A psychiatrist called Thursday by the prosecution in the first-degree murder trial of David Carl Oppett said under cross-examination that he cannot determine whether Oppelt was sane while stabbing Steven Scott White.

Defense attorney Duane Rohovit has told the seven-woman, five-man jury that in order to win a first-degree murder conviction, state law requires Assistant Johnson County Attorneys J. Patrick White and Janice Becker to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Oppelt, 24, was sane during the May 27 stabbing

Oppelt has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity

Dr. Curtis Fredrickson, a staff psychiatrist at the Iowa Security Medical Facility at Oakdale, testified that, in his opinion. Oppelt "to some degree" understood right from wrong and the implications of stabbing 16-year-old White in the Quik Trip at 225 S. Gilbert

A report prepared for the trial by Fredrickson stated Oppelt "may have" been mentally ill during the stabbing. In his testimony Fredrickson agreed with Rohovit that Oppelt has, at times, shown enough symptoms to be labeled a schizophrenic-catatonic

Budget will aid economy, Reagan vows

1 Mail & Ballon Strategy and The Print State Strategy and Cast

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan Thursday expressed confidence that his economic program would lower high inflation and interest rates, and vowed to keep federal spending in line by vetoing bills that would "bust the budget." Defending his budget cuts against critics who say poor Americans would be hurt, Reagan said: "What we call our safety net is still in effect. I don't say there won't be some reductions and cutbacks ... but those totally dependent on federal income ... nothing will happen to them."

Reagan joked, "Welcome to my first annual press conference." The conference marked his fourth meeting with reporters and first since June.

Reagan admitted he had trouble reconciling favorable public and business community reaction to his cuts with a resistence from Wall Street to the kind of a stock market rally that would spark lower interest rates.

The president said there was some early evidence the economy was getting better, but that it would take time for major changes.

COMMENTING ON the impact of his budget and tax cuts, Reagan said: "Our programs won't be instantaneous. The mistakes of four decades can't be turned around in eight months. "In the next several years we can create 13 million jobs and reduce inflation," he said. While some in Congress have urged Reagan to abandon his tax cuts in favor of balancing the budget, Reagan said "we will not be swayed from our plan by every changing current.'

restoring cuts after they have been made Reagan vowed, "I will sign no legislation that would 'bust the budget.'

IN RESPONSE to a question, Reagan said: "It is true that we have had difficulty reconciling the stock market with the evidence that we were getting from business and industry ... about their optimism, their plans for expansion and their outright support.'

He said the passage of a bill by Congress early Thursday raising the debt ceiling to more than $1 trillion for the first time "can stand as a momument to the days of the past which brought it about - policies that as of today are reversed."

Asked when the psychological impact of the budget cuts and tax breaks will be felt, Reagan said it is already happening. He referred to an Iron and Steel Institute announcement of an industry expansion program "which they stated flatly that they are doing' because of the cuts.

"I'M CONVINCED and do believe there is a trust on the part of the people," he said of his economic program, adding that members of Congress "from both sides of the aisle" report 90 to 95 percent approval.

To emphasize what he thought was significant about his budget cuts. Reagan pulled out a stack of what he said was 318 pages of regulations under old federal grant programs. He held them in one hand and pulled out what he said were the six pages of regulations for the same programs now they have been consolidated in nine block

The second part of the plan is the Lower Ralston Creek project, which involves city acquisition of land from residents who live on the flood plain east of the Iowa River. The plan calls for widening of the creek bed to alleviate water overflow.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan sent Congress his $8.5 billion Saudi arms package Thursday with an assurance that there would be American input on the AWACS radar planes project, but the 50 senators on record against the sale maintained their position.

Reagan asserted that the $8.5 billion arms deal will protect the interests of America and the rest of the free world and told a news conference, "I can make the guarantee this will not compromise our security.'

Hours after the administration formally submitted its proposal to Congress, Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore. submitted a resolution of disapproval on behalf of 50 senators - one less than the majority vote needed to block the sale in the Senate.

A Packwood representative said all of the 50 senators, who first signed the resolution last month, were consulted again to see if the administration's new assurances delivered by Secretary of State Alexander Haig had changed their minds, "and not one did - not a

THE PRESIDENT said the deal the largest single U.S. arms sale to a single country - presents "no threat" to Israel but would help "defend oil fields on which the security of the free world depends."

Issuing a stern warning clearly aimed at Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin who opposes the sale, Reagan said it is "not the business of other nations to make American foreign policy.

In presenting the package to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee a day later than scheduled, Haig gave verbal assurance that the AWACS planes and their ground stations would be jointly staffed by Saudi and American crews "well into the 1990s."

The administration indicated previously that the joint Saudi-American crews probably would be required only until about 1987 for the planes, which would be delivered in 1985

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, a leading critic of the sale, said the compromise terms "did not adequately" answer all questions about whether the AWACS sale will protect U.S. national security interests

DES MOINES (UPI) - A survey released Thursday shows an experiment allowing cameras and microphones in Iowa courtrooms has been a success, with only a few complaints.

The complaints were mostly that the equipment affected the fairness or outcome of the trial.

Supreme Court Justice J.L. Larson, chairman of the Advisory Committee on Media Coverage, said the survey was of judges, lawyers, witnesses and jurors involved in 19 criminal and six civil cases - 35 percent of all proceedings where the coverage was allowed up to Aug. 24. He said results suggest the experiment is "working well.' Larson released results of the study as he announced a public hearing on the experiment is scheduled for Oct. 23 in the Supreme Court courtroom. He said the hearing will help the panel decide whether to recommend to the Supreme Court that expanded media coverage be allowed on a permanent basis.

JOURNALISTS HAVE used still cameras, tape recorders, microphones and TV equipment to cover court proceedings since January, 1980.

The study showed only three of 19 judges who responded found the fairness of the trial "adversely" affected by the presence of media equipment. Thirteen judges saw no effect of the media presence.

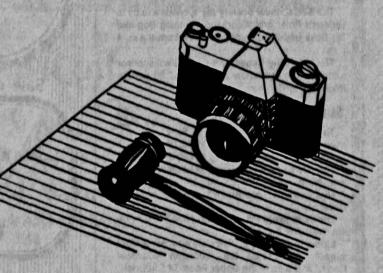

A majority of the judges, about 79 percent, felt cameras and microphones did not contribute to a longer trial and 68 percent said there was no adverse impact on the fairness of the trial.

Ninety percent - 87 of 97 - of the jurors said they were not distracted by broadcast and photographic equipment, But 30 percent - 29 of 97 - said they would prefer only print journalists cover the trial if they were summoned to jury service again.

Attorneys, about 86 percent; said the actions of reporters using the equipment were not distracting to them during a trial. They also saw no effect on the witnesses, the opposing counsel, the jury or presiding judge.

Forty-six percent of the witnesses questioned said they would have preferred not to testify with cameras See Cameras, page 9

The UI Student Senate will launch a concerted campaign this morning to register students to vote in the Oct. 13 Iowa City Council primary. The registration deadline is 5 p.m. today.

Today is also the last day a voter can change her or his address to become eligible to vote in the primary, Johnson County Commissioner of Elections Tom Slockett said. Slockett said that permanent Mobile Deputy Registrars and Special Deputy Registrars will be appointed Friday to help register voters.

UI Student Senate President Tim Dickson said about 15 of the special deputy registrars will be senate representatives trying to register students.

"Basically we're going to work all day and try to register as many students as possible," he said. Students live here nine months of the year and we think they should be registered here."

DICKSON SAID the registrars have a goal of registering 5,000 students. Registrars will be at tables in the Union Landmark Lounge, on the Pentacrest, outside Phillips Hall, and at several other locations, he said.

Sen. Mercedes Birn said registration rules prohibit the registrars from canvassing the campus or enter-ing the dorms. "We can't go around and solicit

Some take no stock in analyst's warning

By Martha Manikas ff Writer

When the New York Stock exchange failed to fulfill market analyst Joseph Granville's predictions that Monday would be one of the bleakest days in U.S. financial history, the market guru may have lost some of his popularity, UI professor of finance Charles Mar-berry said Thursday. "I think stock guessing or market guessing is like Hollywood - you're as good as your last picture," he said. Marberry said that Granville "is a showman," who may influence the market temporarily, but whose predictions are not effective over a long period of time. "He tends to seek publicity, and he gets it," Marberry

GRANVILLE'S PREDICTIONS are a result of technical analysis which studies "how the market seems to be - as compared to fundamental acting" analysis which studies past market growth and dividends, said Richard Stevenson, chairman of the UI Finance Department Granville publishes a newsletter informing his clients of his stock market analysis and makes major market predictions about twice a year. Stevenson said. "He's had a pretty decent record over the past six or seven years," he said. 'One might say that since he's developed quite a following, he may have developed a self-fulfilling prophesy," Stevenson said. "I think he does better over a longer-term trend" than with predictions for specific days, he added

STOCK BROKER Jack Drulis, of Dain Bosworth Inc. in Iowa City, said Thursday he believes Granville "is a good technician who knows what he is doing." But "there is not a person in the world who can predict the future, and he tries to do that on a certain day," Drulis added.

Daryl A. Stamp, account executive for stock brokerage Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner and Smith in Cedar Rapids, said he believes Granville is 'sort of an evangelist-type person' with a large ego. He has successfully predicted stock market trends but has not fared as well forecasting the rise and fall of individual stocks, Stamp said Thursday.

"I think he created a lot of panic in his last two predictions," Stamp said. Individuals who buy and sell stocks according to different analysts' opinions may panic at predictions such as Granville's. Those who follow one person's predictions through good and bad times may succeed.

UI asks United Way to find new fund plan

Voter registration

Students have an unfortunate tendency to be vocal about their disaffection with national, state, and local government - but to be apathetic about actually doing something about it.

For years there was debate about lowering the voting age to 18. The victory for advocates of that change has been a hollow one. Young voters have the worst percentage of turnout in the nation. Since there are thousands of potential student voters in Iowa City, one would think local officials would be especially responsive to their student constituency. This has not been the case for the simplest of reasons: so few students take time to register and vote that the students have been a small factor in previous elections.

Elections for city council are coming up. Those who wish to vote in the general election must be registered by October 23. Those wishing to vote in the primary must be registered today (5 p.m. Friday).

To ease student registration problems, the UI Student Senate and other concerned students have attempted to arrange mobile registration units for campus. The Johnson County Board of Supervisors was to decide in a Thursday night meeting if students applying to be temporary voter registrars should be approved.

If approved, there will be voter registration tables at the Landmark Lobby of the Union and at the Pentacrest. Voters may also register at the County Courthouse. It is important to note that previously registered voters who have moved since registration must reregister using their new address to be eligible.

Register and vote. This is a chance to have an effective voice in government, instead of a loud complaining voice that changes nothing.

The Red Book

The Pentagon has published a 99-page booklet on the strengths of the Soviet military. The intention of the book, spelled out in a preface signed by Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, is to describe the "massive and unprecedented" buildup of Soviet forces. Implicit in the book's strategy is an attempt to justify huge military spending increases. Will such a book budge doubting Thomases? Probably not. It may even make believers out of the wrong people.

The New York Times has already criticized the book for its lack of "new information," any kind of stated conclusion or any "systematic comparison with American forces." The book conveys "only the impression of relentless and almost overwhelming Soviet military power."

The London-based International Group for Strategic Studies has tried to point out the dissonances of what has become the administration's fight song. The new book states that for the last 25 years the USSR has invested an average of 12 to 14 percent of its GNP in military expenditures, contrasting that with an American average of 7 percent. But the administration's report neglects to mention that the American economy was double that of the Soviets for the same period; thus, overall spending tends to be equal.

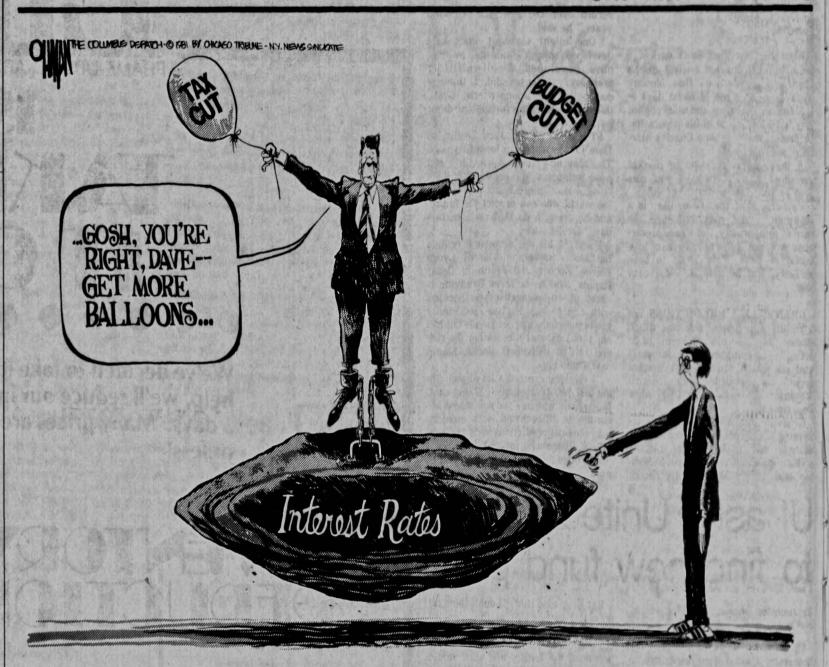

Likewise, the "Reagan book" does not take into account allied military expenditure, which is more than that of the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact nations.

All this talk about Soviet military strength will not convince anyone who knows the tally sheets. But it may convince the Soviets we think they're stronger than they actually are and prompt them to make a move to prove it. It's one thing to hunt for bear, but another to load up on bull beforehand.

Give me back Stepin' Fetchit

WASHINGTON - These are times when I want to ask the Lord to deliver us back to the days of Stepin' Fetchit, Aunt Jemima and Uncle Tom.

The old-style black, illiterate, obsequious "handkerchief heads" were an embarrassment, but they were harmless compared with the "educated" blacks who are now the darlings of the far right.

I don't know when I've been as disgusted as I was two Sundays ago watching Thomas Sowell on NBC's 'Meet the Press' dishing out bull under the label of scholarship.

OK, Sowell has a right to be a conser-

SOWELL JUST couldn't get his lips to blame racism for the fact that one of every six blacks is unable to find a job, compared with one of 16 whites; or for the fact that 50.7 percent of black teenagers are without work, the constant prey of drug peddlers and the rest of the criminal element. Instead, Sowell blames the $3.35-anhour minimum wage law, which he would like to see repealed. As a college professor who likes to talk about his "studies," Sowell should have figured out that when the Sowell is giving aid and comfort to minimum wage was $1.40 an hour in February 1967, black teenage unemployment was 26.5 percent, or almost 2.5 times the white teenage rate. When the minimum wage was $2 back in May 1974, black teenage joblessness was teenagers to joblessness and 31.3 percent or well over twice the rate hopelessness, and making government for whites. Today, the black teen rate

15.6 percent rate for white teenagers. The level of minimum wage doesn't have a hell of a lot to do with the problems of black Americans in getting jobs, and Sowell ought to know

It is plausible, though, that blacks will get work if the minimum wage is wiped out entirely, as Sowell suggests. Even blacks can work at slave wages; we know, because the slavery era was the last period in which every black had a job.

What galled me most about Sowell was his refusal to admit that he was helped by the civil rights movement. of blacks who wanted to vote. That He figures that if there had firmative action program when he got his first teaching job, some woman would have gotten his post.

Farm bill

The Reagan administration's recent farm bill victory in the Senate, and the breakup of the farm coalition which made that victory possible, herald a new age for American agriculture. Clearly, farmers cannot rely heavily on government support in the years ahead.

But neither can farmers expect relief on the open market in the near future. This year's record high corn and wheat crops and near-record soybean crop are expected to depress producer prices severely for those commodities. The federal grain reserve, which removes grain from the market and therefore boosts prices, may or may not be opened to the 1981 corn crop - the administration is making no promises.

President Reagan is known to favor increasing exports instead. In a recent letter to Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., Reagan promised to offer the Soviet Union "a large additional amount of grain," over and above the eight million tons they are now eligible to buy from the United States. But according to the IPBN program, "Market to Market," even if Reagan offers the Soviets 15 million tons, and they take it, the grain surplus would only be reduced from 2.4 billion bushels to two billion bushels. So while exports to the Soviets are good for farmers, they are no panacea for what ails American agriculture.

Assuming a future of reduced government farm programs, what can farmers do to improve their long range prospects? One possibility is to foster the increased use of food as foreign assistance, which would remove grain from the domestic market until poor countries can develop agricultural self-sufficiency. Production can then be cut without depriving hungry people of food.

One thing is certain, however. Farmers will have to band together to protect and promote their own interests in the future. No one else will do it for them.

Voting Rights Act needs support

By Kenneth Purcell

In the midst of the UI Student Senate's effort to register its footballfrenzied constituents to vote in next month's City Council primary election, a letter from distant parts reminds me that voter disinterest is not everywhere the problem in encouraging civic responsibility. In our America of the 1980s, concerned and organized groups of minority citizens, who turn to the political process for the voice denied them in the social and economic arenas, still encounter illegal discrimination that restricts their constitutionally guaranteed suffrage.

Sister Sharon Sullivan, a Catholic nun and native Iowan, relates examples of persistent voter discrimination in the Jackson, Miss. area she serves as a social worker. Two years ago, when a black gubernatorial candidate challenged the aplomb of the whitedominated statehouse, polling places in some Jackson precincts were changed overnight on the eve of the election. The resulting confusion disadvantaged the poor, black areas most because of their lack of transportation and

PAPER BALLOTS are still used in many rural Mississippi towns, and they can be folded in ways that make the voter's choice visible. Sister Sharon reports incidents in which the threatened loss of food stamp privileges, bank loans and jobs have been used to encourage rural blacks to vote 'correctly'. And in Indianola, Miss. a population that is 62 percent black is 'ruled by a white municipal government that has annexed several predominantly white areas but refused to annex eleven neighboring black areas in the last three years. These observations are offered by

may be endorphins

By Maria Houser Conzemius Special to The Daily Iowan

Substances similar in effect to morphine and heroin may be behind such phenomena as runner's high, pain relief for women and their babies during labor, death from shock, paralysis from spinal injury, and other related enomena

Researchers at Massachusetts General Hospital and Boston University have recently discovered that the level of endorphins - naturally occurring, morphinelike substances in the - increases during exercise. brain Such an increase could explain the euphoria described as "runner's high." Columbia University researcher Alan Gintzler's studies of pregnant female rats indicate a similar increase in endorphins released by the brain just before a female goes into labor. A corresponding increase in endorphins was also found in newborn rats. Increased endorphin levels appear to be responsible for pain relief experienced by mothers and babies during delivery.

ENDORPHINS are receiving intensive examination by a group of UI surgery professors, including David G. Reynolds, Thomas Vargish and Nelson Gurll, who have for about four years studied the possible role of endorphins in the body's reaction to shock.

Since endorphins control the body's energy balance - including body temperature, appetite, breathing, heart rate and reproduction - they are necessarily involved in shock. Shock is a state of bodily stress. Stress, Reynolds said, activates the endorphin system. Extreme stress, or shock, results in inadequate blood flow to the vital tissues. Prolonged loss of blood flow to the tissues can result in death.

REYNOLDS SAID, "Anything you can do to improve blood flow in a shock victim should improve survival." John Holaday, a neuropharmacologist at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, said that anything that can be done to improve blood flow to the tissues after spinal injury will reduce paralysis. The key is timing. "It sounds easy, but it's really difficult," Reynolds said.

Reynolds credits Holaday with the theory that endorphins are negatively involved in shock, which lowers heart rate and blood pressure.

When Reynolds came to the UI several years ago, he worked with Vargish, Gurll and others to demonstrate that shock due to bleeding is reversed in dogs by the anti-opiate drug, naloxone.

IN THE FIRST EXPERIMENT, a

Key to pain relief The Friends of Old Time Music will research assistant arrived at the right dose of naloxone to reverse shock by accidentally giving the first dog 10 times the amount of naloxone he had been instructed to administer. The dog survived. The assistant gave the next two dogs the originally agreed-upon dose. Shock was not reversed, and the Professor to discuss Greek film dogs died. The assistant realized his error and consulted Reynolds, who told him to duplicate the error and give the rest of the dogs the larger dose after shock was induced. Shock was reversed and the dogs survived.

Naloxone has been used to reverse shock in humans as well, but Reynolds warns against exaggerated claims about the effectiveness of naloxone by the press.

HOWEVER, there is much speculation about possible uses for the drug. Endorphins apparently lower blood pressure - sometimes so much that it may cause death from shock. But in the right doses, endorphins may be used to treat high blood pressure, according to an unpublished report by Holaday.

Experiments on cats, conducted by Holaday and Alan Faden, indicate that endorphin research may lead to an understanding of how to reduce paralysis after spinal cord injury.

Administering naloxone to cats inhibits endorphin action, yielding an increased blood flow to the spinal cord. After spinal injury, naloxone-treated cats had significantly less paralysis than the non-treated control group.

CONCERNING THE ROLE of endorphins in pain relief, Reynolds admits there is "probably something to" the claims of electrical acupuncture advocates. He said acupuncture needles may stimulate sensory nerves that cause release of endorphins, leading to localized pain relief. According to Holaday, pain relief comes from lowfrequency acupuncture stimulation; high-frequency stimulation has no effect Similarly, endorphins may explain the soothing, morphinelike effect of electric shock treatment. Studies have shown significant increases in endorphins following electric shock treatment of patients suffering from depression

The "placebo effect" - pain relief due to a mental confidence that the pain will diminish - also may be caused by endorphins. If the body can manufacture its own morphinelike substances - endorphins - the placebo effect may start in the imagination but end in a physical reaction that relieves pain

Texas U makes no more cents

A severe penny shortage caused the University of Texas student union to round its food prices to the nearest nickel this fall.

The union required more than $100 in pennies to be used for change each week. said Barry Phillips, asssociate director of the union. Austin, Texas, banks have been unable to meet the union's penny demand because of a nationwide penny shortage expected to last for the next few months, Phillips said.

Students complained about price increases for some union food items but "across the board there probably won't be a change in what they pay," Phillips said. Prices for popular items like soft drinks and coffee weren't changed, he said. Instead, sales tax was incorporated into the previous price of the item, actually making them cheaper. Fishy business casts line in Champaign

University of Illinois students living in residence halls and apartments in Champaign and Urbana, Ill., no longer have to yearn for pets to keep them

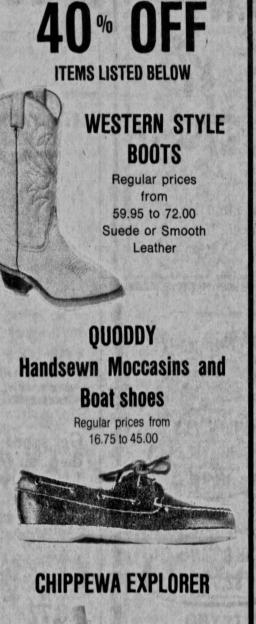

Diana Diehl-Dryan started Rent-A-Fish for people who want pets but are not permitted - in accordance with lease or dormitory contract provisions - to have them. The fish she rents are guaranteed to live for a month. After that, dead fish will be replaced for a small fee.

Rent-A-Fish offers two rental options. Students can rent several small fish in a tank or can take home one large pet fish

Students can rent a fish - complete with five-gallon tank, water, gravel and lights - for $30 per semester. A 15-gallon set-up costs $50.

"We'll come over and set up everything for you, and show you exactly what you need to do to take care of your fish, and if you have any questions about anything, we're always glad to help," Diehl-Dryan said. From The Daily Illini.

PERFORMANCE CERTIFICATION

Would you buy a tape deck if you knew it didn't meet specs right out of the box? Of course not! But it happens all the time. Almost half of the tape decks we check don't meet factory specifications. That's why we won't sell you a tape deck until we've verified the deck's performance. You even get a graph showing your cassette deck's performance. Why take a chance?

SOUND

The only way to know how a tape deck sounds is to make a tape on it. If a salesman isn't willing to make a recording for you, the conclusion is pretty obvious, isn't it?

PRICE

When you shop around make sure you're comparing prices on comparable products and services. Everyone likes a good price ... but don't forget ... a turkey is a turkey at any price!

Roberts to stand on voting record; Schwab discusses public advocacy

By Michael Leon Staff Writer

Iowa City Councilor Glenn Roberts, who is seeking re-election to his at-large council seat, is a man who is proud of his work.

"I'm an incumbent, and I'm putting my record on the line," Roberts said. "I've tried to hold down property taxes as much as I could and still have the city provide basic services."

The 61-year-old Roberts, who was the top vote-getter in the 1977 council election, said those services include garbage pickup, fire and police protection and water service.

"Our bus service, although not exactly a basic service, is also one we certainly want to continue," he added.

ROBERTS SAID the city may lose federal revenue sharing funds that are used to support the transit system. He said he would try to compensate for that loss by a raise in fares and by supporting an increase in taxes.

"In the past I've been very much against using property taxes to support the bus system, but if we lose revenue sharing I don't think there is any way we can raise fares to compensate and still get people to use buses," he said. "We could price ourselves right out of the (transit) business." Roberts said he is proud of his work to create the Scott Boulevard Project on the city's east side. The project is under construction

"I've pushed very hard for an east-side street that would connect (the east side) to the industrial section," he said.

"WE'VE pretty well got urban renewal done, except for the (planned $15 million) hotel," he said.

Roberts' experience in construction and business has made him the council's unofficial expert on capital improvements. Roberts pays particular notice to construction bids, and has often questioned the city engineer when bids are significantly under engineering estimates.

Roberts also serves as a source of construction information at council meetings. He was asked at last Monday's informal council meeting how long it would take to cut a doorway through a concrete wall. "My two sons and I once cut a door and moved some very heavy equipment out of the room in an afternoon," he said.

ROBERTS SAID his construction experience started when he worked on a construction road crew during the summers while he attended college. He received a bachelor's degree in accounting from the UI in 1950.

After graduation, Roberts worked as a general superintendent for a construction firm and later bought Varsity Cleaners. Roberts operated the cleaning business for about 25 years before selling it to his son in 1975.

City Council '81

This is one of several articles examining who the candidates for the Iowa City Council are and why they are running for office.

Glenn Roberts

Jim Schwab, a candidate for an at-large Iowa City Council seat, started working in public advocacy soon after he heard Ralph Nader speak at Cleveland State University in 1970

Schwab says his experience has given him a good idea how government works, and said that knowledge would help him be a good councilor. "There won't have to be much on-the-job training," he said.

Schwab came to Iowa City in May 1980 as state director for the Iowa Public Interest Research Group. Iowa PIRG had moved its state office to Iowa City from Ames. Schwab left Iowa PIRG when funds for his job ran out in March 1981, but remained in Iowa City.

He worked last summer as a freelance consultant for the Citizens' Party in Iowa and Minnesota.

SCHWAB IS also a member of the Iowa Citizen/Labor Energy Coalition, a statewide organization that has argued against several utility rate increases before the Iowa Commerce Commission. He became Iowa PIRG's representative to the coalition in summer 1979 and continues to be a member. The coalition is currently preparing to contest a 12-percent rate increase request by Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric, he said

Schwab, born and raised in Cleveland, Ohio, has been active in consumer and human issues since hearing Nader's speech during his second year at Cleveland State. A few months later, Schwab formed the first environmental group on the Cleveland State campus. In the spring of 1971, he helped create the Ohio Public Interest Action Group, a consumer and public issues group

In 1973, Schwab helped form Cleveland Consumer Action, "a local consumer activist organization that is still thriving today," he said. He received a bachelor's degree in political science in 1973, got a job as a purchasing agent and began to attend law school at Cleveland State part time. He quit law school in 1975. "It was mostly finances," he said, but added that he was also getting bored with school. Schwab worked in late 1975 and early 1976 making a study of Defense Department spending on the Ohio economy for a coalition of churches. He was an insurance agent from 1976 to 1978, he said.

said he worked on "planning for the most massive petition drive in U.S. history." The 475,000-signature drive to get utility reform referendums on the Ohio ballot is one the largest such drives he is aware of, Schwab

Ballet great unites dance, sports

By Marcia Butzel Staff Writer

"Male dancing borders on athleticism and borders on poetic qualities ... masculinity in dance is a fantastic attack and at the same time a delicate restraint. The difficulty is to control the attack. I learned the long way.

- Edward Villella, 1976. Edward Villella, the most acclaimed male dancer in American ballet, began his career in a rather unusual way.

While his sister attended a ballet class, "Eddie," age 10, played baseball on the street. Frequently hit over the head and knocked out, Eddie eventually ended up taking the class, too, since his parents decided he was too. dangerous to leave alone on home plate.

The first time Eddie was scheduled to appear at the school - around 1945 - he wore tights and a baseball cap and carried a bat with him. Gradually, he developed a way of climbing up the steps to the studio backward, so that if any of his neighborhood pals saw him, he would appear to be leaving instead of arriving.

NOW 45, VILLELLA has never really left the studio, except perhaps to nurse injuries and to prepare for speaking engagements, like his UI Ida Beam visiting professorship which begins Monday. For two days, the renowned virtuoso of the New York City Ballet will be in residence with the UI Dance Program. He will teach master classes and present two free public lectures, one about his work with choreographer George Balanchine and the other on dance and athletics.

Edward Villella

Erick Hawkins and Merce Cunningham, have discussed their work in diverse public contexts, few male ballet dancers have so thoughtfully and eloquently taken the podium as Villella. Are men in ballet still reluctant to discuss their role within an art form that many still attribute to the "female principle?" In lectures. television and films, Villella has been responding to this question in a career that has gone through several distinct phases

FOR THOSE who remember Villella collapsing with muscle cramps during the 1968 television documentary, "A Man Who Dances," the episode divides the dancer's career into two main parts. Villella joined the New York City Ballet in 1957, and over an intense, 12-year period, he created a staggering number of principal roles whose virility and athleticism stunned audiences.

He did Jerome Robbins' "Prodigal Son" in 1960 at the age of 23, and Although male modern dancers, like followed up with breakneck ballets like of "Jewels," in which he shot about the stage like a molten gem to Stravinsky's "Capriccio for Piano and Orchestra." Concurrently, he appeared in major "majestic" roles - Apollo in the sublime Balanchine work and Oberon in "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The pace of those years had its consequences. Villella was dancing every New York season and guested elsewhere in-between. He also managed to make out-of-town appearances between local performances. He danced with injuries and jet lag until he reached a physical surfeit around 1970.

THE SECOND PHASE of his career attests to the changes a great artist can make. For Villella the athlete has always been a dramatic dancer, and so in 1972 when Jerome Robbins set his Noh-inspired "Watermill" on him, audiences were mesmerized by a concentrated, inner-turned performance of a man who slowly, almost motionlessly, contemplates his life. Since then, Villella's activities have included choreographing, coaching and lecturing. Now a producer-director of the "Dance in America" television series. Villella has recently served on the National Council of the Arts and is currently artistic coordinator of the Andre Eglevsky Ballet.

While a member of the National Endowment for the Arts Dance Advisory Board, Villella frequently urged increased cooperation betwen professional dance companies and universities. He was instrumental in the increase of residency programs beneficial to both institutions. His residency at the UI promises to be a special and personal version of this. as Ballet.

'Tarantella'' and the "Rubies" section he plans to work with both UI dancers and athletes on aspects of physical dynamics and balance which both disciplines share.

> THE UI visit won't be the first time Villella has set foot on a campus nor ventured into a varsity locker room. He currently coaches the West Point football team.

One of the few principal American dancers with a college degree, Villella holds an undergraduate degree in marine transportation from New York State Maritime College. That experience came about in the late 1950s in Bayside, Long Island, when neither Villella nor his parents saw a particularly solid future for him in ballet and he stopped his training at the School of American Ballet. When he graduated in 1959, he lettered in baseball and was campus welterweight boxing champion. Desite his sports achievement. Villella spent equal time on land and at sea practicing to old records of Alexandra Danilova's ballet classes which prepared him for his return to Balanchine's school.

IN HIS LECTURE, "Dance and Athletics," slated for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Room 100 Phillips Hall, Villella will discuss how ballet and sports training intersect. In this context, he stresses that, whereas the athlete can approach a ball with a bat or leap hurdles "in any way best suited to him," the dancer always has to accomplish his feats "within the framework of a technique, a musical phrase, a dramatic idea.'

Villella will also lecture at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Clapp Recital Hall on his training, his work with Balanchine and his early days with the New York City

There are some things that one does in the privacy of one's own home. One would not, for example, hang one's drug addictions or sexual quirks out for public viewing. Dancing around the living room or pretending to be Jimmy Page on a hot night does not make a person crazy. It is a natural desire, while listening to rock music, to pretend to be playing the dominant instrument of that music - the guitar. It's embarrassing when someone walks in during a high riff but hey, everyone does it, right? Why on earth would anyone want to do it in public, on purpose, in front of hundreds of ... what do you call them? Zany college kids? Andy Warhol once said that in the future everyone would be famous for 15 minutes and, at the time, it just sounded like another crazy prediction from another none-toosane artist. But Warhol is looking very much the savant. There are thousands of little contests cropping up to make people, in effect, famous for 15 minutes. That is also the main psychology behind The Guinness Book of World Records who really gives a damn about who

WITH OPPONENTS claiming a solid majority in the Democratic-controlled House, the administration is seeking to erode a slimmer majority in the Republican-controlled Senate.

Haig told the Foreign Relations Committee that an attack hours earlier by Iranian planes on Kuwaiti oil storage depots just north of the Saudi oil installations - an area that the AWACS would protect - is "a dramatic and, I think, God-given warning regarding the importance of the issue facing us.'

American-owned and operated AWACS planes now in Saudi Arabia picked up the Iranian aircraft almost from the instant they were airborne and fighters guided by the AWACS could have shot them down, Haig told the committee. During his testimony, Haig listed other verbal modifications of the deal to answer congressional and Israeli objections: • "There will be complete data sharing with the United States on a continuous basis." Haig said the United States will continue to share its intelligence with Israel, implying that the information collected by the Saudi AWACS also will be available to Israel.

• "There will be no sharing of AWACS data with any other parties without U.S. consent." The provision was designed to ease Israeli worries that Saudi Arabia would pass on information about Israel to countries such as Syria.

• There will be extensive security arrangements, monitored by U.S. teams, to make sure that the AWACS technology does not fall into other hands

World's heaviest man hospitalized

SEATTLE (UPI) - Jon B. Minnoch, heaviest man in recorded history, was hospitalized in serious condition Thursday, battling a medical condition that causes him to get bigger and bigger.

Minnoch, 40, had shed about 900 of his more than 1.400 pounds three years ago after he entered University Hospital on the brink of death, suffering from edema, or retention of body fluids. Attendants placed him on a 1,200 calorie-a-day diet and after 16 months of intensive care he went home.

But Wednesday, emergency crews were again called and 10 men carried Minnoch from his house to a waiting ambulance. To extricate him from the house required removal of several doors. Doctors refused to discuss his latest weight.

lowa priorities place meet win as secondary

By Mark Ballard

Iowa Women's Cross-Country Coach Jerry Hassard is taking a different approach to this season.

When he brings the Hawkeyes into nes Saturday to run in the Iowa State tational, they won't really be conerned as to whether they win the meet or not. What they will be concerned with is how their individual times hold up against a higher grade of competi-

"It's still not a high priority meet for us as far as team wins go," Hassard said. "Our energies this weekend will be geared for individual efforts since we're still trying to get our times down. If we do, then our chances of winning the meet will be better."

HASSARD SAID he told his team to "shoot for their best" this weekend, and that if they could pull four or five personal bests, he would be "pretty happy," considering the difficulty of the layout at the George Veenker golf course

"If we're equal to or slightly behind our times from Illinois State I'll be pleased," Hassard said. "Times in the low 18's (minutes) will be good on that type of course and under pressure.'

Iowa, which has been ranked ninth nationally (NCAA as well as AIAW) by Harrier Magazine in the Division I preseason polls, will have a tough task ahead in Ames. The meet showcases not only ISU, which has been tabbed as 10th in the nation by Harrier, but also regional power Minnesota. South Dakota State, last year's Division II national champ, will also run in the meet.

The Bully Lower Bity, forward north Co

The runners are coming off their first weekend without a meet, and Hassard believes the layoff will help his team in the long run. "I think you'll see the results later on in the season rather than right now," he said. "We'll have other off weekends which will be to our advantage, not only because we have the chance to get in extra work. but because other teams might get burned out from running hard every week.'

INJURIES STILL HAMPER the Hawks, and Hassard said he may hold Nan Doak, one of his key runners, from running up in front of the pack on Saturday. Doak continues to be bothered by tendonitis in the knees, and her ailment has led Hassard to place her in a "low-key" situation.

The coach did say that the injured Judy Parker has returned to practice, but won't run this weekend. Anne Coombs is battling an achilles injury which may keep her out of action. But Hassard said everybody else looks good for tomorrow.

'We're all pretty healthy," he said. "Our setbacks are temporary with the top group, and the ones that aren't hurt are getting stronger.

Hockey players agree Hawks are best ever

By H. Forrest Woolard sistant Sports Editor

Members of Iowa's field hockey team believe it. Their record indicates it. And even the Hawkeyes' No. 8 national ranking reinforces that this is Iowa's best season ever.

"I've never seen our team this good," said junior Sue Bury, who is a member of the United States squad. "Offensively we're the best ever, and our defense is doing a super job.'

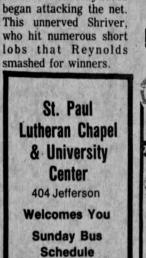

The Hawkeyes have outscored their

Iowa's first game. And as for the other vacant positions in the Hawks' line-up, several freshmen stepped right in to earn starting roles.

Leading the newcomers is Vickie Sax who has taken command of Iowa's offense with 14 goals this season. Other freshmen breaking the Hawks' line-up are forward Dawn Chamberlin and halfback Lee Ann Detwiler.

"THEY MAY NOT be as polished as everyone else," Dauley said. "But they're so strong and aggressive, they opponents, 36-9, en route to a 10-1-1 record. Iowa's only loss of the season came at the hands of Penn State, the 1980 national champion and No. 1 ranked team in the country.

"WE'RE A LOT more poised, a lot more mature," said senior Pat Dauley. 'The team has more confidence than ever before. We believe in our abilities.

'We're doing what we have to do. Last year we wanted to do it, but this year we're doing it.'

Before the season began, the Hawks seemed a bit shaky. Three members of Iowa's 1980 national qualifying team had used their four years of eligibility, including all-time leading scorer Kelly Flanagan. It was also thought Anne Marie Thomas, who led the Hawks offensively last season with 23 goals, was ineligible.

Fortunately, it was ruled that Thomas could compete the day of defeated Southwest Missouri, 4-1.

at the beginning of the season, but now they're coming up to our level of varsity hockey. Although Iowa does play three freshman, both Dauley and Bury agree that the Hawks' main strength is experience. Of Iowa's 11 starters, six progressed in the U.S. summer camps, used to select the national squad. Bury was the only Hawkeye chosen to the squad, however.

For the third consecutive week, the Hawks will compete out of town, as Iowa travels to Ann Arbor, Mich. Today Iowa, the defending Big Ten champ, faces Michigan. 'We can't patsy around anymore,' said Ginny Parrish, Iowa's softball coach. "We need to start putting a few wins on the scoreboard.

With that statement in mind, the Hawkeyes are hoping for a good weekend when they compete at the Minnesota Invitational in Minneapolis this weekend. "All of the bugs should be worked out," Parrish said. "We're going up there to win.

Iowa owns a 2-8 record, including a split against Iowa State last Tuesday. The Hawks defeated the Cyclones 2-1 in the opener, only to drop the nightcap, 10-6. Parrish said her team is going to Minneapolis with revenge in mind.

"WE OWE A COUPLE of the teams something," Parrish said. "We had a no-hitter thrown against us by a girl from Missouri. We could have won that game. I'm not saying that it will be easy, but we can beat them. There's no doubt in my mind."

them, and I think we can." THE TOURNAMENT MARKS the halfway point in the fall season, and Parrish believes her team is improving. "I'm fairly pleased. We're still a young team and we've been improving with every game and that is what we need to do. They have the ability to win, and I'm still taking a look at a lot of people." Parrish added that she is pleased with the progress her pitchers have been making. But Iowa's hitting is still a concern to her. "I'll probably never be satisfied with the hitting," Parrish said. "We've got a few people who are hitting well, but some of the big people

Ex-Cyclone, Hawks' new netter

By Mike Kent

Decision making is often a difficult task in life, and for tennis player Kerni Gustafson, her transfer from Iowa State to Iowa this season was quite the dilemma

Although Gustafson has recently been through hell making her decision, the Cedar Rapids native is confident that she'll never regret joining the Hawkeyes.

The lowa women's tennis team will play host to two teams this weekend. The Hawks will go against Minnesota today at 2 p.m. and will face Missouri at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Both meets will be played on the Stadium Courts on Melrose Ave.

Last year Gustafson was enjoying success for the Cyclones, and according to Iowa State Coach Christa Townsend, Gustafson had come a long way as a player. "I worked with Kemi for two years," Townsend said. "I feel that she had improved a lot since she came here (to Iowa State)."

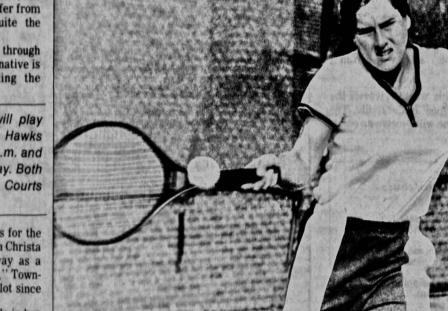

DESPITE THE leaps and bounds she made in her game, Gustafson started to reevaluate her personal needs as a collegiate player during her sophomore year. She discovered her personal philosophies were unable to mesh with the beliefs of the Cyclone tennis program

And early last summer, Gustafson made what was to become the first part of a two-stage decision. "I lecided in June not to accept my scholarship at Ames." Gustafson said

Since she no longer had an athletic scholarship, Gustafson changed from student-athlete to just a student. "I had pretty much decided that I didn't want to play for Iowa State," she said. "But I stayed there and went to summer school."

However, Gustafson soon realized that she wanted to be more than just a student. "In July, I changed my mind," she said. "I decided I couldn't go to school and not play tennis at the same time.

THAT WAS THE time the UI came into the picture. Being from Cedar Rapids, Gustafson had a natural geographical attraction to the Hawks. "I wanted to come to Iowa to play tennis when I was in high school." she said. "I was ready for a change. I decided to change (to Iowa) because I wanted to stay close to home.

Since Townsend was not in Ames at the time, Gustafson had to tell someone that she was transferring to Iowa. So she made her decision known to Iowa State's Assistant Athletic Director, Elaine Hieber, who was in charge of both the men's and women's tennis programs. Heiber had agreed to relay Gustafson's decision to Townsend. However, Gustafson wanted to talk to Townsend in person.

"I sat in the A.D.'s office and felt very badly that I was not in Christa's office." she said.

Townsend never learned the news until she returned to Iowa State just before the beginning of the fall semester. "I got back here (Ames) the 24th of August," Townsend said. "It was a shock to me that Kemi transferred.

ALTHOUGH SHE was "a little bit distraught" about the transfer, Townsend said she has no bitter feelings towards Gustafson. "I wish Kemi the best and I'm sure this is one of the first major decisions she has ever made on her own," Townsend said. "And I hope for her sake the choice is right."

Gustafson said making a decision was not easy to do, but added that the experience had taught her a few important lessons. "It's been a very difficult experience for me to go through," Gustafson said. "It's been one of the few times I had to make such a decision. I learned a lot from it and learned a lot about

"It was one of the best decisions (to attend Iowa) I've ever made," she said. "I think that everyone from the athletic department all the way down to the tennis team has made me feel welcome.

"I feel good to be sitting where we are," Diane Thomason, Iowa women's golf coach said

After the first round of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Nomen Region VI golf tournament, the Hawkeyes shot 325 to put them in a tie for first place with Iowa State. Winning medalist honors after the first day of competition was Iowa's Therese Ehrhart who shot a five-over par, 77. "This is where we should have been all year," Thomason said. "It's kind of any game, was in third place after shooting inspired us."

THOMASON WAS pleased with the Waterloo. Most Iowa players hit the fairways well, but for some, putting is still a problem, Thomason said. Ehrhart and Mary Kramer were cited by Thomason for their good putting on the fast greens. "The course is pretty basic. The fairways are wide and not tight at all. The greens are big, but the ball rolls so you have to earn your score," she said. "I think we had good team scores,"

Thomason continued. "We didn't have to count any bad scores.' Sonya Stalberger, who according to Thomason had troubles with her short ALABAMA WILL be playing its first home game Saturday against Mississippi. The Tide should win easily, according to 194 prognosticators. The Redels are the choice on only three ballots.

Oklahoma will give Iowa State its first loss. The Sooners lost to Southern Cal last weekend, but 190 entries say Oklahoma will win this Saturday. The most difficult game to pick was Mississippi State at Missouri. The Bulldogs are the favorites, being marked on 121 ballots. The Tigers were the choice on 76.

Claremont-Mudd will lose to Azusa-,

Pacific. Claremont was marked on 70 entries, with Azusa on 127.

In a rematch of the 1980 Gator Bowl, Pittsburgh will defeat South Carolina. In the Big Ten, Purdue will stop Wisconsin.

The guest picker this week is Ron Maly, a sportswriter from the Des Moines Register. Maly will be covering Iowa's game Saturday. He predicts the Hawks will win in a "cakewalk."

Quarterback spot open for Saturday

As Iowa's football team goes after its third victo of the season at Northwestern Saturday, the quarter back situtation remains a question mark.

Pete Gales and Gordy Bohannon, injured in la week's victory over UCLA, are both physically ab to play, Head Coach Hayden Fry said. But Fry hasn decided who his starting quarterback will be for t game, or if either one will start.

Also given medical releases to play again Northwestern were Hawkeye running backs Edd Phillips and Phil Blatcher. Following Thursday practice, Fry was unsure what their status would Saturday.

Women ruggers lose

Last weekend the Iowa City Women's Rugby club played in St. Louis and lost to St. Louis, 16-0, before falling to Southern Illinois, 8-0. This weekend the club meets Grinnell and Illinois on the Hawkeye Drive Apartment Fields at 9:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. respectively.

Ruffians drop game

The Iowa City Ruffian Rugby club was defeated by Newton last weekend, 34-4. Scoring the club's only try was Brian Price. First home game for the Ruffians is Sunday at 1:30 p.m. against Mt. Pleasant on Lower City Park fields.

Iowa splits with Irish

In UI rugby action last weekend in Iowa City, the A lost to Quad City Irish, 10-7. The A team started slow and ran out of time before dropping the contest. Joel Elgin scored the club's only try with Al Kainz scoring on a 30yard penalty kick as a result of a high tackle. The UI B team was more fortunate as they pulled out a 13-10 last minute victory over the Irish. The winning score came on a 25-yard penalty kick by Neil McKinney. Other scoring were tries by Rick Floyd and Rob Schmidt. McKinney added a conversion kick after one Using a balanced attack and many substitutes, the C team overwhelmed Grinnell 30-0. This Saturday, the UI A and B teams take on last year's state tourney winners, River City Rugby club. Games begin at 1 p.m. on the

Hawkeyes in home volleyball tourney

By Melissa Isaacson

Iowa's volleyball team, coming off a victory over Iowa State, hosts the eight-team Hawkeye Invitational today and Saturday in the Iowa Field House. This year's invitational boasts a strong field of participants including Southern Illinois, Minnesota at Duluth, Drake, Northern Iowa, Lewis University, Iowa State and North Dakota State.

Lewis won the 1980 tournament with Iowa placing second. Drake and Western Illinois tied for third.

IOWA RETURNS six players from last season, five of whom are seniors. The Hawks' first game will be against Drake at 7:15 p.m. today in the North Gym. The Bulldogs, who have six returning players, defeated the Hawks Sept. 23 in Des Moines, 15-10, 15-5, 15-3. Iowa Head Coach Mary Phyl Dwight was especially pleased with her teams' passing performance against the Cyclones.

'We will continue to work on passing before this weekend," Dwight said. "When we let up, our passing lets down. We have to keep emphasizing it. We still need to be a little more consistent in that area."

This weekend's tournament will be divided into two pools, black and gold. Iowa finds itself in the black pool with Southern Illinois, Minnesota and Drake.

For the first time this season, several matches will be held in the main gym of the Field House. Dwight cited the pros and cons of playing in the larger gym.

"IT DEFINITELY DOES make a difference," she said. "The ceiling is higher and the background is different. It's an advantage because you're able to chase balls a little further, plus a lot of servers like to move back in order to serve an effective floater. In the bigger gym, they have more room.

First league contest set for Hawks

By Steve Batterson

For the first time since 1965, a rated Iowa football team will take the field Saturday when the Hawkeyes open the 1981 Big Ten season at Northwestern.

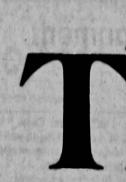

It is doubtful anyone will call the Hawks "giant killers" if they come home with a win this weekend. Iowa, ranked 20th by UPI and 18th by AP. takes a 2-1 record into the game against the hapless Wildcats, losers the last 23 times they have taken the field.

But injured Iowa players, including the first and second-string quarterbacks, have Coach Hayden Fry worried about the Wildcats. "I'm really worried," Fry said. "We're going to have to wait until kickoff to see if a couple of them will be ready.

FRY ISN'T ONE to look at Northwestern as a weak sister of the poor, either. "I started looking at them with the Indiana game film," Fry said. "They played some very fine, fundamental football. Their next game (against Arkansas) they didn't stand a chance. They were just outclassed. Last Saturday, against Utah they were obviously down.

"Coach (Dennis) Green played a lot of freshmen last week and I know what he's trying to do. He's searching for the best possible talent to put on the field and that is what I tried to do when I first came here," Fry said. "We know that Green and two of his assistants are from Iowa. We're running scared because I know they'll be gunning for
