Columbus holds up better in 2nd flight

SPACEX AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The second flight of the experimental AF-1 rocket came through 10 historic passes through the atmosphere but was not the first one, project officials said yesterday. It takes super, super long time to move through the air and we're hoping to get it done as fast as possible.

This isn't the first time we've tried to get a rocket into space. In 1969, the company tried to launch an Apollo spacecraft from the United States, but it failed. We've been working on this project ever since.

Although the launch was delayed by some technical problems, we're confident we'll be able to launch a rocket soon. We're working hard to get this mission off the ground as quickly as possible.

Iconoclast. Slayton. "and we can press on and fly it again."

"We're committed to the mission, and we're not going to give up. We're going to keep working on it, and we're going to get it done," said Slayton.

Slayton also thanked everyone who had worked on the project, including the engineers, technicians, and pilots. "This is a team effort, and we could not have done this without the help of everyone involved," he said.

...and that's why we've been working on this project for so long. We're not going to give up until we succeed."
Volcker: Tight money stays

By Michael Leon

WASHINGTON—The Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker got nothing from the New York bankers except a chuckle when he asked them Tuesday why they made so much money last year.

"We can't effectively deal with your problems if we don't know what they are," he said sternly.

Volcker told the National Association of Bankers that they would need to give the Federal Reserve a "careful study of the

New mothers can get advice from new group

By Jennifer Shuler

Iowa City women with newborn babies are getting help making the transition to parenthood from a newly formed postpartum group.

The group, Modern are Pones, Two, offers a supportive environment in which women can express their feelings and concerns, said Linda Black, the group's facilitator.

"I think one of the most common things is that they're feeling isolated and alone," she said. "I think there's a fear of not being able to cope with their feelings and that's one of the reasons mothers don't come forward to talk about them."

A key aspect of the group is helping new mothers understand that their feelings are not unique, said Black. "It's not just you who's having these feelings," she said. "It's not just you who's having these changes in your life.""by

The group, which is open to women who have given birth in the past six months, has a meeting on the first Tuesday of each month. The group also hopes to give new mothers an opportunity to make friends with women in the same situation.

"It's a group of people who are in the same situation," said Black. "It's a group of people who can share their experiences and feelings with each other.""by

The group, which is sponsored by the American Cultural Center, has received a grant of $500 from the Center to help publicize its meetings. The group is also seeking donations to help cover its costs.

"It's not the only way to help new mothers," said Black. "It's not the only way to help new mothers, but it's an important way.""by

The group, which has 10 members, meets twice each month. The meetings are held in the Black Student Union Cultural Center, 9 pm on the first Tuesday of each month.

"It's a really important thing to have," said Black. "It's a really important thing to have, especially for new parents.""by

Dunk drivers

The fight against drunk drivers is picking up speed. Polk County Attorney Don Johnson has proposed that drunk drivers lose their licenses if they are caught on a county road. It has fewer mandatory jail sentences. And in Washington, D.C., some congressmen have introduced legislation that would increase the penalties for drunk driving from five years without, to four years with, their license without a jury trial.

Allen's mess

Allen asserted that he merely reviewed the hospital's temperature records, had no particular interest in the file, and can't find out why the paint was sprayed. So, 'Maybe I should have been more interested,' he said.

Here's an update on the so-called modern whitewashing their windows. False prophets do not need to study his Bible. Bible concerns God's moral conformity which Christians can't believe. They'll have no head of state and everyone blackmanized dollars.

In the Africanos, the dominant white group in South Africa, will be discussed today in a story by South African professor Pieter du Toit of the University of Stellenbosch in South Africa. "There are so many things wrong with this country's situation in South Africa," said Pieter du Toit. "It is not enough for us to look at the surface or even the middle level. We need to look deeper and understand the root causes of the problems."

Hinckley tries to hang himself in jail

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Judge M. John Hinckley, Jr., took a second attempt at suicide today, attempted to hang himself Sunday in his jail cell after an official said earlier that Hinckley had threatened to hang himself.

Hiatt said Hinckley was discovered by a U.S. Marshal, who found him hanging in his jail cell at Fort Meade.

Hiatt said many junior marshals tried to force Hinckley to let go of the rope around his neck, but he was successful in hanging himself.

Hinckley was taken to a hospital for treatment after being found hanging in his cell.

Hiatt said Hinckley had been treated for depression and had been diagnosed with depression and bipolar disorder.

"Lieutenant's Woman": a theoretical study

By Professor T. Muddle

Department of English

Professor Muddle, head of the English Department, has just published a book titled "Lieutenant's Woman: A Theoretical Study." The book delves into the characters and themes of the film "Lieutenant's Woman," a period drama set during World War II.

The book examines the characters of Charles, played by Meryl Streep, and Mike, played by Jeremy Irons. Muddle argues that the film "is playing Charlie, carrying on an affair with her leading man Mike (Jeremy Irons), who, of course, is playing Charles. Got that?"

The story is particularly moving until perhaps "the painting," the Raphael painting, but her choice of 1930s dress is not particularly inspired. The film "is the most satisfying part of the film."

The ending, or rather double ending, "is a psychological experiment in 'long, long, long.' "

The book is available at all major bookstores or can be ordered online. For more information, please visit Professor Muddle's website or contact the English Department at the Iowa City Campus.

Hawks drop swim opener

By H. Forrest Weeber

Pressure built up in the lanes, then it all broke loose.

The Iowa women's swimming team could have been the star of the show after a 1-0 win over the University of Michigan in the season opener. But the performances of the Hawkeye swimmers were not enough to win the meet.

The meet was won by the Iowa team, 184-123, after the Hawkeyes dropped three of their first four events.

Gridders

By Steve Tetterton

The Iowa State football team, trailing 24-0 at halftime, came back to win 31-24 over the University of Oklahoma.

The Hawkeyes had a tough time against Oklahoma's defense and were held to 11 points in the first half. But in the second half, they scored 31 points to take the lead and win the game.

Records fall in Iowa loss

By William P. Johnson

If the Iowa women's swimming team could have set a season record, they did it against the University of Michigan.

The Hawkeyes swam three of their best records, but they still lost the meet.

The meet was held in Iowa City, and the Hawkeyes finished the season with a 2-1 record.

Hawkeye gymnasts lack spirit in fifth-place Oklahoma finish

By Rob Bumba

The Hawkeye gymnasts lacked the spirit needed to win the meet.

The team finished in fifth place at the University of Oklahoma, losing to the Sooners by a score of 184-123.

The meet was held in Norman, Oklahoma, and the Hawkeyes could not match the energy and enthusiasm of the Sooners.

ACTUALLY, FRIDAY'S loss doesn't really bother Paterson although the coach is at the loss for words when asked how the team can improve in the future.

Hawkeye gymnasts lack spirit

The lesson learned from Friday night's game went about as expected, according to Coach Glen Kennedy.

"I should understand some of the reactions, but we can't let them get away with it," Kennedy said.

Minnesota win led by Kramer

It's always easy to overlook the overpowering presence of Minnesota's great quarterback, Joe Kramer. And on Saturday at 10:00, the Gophers faced their biggest test of the season. They met the fourth-ranked Purdue Boilermakers, who had just defeated the University of Illinois 17-10. However, Kramer and the Gophers Calif. "manipulator." Kramer, who ranks third in the country in passing yardage and has only four interceptions this season, was the key to the Gophers' victory. The Boilermakers were held to 10 points, while the Gophers scored 21. Kramer's performance was a testament to his ability to lead his team to victory, despite the challenges they faced.

On the line

There's one thing that's certain about college football—nothing is guaranteed when you step on the field. So, for the Gophers, it was a matter of whether they could play well and put together a team effort. The Boilermakers were no slouches, and they had a strong defense that was tough to break. But Kramer and the Gophers were able to overcome these challenges and emerge victorious.

Jones, who this time made the turnover, Wisconsin fans were hoping their backer was looking for a jumbo. But that's going to help quiet the crowd, the Badgers would not have the ball last and let our defense get after them. They have the ball first and let our defense get the ball. But the Hawkeyes' defensive front is good football team. We think we're very good defensively. They're a very good defensive team. We think we're good. But I can't believe none of the things we did defensively.

The Hawkeyes' defensive line was the Iowa defense. Last year, the Hawkeyes' defense was looking to stop Iowa's 4-for-4 start this season in the Big Ten.
