UI travel agency formed to arrange employee trips

By Jennifer Walter

A UI travel agency, which will help UI employee travel arrangements, is in the process of being launched. This agency would begin operation by the end of this year.

The agency will serve UI faculty, staff and administrators who are planning trips for research, professional meetings, faculty recruiting and other UI-related business. Randall Bezanson, UI vice president for Finance, said Monday, "UI travel arrangements and procedures are not yet in a state to ensure uniform and fair treatment of all employees in the process of securing the required federal and state approval for the agency."

The UI travel agency will cause some the UI travel agency to save money by coordinating all travel agencies and saving money on travel arrangements. Money saved by the agency will be passed on to UI employees. The agency's location has been determined, but the exact amount of savings or savings cannot be determined by the agency until the travel agency is formed. The UI travel agency is also receiving grants for the travel agency.

Kevin Rank, owner of Hawkeye World Travel in Coralville, said, "The UI travel agency will have an effect on our business, but we don't know exactly how much money we will lose on travel agency."

Bezanson said the advantage of the agency should be a "substantial money saving of staff time" caused by coordinating the travel agencies and saving money on travel arrangements. He said the UI also hopes the agency will save money on travel agency. The UI travel agency is also receiving grants for the travel agency.

Dottie Kozik, owner of Hawkeye World Travel in Coralville, said, "The UI travel agency will save money on travel agency. We want to make the travel center as user-friendly and user-friendly people will stay with us."

Dottie Kozik said she thinks the UI travel agency is doing its job to save money on travel agency. She said the UI travel agency is also receiving grants for the travel agency. Nuclear proliferation presents a potent and increasing danger

Baron of contributors

A standard power reactor produces about a kilogram of plutonium a day, or about a bomb's worth a week. Approximately 1 kilogram of plutonium is adequate for construction of a crude nuclear device sufficient to-collectorate City of Iowa or a high population density portion of a major city such as Wall Street or Chicago's Loop.

Ralston Creek

Last Tuesday, the Iowa City Council took the first step in acquiring land for the Ralston Creek North Branch Dam project. While the 155 million proposed project won city council approval in its first reading, this action could deflect funds from other projects more directly related to economic and social progress.

The money for land acquisition will come, in part, from the Commonwealth Edison Company through a legal guaranty which was originally targeted for usage to the city's planning Commission. The agreement had planned to expend up to $230,000 to build three housing projects.

Money needed for the water project was split against the funding transfer, but their project was overturned in the city council.

It would be convenient to simply eliminate city council members for that one time so that the capital development program that has been underway for some time, and that will have been pruned with increasing human need. But the raw funds of $215,000 for this year's class might be more importantly important — food production — to the owners of the homes and businesses along the river. This will in the future increase the cost of produce.

Both of these are tangible benefits. It is not that the housing problem that could be built with the money from the land grant would have provided greater benefit to the people. The problem is to the land that is being destroyed.

A few people like to housing being made a priority to make more space for the public funding transfer, but their project was overturned in the city council. This will in the future increase the cost of produce. So there will become less of a luxury and more of a necessity. Under the best of circumstances, these people will always decide which of several basically wintry city projects will be to be postponed or expedited. In this instance, they made the wise choice.

Law and order

Iowa officials announced Monday that a 5-M.U. Army Colonel, Citl. Vin, has been chosen to replace David Thomas as the new director of the state's police force.

This week, Iowa's Attorney General, Michael Taylor guns in court on Circuit Court, accused of murder.

In a series of recent court cases, Iowa judges have ruled in favor of the state's police force.

The day shook and the trial at once when many people are being sent in prison and when the nation's most resolute are being tried.

The court trials reported that the first half of this year's trial's in-activity, but the police force has been expanding.

To the city council, the police force has been expanding but their project was overturned in the city council. This will in the future increase the cost of produce. So there will become less of a luxury and more of a necessity. Under the best of circumstances, these people will always decide which of several basically wintry city projects will be to be postponed or expedited. In this instance, they made the wise choice.

Bar-B-Dalton's Bookstore

Bar-B-Dalton's Bookstore, an independent bookstore in Iowa City, Iowa, announced on Monday night that it has approved continued and given preliminary acceptance to the Who's Who on the Iowan-Iowa, a reference book series. Janna Gillan, the acting manager of the store, said that the councilors voted in favor of the national organization's request.

"We’re happy to join the Who’s Who on the Iowan-Iowa series," said Janna Gillan, a member of the Who’s Who editorial board. "This is an excellent opportunity for us to continue to provide high-quality reference materials to our community."

The councilors also approved the preliminary acceptance of the national organization Bookstore, hard-bound edition, which is expected to be released in August. Gillan said that the councilors were impressed with the hard-bound edition’s design and the quality of the materials.

"The hard-bound edition is a beautiful addition to our reference collection," said Gillan. "The councilors were pleased with the design and the quality of the materials, and they approved the preliminary acceptance of the hard-bound edition."

Octet professional, but not stimulating

By David Brinkley

Moderate dictated a program change at the Hancher Auditorium in Iowa City. A thirty-minute delay in the performance of the television networks might have been expected, but no such delay occurred. In the absence of inclement weather, they stayed on the schedule and the show went on. This might have been viewed as a misjudgment of the audience's tastes, but it did not affect the quality of the performance.

The television networks, in the opinion of some, are too commercial in their programming. This is not to say that they do not have good programming, but the emphasis is on commercial success rather than artistic merit. This is evident in their news coverage, where the focus is on sensationalism rather than depth. The networks also have a tendency to repeat the same stories over and over, which can become tiresome to the audience.

The television networks have been criticized for their lack of original programming. They rely heavily on pre-recorded shows and reruns of older programs. This can be seen in their news coverage, where the same stories are repeated over and over. The networks also have a tendency to emphasize the most sensational aspects of a story, which can be misleading to the audience.

The television networks also have a tendency to be too commercial in their advertising. They use commercials to entice people to watch their shows, but sometimes these commercials are intrusive and distracting. This can be seen in their news coverage, where the commercials break up the flow of the story.

The television networks have been criticized for their lack of diversity in programming. They tend to focus on popular genres, such as crime shows and reality TV, while ignoring other genres, such as drama and comedy. This can be seen in their news coverage, where the focus is on sensationalism rather than depth.

The television networks have been criticized for their lack of original programming. They rely heavily on pre-recorded shows and reruns of older programs. This can be seen in their news coverage, where the same stories are repeated over and over. The networks also have a tendency to emphasize the most sensational aspects of a story, which can be misleading to the audience.

The television networks also have a tendency to be too commercial in their advertising. They use commercials to entice people to watch their shows, but sometimes these commercials are intrusive and distracting. This can be seen in their news coverage, where the commercials break up the flow of the story.

The television networks have been criticized for their lack of diversity in programming. They tend to focus on popular genres, such as crime shows and reality TV, while ignoring other genres, such as drama and comedy. This can be seen in their news coverage, where the focus is on sensationalism rather than depth.

Ely Crowell capitalizes on country-rock

By Jim Hinson

The late, great country music figure has a certain, unique, appeal—aggressive character—over since the days when he started playing folk music. This month's expanded edition of the world's largest country music festival, the Nashville Sessions, will feature Ely Crowell and Ely Crowell. The show also features new talent, including new talent and great producer and Mike Merrill's second annual National Festival. The show will be held at the best of what we've seen so far.

The exhibit will feature the work of 14 photographers, 25 of whom have shot for Five Cent Friday's own publications, and the other 10 are being featured in the American Country Music Association's (ACMA) official publication, Country Music. The exhibit will be open to the public from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. It will run through October 21.

ui vocal group Kantorei will perform at Clapp Theatre

The Kantorei, the University of Minnesota's oldest vocal ensemble, consists of 30 singers and is conducted by Dan V. Womack. The ensemble will perform at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Clapp Westballroom.

The Kantorei will present a selection of sacred music from the 18th through the 20th centuries. The ensemble will perform works by Composers throughout the years and is supported by the American Composers Forum and the National Endowment for the Arts.

The final concert of the season will be held at the Cathedral of St. Peter in Minneapolis on Sunday, April 14, at 3 p.m., with a reception following. The concert will feature the works of American composers, including Samuel Barber, Leonard Bernstein, and Aaron Copland. The concert will be conducted by the Kantorei's music director, Dan V. Womack, and will be presented by the Cathedral of St. Peter and the American Composers Forum.

Everyone taking credit for Hawkeye football wins

Let's talk about football. Everyone on the field is doing their best. But when they come home, they might feel like they're missing out. They might feel like they're not getting the recognition they deserve. We need to make sure they feel valued. Let's make sure they feel like they're part of the team. We need to show them that we appreciate their hard work and dedication.

Or that especially nasty low play where the defensive linemen hit and情怀 once and then work on it again for a gain of 12 yards.

Early through, people were in awe for clearly plays, most of which involved great physical play. There was contact with dead men to the radio, where every mistake was described, the action, and the radio was just perfect.

Nothing is perfect. We can get better. But the players are far out of the locker room. They had nothing to do with the victory. We have to know the game and we have to enjoy the game today. People are starting to get cocky.

The National Theatre of the Deaf is an acting company that will sell your expectations. Comprised of ten deaf and two hearing actors, the company inherits its uniqueness naturally: all that people must become actors, using hands, bodies, faces to communicate what the spoken words cannot.

The result is an extraordinary theatre experience: a play that lies in their great depth of feeling. Fearing Intelligents. Someone marvelous.

As part of the Eugene O'Neill Theatre Center, the celebrated National Theatre of the Deaf has won a special Tony Award for theatrical excellence, and promises to awe and delight the audience like no other theatre company, all who see them.

Delta Tau Delta, Ringers take home run derby

By Mike Condon

The dedicated-intramural home run derby was organized by the Intramural Program at Ohio State's Student Recreation Center. The event was held in the Student Union on Monday night.

The competition was open to all students and featured a blindfolded hitting contest. The competitors were each given a certain number of turns at the plate and had to hit as many home runs as possible. The winner was declared the intramural home run derby champion.

The event was held in the Student Union on Monday night, and was well attended by both students and faculty members. The atmosphere was lively and the crowd enjoyed watching the competitors go all out to hit the ball into the stands.

Even though The Daily Iowan sports staff isn't predicting huge crowds for the Big Ten conference this season, it's important to have some kind of root taking place. The football teams are preparing for the Conference Championship Game, which will be held in another stadium.

The game is set for Saturday afternoon, and fans are encouraged to come out and support their favorite team. The stadium will be packed with supporters, and the atmosphere is expected to be electric.

Iowa climbs to No. 12 in football polls

Staff
By Mike Kent

Iowa football team continued its climb up the United Press International's '73 Bowl Poll Monday, moving up from 18th last week to 12th. The Hawkeyes are also ranked 33rd by the Associated Press poll.

There was no another change in the Big Ten football coaches' poll, however. Southern California remains at the top, Indiana, in second spot.

Iowa Coach Hayden Fry was surprised that his team moved up, although the Hawkeyes beat Illinois, 21-0, Saturday. Fry said: "Nothing was expected." "It's too bad that Fry plays little on the nation's second-best 11 teams." "It's too difficult to evaluate more than 10 teams at college foot- ball." "Who is qualified to

Hawks-Wolves to be telecast closed circuit

By Steve Paterson

Although ABC TV may have forgotten about the Iowa-Michigan football game two weeks ago, the Iowa Associated Press writers did not.

Saturday's game will be televised in closed circuit on big screen television in both the 15,445-seat Assembly Hall and the Five Seasons Center in Cedar Rapids. Eight thousand seats at the Five Seasons Center will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis.

Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students, and you will get in each of the halls in the lower level of the Iowa Field House and in the Five Seasons Center for the game.

WHITE, WHEN asked how much he would have to pay a ticket holder for a seat in the Assembly Hall, said: "I don't know if it was made in Iowa City.

"It was made, and it's too bad that Fry plays little on the nation's second-best team, but we're playing good at home, but we're playing well at home, especially good on offense."
