Confidence conference focuses on Iowa economy

In the lead-up to the 1982 midterm elections, there was a general concern about the national economy and its impact on Iowa. The conference brought together politicians, economists, and community leaders to discuss the state of the economy and potential solutions.

The conference was convened by Iowa Governor Robert Ray, who was committed to addressing the economic challenges facing the state. The event was held in Des Moines, the capital of Iowa, and attracted a wide audience of stakeholders.

Key topics discussed at the conference included:
- The performance of the national economy and its implications for Iowa
- Strategies for promoting economic growth and job creation
- The role of government in stimulating the economy
- Addressing the challenges faced by small businesses
- The importance of education and workforce development

The conference concluded with a series of panel discussions and workshops, where participants shared insights and ideas on how to improve Iowa's economic prospects.

For more information and updates on the conference, visit the official website of the Iowa Governor's Conference on Economic Opportunity.

Council to weigh proposals for subdivision, city bonds
By Michael Leon

Two major construction plans were placed on the agenda of the City Council's formal meeting last night.

The council did not reach a consensus on the proposals but held off a decision until next meeting.

The plan and a resolution to allow A.J. Clark to relocate the Clark Courtyard, a small business despite the development of the area, was approved with a voice vote.

The bond plan would exceed the city's legal maximum for the month of September.

City Manager Neil Bellard said if the council approves the plan, the bonds could be issued before the next meeting.

"This is a very important week for us," Bellard said.

Briones seen as hurt
WASHINGTON (UPI) - Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the president's campaign promises to the contrary, "nevertheless" urged the public to support the Reagan administration's Route 66 highway program.

"We have a lot of work to do. We need your help," Weinberger said.

Document security tightened
WASHINGTON (UPI) - Government officials said Monday that the security regulations that have been in effect for the last three years will be revised in the future.

"We have been working closely with the Department of Defense and the CIA on this issue," one official said.

Renewable program
WASHINGTON (UPI) - The president's plan for renewable energy is "very significant," the White House said.

"We believe we can achieve our goals with renewable energy," a spokesperson said.

Religious songs hit sour note for jr. high principal
By Elizabeth Finkler

Religious songs sung by junior high students at a recent concert hit a sour note with a principal who said he would not approve the use of religious music.

"We believe we can achieve our goals with religious music," a spokesperson said.

Women's rights' activity growing

The Women's Rights' movement is gaining momentum with the support of a new group, the Women's Rights Action Committee (WRAC), which was established to coordinate and amplify the efforts of various women's groups on campus. WRAC aims to provide a unified voice for women's issues and to ensure that their concerns are heard and addressed by the university administration.

WRAC's activities include organizing workshops, discussions, and protests to raise awareness about gender inequality and to advocate for policy changes that promote women's rights. The group has been successful in mobilizing students and faculty and has gained significant support from the administration.

The movement has also received attention from the media, with articles highlighting the need for greater representation and opportunities for women in academia and administration. The Women's Rights' movement is a testament to the power of grassroots organizing and the importance of collective action in advocating for social change.

The Women's Rights' movement is an ongoing effort to promote equality and justice for all women. As the movement continues to grow, it is expected to have a significant impact on the university community and beyond.
Library needs money

The new Iowa City Library was built to provide better service than its overcrowded predecessor. Illustration show that, since the new building opened, library use has increased by 15 percent and circulation is up 25 percent. The fact that more and more people are using the library is not surprising. It also suggests that since library services were expanded, more people would be using them.

The lack of communication could not be over a more dangerous confusion points to the problems the Reagan administration and NATO forces have in their efforts to contain the spread of the nuclear arms race. The Reagan administration is determined to end the arms race, but NATO forces are just as determined to continue it.

Conflict in the ranks

Last week Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger both appeared before Congress to discuss the possibility of their resignations. The two men have been at odds over the United States' policy in the Middle East, with Haig advocating a more aggressive approach and Weinberger favoring a more conciliatory one.

Reagan's boys are squabbling again

During the 1980 presidential campaign, Ronald Reagan appeared in public with his secretary of state, Alexander Haig. Today, the two remain relatively estranged and appear to have little desire to work together. The Reagan administration's policy is still in question, but the president's legislative agenda is clear.

Reagan seems to have his doubts about its progress, according to the New York Times. "We have to bring this thing to a conclusion," Reagan said recently. "We know that there are some things that are not working, and we're going to have to try something different."
Court to hear civil rights case

Washington (UPI) - The Supreme Court, acting as a grand jury, agreed Monday to hear a Mississippi civil rights case.

The court will hear arguments in the case of The New Orleans and Mobile Railroad v. Davis. The railroad company is accused of violating the civil rights of people of color.

The company is accused of using violence and threats to prevent blacks from using its facilities. The case involves a series of events that took place in the 1960s.

The company argued that it had a legal right to segregate its facilities, but the court ruled that the company had exceeded its rights.

The court's decision is expected to have a significant impact on civil rights cases in the United States.

Margen narrows in N.J. election

Trenton, N.J. (UPI) - The New Jersey Senate has approved a bill that would make it easier for voters to cast their ballots.

The bill, which was sponsored by Democratic Sen. Joseph Robb, would allow voters to cast their ballots by mail or in-person on election day.

Robb said the bill would make it easier for people to vote, especially those who live in remote areas or have disabilities.

The bill still needs to be signed into law by the governor.

Bids for cable TV satellite out of this world

New York (UPI) - Two companies have expressed interest in bidding for the rights to broadcast signals for the Television Broadcast Satellite System.

The companies are Sun Satellite Corp. and RCA Corp., both of which have expressed interest in bidding for the rights to broadcast signals for the Television Broadcast Satellite System.

The bidding process is expected to take place in the next few months.

Skydive get lift from 'leaping off L.A. skyscrapers'

Los Angeles (UPI) - The city has no law against skydiving from downtown skyscrapers, the Los Angeles City Council was told Monday.

The council heard from a group of skydivers who said they are planning to make jumps from downtown skyscrapers.

The council members were told that the activity is legal, but they were concerned about the safety of the jumpers.

The group said they would take all necessary precautions to ensure the safety of the jumpers.

The council is expected to vote on the matter later this month.
Man, 102, comprises veterans department

Department of Interior (UPI) - George Loomis, 102, received a certificate of appreciation as the oldest employee at the Indian Service in Washington, D.C., for his 50 years of service.

"We're happy to have a veteran of such a fine age," said Charles M. Miller, chief of the Bureau of Indian Affairs. "We're grateful for his 50 years of service."

Loomis was presented his certificate by Mrs. Minnie Loomis, his wife of 70 years.

The certificate was presented on behalf of Interior Secretary Albert A. Fall.

Squad meet for wrestlers

The Northwest Collegiate Wrestling team will find itself on the road this week with matches at Indiana University, University of Missouri, University of Arkansas, and Oklahoma State University. The HAWKS will be looking for national dual meet eligibility in their final home tournament of the season. The Northwest Collegiate Wrestling team is ranked 4th in the country and will have an opportunity to move up in the rankings with a strong showing in the tourney.

In the Cedar Rapids Regional at the University of Iowa, the HAWKS met the challenge with a 3-0 win over the Minnesota State University-Mankato Mavericks. The win sets up a meeting with the University of Nebraska at Lincoln in the semifinals of the Big Ten Conference Wrestling Championships. The HAWKS will be looking to improve their ranking and advance to the national championships.

The HAWKS will also have a shot at national dual meet eligibility with a strong showing in the tourney. The team is looking to make a move up in the rankings and advance to the national championships.

Jeff Kerber, the most highly recruited wrestler in Iowa high school history, has signed with the University of Nebraska. Kerber, who has been on the team for the past two years, has been a key factor in the team's success.

In addition, the HAWKS will have a shot at national dual meet eligibility with a strong showing in the tourney. The team is looking to make a move up in the rankings and advance to the national championships.

Hawks return to football’s top 20 poll

By Mike Kent
Iowa Daily
United Press International

After two consecutive defeats dropped Iowa to 15th in the nation, the Hawkeyes regained a spot among the nation’s best teams this week.

The Hawkeyes, who have been ranked No. 1 and No. 2 in the nation among major colleges for the last 15 games, were the only team in the nation to move up a spot in this week’s rankings. Iowa, which was ranked No. 15 last week, rose to No. 14 this week.

‘Hallelujah!’

Iowa has been a consistent performer in the nation’s top-20 poll, rising from No. 15 to No. 14 in the past season. The Hawkeyes, who have historically been ranked in the top-20 poll, have a strong defense and a balanced offense, which has been a key factor in their success.

While many coaches give little or no consideration to performance in the nation’s top-20 poll, the Hawkeyes are ranked seventh among the nation’s best teams. They have a tough schedule ahead, with games against teams such as Ohio State and Penn State, which are ranked higher than the Hawkeyes.
