Reagan considers AWACS approval

WASHINGTON (UPI)- President Reagan considered bypassing Congress and selling AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia under a clause in current law that gives him final authority in an emergency affecting "national security interests." Senate Republican sources said Thurs-

But the White House said this proposal now "is not under active consideration.

The clause - Chapter 3, Section 36 of the Arms Export Control Act — gives Congress power to block an arms sale "unless the President states ... that an emergency exists which requires such sale in the national security interests of the United States.'

THE SOURCES gave the following account of how the White House learned of this "emergency waiver" clause:

On Wednesday morning, the president summoned 43 Senate Republicans to the White House for what Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., called "a real sweatbox" briefing. He delivered an impassioned plea for the Airborne Warning and Control System

Secretary of State Alexander Haig repeatedly used the words, "emergency" and "crisis" to describe the situation in the Middle East arising from the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., turned to national security advisor Richard Allen and said, as a Packwood aide recalls it, "I was wondering when you guys would get around to using the emergency waiver.'

Allen replied, according to the aide, "What are you talking about?" and asked for the cita-

Packwood agreed to provide it even though he felt he had made a terrible mistake by telling the White House of a power it did not know it had to push through a sale Packwood bitterly opposes.

BUT PACKWOOD was resigned to the situation, an aide said, because "he felt that Congress would probably react with shock, outrage and disbelief and probably change the law."

Upon his return to the Capitol, Packwood telephoned the legal citation to presidential advisor James Baker

Packwood then saw Senate Republican leader Howard Baker and told him of his

Through a misunderstanding, an aide said, "Baker got the idea that Packwood was proposing this approach.

'Baker thought," the aide said, "that Packwood was throwing in the towel and saying, go ahead and use the waiver and he, Packwood, won't object.

"Nothing could have been farther from the truth. We've still got the votes to block the sale unless they use this waiver," the aide said.

Packwood called Baker to say that Baker had misunderstood, Baker quickly told the White House - and the whole idea was

The announcement drew immediate criticism from Critical Mass, an arm of Ralph Nader's Public Citizen group, and other opponents of nuclear power, particularly the lifting of the reprocessing ban.

To set an international example, President Jimmy Carter banned commercial reprocessing of spent power reactor fuel in 1977 because of fears the sensitive technology would permit plutonium to be diverted for clandestine weapons programs in some

NONE OF THE three U.S. commercial reprocessing centers — West Valley, N.Y., Morris, Ill., and Barnwell, S.C. — are currently operating.

An early draft of the Reagan policy statement would have had the government guarantee the economics of commercial reprocessing ventures with an agreement to purchase the recovered lutonium and uranium for the Clinch River Breeder Reactor.

The proposal was sharply criticized as an unwarranted subsidy, and a later stage. It is a way to proceed."

Street fights, death threats plague Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) - Moslem fundamentalists firing machine guns fought bloody street battles with security forces in a city south of Cairo Thursday and a terrorist group threatened to kill Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin during Saturday's funeral for assassinated President Anwar Sadat.

Officials said at least 10 people were killed and many more wounded in Asyut, 235 miles south of Cairo, in the first serious outbreak of violence since Sadat's assassination Tuesday.

President-designate Hosni Mubarak said Sadat would be buried in Egypt's most hallowed ground next to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, only 320 feet from the spot where he was gunned down in a nail of bullets while reviewing a military parade in a sub-

He also indicated that the funeral procession would be shortened and its ceremony greatly curtailed because of the security risk posed by the host of foreign dignitaries, among them Begin and three former U.S. presidents.

MOVING SWIFTLY to consolidate power 24 hours after parliament unanimously nominated him to succeed Sadat, Mubarak called upon the United States to stand by Egypt and remain a 'full partner" in the peace process started by his slain predecessor.

Mubarak, Sadat's hand-picked heir as vice president, told reporters there would be "no turning back" on the policies pioneered by his predecessor peace with Israel and greater alliance with the United States.

Witnesses said dozens of armed fundamentalists attacked a police station in Asyut while others sped through the streets in an automobile, firing indiscriminately with a submachine gun and injuring several bystanders.

Military officials denied reports that paratroopers were dropped into the city to contain large-scale battles, but said the central police headquarters in Asyut came under a submachine gun attack by "extremist religious ele-

The Interior Ministry said one policeman was killed and several wounded, fending off the attack by Moslems wearing coveralls to simulate pattle ratigues.

IN TRIPOLI, Libya, exiled Egyptian Lt. Gen. Saad Eddin El-Shazli, whose group "Independent Organization for the Liberation of Egypt" claimed responsibility for killing Sadat, also warned in an interview with CBS News that Mubarak faced death if he continued his predecessor's policies of peace with Israel

In Beirut, Lebanon, a man who said he was from the same organization called UPI and said the group was responsible for the Asyut violence and threatened to kill Begin and several other world leaders coming to Cairo for Sadat's funeral.

The group "will continue striking at the treasonous (Egyptian) regime until the end." the caller said.

ROTC, Legion request armed color guards

By Scott Sonner

Members of the American Legion and UI ROTC programs are rallying for the return of an armed ROTC color guard to present the flag at UI football

One of the issues that influenced the 1973 decision was the opinion of many students and some board members that a distinction be made between patriotism and militarism, Kohout said. He said there is "no way of assessing" how attitudes have changed since then.

The operation was routine, one of about 1,500 performed at UI Hospitals so far this year. It lasted 10 minutes and there was very little blood.

But the vacuum suction abortion of the 15-week-old fetus was not routine to the UI medical student who visited the UI Hospital's Early Termination of Pregnancy Clinic last year as part of her junior year's training.

After it was over, the doctor and medical student examined the fetus. Before noon she witnessed two other abortions, a morning she describes as

"interminable." The medical student did not return for another morning round in the ETP

The UI College of Medicine does not regard the sessions as mandatory.

Observing abortions is part of a sixweek course in obstetrics and gynecology for third-year medical students, said George Baker, dean of Student Affairs for the UI College of Medicine.

THE ABORTION sessions are offered because professionals in the obstetrics and gynecology field agree that "students should have an opportunity to see the whole spectrum of women's diseases." Baker said.

Only a few junior students refuse to tour the ETP clinic during the six-week course, said Dr. Charles deProsse, director of the clinic.

Abortion dilemma tests medical students dents who visit the clinic are initially opposed to abortion as a last resort for birth control, after the course the majority of students change their minds and agree they would be willing to refer patients to an abortion specialist, deProsse said.

Most who were opposed had a change in attitude in what they would recommend," he said.

The tour through the ETP clinic is one example of the UI College of Medicine's program to expose medical students to controversial medical Abortion is also discussed during one noon-time session in a series called Ethical Dilemmas in Medicine.

Although junior medical students have been exposed to the issue of abortion, for most the visit to the ETP clinic is the first time they are in the same room with the patient and doctors during the surgery. One medical student said he considered not viewing an abortion because he was "kind of a fence rider" on the issue.

But he visited the clinic and learned that the operation did not upset him, but at the same time he found himself questioning the woman's reasons for choosing an abortion.

"You kind of wonder about the women," he said. 'Why she couldn't be persuaded against the procedure."

Fourth-year medical student Susan Goodner said she was still undecided on her opinion of abortion when she visited the ETP clinic.

BUT SHE SAID she reacted to the abortion in the same way as she does to any other medical procedure. "I was surprised at how non-judgmental I

McSparen asks expert evaluation

An attorney representing Mildred A. McSparen, 29, of Lomax, Ill., filed motions Thursday in Johnson County District Court asking the court to expand a previous order to review conditions of her bond, and asking that the court allow a psychologist to interview McSparen.

McSparen has pleaded innocent to a first-degree murder charge in Johnson County in connection with the death of her son, six-year-old Stephen McSparen. She also faces a first-degree murder charge in Des Moines County in connection with the death of another son, Michael McSparen, 9.

Laboratory reports indicated that both boys died from arsenic poisoning. Both died at UI Hospitals; Stephen on June 17 and Michael on April 6.

McSparen faces the charge in Des Moines County because laboratory reports indicate that Michael died from poison administered in Burlington, Iowa. ACCORDING TO court records, at a bond review hearing held on Oct. 6, the court expressed concern about the McSparen's mental condition. McSparen has admitted to two suicide attempts. The court order states "... there is no showing that (McSparen) has ever been examined or evaluated by a professional in regard to her character or mental Cleaveland Associates has compiled a three-year history of the county's health insurance premiums, its method of claims payments, its frequency of claims payments and its employee practices.

From its study of the county's insurance history, the firm has discovered five companies that can compare in all areas of health insurance to the county's present insurance carrier, Equitable Life Assurance, Dave Carrell, spokesman for Cleaveland Associates said Thursday.

Cleaveland Associates' fee for one year of consultation is $4,000. It does not charge on a commission basis, Carrell said.

UI administrators will call on private industrial donations to compensate for cuts in government funding, but the contributions will not jeopardize the UI's integrity, UI Presidentselect James Freedman said Thurs-

"I think private industry donates to a university because they are interested in the quality in the institution and the quality of the graduates - not because they expect to get something in return," Freedman said.

No donations would be accepted from corporations seeking specific research and none would be allowed to influence UI policy, Freedman said.

"There is absolutely no place for that in a university. I think it is to an institution's credit if they do research that raises controversy," Freedman said. If the controversy drives away prospective donations, those donations were not the type the UI would want.

There is no question that universities lose some funding in their search for the truth." he said

Freedman, dean of the University of Pennsylvania Law School — a private university - has a strong history of fund raising and the Pennsylvania law school has shown a great increase in donations from the private sector under his direction.

RANDALL BEZANSON, UI vice president for Finance, said the UI already receives about $20 million in funding from the private sector, but most of this comes from private individuals.

There is no danger of private industry exercising influence on the UI as long as standards are followed by the institution, Bezanson said.

"As long as one is very clear about as to where we stand and guidelines for donations are followed, there is no 'We have a specific set of intricate source of funds in private industry and the UI should look for more corporate

"A very small - I would say too small - portion of donations comes from corporations," Bezanson said. But Freedman and Bezanson said the small donations are just as important as the gifts from large corporations.

EVERY LITTLE bit helps. We have many local companies that are not as big, but that have a lot of pride in the school and who wish to give to the university." Freedman said. "Every donation doesn't have to be in six or seven figures.

All donations, regardless of size, will be important to the future of the UI, Freedman said.

"I'm sure the University of Iowa already receives a very large amount of funding from private industry, but it does seem to me that public universities are going to have to look more and more towards private industry.

We are going to do our best to encourage these industries to contribute," Freedman said. "I think the private sector is going to have to recognize how important universities

- From the Daily Evergreen. Med applications up since 1979-80

Medical school applications, while experiencing a national downward trend, have increased for the UI's freshman medical school class this year.

The number of applications increased from 657 for the 1979-80 academic year to 814 this fall. Although tuition and fees for the UI College of Medicine rank among the lowest of the eight Big Ten schools that have medical schools, Thomas Taylor, coordinator of UI medical school admissions and records, said he does not know if that is the reason

"Cost is probably not as big of a factor as the quality of the instituition," he said.

The cost of attending the UI College of Medicine is $2,670 per academic year for state residents, ranking its tuition sixth lowest among Big Ten medical

DR. GEORGE L. BAKER, associate dean for UI medical student affairs and curriculum, said the cost of medical school is "not particularly the reason" for the increase in applications to the UI medical school. "Most applications come from within the state and most people apply to medical school in their home state. So I doubt there's a direct effect."

The number of Iowa residents who applied to the UI College of Medicine also increased this year from 339 one year ago to 360 for this fall's class.

Ride for your life

A variety of means are used by those who "foresee the future" to ensure a reasonable number of successful predictions. One is to make a prediction about an event that logic indicates will occur: "A well-known Hollywood star will divorce his wife and move in with another woman."

Based on this formula, here is a prediction likely to become a reality: This year a UI student will be struck and injured by an automobile somewhere on or near the campus.

University students have a tendency to rebel against rules. This attitude probably contributes to a sense of casual disregard that has developed at the UI toward traffic laws designed to preserve

Students rushing to and from classes thread their way through moving traffic. Whole herds move against traffic lights, blocking motorists with the right-of-way.

Many student bikers seem willing to risk life and limb for a few seconds and a little momentum. Bikers are subject to the same laws that control the movement of motor vehicles: respecting stop and yield signs, using turn signals, yielding right-of-way, observing the speed limit.

Stand at the corner of Washington and Madison streets for a few minutes and see how few bikers are obeying the rules. Bikers coming downhill try to time their flight across the intersection to avoid cars, rather than stopping and proceeding safely. Others careen through sidewalks crowded with pedestrians at speeds appropriate only for the street.

So, someone probably will be hurt. Too bad if it's you.

In the saddle again?

Nostalgia seems to be a major factor in American politics lately; Ronald Reagan, leading us resolutely forward into the past, is the most conspicuous example. And if several prominent Iowa Democrats have their way, Iowa may try this trend on for size. The movement to return Harold Hughes to the governorship - a forlorn fantasy not long ago - seems to be gaining momentum. The question to be asked is why, other than for nostalgia's sake, should he run.

To be sure, Hughes retains much of his vast appeal. He can deliver rather than merely read a speech. His political courage is a rare commodity. He seems to have maintained his reasoned moderate-liberal stance while his erstwhile ideological colleagues have humiliated themselves in a headlong rush to the right. And he can speak to issues of morality without moralizing — a welcome counter to the smug social Donatists of the radical religious right. (The Donatists were a fourth century Christian sect that maintained that only those free of sin, as they defined it, could administer the sacraments.)

But consider: In his tenure as governor, Hughes accomplished most of his goals. What does he want to do now? He hasn't yet said. This is not to imply that he won't say or that he lacks for ideas. But his shadow campaign, at least for now, derives from his accomplishments of 15 years ago, when the state and the nation were quite different and faced different problems.

If Hughes wants to run for governor, he should say so. It is hardly too early to start organizing for the task of unseating Robert Ray. If not, he should step aside and allow others to organize their own campaigns, which they have not been able to do during Hughes' flirtation. If he does run, Iowans will get a rare opportunity to see a unique man in action.

Threat to environment

The Uranium Mill Tailings Radiation Control Act of 1978 set up a program to clean up about 25 inactive or abandoned uranium milling operations in nine states, and established environmental and public health requirements for existing and future operations. Now the act is under attack by members of Congress trying to weaken its enforcement and delay its implementation.

An amendment added to the House Energy and Water Appropriations bill would block the Nuclear Regulatory Commission from enforcing the Mill Tailings Act. The Senate is expected to take up the appropriations bill soon; the fight to weaken the act is being led by New Mexico's two Republican senators, Harrison Schmitt and Pete Domenici.

It is curious that Domenici and Schmitt are leading the attack -New Mexico was the site of what the NRC called "the worst incident of radiation contamination in the history of the United States." In July 1979, a uranium tailings dam broke near Church Rock, N.M., sending 100 million gallons of radioactive liquid and 1,100 tons of tailings into the Rio Puerco.

After the incident, the concentration of highly radioactive thorium was as high 36 miles downstream as it had been in the reservoir behind the dam. Contamination reached at least 75 miles downstream and affected ground water supplies in the area. According to the Sierra Club, at least 16 such incidents have occurred

Furthermore, uranium tailings, even when confined, can pollute ground water and soil, and have been linked to increases in leukemia, lung cancer and birth defects.

The Church Rock incident illustrates the health and environmental threat posed by such waste materials. The Mill Tailings Act is essential. The amendment to block enforcement of the act should be deleted from the appropriations bill, and all attempts to weaken the act should be rejected.

Ill wind might blow some good

know, that the cruelest of winds blows CINTECTION OF THE COLUMN TH

And those were cruel gales that swept across America on "White Thursday," last week's fiscal-year beginning of the Reagan administration's effort to drain blood from millions of children, divorced women, pregnant women, handicapped voungsters and the "working poor," whom the conservatives used to profess to admire.

But out of this trauma of a lot of old people eating less well than before, or families reaching desperation sooner because they are losing 13 weeks of unemployment benefits, this nation is going to learn something. Some 700,000 families will be hurt by new regulations regarding who can get welfare - and how much. But in turning the screw, the Reagan administration has helped Americans to understand what kind of people need and get welfare and other governmental Swallowing a generation of vicious propaganda, most white Americans long ago came to think that the 'average" welfare recipient was a big, fat, lazy black woman with 10 illegitimate children, living in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, with a new lover hiding under her bed.

Now, to the dismay of flint-hearted conservatives, the television networks and local stations have shown America hundreds of working mothers, almost all of them white, who will lose income, plus the health protection that Medicaid offers them and their children, unless they leave their jobs and rely totally on welfare.

DAVID STOCKMAN, President Reagan's resident guillotiner of the poor, shows no compassion for those who work their tails off at wretched pay and still need help to give their children a decent life. He now says that no one able to work should get any welfare. He obviously is looking for ways to deny public assistance to any of the working poor who are being kicked in the belly by his new parsimonious welfare rules.

Unwittingly, the Reaganites are blowing away the factor of racial emotion about social programs as millions of white people discover that it is mostly white kids who are losing food stamps, medical care, school lunches, their local library.

This wicked wind of more riches for the rich is also stirring up a new American assessment of the role of our federal government.

In thousands of counties and cities, and most states, we are already seeing that for reasons of selfishness, politics, racism or whatever, local governments are not going to afford their citizens the protection that the federal · deployment of MX missiles and B-1 government has given. So, firemen in Cowlitz County, Wash., who want more money themselves, will fight and defeat plans to keep open a bookmobile, that community's only library service. Communities, which for generations ignored children with bloated bellies, pellagra, rickets and other signs of severe malnutrition, will go back to pretending that such hunger does not exist. People in Dade County, Fla., will boo a blind man who asks who now will pay for the van that has been taking him to work.

AS THIS nation writhes under the impact of Reaganomics, millions of Americans are going to realize that if this society is to remain secure, Washington must be responsible for much more than the purchase and bombers. The federal government ought to be concerned about ensuring comparably decent levels of education for children in Mississippi and Michigan, the Carolinas and California. The current curtsies to "states" rights" from the Oval Office cannot obscure the reality that only the federal government can protect the constitutional rights of the least powerful of our citizens

I lean against today's ill wind believing that before the madness of Reaganomics flattens its last victim, most Americans will concede that while "big government" has its faults, it is not nearly as destructive as a federal administration that defaults on its most important obligations to the ommunication errors regretted

There has been some public acrimony, which needn't have happened, between the Socialist Party and College of Nursing Dean Geraldine

We released a press statement stating that Felton had refused to allow us to hand out anti-military leaflets from a table in the Nursing Building lobby. We said in the release (DI, Sept. 23) that we were refused equal access to the facilities on the basis of our socialist political views, and implied that Felton's past military career might have colored her thinking.

Our press release was incorrect. There was a communication breakdown when we spoke to Felton (for which we accept our 50 percent of the responsibility), such that she misunderstood our request, and we misunderstood the reasons for her refusal. We now understand that Felton is willing to allow us to use the space, and that she does agree with the idea that student groups should have equal access to facilities regardless of their politics.

Therefore there is no quarrel, and we're sorry to have announced one. We're also sorry to have implied that she was applying military thinking to a civilian situation.

We hope, now that the conflict is resolved, to get back to the task of political consciousness-raising that is so important in a democracy. And we hope Felton will come downstairs and pick up a leaflet. Karen Kubby marshal would have reopened old wounds and generated anti-Iranian sentiment on campus. So, to soothe the anxieties of the Iranian students, the homecoming committee has made a very unsophisticated and thoughtless gesture by changing Koob's title to

This change in title has come about because the homecoming committee is convinced that Koob is a political figure. Such a ludicrous thought could not be further from the truth. Ayatollah Khomeini, former President Jimmy Carter and the late Shah of Iran are political figures. Koob was a victim of unfortunate circumstances. She did very little to attract celebrity status other than not calling in sick for work Nov. 4, 1979

Koob, is a generous person to still accept this invitation and the UI is the fortunate recipient of this generosity Her generosity is further seen in her lack of bitterness toward the Iranian people, which would be justified considering her ordeal. It is too bad this courtesy is not being extended to Koob by the UI. Mike Rielly 247 Rienow

Affirmative Action

To the editor:

Perhaps Rochelle Bozman hoped the UI would find a black or Chicano, handicapped woman around age 55 in an Affirmative Action search to fill the position of Director of Campus Services.

Bozman's statement (DI, Sept. 29) about Jean Kendall's promotion "without being subjected to an affirmative action search..."shows a gap in her knowledge of how affirmative action is supposed to work. Conversely, the UI did indeed display the best interpretation of AA in promoting from within the system a 16year, competent female employee to a high administrative post. Indeed, had the UI spent money in a pro forma AA search, when a qualified female was right there under their noses, it would have been a disservice to the taxpayers

In my 10-year tenure on the Iowa City Human Rights Commission we came across many instances of competent females already within the system being passed over and an outside "most qualified male" being hired after an AA search.

To me, this kind of "AA search" is the very method by which many institutions and companies perpetuate the discriminatory treatment of qualified, competent, experienced women already in the system.

Running against Coors

To the editor: On Nov. 1, runners will compete in the annual Iowa City M.S. Marathon. This year, as in previous years, runners will raise a substantial sum of money for multiple sclerosis. The Daily Iowan has covered the recent flurry of protests against Coors We are in firm agreement with those who would boycott Coors because of its unfair labor practices, and we cannot allow Coors to acquire a reputation as a charitable institution while some of its employment and hiring practices remain unfair.

But this year's marathon is already organized, M.S. needs the money. And the runners need to run. We know just how much they need to run; this year's race will be our first full marathon. We believe we can avoid a boycott of the marathon, which would spite both the M.S. foundation and ourselves, and still lobby an effective protest against We're running against Coors. On the day of the race we'll be wearing Tshirts that read. "No Coors - Drink flatland beer" and "No Coors - Drink downstream beer.

We encourage other runners (especially the future winner of the marathon, whomever she or he may be), to devise for the run similar visible signs of disassociation with Coors. We also invite all other runners to join us in writing the marathon committee, requesting that it find an alternative for future runs.

Germans, UI toast Oktoberfest

By Cal Woods

In the autumn of the year, the skies of Bavaria turn a deep blue and the trees over the roads red and gold. A mist crowds the Alpine slopes. A cold wind comes up through the green and rolling hills, the yellow fields of hay, and across the little white shining, compact towns. In Munich the copper towers gleam in the sun. It is the time for Oktoberfest.

"Oktoberfest" by Frank De

Except for the Alpine slopes and the gleaming towers, De Felitta could be describing Iowa City.

The German festival will be celebrated Saturday night in the Union Ballroom. People of German descent or those who are German in spirit will come together to celebrate the fall harvest and the 19th century marriage of Ludwig of Bavaria and Therese von Saxe-Hildburghausen.

Ludwig was king of the oncesovereign nation of Bavaria, now the southernmost German state, from 1825 to 1848. Ludwig, a patron of the arts, was responsible for the large-scale planning of the layout and classical style of present day Munich, according to Jim Pusack, an assistant professor in the UI German Department.

UNLIKE Munich's Oktoberfest, which lasts two weeks or more, the UI celebration will last only one night. But just like the celebration at Munich's famed Hofbrauhaus, the UI celebration will have "singen and tanzen, bier and brezeln," said Lawrence Kitsmiller, a resident of the Westlawn German

The Tiefenkellerkinder Amana Band will provide music, playing traditional polkas and waltzes, Kitsmiller said. A dance troupe from Westlawn will also perform but everyone will be encouraged to participate.

People are encouraged to wear traditional German costumes and will be admitted free if they do so. Pusack said. Traditional dress for men is "lederhosen" - short pants with suspenders. The traditional costume for women is a peasant dress with a low-cut blouse, Pusack said.

Examination ends in Oppelt trial

The defense and prosecution ended their examination of witnesses Thursday in the first-degree murder trial of David Carl Oppelt and will present their closing arguments this morning in Johnson County District Court.

The clinical director of the Iowa Security Medical Facility testified Thursday that Oppelt "knew the nature and quality of his acts" when he stabbed Steven Scott White May 27.

Oppelt, 24, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to the first-degree murder charge stemming from 16year-old White's death at the Quik Trip store, 225 S. Gilbert St. Another youth, Blaine Owen Evans, was also wounded in the incident.

Dr. Paul Loeffelholz, superintendent and clinical director of the Oakdale facility, was called by the prosecution to rebut testimony of defense psychiatrists.

Loeffelholz said he had several interviews with Oppelt, who was held at the medical facility from May 28 until Sept. 30. Based on his interviews and other psychiatric records, Loeffelholz suffering from a mild to moderate case of catatonic schizophrenia

First Assistant Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White asked Loeffelholz to rate the severity of Oppelt's mental impairment on a scale from one to 10, with 10 being most severe. Loeffelholz said Oppelt's mental illness rated "in the area of three to

IN CROSS-EXAMINATION, Rohovit asked Loeffelholz to justify the statement in light of Oppelt's medical history, which includes more than 10 hospitalizations for mental illness, a dozen electroconvulsive therapy treatments, treatment with more than 20 different drugs and two suicide at-

Loeffelholz said several of the hospitalizations were not due to mental illness but to family or drinking problems. He also testified that UI Psychiatric Hospital doctors were unable to find Oppelt sufficiently ill to warrant his involuntary admittance for LOEFFELHOLZ told prosecutor White that Oppelt "told me about being ripped off in the alley." Earlier testimony revealed that Evans was present when $30-$50 was stolen from Oppelt the day of the stabbing.

Loeffelholz testified that, based on his interviews with Oppelt, he believed "Mr. Oppelt, on going into the Quik Trip, saw the people that wronged him. He did not assault someone at ran-Rohovit has told the jury the prosecution must prove that Oppelt was sane during the stabbing and that the murder was premeditated, to win a first-degree conviction. Despite objections by Rohovit, the prosecution called Dr. Curtis Fredrickson, a staff psychiatrist at the Oakdale facility, back to the witness stand where he testified that Oppelt's actions during the stabbing were "pur-

Rohovit said he objected on the grounds that Fredrickson was either repeating his earlier testimony or straying from the issue of Oppelt's sanity during the knife attack by commenting on Oppelt's mental condition at the end of his Oakdale treatment.

FREDRICKSON testified that Oppelt improved after treatment during his stay at the Oakdale facility. By the time Oppelt was discharged, he showed normal facial expressions, did not experience illusions or delusions and his speech was no longer inhibited.

Oppelt sat expressionless and mute during today's testimony, as he has throughout the trial.

Eads recessed the trial until 9:15 this morning after reassuring jurors that they would be permitted to attend the UI Homecoming parade and football game if their deliberations carry through this afternoon.

When the guys at Miller asked me to write an ad on writing, I said, "Forget it. Not even if you held a gun to my head." So they held a bottle of Lite Beer to my mouth. They're a pretty persuasive group.

THUGS TO MUGS

If you're going to write anything, know what you're talking about. And that means three things: Research, research, and more research. The more you know, the more you can tell your reader.

Take my characters. A lot of them I base on actual people. There's this buddy of mine who pops up in every book I write. In one story he's a cop. In another, a private eye. Once, I made him a millionaire. Using him not only helped make character development a heck of a lot easier, he was so carried away by the rich image, he bought me a lot of free dinners (and a lot of Lite Beer from Miller). So use the people you know as models.

Even locations should be based on real things. If you're writing about a bar, know that bar. Hang out there. Watch the bartender. The customers. Whatever they drink, you drink. When they drink Lite Beer, you drink Lite Beer. Remember-research is most fun when you soak up as much subject matter as you can. It can only help you paint a better picture.

No caper is complete without dames (or ladies in proper English). Experience has shown me that in mystery writing, the sexier the dames, the better. Experience has also shown me that sexy scenes make great punctuation marks. This is where research has the greatest potential. Use your own discretion in this matter. But when you write about it, don't be too explicit. That way, your reader gets to paint a more vivid picture.

CAPER TO PAPER

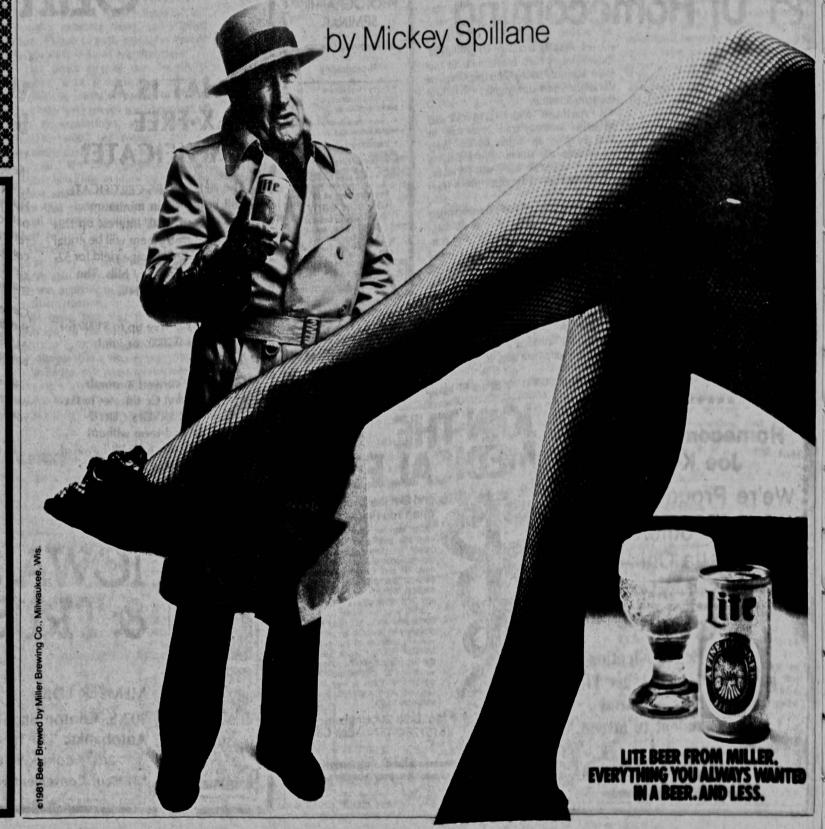

O.K., you've got your characters, locations, and dames lined up. Now comes the good part: Putting your caper to paper. There's no mystery to it. As long as you write the ending first, the rest will follow. Write short, terse, to-the-point sentences. Be as clear as possible. And make sure you've got the right stuff around for when you get thristy. After all, writing is pretty thirsty work.

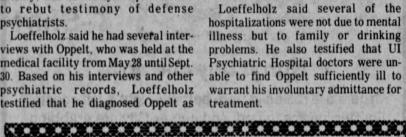

I suggest a couple of mugs of Lite Beer- who ever heard of a caper that didn't involve a couple of mugs?

Why Lite Beer? It's a lot like me and my books-great taste, less filling (some people can't get their fill of my books), and always good to spend time with.

At any rate, follow my advice and, who knows-you might turn out a heck of a story. Or you might turn out to be a heck of a Lite Beer drinker.

GREAT WRITING STARTS WITH A LITTLE LISTENING, A LITTLE BEER, AND A LOT OF LEGWORK.

Post publishes bugging allegations; Carters threaten to file libel suit lans to sue the Washington Post because ts gossip column published "scurrilous, irresponsible falsehoods" alleging the Carers bugged Ronald and Nancy Reagan at Blair House, an official said Thursday. Former White House press secretary Jody Powell said both Carter and his wife.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Jimmy Carter

Rosalynn, "are very upset and concerned" 'Although a final decision on the amount that will be asked has not been set," Powell said, "it is expected to be in seven figures." The Ear, the Post's gossip column, said Monday the Carters had Blair House ugged while the Reagans were staying there before the inaugural.

A letter by Carter's Washington attorney, Terrence Adamson, to Katharine Graham, chairwoman of the Washington Post Co., was hand-delivered Thursday, Powell said.

IT DEMANDED the Post "acknowledge that the original article was false, publish in a conspicuous position a full and complete retraction, and include an apology to President and Mrs. Carter for publishing his false and defamatory article about had been received but that Graham is out of town - "and whether she's seen it or not, I Adamson said that after the article was published, Powell - representing Carter called Benjamin Bradlee, Post executive editor, and advised him the article was "completely unfounded and false, and asked the Post retract the article.

Virginia Rodriguez, a public relations

"Mr. Bradlee replied that he knew the identity of the source of the charge and defended the news story," Adamson said. "He promised that he would call Mr. Powell back after he had personally talked to the source, but he has failed to do so.

"THE ARTICLE is false, defamatory, libelous per se, injurious to the reputation of President and Mrs. Carter, and was published with actual malice," Adamson

In Ear, which the Post took over after the Washington Star folded, an item said:

"Now, word's around, among Rosalynn's close pals, about exactly why the Carters were so sure Nancy wanted them out. They're saying that Blair House, where Nancy was lodging and chatting up first decorator Ted Graber - was bugged. And described listening in to the tape itself."

The column also recalled a report in January that Nancy Reagan wanted the Carters to move out of the White House before the presidential inauguration so that she could get a running start on redecorating.

ADAMSON ALSO SAID that the "false allegations" have been disseminated to and by many other news media throughout the

"The falsity of this criminal charge that an incumbent president of the United States had bugged the conversations of his successor could have been easily determined by even the most cursory of verification procedures," Adamson wrote.

"President and Mrs. Carter have been gravely injured because the Washington Post failed to prevent the publication of this serious allegation and because your executive editor failed to make immediate apology and public retraction when interrogated about the news story by Mr.

Powell said Carter planned to sue even if the Post does retract the story.

Submarine receivers plan approved

Reagan has approved a controverial plan to build a giant antenna employing 84 miles of cable that will beam radio signals to submarines in the Atlantic and Pacific from transmitters in Michigan and Wisconsin, the Pentagon announced Thursday.

A Pentagon spokesman said the Extremely Low Frequency communications system, or ELF, would become operational in 1985 when the first 20 boats of the Navy's submarine fleet are scheduled to be fitted with receivers.

Rep. Robert Davis, R-Mich., and Democratic Sens. Donald Riegle and Carl Levin called the $230-million project a waste of taxpayers' money and served notice that they will fight to block the appropriation in Congress.

CITIZENS of Michigan and Wisconsin have opposed the ELF concept since it was first proposed on a much larger scale more than 20 years ago. Objections centered

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President around its environmental impact and fears of the possible effects of low-level radiation from the system.

"I don't think there is an environmental problem," Capt. Daniel F. Donovan, deputy director of Naval Communications, told a Pentagon news briefing. The Pentagon also has denied any ill effects from radiation.

Donovan said the ELF shore-tosubmarine command and control communications system "enhances the survivability of our submarine force."

SUBMARINES PRESENTLY have to rise toward the surface, where they are most vulnerable to hostile action, to receive or send signals on conventional radio frequencies from fixed or trailing wire

But Levin contended that ELF is "an outmoded and ineffective scheme. Its signals can only reach submarines moving at restricted speeds and in certain directions. In no way does ELF meet the need for a high-speed communication system that can survive a nuclear attack.'

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger won White House approval for a modified ELF system, the announcement said.

'The program will upgrade, but not enlarge, the existing research and development transmitter and its 28-mile antenna located near Clam Lake, Wis.," the Pentagon said. "A second transmitter with a 56-mile antenna will be constructed in Michigan's Upper Peninsula near K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base to provide operational two-ocean communications

The broadcasting range is limited to the Northern Hemisphere.

First versions of the communication system called for burying 5,000 miles of cable for the antenna. Michigan and Wisconsin were chosen as sites because of their sub-surface rock formations that could contribute to the broadcasting range.

Sex rule violation threat to funding

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) - A federal judge blocked the state Thursday from cutting off funds to the University of South Florida because of a student group that advocated premarital sex. U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman issued a temporary restraining order allowing the university to continue receiving state funds despite a possible violation by the student group of the sex education provision of a state appropriations law.

University President John Lott Brown filed the suit Wednesday after being advised by state Comptroller Gerald Lewis' office that funding would be cut off by Monday because the university allowed a student organization to advocate sexual relations between unmarried adults.

Attorney Robert Pass argued the university would suffer irreparable harm and would have to close its doors if the funding was cut off.

WE HAVE a $3 million payroll next Wednesday for 5,000 employees. These warrants have to be sued in the next few days," he said. "We have daily ommitments which, if we do not meet, the University of South Florida is going to have to cease

The restraining order is for a 10-day period, but rentzman said he would consider extending it nother 10 days if necessary

With sex, platitudes, Italian film is typical

By Craig Wyrick Staff Writer

There is an almost nationalistic loyalty among critics. Whether it's a domestic or foreign film, critics, in general, agree with their colleagues. Some critics even make a point of praising a film disregarded by another nation. Take the example of Heaven's Gate. Blasted in America, it's considered a masterpiece in France. It's doubtful the French would have been so in awe if the Americans had already heaped praise upon it.

That brings us to the highly praised
Italian film To Forget Venice. "Over there." it won the American equivalent of the Oscar, in addition to all kinds of bizarre, unheard-of awards. It was headed for doom in America. Not because of the nationalistic trend of critics, but for the totally pretentious air about the film that appeals to the

To Forget Venice is the usual Italian mix of homosexuality, lesbianism and other items of a sexual nature (although there's no child molesting). This is not to say these themes haven't previously been handled well, but they've been handled so often before that you can see the fingerprints all over the film. There are even light touches of pseudo-Fellini.

NICKY (Erland Josephson), with his lover Picchio, visits his older sister Marta, a former opera singer who's aging faster than time. Also living at the estate are Anna (Mariangela Melato) and her lover Claudia, both of whom manage to provide more than a few

He decides at the end to grow up. Simple answer, simple solution.

But things aren't that simple, and this film, praised in Italy for its mature look at life, couldn't be more childlike. Director Franco Brusati (Bread and Chocolate) specializes in sexual deviances, aided by ridiculous symbolism. When Marta is on the verge of dying, the car hits a chicken and its blood, enough for a human, splatters all over the windshield Nicky, realizing he must give up his childish ways, softly rolls a crystal ball (from his childhood) towards a tree

State tennis rivalry to challenge Hawks

By Mike Condon

Iowa Tennis Coach Cathy Ballard, whose team meets the Cyclones on Saturday in Ames, knows the Iowa-Iowa State intrastate rivalry isn't just restricted to football.

Whenever Iowa and Iowa State get together you can always expect a tough meet and you can throw the records out the window," Ballard said. "But our only common opponent so far this year has been Drake. We defeated them 8-1 and Iowa State lost to them 9-0."

ALTHOUGH THE team has experienced success in recent meets, Ballard is still shuffling her line-up. 'We are going to employ two new doubles teams this weekend. Sarah Loetscher will play with Nancy Shoemaucher and Laura Lagen will be teamed up with Peggy Kubitz."

Ballard is still not sure of her singles line-up. "We had a series of challenge matches earlier in the week and we had some suprising results. I won't be sure of line-up until after practice on

Iowa State Coach Christa Townsend says her team is equally enthusiastic about the meet. "I don't have any team is getting really excited about playing Iowa. The intrastate rivalry is there and that is all the incentive they really need to perform well.'

ONE IOWA PLAYER has an extra amount of incentive against the Cyclones. Kemi Gustafson was a member of the Cyclones team last year, and Ballard said she looks forward to the meet with great anticipation. "Kemi would really like to play well against State, and her teammates want to try for a 'bagel' (recording a 9-0 win in the dual meet)," Ballard said.

Townsend said her team is "healthy" for the match with Iowa, but the Hawks have lost the services of freshman Mallory Coleman for the remainder of the fall season. "Mallory is still having trouble with a muscle pull in her leg. The training staff has been having a hard time trying to diagnose the problem and her leg has not been responding to treatment. We hope to have her hitting again in three to four weeks preparing for the indoor

A three-man U.S. Auto Club panel overturned the decision of Indy stewards, who listed Mario Andretti as the winner after assessing a one-lap penalty against Unser for passing during a caution period.

THE HEARING PANEL gave the lap back to Unser and substituted the fine, which amounts to about half the difference between first- and secondplace money.

Unser, who was hunting elk in New Mexico when the decision was released, said he was pleased to get the

"I am extremely happy to become the sixth three-time winner of the world's greatest race," he said. "My racer was clearly the fastest car on the track all day, and we are gratified to have the victory."

"WE ARE ACCEPTING the decision of the court of appeals," Penske said. Throughout the hearing, we endeavored to present our case in an objective, professional manner, and I am very happy with the results."

There was no statement from Andretti saying whether he would appeal

Unser finished first in the actual running of the race, eight seconds ahead of Andretti. But when the official standings were posted the next day, Unser was penalized one lap for passing cars while emerging from the pits during a yellow caution period. Andretti was declared the winner.

The Wolverines won last year's confrontation, beating Michigan State 27-23 in a game that was even closer than the score indicates. Schembechler certainly remembers that nail-biter, and he warned that the Michigan players must not take their rivals for granted.

"Our coaching staff has great respect for this Michigan State team, and our players had better be prepared for a tough afternoon," said Schembechler, who owns a 10-2 career mark against the Spartans. "This State squad battled two tough teams in Notre Dame and Ohio State on the road, and if anyone thinks that they are an easy team, just look at last year's football game.

"THE SPARTANS HAVE a fine defense; no question about that.

Highlighting Michigan State's defensive unit is cornerback James Burroughs, who has posted 16 tackles and one interception so far this season. He is a threat to halt Michigan's potent passing game, and Schembechler realizes the tenacious defensive back's lethal threat.

Iowa Softball Coach Ginny Parrish is hoping her team will give a full show of their talents this weekend at the Northwestern Invitational.

Parrish was pleased with the quality of the defense the Hawkeyes showed last weekend in earning a fourth-place finish at the Minnesota Invitational. We are not making the physical errors that we had been," Parrish said. "We fielded the ball a lot better on Sunday than we have been.

"It was a really different looking group on Sunday. Even though we lost, we were beaten, we didn't beat ourselves. I want to see if it wasn't a one day thing.

"THIS WEEKEND will be a test to see if we've turned things around or if this (the better defensive play) was a fluke," Parrish said, "I don't think it was a fluke. We are finally playing to our potential, but we still have a ways to go yet. The Minnesota tournament was a difference between night and day from what we had been playing.

Following a team meeting on Sunday, the Hawks defeated an Illinois State team that dumped Iowa last season, 9-1. The Hawks went on to drop two hard fought games, one to Nebraska and one to Creighton. "We played an excellent game against Creighton." Parrish said. "With the exception of one bad inning we played a very close game.

The Iowa volleyball team, which is on a downswing after its disappointing loss to Minnesota Wednesday will travel to Chicago this weekend for the Windy City Invitational, hosted by Illinois Chicago-Circle. Iowa's first opponent, Lewis College, defeated the Hawks last weekend in the finals of the Hawkeye Invitational 17-15, 16-18, 15-13, 15-5.

The single-elimination, best-two-out-of-threegame tournament, features three pools of four teams each. Iowa's pool includes Lewis, Loyola and Bowl-

LEWIS, A TEAM Iowa Head Coach Mary Phyl Dwight said the Hawks "hope to get revenge on" is by no means an easy draw in the first round.

The Flyers, 13-1-2, are the defending champions of the Windy City Invitational, defeating Iowa State last year in the finals. Lewis Head Coach Karen Lockyer, termed her squad as "a strong tournament

She does not, however, take the Hawks lightly. "We'll have to be on our toes against Iowa, they're a good team. I'm sure they will be up for our match. Just because you beat a team once, doesn't mean it will come easily the second time you play them. I would guess that the match will be relatively close, maybe four games. We need to dominate the net a little more in terms of blocking."

Lockyer predicted that Lewis will win their pool with either Iowa or Loyola also reaching playoff ac-

DWIGHT THOUGHT OTHERWISE. "It's really up for grabs. I think our pool is pretty balanced. It's going to be a battle for everyone.'

According to Dwight, Northwestern, ranked 10th in the nation in the Tachikara Top 20 (Division I Women's Volleyball Poll) is "the team to beat." The Wildcats' pool consists of DePaul, which beat Northwestern last year, Chicago-Circle and Tulsa.

As far as the Hawks' match against Lewis is concerned, Dwight said, "I'm glad to be playing them again. Lewis is a good team and you can't take anything away from them. We can't mess around

Iowa, 3-11 on the season, will be seeing some new faces this weekend. "I'm really looking forward to it because we will meet some people we've never played before," Parrish said. Iowa is in the same pool as Northwestern, Southern Illinois and New Mexico.

THE HAWKS HAVE seen the Wildcats before, dropping a 5-1 decision to Northwestern at the Cyclone Invitational at Ames the first weekend of the season. "They are strong," Parrish said. "The Wildcats are probably twice as good as they were last year. They're not unbeatable though. In talking with a lot of coaches around at the tournaments this year it is kind of a consensus that there is no real powerhouse within the region. Almost every tournament is up for grabs."

Iowa has never faced Southern Illinois, while New Mexico fell to Iowa last spring in the Oklahoma Invitational, 1-0. "We really don't know anything about Southern Illinois and New Mexico is always competitive, but I really don't have any idea what they have this year," Parrish said.

Inconsistency is what Iowa is hoping to avoid this weekend. "I've been kind of disappointed in our hitting," Parrish said. "We started off pretty good, but we've kind of faded off. Just the opposite happened with our fielding, we have made a large improvement there. I just hope we can find a happy

Hawkeye hockey players at home

By H. Forrest Woolard Assistant Sports Editor

Even though Iowa's field hockey team is taking a break from traveling this weekend, it is in no way slacking up competively.

In the biggest tournament they have hosted this year, the Hawkeyes will play four tough games. Included in the three days of competition is a homecoming match up with Indiana at Kinnick Stadium immediately following the Hawkeye-Hoosier football.

IOWA COACH Judith Davidson said the game at Kinnick should be exciting for the football fans, as well as the team. "We'll hopefully have a lot of people watching," Davidson said, "if we can just get a quarter of the people to stav.

Iowa is the defending Big Ten champion and has recorded wins over all conference opponents this season. Last year the Hawks handed the Hoosiers a 4-2 loss

But the Iowa-Indiana game is just one of the contests this weekend. Iowa's other games should be even more challenging.

The first contest is Friday at noon on the Union Field, as the Hawks take on Central Missouri, a 1-0 loser to Iowa last season. And in another Big Ten game, Iowa faces Minnesota at 3:15 p.m. Iowa defeated the Gophers twice in 1980 by identical 1-0 margins.

THE GAME OF GAMES, however, is set for Sunday at 11 a.m. on the Kinnick Stadium field. That match up has the Hawks, owners of a 13-1-1 record, facing York University, Canada's second-place national finisher in 1980.

Iowa's lone tie of the season came at the hands of York when the Hawkeyes traveled to Canada earlier this season.

Iowa's forward line will be minus the talents of Anne Marie Thomas, the Hawks' leading scorer in 1980. Thomas, who broke a blood vessel in her toe and sprained a ligament, did not practice all week. The loss has Davidson she's been coaching at Iowa.

LEADING THE "kiddie corp" is sophomore Ellen Egan, considered by Davidson to be one of Iowa's strongest forwards. The Hawkeyes' other inside forward will be freshman Dawn Chamberlin.

But just because a player is an underclassman doesn't mean she won't make substantial contributions to the team. Take left outside forward Vickie Sax, for example. The newcomer from Vestal, N.Y., is Iowa's leading scorer Rounding out Iowa's attack is Lynn Stadtmueller. Davidson said the sophomore has "all of a sudden made a conceptual breakthrough. Things are starting to flow with her.

New York Yankee catcher Rick Cerone climbs the fence before catching the game-ending out.

Yankees stop Brewers, 3-0 in second game

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Lou mistake of getting a changeup too high riniella, in the line-up because of a late and Piniella deposited it into the left. Piniella, in the line-up because of a late Milwaukee pitching change, hit a home run in the fourth inning. Reggie Jackson added a two-run shot in the ninth Thursday to give the New York Yankees a 3-0 victory over the Brewers and a commanding 2-0 lead in the American League East divisional playoff series.

The victory moved the Yankees to within one triumph of their fifth division championship in the last six years. They can clinch the best-of-five series by winning any of the three remaining games scheduled for New York.

DAVE RIGHETTI, the Yankees' rookie left-hander, went six innings and struck out 10 to gain the victory. Ron Davis, one of the heroes in Wednesday night's victory, relieved and was ineffective but he was bailed out by Rich Gossage, who went the last two and two-thirds innings to notch his second straight save. The trio combined on a seven-hitter.

Mike Caldwell, who was supposed to start game three, instead started game two when Pete Vuckovich reported with a fever. Caldwell, 9-2 with a 2.74 ERA lifetime against New York, pitched masterfully, allowing only Piniella's home run before he tired in the ninth. At that point, with one out, Dave Winfield doubled and Jackson followed with a low liner over the wall in right field.

Piniella, 38, is a right-handed batter who would have been on the bench if Vuckovich had pitched, but when the Brewers switched to the left-hander. Piniella entered the line-up as the designated hitter and for the second straight day, this position in the order supplied the Yankees' spark.

PINIELLA WENT out on a fly ball in his first trip to the plate, but in his second appearance, Caldwell made the field stands. It was the second postseason home run of his career.

Jackson's heroics in the ninth indicated his continuing resurgence a 'Mr. October." He finished the regular season with a series of tape-measure home runs and in the first game of the playoffs triggered the winning rally by drawing a walk. After Winfield's long double to left-center field, Jackson crushed a Caldwell delivery and watched it sail over the fence for the Righetti, 20 years old, often made the Brewers look like amateurs. He struck out Paul Molitor, Robin Yount, Gorman Thomas, Ben Oglivie and Charlie Moore twice each. He ended four of the six innings he worked with strikeouts stranding four Brewer base runners

Iowa runners to host Hawkeye Invitational

By Mark Ballard

When the Iowa women's crosscountry team hosts the Iowa Invitational Saturday, they will be entertaining a different kind of team. The Maharishi International University squad from Fairfield, Iowa, was added to the list of competitors after Illinois Chicago-Circle dropped from the meet earlier this week.

The Maharishi's have raised controversy in Fairfield because of claims they can levitate, and that they have done so on many occasions. Their school, which institutes the practice of transcendental meditation, among other teachings, will be represented by five runners in the meet.

IOWA COACH JERRY Hassard said that tomorrow should prove interesting to say the least. "I'm interested to see how they warm up," Hassard quipped. "Maybe they'll levitate up the first hill or something.

Outside of the Maharishi's, Iowa will be welcoming 16th ranked Drake, and two of last year's Division III national competitors, Wisconsin-LaCrosse and Central College, which finished fifth and sixth respectively.

Drake brings in two key returnees from last year's Bulldog squad. Letha Davis placed 22nd in the nationals. while and Liz Hjalmarsson finished 23rd. Davis also holds the Iowa Invitational meet record and the Finkbine course record. She set the standard for both at 17 minutes, 34 se-

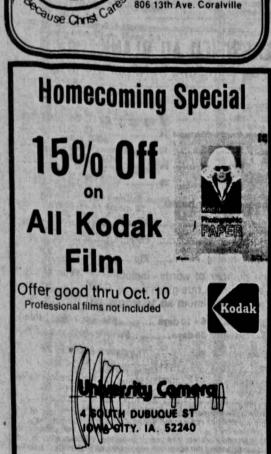

Hassard said that he has encouraged Iowa's Nan Doak to shoot for the record. "Nan is ready to beat a lot of people," he said. "She has a sort of rivalry with this girl (Davis) and she (Doak) has looked very strong in practice. I think the record is a very

IN ADDITION, the Hawkeyes will face Kansas University for the first time ever in either cross-country or track in Iowa City. The University of Northern Iowa, which Hassard terms as "much improved and more powerful" than in previous years, will compete, as well as Northeast Missouri, Northwest Missouri State, Grinnell, Luther, and Loras colleges.

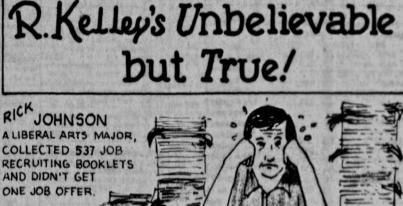

After last weekend's dismal performance at the Iowa State Invitational. Hassard said that his team is ready for tomorrow's event. "We are expecting can make up for last week. The team didn't run well last week and I think this will be a good meet for us to improve individually as well as a team. and shoot for top times.

Hassard also said that some of the team's injury troubles are over - at least for the moment. "This has been an encouraging week for us." he said Everybody has been active and ruming as a group, and that's 14 or 15 people working out at the same time We've had an upbeat week of practice and I think the team is ready for

Hawkeye Homecoming

Homecoming traditions revived

It's color, pageantry and excitement. It's called homecoming, UI style.

For the past decade or so, homecoming on the Iowa campus has not filled this billing, in such words. It has been centered almost solely on the annual football game itself and nothing more. When the Iowa football team lost the big game, there was no real sorrow from the fans. It was just another loss. When they came away victorious, unless it had been a great upset, all they had done was win the homecoming game. There was no celebration.

The only hype that homecoming had was the game. There weren't enough planned activities to help generate student or public interest to count on one

SURE, THE GAME is probably the most important facet of the homecoming experience, and it should be well publicized. But there should also be other activities which accompany the game in order to create an aura of glamour and tingle for those returning

This year's UI homecoming is dif-ferent, though. It's shaping up to be more than just a football game.

With events such as a homecomin City, an all-school dance and pep rallies, the UI Homecoming Executive Council hopes the theme of a basic homecoming is brought to the students and alumi who attend the activities.

be an event for the alumni to look forward to," said Linda Morrissey, public relations coordinator for the ouncil. "It should also be something for the present students, and a social event for them to show their school

THE MAIN ATTRACTION will be Friday's parade, scheduled for 6:00 p.m., followed immediately by a pep rally. The parade is expected to be the most costly event to put on, according to council treasurer Mark Krzmarzick.

Of the approximated $12,000-15,000 budget that the council has to work with, Krzmarzick said that somewhere

Krzmarzick said the sale of this year's homecoming buttons may be a sign of how successful the council will be in 1981. "I would have to say that come from badge sales," he said. "The selling of badges supports the parade, various contests, the grand marshal, (who this year will be UI acting President Duane C. Spriestersbach), and our office supplies. Our goal is to sell 9,000 badges and we're working very hard at it. It's like the 1960 s again because everybody's participating."

THE ILLUSTRATION ON this year's homecoming button depicts the profile of a football player donning his helmet, and a hawkeye in flight next to him. The hawk is not the typical UI mascot, Herky, nor is it the Tiger Hawk, which Hayden Fry, head foot-ball coach, instituted three years ago upon his arrival at Iowa. It is a true to life hawk, which also seems to indicate a return to the older, more traditional

Again this year, both a queen and a king will be chosen for homecoming. The eventual winners will be determined through an intensive process of interviewing and research. "Our candidates went through an application system," Morrissey said. "All applicants were interviewed by alumni, staff and faculty and selected members of the community. The winners

THE PRESENTATION OF the queen and king will be at halftime of Saturday's Iowa-Indiana football con-

It must be remembered that homecoming is not a money making venture for the council or the university. "All the money we make will be pumped back into homecoming, Mark Harder, director of the executive council, agreed, saying that the event is not a method of raising money. Instead, it is his belief that the principle of homecoming has the most importance. "What we're trying to do is develop a sound organization to build from for the future," he said. "It's pretty well-known that the council has been very up and down over the years. It takes plenty of money to work effectively, but what we have to work with, we hope that we can involve as many students in as many activities as possible. We're simply trying to return to the tradition of homecoming.'

With all of these activities going on the bone-crunching and head-bashing of the Iowa-Indiana clash may be a bit overshadowed. The game may be an anti-climax to the whole homecoming weekend, whether Iowa wins or loses.

But the hope of the homecoming council is not for the festivities to dampen the expectations of the game, but to promote and enhance it. Iowa's 1981 homecoming is a wholesome one, and it is going back to the basics. It is

Alumni will join lowa's 1981 cheerleaders for a few

Annual cheerleader reunion set for homecoming game

What better way to spend an autumn afternoon than with old friends at an Iowa football game — especially if you are a UI alumni cheerleader.

After spending years cheering for the teams and wearing the Iowa black and old gold, the cheerleaders are being invited to return each year to perform at homecoming. Carole Chadima-Nodurft, who cheered for the Hawkeyes from 1977-1980, planned this year's reunion. Nodurft spent countless hours in the UI Athletic Office getting names and addresses of past cheerleaders, many of whom are still in the Iowa City area.

According to Nodurft, the schedule of events for the day is different from those held in the past. Instead of meeting for breakfast in the morning, the day begins with a photography session and cheerleading practice at 10:30 a.m. in the UI Field House. Nodurft said the alums will cheer during the first half of the game and then spend the second half with family and friends.

NODURFT IS HOPING part of last year's reunion can be avoided. While cheering during the game, she fell attempting a stunt and was taken to UI hospitals after suffering a bruised neck. The injury forced her o listen to the rest of the game on the radio. Injured during the same game was one of last year's cheerleaders, Mark Davis. Davis landed on his head while doing a flip in the end zone. The game was cheers during first half of the homecoming game. . . delayed until Davis could be revived and taken from

Though most alumni cheerleaders don't show an interest to cheer on the field, Nodurft said, many do enjoy getting together for the game. Part of the reason they don't like being on the field she explained, is because they no longer fit the uniforms.

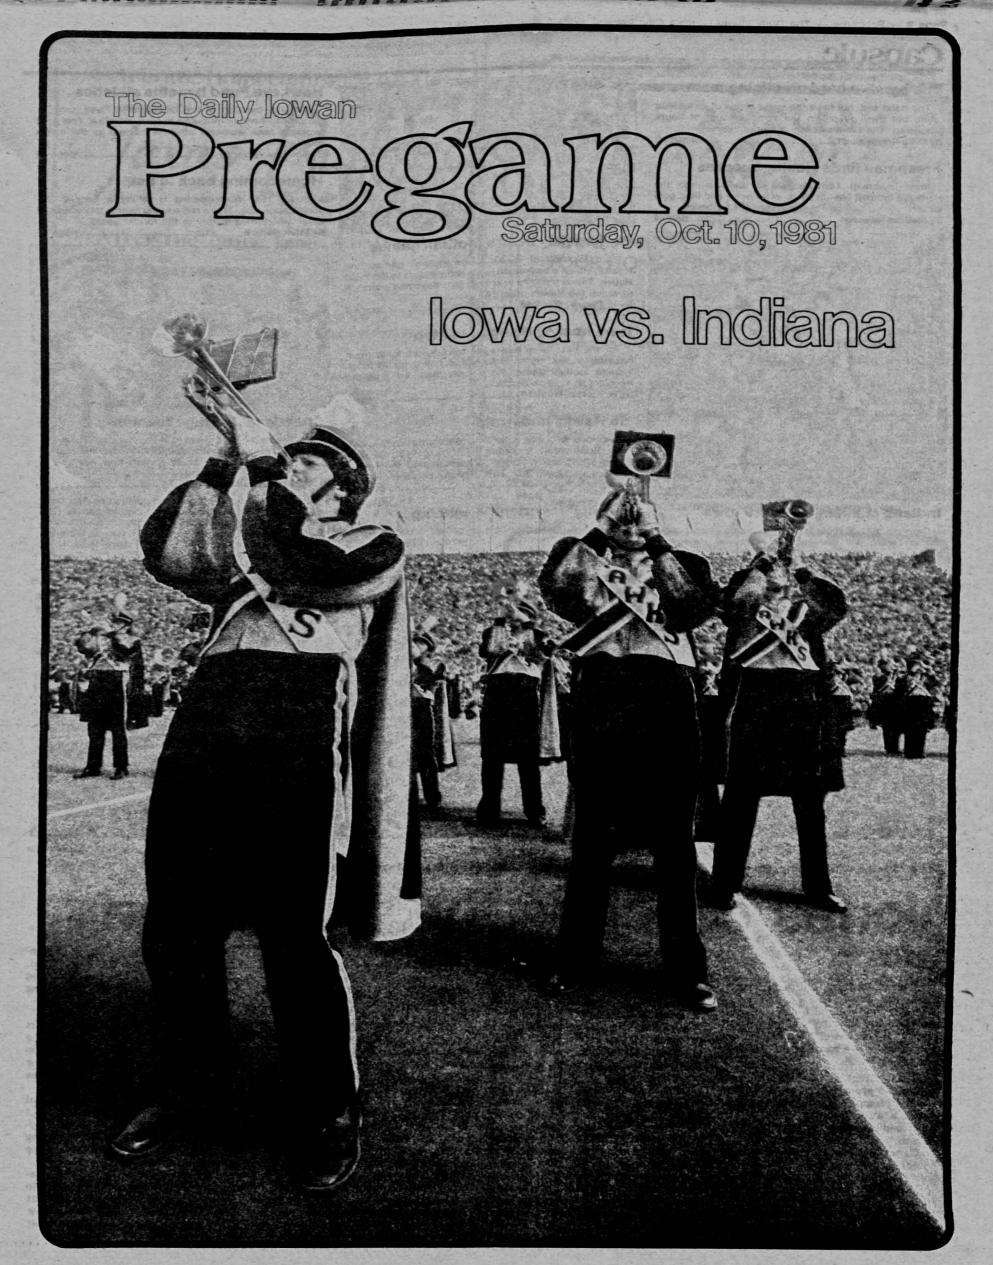

This year, uniforms shouldn't be such a problem, Nodurft said. The alums are being asked to wear white painter pants and can borrow sweaters from this year's cheerleading crew.

SOME OF THE differences Nodurft has seen since she cheered for the Hawks, is the change in sponsorship. Until last year the cheerleading squad was a student organization and was never recognized by the UI athletic department: Money was tight and travel to away games limited.

For the 1980-81 year, under Les Steenlage, UI administrative assistant to athletics, the Iowa athletic department took charge of the squad and has doubled the allotment for uniforms and travel. Now the squad is able to attend more regular season games for both football and basketball and any post-season

Another change is the level of professionalism on the 1981-82 UI squad. This year's members have noticed the importance to fans of being highly-skilled and well-rehearsed. They now attend collegiate cheerleading camps to learn the lastest in cheers and Adagio (men-women) stunts.

With the work done to gather the names of all the cheerleaders, the UI is hoping the cheerleader's homecoming reunion can become an annual event.

Jones coaches the lowa band

By Mike Condon

Morgan Jones has a little bit in common with Iowa Head Football Coach Hayden Fry — he also has a team to prepare for Saturday's game with Indiana. It consists of 250 members and plays under the name of the Hawkeye Marching Band.

Jones, director of the UI band, says his squad prepares just as hard as the football team. The band practices four days a week from 3:40 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. and Wednesdays from 7:15 p.m. to

Good kick takes 'special' talent

By Mike Kent

Most football fans believe games are won or lost on plays from scrimmage. However, there are occasions when the "specialty" teams can mean the difference between victory and defeat.

Specialty teams are units of players who 'specialize' in game situations which occur between plays from scrimmage. These units concentrate their efforts on accomplishing or denying field position. Hence, scoring touchdowns becomes a secondary concern. Specifically, these are the kickoff and punting teams.

On a kick-off, the kicking team's objective is to keep the return team as close to its own goal line as

THE SAFEST APPROACH is to drill the ball through the end zone, thus preventing any kind of run back. Unfortunately, no kicker can prevent a run back every time. Therefore, only two other alter-

One is to try to kick the ball high and deep to the return man, improving the chances of pinning the offense inside its own 20-yard line. Ideally, the ball should be kicked to either side of the field. That way, the return man has just two ways to go, either along the sideline or go left or right, depending on which side the ball is kicked.

A kick down the middle of the field gives the return man three options, either run left, right, or down the middle. Additionally, a kick to either side creates traffic, as all players go to the side where the return man is running

However, there is a risk in kicking the ball deep. The farther the ball is kicked, the more time the return team has to form the blocking. A properlydeveloped blocking wall increases the chance of a

The Daily Iowan/Dirk VanDerwerker

Contributors to the UI Hawkeye Fund often establish seating priority for athletic events.

THE OTHER ALTERNATIVE is to kick the ball along the ground. Since the ball will not travel as far as an airborn kick, this strategy will relinquish better field position for the offense. However, the ball is more difficult to catch, and there is less time for a blocking pattern to develop.

For these reasons, kicking the ball along the ground reduces the risk of a long return. This strategy is generally used during the latter stages of a close game, when the kicking team will give up field position to prevent the long run back.

The punting unit shares the same goals as the kickoff team. That is, make the offense start as deep in its own territory as possible. But unlike kicking off where the ball is always placed on the 40-yard line, field position becomes a variable in punting.

If the punting team is on its own 35-yard line, then kicking the ball out of the end zone is quite an accomshment. The ball is placed on the 20-yard line, and the end result is a "net" punt of 45 yards.

WHEN A PUNTING team is on the opposing 40yard line, a kick into the end zone doesn't accomp as much. The punt may be put in the books as a 40yard kick into the end zone, but a touchback means that the other team has been pushed back only 20

When kicking from the opponent's territory, the punter will try to "nail the coffin corner." That is, kick the ball out-of-bounds and inside the 10-yard

Right-footed kickers will aim to the right because the ball will travel in a clockwise spiral. So when the ball lands, it will bounce to the right and out-ofbounds. Left-footed kickers will go left, since the ball will spin counter-clockwise and bounce left

lowa funding over $1 million

By Thomas W. Jargo Staff Writer

In the early 1970s, when it became apparent that gate receipts from athletic events, in addition to radio and television revenues, wouldn't be sufficient to meet the increasing athletic budget demands, the Hawkeye Fund was created.

Instituted at the request of the UI athletic departments, the Hawkeye Fund topped the $1 million mark for the first time in 1980 with $1.35 million in contributions by more than 7,600 contributors. That is an increase of more than $400,000 over the support given in 1979.

By contributing $25 to the Hawkeye Fund, an Iowa supporter will be named on the UI honor roll. The list names all contributors to intercollegiate athletics at

THERE ARE FOUR clubs one can join depend on the amount of the contribution. They are the I-Club, the Bronze Hawks Club, the Silver Hawks Club and the Golden Hawks Club. The greater the contribution, the more prestigious the club joined.

With membership to the various clubs, contributors receive: a pin, auto decals and credentials signifying that membership, seating considerations when purchasing tickets to athletic events, and schedules and mailings from Iowa athletic officials and coaches.

Members of the Silver and Golden Hawk Clubs receive parking privileges and invitations to special events and athletic functions.

Annual contributions of $100 to $249 are necessary for entrance into the Bronze Hawks Club. Annual contributions of $250 to $999-enters contributors into the Silver Hawks Club. The Golden Hawks Club is for those who contribute $1,000 or more annually to the Hawkeye Fund. All contributors of $25 or more are members of the I-Club.

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR the athletic year (Sept. 1-Aug. 31) must be received by April 1. This is so applications can be coded in time for mailing of season football tickets, sent out in May.

Bud Callahan, who works with the UI Foundation is in charge of men's athletic contributions. Lucy Broadston has the same role with women's programs. Contributors may even divide money between both athletic departments if desired.

The honor roll of contributors for a given year are sent by Callahan to Jean Kupka, UI ticket manager At that point she determines seating priorities.

Kupka determines priority on two major points: amount contributed and the number of years that those contributions have been made. "Someone who has been donating regularly for 30 years won't get bumped by someone who donates $1,000 the first year," Kupka said.

INCREASING YOUR contributions each year won't necessarily get you a better seat. "Seating improvements will be made as better seats become available," Kupka said. "The past couple of years there have been no seats available."

If donations stop for one year, priority is not lost. But two years absence will cause you to lose priority. '

Callahan's duties are to seek out contributors to the Hawkeye Fund. He goes about doing it in two major ways: a mailing campaign and I-Club functions.
"We've had an awfully good response to both the mailing campaign and the I-Club functions," Callahan said.

REASONS FOR DONATING to the Hawkeye Fund vary. Tom Alberhasky of Iowa City has been a businessman here for many years. "I realize what Iowa athletics can do for the community," he said. "And I like to help it out. It (donating) gives me a lot of self-satisfaction

Up until a couple of years ago, Herb Jargo of Miles, Iowa, contributed to the Hawkeye Fund for 12 school there (Iowa)," he said. "I also enjoyed the football games and the tailgate parties. I saw friends that I never saw except at football games."

With more blue chip athletes coming to Iowa and better facilities being constructed, funding of UI athletics are expected to increase.

Nichol still climbing to the top

What occupies the time of football players in the off-season? Tom Nichol, Iowa's freshman kicker, engages in il-

Nichol, a native of Green Bay, Wis., is the Hawkeyes' premier soccer-style kicker. He should be good though. He's had enough practice.

Since his junior year in high school,
Nichol and his friends have been jumping the fence to the Green Bay Packer practice field to practice kicking. The field is 10 minutes from his house.

"THIS SUMMER, I jumped the fence just about every day," Nichol said. "One time the police were only about 100 yards away in the parking

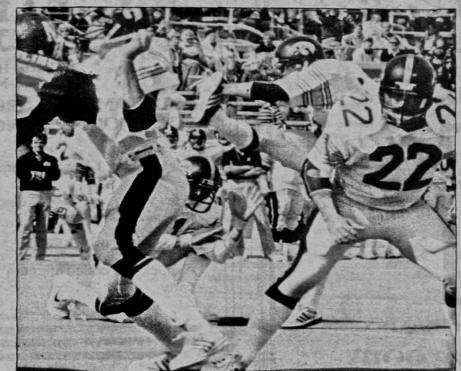

According to Nichol, living in Green Bay has had a definite influence on his choice to play football.

"In Green Bay, every little kid's dream is to grow up and play for the Packers," he said. "When you grow up in Green Bay, with all the (Vince) Lombardi tradition, that's your life."

Nichol explained that Packer kicker Jan Stenerud gave Nichol's high school coach tine on kicking, and the coach in ferent. Nichol speaks highly of his partner, Iowa punter Reggie Roby.

"WHEN I WAS being recruited by Iowa, I came here (Iowa City) for the Ohio State game. I thought that I would play some (his freshman year) until I saw Reggie kick the ball out of the end zone. Boy, that made me feel a couple

"I played summer league soccer in Green Bay for a team called the Albuez Anchors," Nichol said. "I hurt my ankle in the second to the last game No, I won't be playing soccer

NICHOL EXPLAINED THE in iduality every kicker must develop "At the kicking camp I went to, it was really stressed to do everything your own way, your own style," he said.
"Coach (Hayden) Fry and (Carl) Jackson give me tips and pointers, but I'm not really with the rest of the team at practice. I mostly coach myself. I try to put myself in game situations.

Nichol is unusual as a freshman in both his confidence and poise.

"I always knew I could do it, but it sure is nice coming into your third game and kicking already," he said. As far as poise goes, Nichol appears to be a veteran on the field. "The butterflies are pretty much gone during the game," he said. "I only get them if I have been kicking bad in practice all week. But I feel pretty confident now. I can feel my leg getting stronger each game. Kicking is all concentration."

Although Nichol does a lot of selfcoaching, he is hardly easy on himself. "I should never miss extra points," he said. "And realistically, I should go into the end zone every kick.'

After Iowa's landslide victory over Northwestern last Saturday, Nichol expressed the general attitude on the

Corso frets over lowa's defense

Unlike Rodney Dangerfield, Iowa's football team is getting a lot of respect. After knocking off Nebraska and UCLA, the Hawkeyes have gained the admiration of everyone, especially Indiana Head

The Hawks' homecoming opposition will be Corso's Hoosiers. The game is scheduled to start 1:05 p.m. Saturday at Kinnick Stadium.

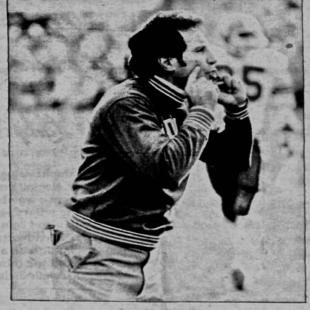

Corso has watched game films of the Hawks. And based on what he's seen, the Indiana coach thinks Iowa will be going places. "Iowa is the next major league football team to come up in the Big Ten," he said. "The Iowa Hawkeyes are as good a football team on film as any team."

AS FOR THE possibility of playing in the post season, Corso believes Iowa's chances are very good. "The Hawkeye team looks like a major bonafide bowl team," he said. And as for being a con-tender for the Rose Bowl, Corso thinks Iowa has a real chance, "without a question in my mind."

Iowa, 3-1, is coming off a 64-0 rout of Northwestern. A big reason for Iowa's fine start is the Hawks' defense. In the Big Ten, Iowa ranks No.1 in all four defensive statistical categories (scoring defense, total defense, passing defense, and rushing defense). Seniors Andre Tippett and Pat Dean anchor the Hawks' defensive front line, having 15 and 13 tackles. respectively 13 tackles, respectively.

The Hawks' offense is led by the rushing of Eddie Phillips. The sophomore leads Iowa with 210 yards in 46 attempts. "Sensational" was the word Corso used

Iowa Head Coach Hayden Fry said the Hoosiers only need consistency to become a sound team. "The (Indiana) have played super football in spurts," Fry said. "They appear to have the potential to have a very fine team, but they haven't been able to put it

The big question mark in Indiana's game is of-fense. "We're not a stable offensive football team because our offensive line is inconsistent," Corso

BUT BESIDES THE line, Indiana has promising offensive personnel. Junior quarterback Babe Laufenberg is making quite a showing for himself. "He'll play well and with enthusiasm in Iowa City,

The Hoosiers also have a game-breaker in Duane Gunn. The sophomore wide receiver ran a reverse for a 48-yard touchdown against Michigan last week. In eight plays against the Wolverines, Gunn gained 172 yards in rushing and pass receiving for a 21.5 average. "Gunn is a bonafide all-Big Ten prospect,"

Against Michigan, Corso said his team looked good in the beginning, but couldn't hold back Michigan's offense as the game progressed. "We played very well," Corso said. "But we didn't have the manpower to hold their running game."

Although the Hawks are receiving a great deal of praise from Corso, Fry is concerned about Indiana. "They're fully capable of coming here and beating us," Fry said. "There's no way we're going to take these people lightly."

Hawkeyes beat the odds in '56

"Each game was a season within it-

That is how Iowa Athletic Director Bump Elliott describes the 1956 Iowa Hawkeyes. Elliott was an assistant coach under Forest Evashevski during the 1950s and helped coach Iowa to its first Rose Bowl berth.

"It was a great experience to be associated with that team," Elliott said. "We were picked to finish seventh or eighth in the Big Ten that year. We started playing pretty well and things just got better.

"The critical game of the season was when we beat Purdue 21-20," Elliott said. "That put us in a position to challenge for the league title. It was a good offensive team and a good defensive team and we just got better as the season went on. It was really an exciting time to be here around then."

SPORTSCASTER JIM ZABEL of WHO radio was broadcasting the games that year and has fond mories of the 1956 team. "As many mes as I've been to California since then, one of the biggest thrills of my life had to be when Iowa won the Big

was going to happen."

Zabel also lists the Purdue game along with the season opener at Indiana, as the two key games in the 1956 season. "I've got to list the opening game because Evashevski installed the wing-T and he wasn't sure this thing would work," Zabel said. "But the Purdue game has to be the key game. Iowa terback) Lenny Dawson fumbled the ball and ended a scoring threat near the end of the game. Of course, the games that really clinched it were a 7-0 win over Minnesota and a 6-0 win over

"IT WAS VERY electrifying around here then," Zabel said. "I don't think I've ever seen a better two-way player than Kenny Ploen. Of course that team had some great ones like Alex Karras and Frank Gilliam, too.'

Said Elliott: "It was one of the best teams I ever worked with as far as working together as a group. They ten-ded to their business and had little Things have changed a lot since the 'Miracle Men' of 1956 took the field. "It was really a supreme test of the great athletes." Zabel said. "Football wasn't as refined as it is today, the defenses weren't as good, but a lot of

Altered attitudes stir lowa hockey

By H. Forrest Woolard Assistant Sports Editor

Every national level program has a turning point, and for the Iowa field hockey team, the climb upward has been a recent occurence. That's taking into consideration that hockey began as an intramural activity in 1908 at Iowa.

For the past three weeks, the Hawkeyes have been ranked eighth in the country by the national panel of coaches. While Iowa was ranked in the top 20 during the 1980 season, and alified for the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women history of Hawkeye hockey that the team has been rated among the elite

The Hawkeyes sure have come a long way since the early 1900s. At that time the only objectives of Iowa women's athletics "were to promote a spirit of fair play and sportsmanship," ac-cording to the constituiton of the societal attitudes (of women's athletics)," Grant said. "Therefore, there's been a revolution in the student athlete. Every year you can see the level of performance go up. There's nothing like the attitude of the student

Grant, who was Iowa's hockey coach from 1971 to 1975, said she can still her players' faces "when she tried to get them fired up" so they could play to their potentials. "That wasn't a goal for them. Their main motivation was the fun of the game."

UP UNTIL 1974, the Iowa field hockey team was not recognized as an intercollegiate team. Operating from a budget of $4,000 in 1971, Grant said "it was an event to cross the border into Il-its first AIAW field hockey cham-pionship was Judith Davidson, who has headed the Hawks' program for four

"I CAN REMEMBER I wasn't impressed with the hockey when I first wasn't the same understanding of the sport I had been use to." Prior to coaching at Iowa, Davidson was the mentor at the University of Massachusetts, which had finished as Davidson's first season was somewhat discouraging. She said one was when Iowa lost 6-0 to Southwest Missouri State in the Region VI championship, thus failing in its quest for a national berth.

"There was no poise. I was sorely disappointed that we lost and played so abominably. It didn't even seem to matter to the upper classmen athletes. I didn't want to coach again."

SHE DID RETURN for the 1979 season, leading Iowa to its first national tournament. Although Iowa lost both its games at the cham-pionship, Davidson said the Hawkeyes egan to emulate an attitude of exence necessary for national com-satisfied with being less than they can

The Hawkeyes' professional ap-proach to collegiate athletics has paid off in the form of winning. Last season Iowa finished with a 17-9-1 record and owns a 13-1-1 record this year.

The difference, according to Davidson, is poise. And that poise is one reason the Hawkeyes are nicknamed

"WE HAD MELTED under pressure before," Davidson said. "Now we may be behind, but we remain cool. There is a sense of purpose. They know just what they have to do."

While the attitudinal changes are a very big reason the Hawks are where they are today, there are several other factors that come into play.

For one thing the Iowa program has recruited some of the top players in the country. Sue Bury, a junior from Riverside, N.J., became the first Iowa player to be chosen as a member of the United States squad this summer.

Another contribution to Iowa's national level program is adninistrative support. "We have the best support for our program as any program in the country - moral and financial," Davidson said. The Iowa field hockey budget stands at $22,420. Not included in that figure is $15,750 set aside for field hockey scholarsh

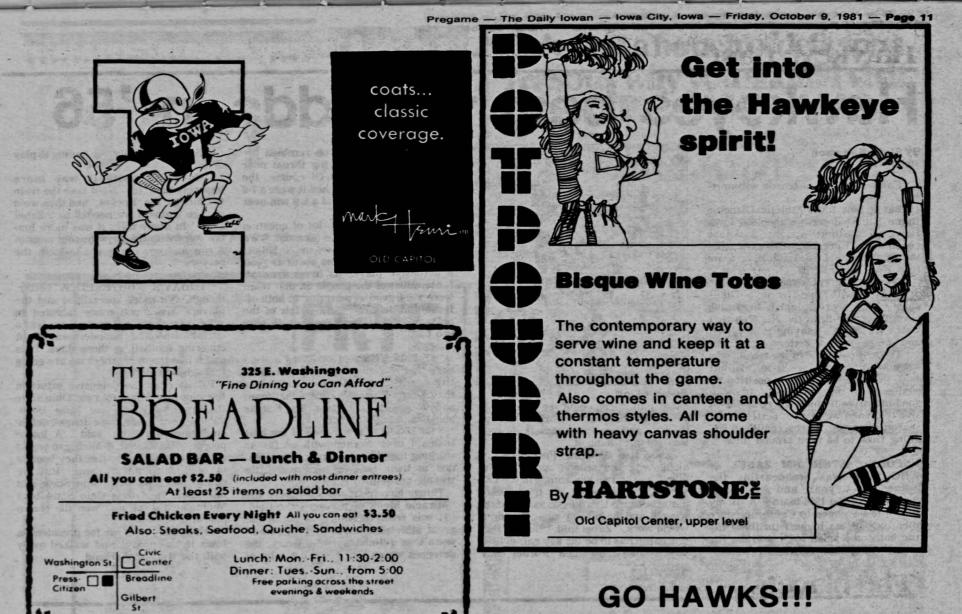

Christine Grant, the Iowa women's thletic director, believes the change in the Hawkeyes' field hockey goals effect the general change in women's ports.
