Rebel soldiers gun down Sadat

Five others killed, 38 wounded

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was assassinated today in what looked like a carefully planned assassination by members of a militant student group, according to an official statement. Sadat was killed when a car bomb exploded near the presidential palace, witnesses said. The attack occurred in the middle of a political crisis that has engulfed Egypt since last year, with thousands of people killed and injured in demonstrations and clashes. Egypt's government has blamed the violence on Islamic militants, and the United States has condemned the attacks. The assassination of Sadat is likely to exacerbate the political crisis in Egypt, and it could also have implications for the region, including the Middle East peace process. The United States and other countries have expressed their condolences to Egypt and offered their assistance in investigating the attack.

Sadat assassination comes as no shock

By Mary Schiavo and Charles百家威

The assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is not in any way, shape, or form a shock. People in Egypt and abroad have known for years that Sadat was not safe. The Egyptian government has been under constant pressure from a variety of groups, including the Muslim Brotherhood, the Salafis, and opposition political parties, to resign or be removed from power. Sadat was a controversial figure in Egypt and abroad, and his assassination is likely to have far-reaching implications for the region and beyond.

Fed demands force county to cut clients

By Elizabeth Flinn

New federal eligibility requirements that took effect last year have forced the Scripps County Department of Social Services to begin tightening its list of clients. The changes have been met with resistance from some clients, who received federal funds for food, child care, and medical assistance before Oct. 1, when the new rules went into effect.

County social workers acknowledge that the number of clients receiving federal funds has declined since the new rules took effect. However, they maintain that the changes are necessary to ensure that federal funds are used for their intended purposes. The county is one of many in the country that have been affected by the new rules, which are part of a broader effort to cut federal spending and reduce the federal deficit.

Veteran education loans halted, benefits axed, more cuts feared

By Jackie Biber

The Or, 1 elimination of the Veterans Administration Educational Loan program from some Iowa universities and colleges is likely to have significant implications for veteran students.

The loan, which is similar to the GI Bill, provides financial assistance to veterans as they pursue higher education. The program is intended to help veterans offset the cost of tuition and other expenses associated with college.

The elimination of the loan is likely to have a significant impact on veteran students, particularly those who are attending Iowa universities and colleges.

The Federal Reserve Board has raised interest rates again, indicating that it is continuing to combat inflation. The move is likely to have a significant impact on the economy, particularly in the housing market and the stock market.

The Federal Reserve raised interest rates by 25 basis points, bringing the benchmark federal funds rate to 5.25 percent. The move is in line with the Fed's strategy of raising rates to combat inflation, which has been a major concern for policymakers in recent months.
Psychiatrists testify to Oppelt schizophrenia

By Andrew L. Miller

A psychiatrist called by the defense as an expert witness in the murder trial of David Carl Oppelt testified Thursday that he believes Oppelt is a schizophrenic. "I believe he is a catatonic schizophrenic, " Dr. Johnlon Count, Collon Adam said.

The defense motion for a new trial in the case of David Carl Oppelt was denied by the court Tuesday in 3rd Judicial District in Township 7, Range 6, Section 1, Freeborn County. The motion for a new trial based on Oppelt’s mental competence was denied by the court Monday. The court ordered a competency hearing and said the state and defense may be heard July 14.

Tribute to Sadat

The assassination Tuesday afternoon, October 6, of President Anwar el-Sadat of Egypt has led to tributes across the world. Sadat was assassinated near the end of his long reign of this country. A man of courage, dignity, wisdom, and integrity, Sadat led his nation to great prosperity and peace. His vision of a two-state solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict was widely admired. He will be remembered for his courage, intelligence, and humanitarian spirit.

In a world which seems to cherish the values of democracy and human rights, Sadat's murder is a tragedy. He was a man of peace, a man of vision, and a man of principle. His death will be felt in many countries around the world, and his legacy will live on.

The benevolent face of capitalism

By Donald McCloy

I am concerned in the opinion of many today is that the benevolent face of capitalism is a myth. They believe that capitalism is a system that exploits the poor and leaves them to suffer.

But I believe that capitalism is not an exploitative system. It is a system that provides opportunity to everyone, regardless of their social status or economic background.

In my opinion, capitalism is a beneficial system for all. It provides a platform for innovation and entrepreneurship, and it allows individuals to pursue their dreams.

In conclusion, I believe that capitalism is not a benevolent system. It is a system that exploits the poor and leaves them to suffer.

City may give police pay hike for longer contract

By Michael Leam

A proposed contract offered to Iowa City police officers Tuesday by the city council would provide a five-year agreement and does not include additional pay for the police union as has been the case in the past.

"I think it's a great day," said Officer Mike Goldberg, chief of police for the Iowa City Police Department. "It's a great day for the city and the police department. We've been working towards this for a long time."

The Iowa City Police Protective Union, which agreed to a three-year contract last year, has been negotiating a new contract with the city for the past year.

"We're very happy to see the city agree to a five-year contract," said Goldberg. "We've been working very closely with the city to make sure that the police department is on the cutting edge of technology and that our officers are fairly compensated."

Iowa City awarded energy grant

Iowa City will receive one million dollars in funding from the U.S. Department of Energy for energy conservation analyses of major city buildings, including 13 major civic, public, educational, and commercial buildings.

The city will use the grant money to conduct energy audits of these buildings and to develop energy conservation plans. The city will also use the grant money to fund energy conservation projects in the buildings.

"This is a great opportunity for us to improve the energy efficiency of our city buildings," said Mayor Paul Thamm. "We're grateful to the U.S. Department of Energy for investing in our city's future.

"We're committed to improving the energy efficiency of our city buildings and reducing our energy costs. This grant will help us achieve our goal.

El Salvador: Romance and Reality

The El Salvador front office of the Iowa State University of Science and Technology will be the focus of a new book, "Romance and Reality.

"It's a great opportunity for us to tell the story of El Salvador," said the book's author, Mike Lefever. "We're excited to share the story of El Salvador's rich history and culture.

"We have a lot of exciting things planned for this book, including interviews with local residents and information about the country's culture and history.

Iowa City police publicize grant

Iowa City Police Chief Mike Goldberg said that after the meeting he would prioritize the grant's goals and allocate resources accordingly.

"I'm excited to see the police department make better use of the grant money," said Goldberg. "We're committed to making the most of this opportunity to improve the safety of our community."

Governors split on illegal alien plan

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Arizona Gov. Doug Ducey are among four Mexican governors attending the second Border Governors Conference in the United States this week and plan to urge the federal government to work with the Mexican states.

The two governors are among four Americans and six Mexican governors attending the conference, which is being held in El Paso on Thursday. The conference is being held at the University of Texas at El Paso's El Paso College.

The governors also discussed other issues, including the United States' pending request to extend the United States-Mexico border wall.

Gaeta refuses political labelings

By Michael Leon
For The Daily Iowan

Jim Gaeta, candidate for an at-large seat on the Iowa City Council, refused to be labeled conservative or liberal.

"I don't want to be considered a liberal or conservative," he said. "I'm not a right-winger or left-winger, I'm a moderate."

Gaeta, 34, has operated a variety of small businesses in Iowa City and serves on the Iowa City Downtown District Board, which is responsible for city-related matters.

"I'm not a major conservative," he said. "I'm not a major liberal."

Gaeta said he had "no real world political beliefs," but said he was more concerned about economic matters than social issues.

"I'm just concerned about pending issues," he said. "It seems like most of the issues are economic, not political."

Gaeta's past business ventures include a small business in Lone Tree, Iowa, and he has also worked as a sign painter and advertising designer.

"I've been interested in so many things that I've tried my hand at a lot of different businesses," he said.

"I DON'T CONSIDER myself a great businessman," he said. "I'm interested in so many things that I haven't really focused on one dimension."}

American Sign Language classes to help "get the message across"

By Cat Miles

"Classes taught by a hearing-impaired woman will be offered in Iowa City this fall as the people with normal hearing continue to do so," said Iowa City Sister of the Deaf and Hearing Friends, Tuesday.

Iowa City Sister of the Deaf and Hearing Friends, Tuesday.

Facial expression and body language are important in American Sign Language, said the Iowa City Sister of the Deaf and Hearing Friends, Tuesday.

"The grammar of American Sign Language differs from English in many ways. It is not a word-for-word translation of English, but a complete language in its own right," she said.

"It is the only way to communicate with the deaf and hard of hearing," she said.

"The Johnson County Board of Social Services will offer a class in American Sign Language to help people "get the message across", said Iowa City Sister of the Deaf and Hearing Friends, Tuesday.

"The classes will be held on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Johnson County Health Department, 1500 East Street.

"The legal controversy started at Iowa State University, where a group of students from the Iowa State University Student Government Association (ISSGA) sued the university on behalf of a group of students who wanted to establish a chapter of the National Association of the Deaf (NAD) on campus.

"The legal controversy ended in 1977 when the Iowa State University Student Government Association (ISSGA) and the National Association of the Deaf (NAD) reached an agreement allowing the establishment of a chapter on the university's campus.

Church and state separation to be tested by Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The courts are not the last place where church and state come together. The edges of church and state can be found in the everyday lives of individuals, who must decide whether to follow religious beliefs or to stay within the bounds of society's laws.

"There's no constitutional prohibition with regard to sex in gay rights groups, as there is in regard to religious organizations, but the courts have yet to decide how far church and state can be divided."

"The courts may have to decide if there's a connection between church and state in the case of sex in gay rights groups, but the courts have yet to decide if there's a connection between church and state in the case of sex in gay rights groups," said Iowa City Sister of the Deaf and Hearing Friends, Tuesday.

Allen's book makes crazy sense

By Linnas Calkins
Special to The Daily

Saying that he was "very much flattered" by the reviews, Woody Allen added:

"It's nice to know that people take my work seriously, but I don't think it's going to change the way I write."

Allen is the author of the new book, "Address in Absence," which is being published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston. He is also a Los Angeles based film director, writer, and actor.

Allen, who is known for his offbeat humor and surrealistic plots, has been called a "master of the unexpected." His films have been described as "thought-provoking" and "provocative."

Allen's previous book, "Me Myself and I," was published in 1981. It was a bestseller and received critical acclaim.

In his new book, Allen delves into the world of the mind, exploring the concept of identity and self-awareness. He examines the role of consciousness and the nature of reality. Allen's writing is philosophical, witty, and thought-provoking.

Allen's latest work is expected to be a hit with his fans, who have come to expect his unique and insightful take on the human condition.

Allen is currently working on his next film, "The Purple Rose," which is set for release in 1983. He is also expected to appear on television in the upcoming season of "Saturday Night Live."
Poet Merwin reads today at Shambough

Egypt’s pivotal role grew over centuries

by United Press International

Egypt in the 20th century safeguarded a once powerful nation and the role where the region’s interests and Middle East politics revolved. Egypt is present today on the scene of the international arena as an important nuclear power in the Middle East and an influential voice in Arab issues. It is also a major economic power in the region, with a strong economy and a large population. It is the largest country in the Middle East, covering an area of 1,018,000 square kilometers.

Policy

"IN PRAISE OF" he said, "the United States will be ruled by the people of the United Nations."

Dr. Uthman Gadalla, a Wharton professor and president of the American University of Cairo, has recently published a book titled "Toward a Democratic State," which he describes as an attempt to establish a democratic state in Egypt.

The book argues that the current system of government in Egypt is not democratic and that the country needs to undergo a complete transformation to achieve true democracy. Gadalla calls for a new constitution that enshrines the principles of democracy and human rights.

In his book, Gadalla also addresses the issue of corruption in the government and the need for accountability and transparency in the administration. He argues that corruption is a major obstacle to achieving true democracy in Egypt and that the government needs to take concrete steps to combat this problem.

Gadalla’s book has been well-received by many Egyptians who are dissatisfied with the current government and its policies. However, it has also been criticized by some who argue that it is too radical and that Egypt cannot afford to undergo such a complete transformation at this time.

Egypt’s officials extol Sadat as statesman

by United Press International

Later on, Saturday night, President Anwar Sadat and President Jimmy Carter meet in Washington to sign the historic accord.

The deal was a great achievement for the United States and Egypt. It was a turning point for the Middle East and it paved the way for peace in the region.

Sadat’s legacy continues to be celebrated in Egypt. The country is still reeling from the loss of its beloved leader, and his memory lives on in the hearts of the Egyptian people.

Sadat’s assassination was a tragedy, but it also served as a reminder of the dangers that can arise when political leaders fail to protect their citizens.

It is important to remember that Sadat’s legacy is not just about his political achievements, but also about his commitment to peace and prosperity for the people of Egypt and the region.

Egypt

At the time of publication, President Sadat had not yet publicly announced his successor.

Terrorists who killed Sadat were sentenced to death by the Egyptian government.

The United States has maintained a strong relationship with Egypt for many years, and President Sadat is widely regarded as a statesman who helped to bring peace to the Middle East.

The death of Sadat was a loss to his nation and to the world. The United States remains committed to supporting Egypt and its efforts to achieve peace and stability in the Middle East.

Sadat was a man of hope. He helped to prove a world tormented by malice and woe. He served as a leader who lost two brothers to political murder, but rose above the hatred he felt. He was a statesman who helped to bring peace to the region, and his legacy will continue to inspire others to work towards a more peaceful and prosperous future for all.

Egypt’s former President Anwar Sadat died in a helicopter crash in 1981. The crash took place in the Nile Delta region, near Alexandria, and was caused by mechanical failure.

Sadat was a key figure in the Middle East peace process, and his death came as a shock to the world. The United States and Egypt began working together to find a way to continue the peace process, and President Jimmy Carter was named as Sadat’s successor.

Minnesota to challenge Iowa in home volleyball match-up

By Matthew Hammer

The Iowa volleyball team will face perhaps its toughest test of the season on Friday when it hosts Minnesota, a team that defeated Texas in its only other loss.

The Gophers, who won their first four conference matches 3-0, have only dropped two sets in those matches. They will be led by 6-foot-4 jump-servicer Sharon Dunham, who has averaged a team-best 10.3 set-ups per game.

Minnesota's Becky Ebert, a setter, had a team-high 24 assists in the win over Texas. She is the only setter in the Big Ten averaging at least 10 assists per game.

"That's one of the things that makes us go to work," said coach Joanne Persico. "We need to improve on our passing and serve reception.

"We're looking forward to facing Minnesota, a team that's off to a good start this season."
On the line

Come on you football fans. You'll want a chance to win a free big game. If you don't enter The Daily Iowan's The Line contest and write down your picks, you'll miss the eighth game of Iowa's complement at the U of I. It's happening — remember.

You'll have to complete a ballot and return it to The Daily Iowan before 9 a.m. Monday for your picks to count. The winner of the contest will be the person who picks the most correct games.

Entries will be accepted from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. Monday in room 204 of the News Building.

Have fun with this one. Good luck. Who knows, maybe you'll win.

Late home run pushes Houston past Dodgers

HOUSTON (UPI) — A late home run did as much for the Dodgers as a midseason coaching change did for the Houston Astros in their first meeting of the season Tuesday night in the Astrodome.

The Houston Astros won 3-2 against Los Angeles in the opening game of the four-game National League West playoff series.

For the better part of the game, the Dodgers, led by second baseman Steve Garvey, had an edge over the Astros. In the sixteenth inning, Terry Puhl hit a two-run home run to give the Dodgers a 2-1 lead.

But the Astros came back in the top of the eighteenth inning to tie the game at 2-2 and go on to win 3-2.

Despite the late burst, the Astros' manager, Ken Humbert, said, "We need to get our offense going in the future." He added, "I'm glad we could win this one, but we need to improve our batting in the coming games."
