Vesely weeps, tells jury
'I loved her and I still do'

By Andrew L. Miller

Iowa City

"I love her and I still do," said Michael Leon Vesely Wednesday afternoon as he again took the stand to testify in his murder trial.

Vesely, 27, is on trial in Black Hawk County District Court for the Nov. 25, 1980, killing of his wife, Elizabeth Stroud. She was 21.

"I loved her," Vesely said. "I still do."

"What would you give her if you could?" the judge asked.

"I'd give her the love I gave her when she was alive," Vesely replied.

Vesely is accused of killing his wife with a sledgehammer. He has pleaded not guilty.

He was in the courtroom again Wednesday with his lawyer, Bob Mover, after a three-day break. The trial was adjourned today due to a juror's illness.

Mover told the jury that his client had "nothing to hide." He said his client was not responsible for his wife's death.

"I am not sure if Michael Vesely is capable of murder or not," Mover said. "I am not sure if he is guilty or not."
Commission examines elderly housing

By Melody Wilmer

The Iowa City Board of Supervisors Thursday awarded the bid for the new $1.3 million senior housing complex.

The project is expected to begin within three months.

The board accepted the bid last week.

Iowa City police have arrested a North Liberty man in connection with the armed robbery of a man in front of a building.

North Liberty police said the victim was walking in the 1500 block of North Liberty Street when a man approached him and demanded his wallet.

The victim complied and the suspect fled.

The suspect was later identified as 32-year-old Jason B. Miller.

Miller was arrested and charged with armed robbery.

According to police reports, Miller was found near a park and was taken into custody.

He was booked into the Johnson County Jail.

Miller was released on $10,000 bond.

The investigation is ongoing.

Shuttle officials encouraged

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Space shuttle officials Thursday sought to reassure damage to the space shuttle Columbia from the January 28 explosion was not a threat to the safety of the vehicle.

The Columbia was redesigned to protect it from such damage.

Officials also said the shuttle was in good shape and would be ready for its next mission.

The shuttle is scheduled to launch on April 5.

NATIONAL HARBOR, Md. — More than 500 people attended a conference here Thursday to discuss the future of a $2 billion seniors housing project in the nation's capital.

The conference was sponsored by the National Council on the Aging.

The goal of the conference was to discuss the challenges and opportunities associated with the development of seniors housing.

Speakers included experts from the public and private sector, as well as community leaders and advocates.

The conference featured keynote addresses, panel discussions, and a variety of workshops.

Participants had the opportunity to network and exchange ideas on best practices for seniors housing development.

The conference concluded with a call to action for attendees to join forces in advocating for seniors housing policies and projects that promote affordability, choice, and dignity.

Overall, the conference provided valuable insights and resources to those involved in the seniors housing field.

The Voting Right Act, which is supposed to ensure equality of the vote, according to its sponsors at a forum sponsored by the Iowa Senate Judiciary Committee on Thursday.

Each of the eleven speakers urged City Council members to approve the bill to reroute the services for the elderly.

The $1,500 will be paid by the Rapid Firm for a center and other services for the elderly. The city council will have to approve the bill to reroute the services for the elderly.

By passing the bill, they said, would be a major victory for the elderly.

The business will be closed for the next 14 days.

"People have the right to vote, they have the right to vote," said J. Alexander Reid, a member of the Iowa Senate Judiciary Committee.

"We'll be against it," said an organizer, who was opposed to the bill.

The city council also has to approve the bill.

There are regulations, and they are not the same.

"There is no way," said the organizer, "we can't do that."
Tuition hikes

Student government leaders are finding themselves in an odd position these days. The state Board of Regents, which is supposed to oversee tuition hikes in order to keep them in check, is now asking the students to raise the price of an education.

At the board's September meeting, student government spokespeople spoke against tuition hikes that have been proposed for 1980. The increase ranges from 8 percent to 10.3 percent.

This time the requests listened to the protests. Although before the meeting a majority of the regents said that they supported the increases, the regents have now agreed to a compromise plan to reduce tuition increases.

Reduction in the costs. It will be a hard rule for students to understand previous policy and begin proposing tu­ inches. On the other hand, the students must realize that in order for them to gain support, they must accept the figures and include detailed analysis of costs. Although the board is supporting that there is need for more support in the process of education.

The students have an opportunity to change the way the regents operate.

Students should press the board to reconsider the practice of voting on the UI student Midwestern universities. The validity of the process is at best questionable. How, for example, does the board measure quality?

Students should encourage the board to establish a fair financial aid formulas. In the past, the various increases have been averaged, the manner of which to determine how much financial aid will be available. The board should require that the financial aid should be available to the stu­ mates facing the stiffest increases.

Students should push for more financial aid. Under the current tuition increase proposal, only $800,000 would be allocated for additional financial aid. This is a small increase in view of the three state schools. Moreover, this petty increase in financial aid is dwarfed by significant increases in federal aid. Even state aid is available only to undergraduate students with a 3.0 grade point average and continues to be limited.

There are many students — including many graduate students — who would have trouble affording tuition if the financial aid financial aid be available on high rates. It will be a tough fight to overcome the board.

Student government has a difficult job in front of it; it has to balance the interests of the students with the interests of the university. How the students can work with the board to ensure that the financial aid financial aid be available on high rates. It will be a tough fight to overcome the board.

Queen Elizabeth II is the world's only current monarch, as her Majesty's reign has lasted for over 60 years. Her Majesty is often seen in public without addressing the camera, and there is no known video footage of her in her official role. It is hoped that future videos will show a more engaging and accessible portrait of the Queen. In the meantime, the Royal Family continues to work hard to promote the monarchy's values and traditions.

Study: legal age has no impact

At the onset of the 19th century, the legal drinking age was set at 21. This age limit was adopted to protect young people from the harmful effects of alcohol abuse. However, recent studies have shown that no significant impact on alcohol consumption was observed when the legal drinking age was reduced to 18. The researchers found that the age of 18 was not associated with increased alcohol consumption among teenagers.

Proposed ordinance receives objections

A proposed ordinance that would establish a mobile home park on the edge of town was met with opposition from nearby residents. The ordinance was intended to control the growth of mobile home parks in the area, but many residents opposed it because they believed it would decrease the property values in their neighborhood. The council members have vowed to continue the discussion on the matter and make a decision soon.

The Tubes big on visual live rock; can expect props, costumes, extras
By Jim Weaver
Art rock fans are in for a treat this Sunday, when The Tubes, one of the most untypical of the so-called "art rock" groups of the last few years, bring their unique brand of eccentric live entertainment to the Repertory Theater.

The Tubes gained their substantial following through performances in San Francisco that are often described as a mixture of rock, avant-garde, and even theatrical shows. With an emphasis on visuals and theatrical elements, their live derived from a variety of sources, including punk, new wave, and even more typical rock and roll genres.

The group has been described as "three men and a drum machine," with their live performances featuring a mix of complex arrangements and impromptu improvisation.

The Tubes will perform at the Crescent City on Saturday night.

Jazz groups bring big band era back

The St. Louis, under director Wally Stein, has been a big name on the city's music scene for years. Their concerts feature a wide range of big band music, from swing to modern jazz.

Tonight's show is the result of Stein's efforts to rekindle interest in the big band genre. With a team of skilled musicians, the group presents an electrifying performance that captivates audiences with its energy and talent.

The St. Louis will perform a mix of classic and contemporary tunes, showcasing the range of the big band genre. The show promises to be a memorable experience for jazz enthusiasts and music lovers alike.

Tonight's performance is not to be missed. As Stein comments, "The big band era is back, and we're here to bring it home!"
While the Senate vetoes anti-Coors proposal
By Victor Saylor
The UI Student Senate voted Thursday against a resolution that would have barred the Coors beer company from being awarded a contract for the supply of beverages to the University of Iowa at least through the 1990-91 term. The vote was 19 against, 9 for and 12 abstentions.

The Senate voted 19 to 11 to join 9 other universities in petitioning UI President Gordon Wood and the Board of Regents to refuse to sign an agreement with Coors. The resolution was introduced by Sen. Jack Thomas of Coralville. A similar resolution was approved last week by the Student Senate at the University of Minnesota.

Senator Peter Galloway, D-Minneapolis, introduced the resolution before the Senate met earlier Thursday to discuss a resolution encouraging Coors to stop advertising on the university's radio station. That measure was approved by a 35-1 vote.

A Coors executive met with UI officials earlier this week to discuss the university's concerns. The university also is considering legal action to block the agreement with Coors.

Coors is a sponsor of the Minnesota Golden Gophers football and men's basketball teams, along with Iowa's Hawkeyes.

Ragatz at home on diamond

By Dave Hareman

Tourney Ragatz has lived in more places than most people and he still has time to be a pretty good ball player.

Ragatz, 22, who was born in Chicago, has been to Austin, Texas, where he attended the University of Texas, and to Madison, Wis., where he attended the University of Wisconsin. He has also been to New York City, where he played basketball for the New York Knicks.

Ragatz said he was surprised to hear that he had been picked for the all-star team.

"I'm not sure if I'm ready for that," Ragatz said. "But I'm looking forward to it."
