Med app up since

Medical school applicants from national downwards to state universities increased by nearly 10 percent this year, according to the survey's executive director.

The average Medical school ranking among the state universities for the past 10 years showed a 10 percent rise in the number of medical school graduates.

"But it is probably not that much of an increase."

The overall trend of 1980 is that the number of graduates from the state universities has risen, said Dr. George E. Braunecker, director of medical education at the University of Wisconsin.

It's the fall application deadline for the state universities. Most applications have already been turned in, but some are still coming in.

Last week, it was reported that the number of applications for the state universities had dropped by 10 percent. But that was before the increase.

The professors are part of the reviews in school media and read many student opinions.

The professor was invited Aug. 17 to talk to the little boy, who had been on the campus for several years, with the goal of impressing students with the man's work. The professor explained that the man became the quickest, most effective media help imaginable.

Tallied is a special project that could be important to the man's future career. The professor has been in the news about the man's work since it was first announced.

Students having drinks on the campus are getting what they pay for, according to a Mr. B. B. Morse, police officer at Washington State University in Pullman. The professor is interested in the coke from these states.

Ride for your life

A variety of causes are used by those who "fear the future" to maintain the status quo and prevent change. One such group, the motorcycle lobby, has developed an argument that extends beyond the obvious appeal to individual safety.

The mainstream media is likely to be swayed by the motorcyclists' claims. conceding the financial perils of forgetting the past.

In the saddle again?

Nostalgia seems to be a major factor in American politics lately. Ronald Reagan, speaking recently to a group of veterans, said that the country is as divided as it was in the 1950s and 1960s.

The movement to return Harold Hughes to the governorship—a feature story long ago—is being promoted vigorously.

The question to be asked is why, other than for nostalgia's sake, such a move is being considered?

To be sure, Hughes retains much of his vast appeal. He is a rare commodity. He seems to have maintained his reasoned approach to issues of morality without moralizing—a welcome departure from the partisan rhetoric that has characterized so much of the political discourse.

It is curious that Domenici and Schmitt are leading the attack. They have been on opposite sides of the issue for years. But Hughes' flirtation .

Hughes' flirtation.

This is not to imply that he won't say or that he lacks for ideas. But Hughes' flirtation is likely to be more of a red herring than a serious threat.

The Church Rock incident illustrates the health and environmental risks posed by the disposal of nuclear waste. The Mill Tailings Act is an essential step in protecting public health and the environment.

The amendment to block enforcement of the act should be rejected.

The amendment's sponsors are using it as a political ploy to win popular support. But the amendment is a threat posed by such waste materials. The Mill Tailings Act is essential. The amendment to block enforcement of the act should be rejected.

To the Editor:

In their recent article in the University Daily, the editors of the weekly newspaper emphasized the need for open and honest dialogue between the administration and the students.

I wholeheartedly agree with this perspective. However, I would like to add a few points to the discussion.

Firstly, I believe that the administration should be more transparent in its decision-making processes.

Secondly, I would like to see more opportunities for student input into decisions that affect our daily lives on campus.

Lastly, I would like to encourage the administration to respond more quickly to student concerns.

Thank you for considering my points.

Germans, UI toast Oktoberfest

By Cal Weidie

In the autumn of the year, the seeds of Fun begin to rise form the slumber of the previous winter.

The Germans, for several years now, have been known for their love of the festival, and the Oktoberfest is one of the most popular events of the year.

The Festival will be held on the lawn of the German American Club, on the corner of Iowa and Washington Aves.

The Oktoberfest will feature traditional German food and music, as well as a variety of games and activities.

The festival will run from noon to 10 p.m., and admission is free.

In another case, the department was faced with the challenge of determining the nature of a patient's mental illness.

The patient, a resident of the Westlawn German Home, was found to be suffering from catatonic schizophrenia.

The patient's behavior included bizarre and unusual actions, such as standing still for hours without moving.

The patient was also found to be non-responsive to treatment, and his condition worsened as time went on.

OK, you've got your characters, locations, and dates lined up. Now comes the good part: Putting your caper to paper.

There's no mystery to it. As long as you write the ending right, the rest will follow.

As soon as you've got your characters, settings, and plot points figured out, as well as your main character's goal, write your ending.

A good idea is to start with the main character's goal. What does he want to achieve?

Submarine receiver plan approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Jimmy Carter announced a new plan to build a giant transatlantic communications system between the Atlantic and Pacific Ocean via a high-speed underwater link that will be controlled by the Pentagon.

The high-speed communications link, which is expected to be operational by 1982, will use a series of ELF (extremely low frequency) radio systems and be controlled by the Pentagon.

Carter said the communications link will be used to transmit information such as weather forecasts, military strategies, and other important data.

The system will cost $1.5 billion and will be funded by the Department of Defense.

The system will be designed to operate at a frequency of 1,000 hertz and will be capable of transmitting up to 3,000 messages per second.

The system will be capable of handling a wide range of information, including military and civilian communications.

The system will use a combination of underwater cables and satellite links to transmit information from one end of the Atlantic Ocean to the other.

It’ll be raining turkeys in Yellville, despite protests of humane society

YELLVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Turkeys may rain down from a space shuttle on Thursday, causing a stir among local humane societies, but not before three days of protest at the Florida spaceport.

"I don't want to see any turkeys drop from low-flying airplanes over the town," said Yellville Animal Rescue Team President Richard Truly.

Theumining, celebrating the turkey industry in Yellville, the town near the Florida spaceport said the following assessment is based on a survey of 1,400 persons who have been touched up and an inspection of the ship's right side.

State tennis rivalry to challenge Hawks

By Mike Condon

Iowa Tenise Cush Cush Ballard, whose home court, the Cyclones on Saturday in Ames, known the Iowa State student body mostly for his presence in football.

"Now with Iowa and Ballard only you can admit that our school's not the only team in the state with tennis prowess," Ballard said in the locker room after the match.

Still, the rivalry between the two schools' tennis programs is one that has been around for years.

IOWA STATE'S TWO-TIME CHAMPION

The Hawkeyes have been to the NCAA tournament twice, in 1979 and 1980. Ballard said the team is looking to make another appearance this year.

"We're looking to get back to that level," Ballard said. "We have some really good young talent coming in this year."
Michigan set for Spartans

The Indiana Hoosiers have the advantage of having the last two games against Michigan since the Wolverines defeated the Spartans, 56-51, in East Lansing last season. But the Spartans have been consistent and have won their last two games.

IU head coach Mike Davis said, "We have a lot of respect for Michigan and their defense. But we know we can play them and beat them."

Michigan head coach Bo Schembechler said, "The Hoosiers are a tough team. They have a lot of talent and we know they will give us a good game."

The game will be played in East Lansing and is set for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

"This weekend will be a lot of fun for us," Coach Parrish said. "We are finally playing to our potential and we are finally on the right path to get us to the next level."

Homecoming traditions revived

By Mark Ballard

It's homecoming time, and that's a fact. There's something about the sight of alumni running through the gates at Kinnick Stadium wearing black and gold that makes the City of Iowa City swell with pride.

The only hype that homecoming had was on the Iowa campus this billing, in such a way that it was a real upset, all in all. All of the public interest has been in winning the game, and this has not been the case.

It's color, pageantry and excitement. For the past decade or so, homecoming has been an event for them to show their school spirit and to promote and enhance it. Iowa's cheerleaders are being invited to return each year to wear the Iowa black and old gold, the same colors that are worn by the UI athletic department in the Iowa City area.

According to Nodurft, the schedule of events for homecoming is a wholesome one, and well-rehearsed. They now attend collegiate contests, the grand marshal, the queen and king, and the homecoming court will be chosen for homecoming.

The council hopes that a theme of homecoming is brought to the forefront and along with it, the tradition of getting names and addresses of UI alumni.

The MAIN ATTRACTION will be the Friday parade scheduled for the 6:00 p.m., followed immediately by a party. The parade is open to all homecoming activities, and the students in as many activities as possible, will be part of the parade.

Iowa funding over $1 million

By Thomas W. Jurge

In the early 70's, when it became apparent that the Iowa football program was in trouble, a group of Iowa business leaders came together to help. They formed the Hawkeye Foundation and raised millions of dollars to help the program. In recent years, the foundation has continued to support the program and has raised over $1 million.

Hawkeye notes

Good kick takes 'special' talent

By Mike Kent

Most football fans believe games are won or lost on plays from scrimmage. However, there are many other factors that can contribute to a team's success. One of these factors is the kicking game. The kicking team must be able to put the ball in the air in such a way that it is difficult for the return team to catch it. This is where the kicking team's skills become important.

The kicking team must also be able to place the ball in the best possible position for the return team to return it for a touchback or for a field goal. This strategy is generally used during the latter stages of a game when the kicking team wants to limit the return team's options. The kicking team must also be able to place the ball in the best possible position for the return team to return it for a touchdown. This strategy is generally used during the early stages of a game when the kicking team wants to keep the return team from scoring.

The kicking team must also be able to place the ball in the best possible position for the return team to return it for a punt. This strategy is generally used during the middle stages of a game when the kicking team wants to limit the return team's options.

Football and a Hobo

What a Combination!
Iowa's freshman kicker, Tom Nichol, engages in players in the off-season? Tom Nichol, legal activity.

Nichol and his friends have been practice field to practice kicking. The Nichol has never been.

That is to say, Nichol is not jumping fences into private property. He is not engaging in illegal activity. He is practicing kicking.

Nichol started using his style of kicking after playing, you guessed it, soccer. Despite Nichol's success for a bonafide all-Big Ten prospect, Tom Nichol is one of the most unexpected freshman kickers in Iowa's history.

Nichol is unusual as a freshman in high school.

Unlike Rodney Dangerfield, Iowa's football team has been beating the odds this season. The Hawkeyes' premier soccer-style kicker is Tom Nichol.

Tom Nichol kicks an extra point against Northwestern.

Nichol scores highly of his Iowa's soccer-style kicker. "When I was being recruited by Iowa, I thought I'd have a chance to play in the Big Ten," said Nichol.

Nichol is a bonafide all-Big Ten prospect, according to Iowa Head Coach Hayden Fry. Fry said Nichol is the best kicker in the Big Ten.

Corso echoed Fry's praise, saying Nichol is the best kicker in the Big Ten.

"He's got a strong leg," Corso said. "I thought he had a strong leg when he was in high school."

"Nichol is one of the most unexpected freshman kickers in Iowa's history," Corso said.

Iowa Head Football Coach Lee Corso makes a point at Pac-10 media day.

Corso has watched game films of the Hawkeyes. And he's impressed with what he's seen. The Hawkeyes' defense is one of the best in the Big Ten.

The Hawkeyes' defense is led by two of the nation's top 10 defensive players: Iowa's Dewayne "Reggie" Haynes and Texas' Lawrence Taylor.

Hawkeyes beat the odds in '56

Coaches get a win season within it.

That's how Iowa athletic director Jimmy Stoops describes the 1956 Iowa Hawkeye season. It was a season that started with the challenge of the league title. It was a good offensive team and a good defensive team. It was a team that put us in a position to have a great experience.

By H. Forrell Weaflnd
Associated Press

During the season, Iowa basketball players seem to enjoy the hard work, and the other activities of being a member of the Hawkeye athletic department. The team's success has been a major reason for their enjoyment. The Hawks' game is different from that of the Iowa football team.
