certainly had the bragging rights last season following his team's 10-7 victory.

Speaking before the Story County ticket contract that was signed bet-Cyclone Club, Duncan said the Tiger ween the schools. Hawk emblem, which was painted in Iowa's end zone, resembled the TV cartoon character Fred Flintstone. He called the slow-moving Hawkeye swarm onto the field a "turkey trot."

Duncan purposely held his squad in the tunnel of Kinnick Stadium because, "I knew what the home crowd reaction would be to Iowa's turkey trot, and I wanted us to hear the same noise instead of hearing the cheers from only 5.000 fans.

Iowa, being the visitor this season, will have 4,000 fans as a result of a new ween the schools. "I hope you realize that this is all done in good, clean fun," Duncan said. "Last year I thought we lost in a class way, and this year I think we won in a class way.

"The Fred Flintstone remark didn't originate with me. And anyway, class doesn't necessarily mean I have to favor or be complimentary to the University of Iowa.'

THE LOSS was a hard pill for Iowa to swallow. The Hawks had a first and minute. Iowa could have gone for the tie on when the down reached fourth, but instead chose to go for the win.

Would Iowa Head Coach Hayden Fry do the same thing again?

"Ninety-nine percent of the time, we would go for a win in a non-conference game," Fry said. "In a conference game now, if it made the difference late in the season of us trying or winning for the championship, I would go for the tie. I just always had something against people who went for the tie. My granddaddy always told me, 'You were tied before the opening kickoff.' I 10 at the Iowa State 11 in the final never had any reservations about doing it last year against Iowa State." Iowa State will be led by the Big Eight's leading rusher last year, Duane Crutchfield. He earned all-Big Eight honors last year.

The Hawks will be led by a strong defense which perserved the victory last Saturday over Nebraska.

The kicking games are even. Reggie Roby of Iowa leads the nation in punting while the Cyclones Rich Miller has been struggling. Iowa State's Alex Giffords, who won last year's game for the Cyclones with a 49-yard field goal. will have the edge over Roby or Lon Olejniczak in place kicking.

Former roommates square off during lowa-lowa State rivalry

By Steve Batterson Staff Writer

"We were just like brothers." If Iowa running back Glenn Buggs and his old roommate Dwayne Crutchfield were just like brothers, an Iowa version of "Family Feud" could be brewing in Ames Saturday when Iowa squares off against Iowa State.

Buggs and Crutchfield were roommates at Garden City Junior College in Kansas. "He tried to talk me into going to Iowa State but I said no and tried to get him to come to Iowa," Buggs said.

"We're still good friends. He called me over summer vacation to tell me about his awards and things, but we really didn't discuss the game. I've got a couple of other friends from Garden City on the Iowa State team and I'd like nothing better than to show them that my school's program is coming along better than theirs.'

BUGGS, LISTED as Iowa's third team fullback, insists he is ready to play if the opportunity arises. "I'm ready when I get my chance," Buggs said. "I'm working at a different position so I already know I can play tailback. But fullback is something that I'm going to have to prove to everyone that I can play, and I know that I can."

Don't tell Buggs that the intra-state who will match him. rivalry means only something to the Iowa natives. "I think, at least in my case, that it means more to me than it does to a lot of Iowa natives." Buggs said. "I think that both teams are much better this year, and it will be a hard-hitting game. Whoever hits the we play together as a team, and each hardest will win the game.'

Native Iowan Loren Gerleman, who transferred to Iowa from Waldorf Junior College this year, is looking forward to the game. "This is my first year down here and I'm really looking forward to it," Gerleman said. "Playing football for Iowa is something I've dreamed of all of my life and now I've got the chance. I've got to give it all I've got every play and try to do the best that I can. I may not be starting right now, but I'm pushing the people in front of me and that will make them tougher too.'

GERLEMAN WAS RECRUITED by Iowa State after graduation from South Winneshiek, but when Earle Bruce left, so did Gerleman's opportunity. "We're mentally prepared," Gerleman said. 'If we think we can beat these guys, it's going to be a good ball game.

"The reserves could play a big part in the game," Buggs said. "I think that things will come their way this Saturis to our advantage because when a guy goes out for us we can send in someone day in Ames.

Leonard comeback thrills crowd

By Mike Condon Staff Writer

As one of the many fight fans at Hancher Auditorium Wednesday, I could not help but notice the rising sentiment for Sugar Ray Leonard to come back and knockout Thomas Hearns.

Being a Leonard fan from the start, I was amazed at how much confidence the crowd had in Leonard's ability. But after Hearns had built up a big lead on points, I began to look at the fight objectively. I could not see Leonard making any kind of comeback in the bout. But I underestimated the heart of Leonard. I just threw out the fact that he had gone 15 rounds with the "Hands of Stone," Roberto Duran, and the fact that Hearns had never gone more than 13 rounds in any of his previous fights. LEONARD CAME out in the 13th round and showed the people what a true champion is made of. He came after Hearns with everything he had and showed his championship qualities by standing toe-to-toe with Hearns, who the late Joe Louis called,"the hardest punching welterweight of all time."

What it comes down to is that Leonard beat Hearns at his own game. Hearns tried to fight Leonard on his toes, just as Leonard fought Hearns early in the fight. Leonard showed the world he could take a punch from one of the most feared punchers in the fight game today. He still had the reserve to put on a late round flurry to salvage a fight he was on the brink of losing.

But I gained a great amount of respect for Thomas Hearns as a boxer. He was billed as a strong puncher who was not in Leonard's class as a boxer. In the middle rounds of the fight, it was Hearns and not Leonard who was scoring with the quick jabs. Hearns controlled the fight while Leonard was confused and became increasingly frustrated

Buggs and the Hawks are hoping

IF THE FIGHT is looked at objectively, it is clear to see that Thomas Hearns was more than Ray Leonard had expected. Leonard had more experience against tougher opponents and had been longer distances in his fights.

When the Leonard-Hearns rematch takes place, (it's a safe bet it will happen) Hearns will have that same toughness that Leonard displayed in the past.
