Fridays - They Can Handle It!

Chief uniform fits Miller well

By Jennifer Shafer
Staff Writer

He's a big man. You might think that the first time you see him strolling through the police department, joking with a secretary, citizen or uniformed officer. His tall figure, broad shoulders and expansive, solid trunk convey an image of power and authority. His deep booming voice and jolly laughter add to that impression of size.

And Harvey Miller has a big job. As chief of the Iowa City Police Department, he is responsible for law enforcement among some 50,000 city residents. And that's not always easy.

As he says, "What's done here is done in the chief's name, regardless of how it is done."

But if he can help it, it is done well. Ever since he took the job six years ago, he has been working to perfect department operations. "I'm never satisfied," he said.

"When I turned 45 I made up my mind that I'm probably not going to change the world, but that doesn't mean I'm not going to try," the 52-year-old police chief said.

THAT AMBITION may be one of his most valuable qualities. But he has others, and he knows it. "I'm damn good at what I do," Miller said, and many of his contemporaries agree.

William Tynan, director of UI Campus Security, said of Miller: "He does his job well, and he has the respect of the community and the people who work for him. And personally, he's a hell of a nice guy."

Through similar jobs and occupational concerns, Tynan and Miller have worked together and become friends. The problems and pressures of leading a public service agency are common to them both. But Tynan said Miller doesn't let the job upset him.

"I can't recall any incident when I've seen Harvey fly off the handle," he said. That may be because Miller, an Iowa City native, likes what he does. "The best work is done in government," Miller said. "I get excited when things happen in Iowa City. Government moves on community issues and I get to be a part of it."

BUT IT hasn't always been. Before Miller became police chief in 1975, he had done everything from farming to teaching. He has held jobs on Iowa City's police force, Campus Security and has taught in the UI Bureau of Police Science.

He also taught government courses at Wisconsin State University, the University of North Carolina and was director of police at New Castle County, Delaware.

Despite the many changes, Miller seems happy where he is now. "Every day is a little bit different in this business. Teaching is too damn safe. You never even have to get sweat under your arms if you don't walk too fast."

Harvey Miller

After he had taught for about eight years, Miller began to question what he was doing in education. "I got concerned that I was telling

U.S., Soviets prepare for arms talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — American and Soviet negotiators prepared Sunday for nuclear disarmament talks that could set the tone for future relations between the superpowers.

Veteran U.S. arms negotiator Paul Nitze said he would be "reasonable and tough" in the talks to reduce the doomsday armories of nuclear weapons on either side of the East-West divide in Europe.

The Soviet Union said Sunday it was up to the United States to narrow the yawning gap between the two sides, and warned that President Reagan's "zero option" proposal to trade potential American missile deployments against already emplaced Russian rockets would not be acceptable.

The heads of delegations will hold a preliminary meeting today about ground rules at the Soviet Union's tightly guarded diplomatic compound in Geneva.

The delegations, including diplomats and military experts on both sides, hold their first full meeting at U.S. disarmament offices on Tuesday.

THE TWO SIDES start from diametrically opposed positions, with the United States seeking an initial agreement curbing intermediate-range missiles and the Soviet Union looking for a much broader treaty covering all medium-range weapons systems in Europe that are capable of delivering nuclear bombs and warheads.

This would cover U.S. "forward-based" aircraft and submarines as well as the independent nuclear forces of France and Britain.

The first task of the negotiators will be to decide just what weapons they will be talking about. The Soviet Union claims there is an existing nuclear balance in Europe, with just under 1,000 weapons on each side. Reagan said the Soviet Union has a 6-1 advantage of medium-range nuclear systems.

Diplomatic sources said the Geneva talks could set the tone for future East-West contacts, including a resumption early next year of negotiations to limit strategic nuclear arms.

IT WILL BE the Soviet Union's first opportunity to take measure of the tough-talking Reagan administration. The sources said Moscow will be concerned to find out whether the United States will match its hawkish public stance with an unyielding attitude at the conference table.

Soviet chief negotiator Yuli Kvit-sinsky said Moscow came to the talks determined to display "good will and readiness to cooperate."

The talks will be low-key and extremely complex, yet few international meetings in recent history have aroused such high expectations — a result of the growing fears of a "limited" nuclear war that could, as Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev said last week, turn the continent into "a tombstone."

Pope John Paul II said he had sent personal messages to both Reagan and Brezhnev "to express a vivid interest in the outcome of the negotiations, toward which millions of men of the entire world have turned their attention."

Urban Stonehenge

Standing ruins are silhouetted against the sky in a four-block area of Lynn, Mass., after a fire that started early Saturday destroyed 17 buildings, forced the evacuation of 600 people and left 1,500 people unemployed. The $35 million fire was believed to have been set by an arson. No one was injured.

Jepsen defends AWACS switch

DES MOINES (UPI) — Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, said he reversed his position on the sale of AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia last October to head off efforts by Democrats to bring President Reagan "to his knees."

Speaking on IPBN's Iowa Press Sunday, Jepsen said Reagan's opponents were "coming out of the weeds" on the AWACS issue in an effort to weaken the president's image on foreign policy issues.

"It was a vote that, in my opinion, would have brought the president to his knees," Jepsen said. "The AWACS decision became secondary. It was a personal judgment. That's the explanation. If it isn't bought — so be it. But that's the way it is. It was a judgment issue and I don't regret it."

Jepsen blasted published reports that quoted a White House source as saying administration officials met with Jepsen and "just beat his brains out" on the arms deal.

He called the reports "ludicrous, absolutely ridiculous and totally unfounded."

JEPSEN SAID there are similarities between press coverage of his AWACS switch and the way the media has "really worked over" National Security Adviser Richard Allen.

He said Allen's ability to perform his duties probably has been impaired even though the Japanese and American governments have not corroborated reports that Allen received more than a $1,000 gift from Japanese journalists for arranging an interview with Nancy Reagan.

Allen took a leave from his national security position Sunday.

Iowa's senior senator said he sided with Reagan because he supports the president's program for economic recovery and foreign policy approach.

He said the defeat of the AWACS sale in the Senate would have had an overall negative impact on the president's programs.

He said he doubts his switch on the AWACS vote after he was an outspoken opponent of the sale hurt his credibility with his constituents or fellow senators.

On economic matters, Jepsen said he still supports a balanced federal budget by 1984, but admitted it probably will not happen. He said he does not support balancing the budget if it means high interest rates and high inflation.

Administrative leave granted to Allen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Allen, saying he feels he has "done nothing wrong," took administrative leave as President Reagan's national security adviser Sunday to speak about the $1,000 "thank-you" payment he received from a Japanese magazine.

"I certainly exercised bad judgment in not immediately taking it (the envelope containing the money) to the acting counsel to the president and writing a memo about it," Allen said in an interview on NBC's "Meet the Press."

That action "was always in my mind," Allen said, and "I had no other intention." But the incident occurred on Jan. 21, the first day of the new administration, and in the press of appointments and duties, Allen said, the money was placed in a safe and he "simply forgot."

ALLEN SAID he intercepted the envelope as it was being forced into Reagan's hand after a brief photo session with Japanese journalists.

The money was presented by journalists working for the magazine Shufu no Tomo (Housewife's Friend) as a "thank you" to Reagan, the Japanese said in Tokyo.

Allen said he gave the envelope his secretary, who placed it in the office safe, and forgot it.

"It was a case of forgetfulness, no matter how hard that is to accept," he said. Allen said that shortly thereafter he moved to his new office and not only did not have the key to the old office but never had the combination to the safe.

Allen said he talked to President Reagan Saturday about his intention to step down until the investigation is completed, and Reagan "indicated he agreed with this decision and understood the basis on which I made it."

LARRY SPEAKES, deputy White House press secretary, said in Santa Barbara, Calif., the president "hasn't passed judgment in any way" on the case. "Dick made a request and the president honored it," he said.

Speakes said Allen's deputy, Adm. James Nance, a retired staff member of the joint chiefs of staff, has been asked to assume Allen's duties.

Top presidential counselor Edwin Meese said Allen's action was his own idea, and, "Since he felt constrained to defend himself (in public), it was a good thing to go on administrative leave."

ALLEN SAID there is "no reason whatever why I cannot resume my duties and perform at same level as before," once the investigation is concluded.

"I expect to resume," Allen said. "Certainly, I would like to go back."

Allen told the interviewers no one had asked him about the money, and "I did not know how the investigation began in September."

Allen also denied all knowledge of a notation of $10,000 on the envelope or on a separate receipt in the safe.

Statistics may hurt disarmament talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — The U.S.-Soviet talks on European nuclear disarmament resemble a vast numbers game with each side marshaling an array of statistics to support virtually irreconcilable positions.

Both sides enter disarmament negotiations Monday with sharply contrasting estimates of their respective nuclear weapons strength in Europe, raising the possibility of the talks bogging down before they effectively begin.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who has been trying to soften the antagonism between President Reagan and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, suggested the figures bandied around "should all be thrown in the wastebasket."

The Soviet Union argues that both it and NATO have an approximate balance of nuclear weapons systems in Europe, just under 1,000 on each side.

REAGAN PUT THE balance at 6-to-1 in favor of the Soviets, listing 560 U.S. weapons systems against 3,825 allegedly equivalent Russian systems.

The numbers problem at the Geneva talks is largely a result of geography. The intermediate weapons involved can reach the Soviet heartland from bases in Western Europe. Moscow therefore regards them as strategic.

They do not have the range to cross the Atlantic, however, and the United States classes them as "theater" or regional weapons, as opposed to the central strategic systems with which America and Russia can strike one another.

Because of its strategic viewpoint, the Soviet Union wants an across-the-board reduction of nuclear weapons in Europe, including those carried by U.S. "forward-based" aircraft and submarines, and the independent nuclear forces of Britain and France.

The United States argues for dealing first with the land-based intermediate-range missiles, then going on to deal with the problem of aircraft, submarine-launched missiles and shorter-range rockets.

REAGAN'S SO-CALLED "zero option" proposal would have the Russians dismantle their entire force of some 270 mobile, triple-headed SS-20 missiles, and more than 300 older SS-4s and SS-5s.

In exchange, the United States would cancel deployment in Western Europe from late 1983 of 108 Pershing II ballistic missiles — which would be able to strike Soviet territory in minutes — and 464 low-flying ground-launched cruise missiles.

The Soviets argue that the zero option on missiles would leave them defenseless against other nuclear weapons in Europe. They say the deployment of new NATO missiles would radically destabilize the nuclear balance.

NATO's decision in December 1979 to deploy the missiles was seen as a test of the alliance's unity, because they supposedly made the defense of Europe an essential element of the strategic defenses of the United States.

Williams may get hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Harrison Williams, fighting to keep his Senate job despite his Abscam conviction, is ready to launch a new effort to win a full Senate hearing before his colleagues vote this week on expelling him, an official said Sunday.

Walter Gold, Williams' press secretary, said a resolution calling for such a hearing is "scheduled" to be introduced before the Senate early this week.

Ship's survivor rescued

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI) — Gripping an overturned lifeboat for 26 hours with sharks circling a few feet away, Harald Marienfeldt, the only survivor of a sunken West German freighter watched three shipmates slip from floating debris and drown one-by-one.

The search for Marienfeldt's 22 crewmates of the Elma Tres was expected to continue through the night, but a Coast Guard official would not speculate on the chances that other survivors would be found.

Miami deaths investigated

MIAMI (UPI) — Police said Sunday four male victims slain gangland-style in an exclusive southwest Dade County townhouse were suffocated by their gags and two young women were shot to death.

An anonymous call late Saturday afternoon led police to the six bound bodies. Agents from the federal Drug Enforcement Agency were dispatched to the scene. Police sources said they doubted if the killers would ever be caught.

Huge blaze tolls recorded

LYNN, Mass. (UPI) — Firefighters doused smoldering ruins Sunday in the heart of an old shoe-manufacturing city, where a fire, apparently set by an arsonist, destroyed 17 buildings Saturday and caused more than $35 million in damage.

The blaze, which began on the first floor of a vacant eight-story building, ravaged a $194 million downtown urban revitalization project, forced more than 600 people to leave their homes and left 1,500 people jobless, state officials said.

Convicted spy returned

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Convicted spy Christopher Boyce, who eluded capture for 19 months despite an intense global manhunt, was returned to Los Angeles to face charges Monday that he escaped from a federal prison in January 1980.

Boyce, 28, who was convicted in 1977 of selling vital satellite secrets to the Soviet Union, escaped from a federal prison in California. He was recaptured Aug. 22 in Port Angeles, Wash.

387 holiday traffic deaths reported

By United Press International

Millions of Americans took to the nation's highways Sunday, heading for home as the four-day Thanksgiving holiday weekend drew to a close.

Travelers hit snowstorms in the mountains of the Southwest and New England and rain in the South, and travel advisories were issued throughout the Great Plains.

The National Safety Council estimated before the holiday began at least 480 people would die in traffic accidents during the holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. local time, Wednesday and ended at midnight Sunday.

By late afternoon, a United Press International count indicated at least 387 people had been killed on the nation's highways, heading into the weekend's heaviest driving period.

California reported the most traffic fatalities with 35; followed by Texas with 32; Florida with 22; Pennsylvania with 18; Illinois with 17; Georgia and New York with 16; Indiana and Ohio with 14; Arizona and Montana with 11; and Kentucky, Missouri and North Carolina with 10.

COLORADO, TENNESSEE, Michigan and Virginia reported nine fatalities; Louisiana and Alabama eight; Iowa and Oklahoma, seven; Connecticut and New Mexico, six; Arkansas, New Hampshire, Washington and Wisconsin, five; Maryland, South Carolina, Utah, Wyoming and New Jersey four; Hawaii, Idaho, Kansas, Massachusetts, Mississippi and Nebraska three; Alaska, Minnesota, Oregon, Rhode Island and Vermont two; and Delaware, Maine and West Virginia one.

In Virginia, two deaths which state police initially attributed to a holiday traffic accident turned out to be a possible homicide suicide. Trooper W.L. Orndorff Jr. shot Meredith S. Crist, 33, of McLean, a presumed victim in a head-on collision, actually killed before the crash Thursday in a car with Stanley George, 50, Great Falls, Va., killed.

ERA push starts with seven months left

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Organization for Women, noting there are only seven months left to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, declared this week "ERA Awareness Week."

Today, ERA supporters will take to the street corners in major cities to pass out leaflets and wallet-size cards containing the text of the amendment and some NOW chapters plan to place ads in newspapers with the text.

NOW said its goal is to make every American aware of the full text of the ERA by early December.

"All the polls show that the majority of Americans support the Equal Rights Amendment by a 2-to-1 margin," said NOW President Eleanor Smeal, "but when they see the exact words, this support rises to 80 percent."

Evidence of this was shown in an Iowa poll in October conducted by the Des Moines

Register and Tribune Co., according to NOW. The poll discovered 80 percent of the voting age population supported passage of the ERA when they found out the exact words of the statement. NOW said similar polls conducted around the country revealed the same conclusions.

The "ERA Countdown Campaign," which is chaired by former first lady Betty Ford and co-chaired by actor Alan Alda, began on June 30.

NOW'S PUSH for ERA passage has included walk-a-thons, college campus campaigns, rallies and most recently a mass campaign with 30 second television spots to be aired nationwide.

The amendment has been ratified in states, but three more states are needed by June 30 for the ERA to become part of the Constitution. If it is not ratified by that date it must once again be approved by two-thirds of both houses in the Congress and ratified by 38 state legislatures.

Crime Stoppers

A new, statewide program, announced recently by the Iowa State Patrol and Iowa Department of Public Safety, may be a useful tool in helping to fight rising crime rates. The program, called Crime Stoppers, will pay citizens for information leading to an arrest. The DPS is receiving a $34,000 federal grant to start the program; this will be added to $16,000 in private donations.

The idea originated in Albuquerque, N.M. and has spread to other states. Local schemes already exist in some Iowa communities; Maquoketa has reported some success, especially in vandalism cases, which are notoriously difficult to solve. Anonymity is guaranteed, and the police are not directly involved.

In some senses, the program is an admission of defeat that is somewhat disheartening. It is sad that citizens can be induced to perform a civic duty only by being paid. There is also the slight possibility of abuse through false information, although it is unlikely that anyone would be convicted on "crime stoppers" evidence, particularly as these informers can not be required to testify in court.

Whatever its drawbacks, the program should be welcomed as a potential aid in solving or deterring crime. The local scheme in Maquoketa has concentrated on special "crimes of the week" that have proved particularly difficult for the police — the state scheme could also be valuable in this type of crime.

The new state program should be given a trial run to see if it is an effective and fair method of catching criminals, but some records should be kept to guard against possible abuse. The Crime Stoppers scheme should not be seen as doing the police force's job for it, but as helping when conventional efforts have failed.

Woodshed for Watt

The Iowa affiliate of the National Wildlife Federation has joined its parent body in a suit against a regulation issued by Interior Secretary James Watt. The rule would allow strip mining for coal on prime agricultural land without the coal operators being required to show that they have the technological capability to restore the land to pre-mining productivity.

That means that many coal mine operators will be permitted to destroy valuable agricultural land and then virtually walk off and leave it. The potential problems would be severe in Iowa, which has large amounts of coal reserves beneath prime farmland. Farmland is already under assault by various natural and human enemies. It is facing erosion in some areas, water shortages in other areas and conversion to commercial development nationwide.

At the same time greater and greater numbers of people are entering the world and lining up to be fed. To allow this mining is dangerous and short-sighted. The time may come when the technology exists to strip mine and then quickly restore land to prime agricultural use. Right now, just restoring land so that it looks half-way decent is a major undertaking.

The one area where public opinion polls consistently show that Reagan does not and never did have a "mandate" is the environmental area. Polls show that the American public is willing to pay more money to enforce stricter environmental protection regulations. Reagan should call Watt into the same woodshed that Budget Director David Stockman recently visited.

Monopoly dangers

The latest development in the saga of who will buy Marathon Oil unfolded recently when U.S. Steel entered the lists to save Marathon from Mobile Oil. This most recent chapter points to a major flaw in President Reagan's tax program.

Large cuts in the corporate tax rate were supposed to spur modernization and expansion by American corporations to meet competition from abroad and to provide jobs for American workers. Instead, many corporations are buying up other firms.

The American steel industry is in particularly bad shape. It faces competition from a number of countries. Their financial problems are due to a number of causes; old plants and machinery and high wages are two important factors. Ironically, Japan and some European nations benefited from World War II, when many of their plants were destroyed. American economic help allowed them to rebuild with newer plants and equipment. As a result, for example, Japanese steel plants are more sophisticated and more productive than American ones even though Japan has to import raw materials. Government subsidies help too.

The Reagan tax program was justified on the grounds that it would give companies like U.S. Steel the capital to modernize. Instead, following the ever growing trend, it is trying to buy another company. Such acquisitions provide no new jobs and do nothing to strengthen the U.S. economy. Marathon is a perfectly healthy company and being bought will bring no benefits to it or to the economy. Spending that money to modernize its steel plants would help U.S. steel, American workers and the American economy.

The Reagan administration and Congress should rewrite the tax law to require that firms invest in improving their own products and to prohibit such acquisitions. They should make it difficult or impossible for large corporations to buy out or merge with other large corporations. Monopolies, giant multinationals and conglomerates do nothing for free enterprise.

Screws tightened on Nicaragua

By Mark Fazollah

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — U.S.-Nicaraguan relations are on a collision course, with Washington tightening the economic screws on the Sandinista regime in retaliation for its alleged drift toward the Soviet bloc, U.S. officials say.

One American official in Managua said many Washington conservatives are determined to "punish" Nicaragua for its perceived drift toward Marxist-Leninism, and there is little hope of improving relations.

"Hardliners want to punish Nicaragua, just like Cuba. And they're the ones with the most influence now," said the official, who asked to remain anonymous.

The official said the latest salvo in the U.S. campaign came early this month when Washington and rightist Latin American regimes blocked a $30 million Interamerican Development Bank loan for Nicaragua's fishing industry.

The loan was relatively small, he said, but the U.S. move signaled an effort to speed the collapse of Nicaragua's economy, already hobbled by the civil war in which Sandinista guerrillas toppled President Anastasio Somoza in mid-1979.

UPI analysis

The official acknowledged, however, the loan veto may push Nicaragua even deeper into the Soviet orbit in search of alternate loans. The eastern bloc and Libya already provide one-third of the nation's credit.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig Nov. 12 told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that he could not rule out a military blockade or any "direct or indirect effort to overthrow" the Sandinistas.

THE THREE ISSUES that rile Washington most are Managua's alleged military aid to guerrillas in neighboring El Salvador, its massive military buildup with Soviet weaponry and its crackdown on freedom of expression.

Some Sandinista leaders aggravated the tensions during the past month with an exuberant brand of revolutionary rhetoric that often clashed with the more moderate statements of other Nicaraguan leaders.

Ruling junta member Daniel Ortega, considered a radical Sandinista, said in a speech a month ago that "our doctrine is Marxist-Leninism" and lauded Moscow as the "vanguard" in the struggle against the "imperialists' camp." The U.S. officials said the most serious conflict between Washington and Managua was the alleged shipment of Cuban-provided weapons to El Salvador, although they added the shipments apparently have fallen off since January.

Sandinista leaders have steadfastly denied sending any weapons to El Salvador, while at the same time defending their right to provide "political and social" support to the Salvadoran guerrillas.

The second source of heat in U.S.-Nicaraguan relations is a massive military buildup undertaken by the Sandinistas this year, which expanded the army to 20,000-25,000 men, created a 70,000-man militia and armed them with Soviet-made assault rifles, tanks and anti-aircraft missiles.

HAIK CHARGED that the buildup had given Nicaragua the largest army in the region, an army "that can only be a force for aggression and the expansion of Marxist-Leninist policies in the hemisphere."

The Sandinistas argue, however, they need the army to defend themselves from Nicaraguan rightists who want to topple the government — and could perhaps win U.S. support for their counter-revolution.

Sandinista leaders also were hit by an avalanche of U.S. criticism in October, when they locked up four conservative businessmen in what was viewed as a crackdown on political opponents and free enterprise advocates.

The government answered the businessmen had been trying to arrest the country's economic recovery, and charged the Reagan administration was using a double standard.

While Reagan backs the authoritarian governments of Guatemala, El Salvador, Argentina and Chile, they said, he opposes a government that is far more liberal with its opponents.

The U.S. officials said there is little hope of improving U.S.-Nicaraguan relations as long as the Sandinistas continue to side up to the Soviets and the Cubans.

The Sandinistas, on the other hand, have repeatedly said they want better relations with the United States, and see themselves as being pushed into a corner by the U.S. pressures.

Religious music debate welcomed

To the editor:

Speaking as an educator, it is reassuring to see community involvement on an educational issue. However, it is deplorable to witness the ignorance, lack of understanding of an issue and the digression from that issue demonstrated by the personal attacks and accusations heaped on Dr. James Ferguson. Since 1979, performances of acknowledged masterpieces of music have been permitted within the educational guidelines stated by School Supt. David Cronin and administered through the building principals.

To clarify the issue, one needs to understand that the October 29 concert in question did not contain music masterworks, nor were the appropriate guidelines followed.

The total music program at South East Junior High has never suffered from lack of exposure to the great classical and/or standard music literature existing today, nor has its inclusion in the curriculum been a problem. It is to Ferguson's credit that he has been willing to be receptive towards any piece of music with demonstrable educational purposes. It is only when the proper procedures are not followed that repercussions occur.

Letters

It is to be hoped that Ferguson will continue to make time for scrutinizing the music curriculum.

It is apparent that many people have not taken the time to deal effectively and objectively with this educational issue. A majority of people or an entire society which does not value trained intelligence and the ability to separate emotion from the critical elements of an issue is doomed. To question and to develop answers intelligently are educational goals in which hypocrisy and ad hominem statements have no position other than to belittle these goals.

Jean Kendall

University governance prescribes orderly procedures for the review of administrators. The administrative record of Jean Kendall in the Union is being reviewed in a peculiar fashion. If the UI Business Office last week conducted a survey to discover which offices had "slow paperwork" and relatively few vouchers processed, should we be told in The Daily Iowan which administrators were slow besides Kendall and which were faster? In this survey, who won? Should we know which dean, vice-president, or director on campus appeared to be most efficient and which forwarded the most vouchers?

If a Business Office employee notes an unusual situation, does he or she notify the individual involved and/or the administrators to whom that individual reports? (In Kendall's case, Phillip Jones or ultimately Phillip Hubbard would be such administrators.) Or is it usual procedure for a Business Office employee to notify the newspapers about the number and identification of vouchers processed for a particular office?

A few years ago I served on a faculty-student committee which conducted the regular review of Student Services. The study took several months; Kendall's work figured importantly and was viewed positively. In over fifteen years she has been promoted several times after a successful record of service in the administration of the Union. She is one of a very small number of middle-level administrators in the UI to have been so promoted.

Like other administrators on campus, she deserves to have her work continuously observed by those immediately above her and, when necessary, defended by them. She also deserves, like other administrators, to be judged by the review procedure authorized in the UI Manual of Operations. Front-page reports based on hearsay and directed repeatedly to one person suggest to me an unacceptable discrimination.

Religious music

To the editor: Thank you Hoyt Olsen for your lucid and moderate approach to the religious-music-in-the-school controversy. After reading your list of "idiotic religion has engendered" — from the Salem witch trials to Jonestown — let us all be careful in selecting the music our schoolchildren sing. We don't want any mass suicides in our town, now do we?

UI's

By Rochelle Bozman
Staff Writer

Although no committee made, yet another member of the Central Administration is in his position.

William Farrell, UI president for Education and Research, is a finalist for the position of University of Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill.

But Farrell said the committee's consideration of his position is nothing new. "I have had a type of consideration as a candidate before."

"It's true that I am a finalist. If I were a finalist, I would be seriously considering it. I don't think that means I have decided about it or that I have not."

Farrell said he does not know whether he will take the position. "I have to think about the position and the job more about me."

FARRELL WILL MEET with the selection committee and officials in Illinois this week. But either side has a decision. "I haven't made a decision. I have not decided that way," Farrell said. The job of vice president of University Relations would be his.

UI's Farrell up for new post

By Rochelle Bozman
Staff Writer

Although no commitments have been made, yet another member of the UI Central Administration may soon leave his position.

William Farrell, UI associate vice president for Educational Development and Research, is one of three finalists for the position of vice president for University Relations at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, Ill.

But Farrell said the selection committee's consideration of him for the position is nothing new and that this type of consideration has become commonplace.

"It's true that I am one of the finalists. If I were a finalist I would be seriously considering the post, but I don't think that means I've made any decisions about it or that they have either."

Farrell said he does not know whether he will take the job if it is offered to him. "I have to find out more about the position and they have to find out more about me."

FARRELL WILL MEET with the selection committee and university officials in Illinois this week.

But either side has yet to make a decision. "I haven't made any plans to leave the University of Iowa, let's put it that way," Farrell said.

The job of vice president for University Relations would be similar to Farrell's UI job, although the UI does not have a comparable position, he said.

"It is a post which is concerned with governmental relations on the state and federal level," Farrell said.

If he does decide to take the job, he will be the latest addition to a long list of UI central administrators who have left the UI in the last year or announced their decision to leave.

The list includes:

- Willard Boyd, former UI president, who left the UI Sept. 1 to become president of the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

- May Brodbeck, former UI vice president for Academic Affairs, who left the UI to take a one-year fellowship and plans to return to the UI next fall to teach in the Philosophy Department.

- Randall Bezanson, UI vice president for Finance, who plans to return to teaching when a new vice president for Academic Affairs takes office.

- Susan Phillips, former UI associate vice president for Finance, who left the UI to take a position with the Commodities Futures Exchange Commission.

- Casey Mahon, former UI assistant to the president, who was named assistant dean of the UI College of Law and associate professor.

Farrell said his decision to consider the position had nothing to do with the high turnover rate in the UI administration.

Leary, revolutionary of 1960s, to speak

Timothy Leary, a man who helped revolutionize the 1960s, who was kidnapped twice, and who ran for governor of California, will speak in the Union Main Lounge at 8 p.m.

Throughout the 1960s and early 1970s, Leary's extensive research into psychedelic drugs led to much controversy and, for him, more than three years in prison.

His most important accomplishments of the 1950s were in connection with his position as the Director of Psychology Research at the Kaiser Foundation in Oakland, Calif. During this time he became a founder and leader of the new "humanistic" psychology movement.

In 1959, Leary left the foundation to become a lecturer at Harvard where he became the Director of the Psychocedelic Research Project at the Center for the Study of Personality.

During this time, Leary conducted an experimental system of therapy at Concord Prison and the prisoner return rate was reduced by 90 percent. His system combined the hallucinogen psilocybin, support and therapy.

The topic of Leary's lecture tonight will be personal freedom and growth. Admission is free.

Leary received his doctorate in clinical psychology from the University of California at Berkeley in 1950.

"At last, a speaker I can in good conscience recommend to friends looking for a fine budget system."

More joining ROTC to finance education

By Scott Sonner
Staff Writer

More UI students are turning to Army ROTC as a way to finance their college educations.

Membership in the UI's Army ROTC program has increased 55 percent over last year. Of the 87 students enrolled, 64 receive some kind of financial aid from the military. Air Force ROTC enrollment at the UI has remained steady, however.

"Students see Army ROTC as another way of getting through school," said Capt. Mike Petersen, a UI Army ROTC instructor. He said more students are considering the military as an alternative when attending college.

Students enroll in ROTC mostly for financial assistance, but members may also develop potential careers or gain help in finding a good job after graduation, Petersen said.

THE SCHOLARSHIPS allow a student to enter the military as a commissioned officer after graduation, but do not require students to serve military duty, he said.

Bruce Berger, a UI junior in Army ROTC, said the rising costs of continuing education make it "hard to pass up" an ROTC scholarship.

More people are entering ROTC because it allows them to experience the military "without really joining," he said.

"ROTC gives people a chance to see what the military is like without making a military obligation," he said.

"They offered me a program I couldn't refuse," Berger said. He said he has a two-year scholarship, but "I can drop out at any time."

Berger did drop out of ROTC at one point. As a freshman, he was enrolled in the UI's Air Force ROTC, but quit the program when he was a sophomore so he could get a "different perspective" of college life. He enrolled in Army ROTC this fall.

BERGER, who is working on a minor in French, said his dream is to be assigned to a foreign country. He said his ROTC experience has prepared him for a management position.

"When I get out of the military my resume will be very impressive," Berger said. He said he thinks that as the country's economic situation worsens, more people will turn to the military for jobs.

Air Force ROTC has not experienced the same increase in membership as Army ROTC, according to Lt. Col. Mike Nolan, head of the UI's Air Force ROTC program.

This year's membership of 78 is "about the same" as last year, he said. Specific statistics from last year were not available.

A slight increase could be seen in the number of freshmen receiving scholarships. Only seven scholarships have been awarded to freshmen in the past three years. This year nine of the 30 Air Force ROTC scholarship recipients are freshmen, Nolan said.

Liberal arts schools like the UI will not show a big increase in ROTC membership in the future because ROTC funding is shifting to technical schools, he said.

Ray finds time for paperwork following release from hospital

DES MOINES (UPI)—Gov. Robert D. Ray was released from the hospital to recover from eye implant surgery, but he found time to stop at his Statehouse office to do some work.

Ray spent one hour or so at his office Saturday "going over the mail and paperwork and the like," Press Secretary John McCarroll said.

"The doctor told him he's not supposed to read a lot, but he can read some," McCarroll said. "He's got work to do and he's doing it."

The governor, 53, was examined Saturday morning by Dr. John Graether before he was released from the Marshalltown Area Community Hospital, where he underwent cataract surgery Friday.

DURING the 35-minute operation, part of the lens of Ray's right eye was replaced with an artificial lens — made of plastic — to correct the cataract problem.

Cataracts are a disease that causes the lens of the eye to become cloudy, interfering with vision.

The doctor said Ray should be fully recovered in six to eight weeks.

In about two weeks, Graether said, the governor will be able to assume most of his normal activities. Until then, Ray was warned against heavy reading, heavy lifting or activities that could disturb the eye.

18-year-olds still ignoring draft

DES MOINES (UPI) — Administrators and opponents of peacetime draft registration are engaged in a limited war of words to win the hearts and minds of the nation's high school-age men.

Figures released by Selective Service officials earlier this month showed 23 percent, or more than 300,000, of the nation's 18-year-old men have not met the requirement to register.

That brought to 800,000 the number of young men born from 1960-63 who have not filled out registration forms at their local post offices.

However, Selective Service officials are not alarmed by the number of non-registrants. They say most of them are unaware of the requirement rather than opposed to registration.

To get the word out, Joan Lamb, a Selective Service public affairs official in Washington, D.C., said her office launched an "informational blitz" by sending mailings to more than 24,000 high school principals for distribution at their institutions.

"I KNOW the opponents are trying to say there's a big ground-swell against (registration), but I don't see that because I don't think there's a big philosophical difference between 18-year-old and 19-year-old men and the 19-year-olds registered in large numbers," Lamb said.

Analysis

"I think the only reason the 18-year-old isn't (registering) is because it's a different program and it's harder to get that young man's attention. It's going to take a little more time but I'm convinced he'll register."

Men born in 1960, 1961 and 1962 were all required to register when peacetime registration resumed under the Carter administration. They averaged 91 percent compliance, Lamb said.

The latest blitz follows a similar mailing campaign at the end of August when about 1.2 million postcards were sent to men born in 1963, urging them to register within 30 days of the time they turned 18.

Opponents of peacetime registration are countering the federal effort, on a much more limited basis, with counseling services and by seeking equal access to high school students.

LAMB SAID she anticipates the compliance figure will increase as registration forms trickle in, as it did in 1973 and 1974 when there was continuous registration without a draft. She said compliance was at about 82 percent but rose to 99 percent a year after the registrants' deadlines elapsed.

One thing that may increase attention to the registration issue is the prosecution of men who ignore or defy the requirement. U.S. attorneys received the names of 183 alleged registration violators this month after those men ignored warning letters from the Selective Service.

Lamb said the names of the 183, including at least five Iowans, were referred to the Selective Service, which then checked the names with their records.

Kermit Anderson, the federal prosecutor in Des Moines, said men who have not registered and who refuse to comply with the warnings will be prosecuted.

"If people refuse to register," Anderson said, "the law is there and it is our job to enforce it."

Failure to register is a felony with a maximum penalty of 5 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

JACQUEE DICKEY of the Iowa Peace Network, which offers draft counseling, said, "We're aware of a large number of resisters (in Iowa) who don't want to go public."

"We have no way of knowing how many there are because they don't want to go public and risk prosecution."

Lamb said the Selective Service has not begun to actively identify the hundreds of thousands of violators but she said "we are very close to doing so."

However, Jordan said government officials will likely prosecute a small number of resisters as "examples." He said the government could not possibly prosecute all the violators because that would "fill the prisons."

Jordan said during the Vietnam war era no fines were issued and only a small percentage of violators actually went to prison.

School board to look at religious song policy

Religious songs sung at a recent junior high school concert spurred an investigative report on religious music in public schools at last Tuesday night's Iowa City Community School Board meeting.

Superintendent David Cronin gave the report and a sample policy to board members. The board decided to consider a policy on religious music for Iowa City schools in either its Dec. 15 or a January meeting, said Stan Aldinger, board president. The Oct. 29 concert was performed by choruses from Northwest, Southeast and Central junior high schools.

James Ferguson, principal at Southeast Junior High School, wrote the Iowa City School District's junior high choral directors after the concert. He stated: "I find it difficult to comprehend a one-hour program cannot be developed without the religious music." Ferguson added that he would not allow his students to sing in future programs that include religious music.

FERGUSON, who attended Tuesday night's meeting, did not object to the board's decision to consider setting a policy on the matter at a later meeting.

Some parents who attended the concert told board member Pat Hayek they were concerned about the two songs: "Thy Will Be Done," which uses the Lord's Prayer, and "Number One," a pop-rock song about Jesus Christ.

But City High choral director Larry Monson, the program's director, said Nov. 9 that about 60 percent of the music in the program was secular and only about 40 percent was religious.

The board also voted to set Dec. 15 as the only formal school board meeting for the month.

Rose Bowl logos put snags in local man's T-shirt plans

By Mary Schuver
Staff Writer

Since the Hawkeye football team won a Rose Bowl berth, the question over who has the rights to cash in on the Tiger Hawk logo has been a controversial issue from Pasadena to Iowa City.

The Tournament of Roses committee has awarded Cascade Mountain Tee of Kent, Wash., the sole right to produce all the clothes that advertise the Rose Bowl. The organizers of the parade and bowl game have also registered as trademarks "Rose Bowl," "Tournament of Roses" and any advertising logo or design that suggest the Rose Bowl and its football teams.

The Pasadena committee's actions have angered several Iowa City sportswear companies. Stephen Moss, co-owner of Imprinted Sportswear, said the action is "very unfair."

"I HAVE certain reservations on what is patented," Moss said Sunday night. "I'm concerned about whether, in a democratic society, they can tell me what can be printed. To me it seems a little unfair."

Several of the stores that Moss's business was planning to supply with Hawkeye and Rose Bowl sportswear "backed out" of the deals because of the logo controversy.

William Trease, executive director of the UI Research Foundation, which handles copyrights and patents for the UI, said the Tiger Hawk logo used by the UI is copyrighted, but "The University of Iowa never did anything about enforcing the copyright."

The Herky Hawk design was copyrighted "years ago" before the UI first went to the Rose Bowl, Trease said. But he added there is "no way" the UI can copyright the words "Hawkeye" or "Iowa."

"EVERYBODY cashes in on everything," Trease said. "Many people have used 'Hawkeye' on their products to sell them."

Trease said the UI could benefit from the lucrative sales that Hawkeye promotional products could bring by asking for a fee from companies using the designs. "Personally, I think the University of Iowa should have (enforced the copyright) but that's over the hill."

Trease said the UI has not enforced the Tiger Hawk copyright and probably would not start because a Rose Bowl berth is "once in a lifetime thing."

Moss said, "There must be some justification for it (the committee's action) but I don't understand it. It's morally a screwed-up mess," he said.

ACCORDING to the committee, any business using the words "Rose Bowl" or "Tournament of Roses" would violate the committee's rights, Trease said.

A spokesman for the Tournament of Roses Committee could not be reached for comment.

The Iowa attorney general's office is advising sportswear manufacturers to take one of two options — to print the sportswear and risk any legal action or become a sub-company of the Washington firm.

Johnson County Assistant Attorney J. Patrick White said the UI will probably "take a more serious look at" its copyrights. White advises any sportswear company to consult its private attorney for advice on the copyright controversy.

"The rationale (for the company's action) is fairly apparent," he said. "The market for Rose Bowl marketed products is obviously very good. There is a lot of money involved."

Moss said: "I'm sorry it (the copyright controversy) ever came up. It should have been running as smoothly as the football season."

Miller

people a lot of theoretical baloney that may or may not be true. I got concerned when I thought I knew all the answers, and I didn't even know the questions."

SO HE gave up teaching to "go and be where the action is," as he says, but sometimes the pressures of that action are difficult to deal with. "I get angry at stupid things that are done in a town that's supposed to be relatively civilized," Miller said.

"Sometimes I want to get away. At times it's just not a real professional feeling." When that happens, he retreats to home and family to leave the job behind.

"He never brings any work stuff home," Maxine Miller, his wife, said. "When he leaves the office, that's it."

Maxine Miller is a friendly woman who is proud of her husband. "You'll never find a more professional person. He's a brilliant man. He's got lots of smarts and he knows how to work with people."

But because Miller works with people all day, the Millers don't socialize a lot. "Harv will say he has lots and lots of acquaintances but very few close friends. We do more things together," Maxine Miller said.

Harvey Miller likes to relax by reading, gardening and sometimes riding bikes to Hamburg Inn for an early morning breakfast with his wife. "There's nothing we enjoy more," Maxine Miller said.

THE COUPLE also enjoys doing things with their two children, Chris, 16 and Ceil, an undergraduate at Drew University in New Jersey. "We try to include them in as many things as we can," Maxine said.

Miller attends the Methodist Church where he teaches Sunday School. "I kind of got drafted, but I like to do it."

"I don't believe any of us have the individual strength to handle all of our problems. There are other sources of strength." His eyes are serious. Then he grins. "Just call me Jimmy," he chuckles. "Just call me Jimmy and I'll smile."

Although Miller may seem to have an easygoing lifestyle at home, it's another story on the job.

Bill Kidwell, a sergeant in the detective bureau, said Miller "commends officers when they do a good job, and chews off their fanny if they don't do a good job. And he should."

John Rupert, a patrol shift captain, said of Miller, "He wants a better department."

However, the department does have its problems. Not everyone is happy with the management.

"I don't think anyone could do a good job as police chief in Iowa City," said Sergeant James Hazlett, "because I don't think the city of Iowa City is interested in law enforcement."

HAZLETT CITED a manpower shortage and limited department space as examples of the city's lax attitude. "Our facilities are made for a 20-man force. We need more room and people to do the job we should be doing," he said.

Despite the limited resources, crime index statistics show Iowa City as ranking the seventh lowest compared with nine other Iowa cities of similar size.

Miller said this is may be because Iowa City has few major crimes. The minor crimes are probably the result of large percentage of students in the city, he said. "It's nuisance crimes that take the resources."

Miller said it saddens him to see young people get into trouble with the law. "I deal with a degree of young people who don't realize that when they have a run-in with the law they will be tagged for the rest of their life."

Such experiences might cause him to be strict with his own children, but Chris Miller said it hasn't been hard to be the son of a police chief. "I just have to watch my step a little more," he said.

Chris Miller also said he has enjoyed moving around the country while following his father's career. Now, however, the Millers may be done with moving.

"This is home," his wife said. "We always knew we would be back. Now I'm not leaving."

But that doesn't seem to bother Miller. He still has plans for the future. Running for public office, maybe?

"I've thought about it," he said. "I think I have something to offer. I can bring stability to organizations that are disturbed and disrupted and have internal problems."

"I'm a builder. I like to put things together."

Cutler starts up congressional bid

Lynn Cutler said Sunday that a Cutler for Congress Committee has been formed and she plans to formally announce her candidacy for the 3rd District congressional seat in January.

The Waterloo Democrat lost in her campaign against Rep. Cooper Evans, R-Iowa, for Iowa's 3rd District seat in 1980. Since then, Johnson County has become a part of the 3rd District due to the reapportionment approved by the Iowa Legislature last summer.

The remap could make it easier for a Democrat to win in the district, which has been controlled by Republicans for generations.

CUTLER SAID her decision to run again for the office was "not a political decision, but a personal one."

"I've talked to a lot of victims of the Reagan administration and decided that there are just some principles that a person should not ignore," Cutler said.

Cutler feels there is no question she has strong support in Johnson County.

"I've received tremendous amounts of mail from Johnson County encouraging me to run again," she said. "All unorchestrated. It's very heart-warming."

"There is a lot of excitement about my campaign and a real eagerness to work throughout the district," Cutler said in a news release Saturday.

William Sueppel, an attorney in Iowa City, will serve as co-chairman of the campaign committee. Don Hoth of Waterloo will head the entire effort. Sueppel could not be reached for comment Sunday evening.

Video/laser show to be presented by UI's Cross

By T. Johnson
 Staff Writer

Lowell Cross, chief of the UI recording studios, and his laser-rookie, Frank Jaekle, returned from doing a show in Baton Rouge last week and almost immediately started setting up for tonight's show in Clapp Recital Hall. Jaekle helps out with the heavy lifting at the water-cooled Video Laser III, but Cross does most of the fine work.

V/L III is almost identical to Video/Laser IV, which is pointed up to the dome of the Adler Planetarium in Chicago. These complex instruments were modeled after Cross's V/L I, a laser projector involving vibrating mirrors that paint an abstract image on a screen.

Originally V/L III was a four-color system, but when Cross had the physics machine shop and the medical instruments shop busy building V/L IV, he had them upgrade III to six colors.

Cross smiles when he tells this little story. He sets his bearing as if he is about to launch into a complicated explanation of something indecipherable and then finishes the story like dropping off an unexpected cliff: "I didn't think they should have more colors than I do."

CROSS is a small man, maybe 5 feet 5, his hair combed forward over what could be a bald spot. It's hard to tell if it's a bald spot, the combing is done so efficiently. He is given to wearing lab coats around the recording studios in the music building, and has done his best to flatten out his Texas drawl. He asked once, as sort of an answer to why he had left Texas, "Have you ever been to Texas?"

He still has the quietly ironic Texan sense of humor, however. His jokes are calm, skimmed-over ironies acknowledged only by a slight smile or glimmer in his eyes. He is not the out-of-touch mad doctor of the avant-garde that one might picture.

Cross started as an out-on-the-edge musician, experimenting with different sounds. He once staged a chess game on an electronic board between John Cage and Marcel Duchamp. The board, designed and built by Cross, was wired to a sound system and each move triggered some sort of audio response.

CROSS'S interest in electronic music eventually led him to other technologies. He was tinkering with a television for a time, trying to find a way to liven up electronic music concerts.

"It's strange to have an audience come to an auditorium to listen to a recording. The best place to listen is probably the home. I'm very interested in being able to see the sound material interconnected with the visual material and hear that interconnection."

But television was not the answer: the screen is too small and the image definition too low. Eventually Cross developed his idea for a laser projector and took it to Carson Jeffries, a professor of physics at the University of California-Berkeley. Jeffries said it was possible and built Video/Laser I.

"My background is music," Cross said, explaining why he uses his own music in the shows. "I'm not borrowing anyone else's music. I'm not borrowing Star Wars or 2001. I'm going to be using my own materials. This system has never been used to exploit the work of others for my own gain."

Cross will be putting on his first show at 8 p.m. today in Clapp Recital Hall.

An early-arriver disillusioned by Santa's entrance

By Eric Grevstad
 Special to The Daily Iowan

I had a big Thanksgiving dinner and fell asleep at 10 p.m., so I suppose I felt I should punish myself. At 9:30 Friday morning, I was on top of the Dubuque Street parking ramp in a 20-degree wind chill.

I was there because Santa was scheduled to make "an emergency landing" on the roof and be rescued by an Iowa City fire truck, kicking off a massive "Downtown Is Back" and Christmas shopping campaign. Heavy advertising.

Except I was early. Nothing was there except a Chrysler station wagon. I returned to earth and tried the bigger Clinton and Burlington ramp; better view, but no Santa. Wandered around Old Capitol Center, wreaths, bows and mistletoe, more advertising — little footprints on the floor, "Stairs Up Who's Guess?" You're supposed to read them coming in and I was going out.

BY 9:45 A.M. I was back on the roof, counting fire extinguishers and chatting with a few kids and their mothers. Things picked up at 9:50. Someone drove a red MGB into the vacant lot next door for Santa to be carried away in: a sound truck; eight or nine Santa's helpers with green hats. There were maybe 20 people around. Some helpers shouted that we were supposed to wait for Santa at ground level. The kids and mothers went down. The Press-Citizen photographer and I stayed up, shivering.

"I'd like to see those kids in the prop wash from the helicopter," the photographer said. Santa coming in a helicopter? All right. I love helicopters; saw the opening of For Your Eyes Only four times.

Just before 10 a.m. a fire truck pulled in. I was looking for helicopters. Some people in a beat-up yellow Toyota drove to the roof, wheeled around, parked on the far side away from the audience. Santa Claus got out.

A YELLOW TOYOTA? I was outraged. My hands were too cold to take notes. "Have you got a bobby pin?" Santa asked a companion. "I'm not gonna wear these glasses." His hat fell off once and nearly took his hair with it. A woman and child came out of the elevator, took one look and headed back downstairs. The sound truck was playing "Jingle Bells" by the Singing Dogs.

The fire truck raised its ladder, nearly hitting the Chrysler's windshield. Santa waved to the kids. Two firemen climbed up, swung over the concrete wall. "You better take this," Santa said, handing his bag to a fireman. "Okay. Step up here and swing onto the ladder," the other one said. Santa stepped on the Chrysler's bumper, got a foot on the wall, lively and quick. He pulled himself onto the ladder between the firemen and they all climbed down.

Everyone was cheering and greeting Santa in the parking lot. I waited for the elevator; Santa was driving off in the MGB by the time I hit ground. The helpers had brought too many candy canes. I have no idea what he said as he drove out of sight.

One 'Carbon Copy' is enough

By Roxanne T. Mueller
 Arts/Entertainment Editor

There's plenty of room in the movies for social comedy. Good satire is hard to find. And then there are movies like Carbon Copy that lie around like the inert lumps of celluloid they are and are put through projectors in meager attempts to entertain and send messages at the same time. Like Sam Goldwyn said, messages are for Western Union.

Carbon Copy is not a terrible movie. It's just got so many dumb parts to it that you wonder why it got made. The main target is WASPish prejudice. George Segal plays a successful businessman named Walter who long ago stumbled to the top and who has since played the rules in order to remain there. He changed his name to disguise his Jewish roots, he married the boss's daughter (Susan Saint James) and he listens to his Big Brotherish father-in-law with both ears burning.

seen son, the result of a warm, loving affair of his college days. The son, Roger, is as black as his mother was. The resulting list of racial prejudices and slams is played out with all the subtlety of a sledgehammer striking iron.

Walter's upwardly mobile, but sexually frigid wife, Vivian, warns to the idea of adopting a colored orphan for the summer when Walter initially tries to hide the truth, and serves chicken for Roger's first meal. When the truth emerges, she goes into shock and throws Walter out of the house. Big Daddy completes the job by stripping Walter of his credit, his finances and his job. Walter has crossed the color line — he's smack in the middle of what a "normal" black must struggle against in modern society — or at least contemporary Los Angeles, which is about as representative of America as the Bowery is of the upper-class elite.

THE REST OF the plot details Walter's subsequent awakening. He goes from believing the usual white prejudices — that Roger is a whiz at basketball, is a high school dropout, has an arrest record and can hot wire cars — to accepting Walter for what he is: a sensitive, intelligent, hardworking young man who is confident he'll one day attain his own piece of the American dream.

With better writing and casting,

Carbon Copy might have worked as a painless, halfway pleasurable morality lesson. As it is, Susan Saint James is so out of place as an upper-class, snooty society matron that she throws the first part of the movie entirely off center. Saint James has played too many zany, off-beat types to be anywhere near believable. A scene that has a desperate Walter break into her bedroom as a burglar and then Vivian practically begging him to rape her is as unnecessary as it is in bad taste.

Dick Martin as Walter's lawyer is another stupid casting move. If he could act, he'd be decent, but he can barely get a line out without stealing a glance at the camera. Paul Winfield is wasted as Walter's second lawyer. Jack Warden as Walter's father-in-law gets by with his usual flair and newcomer Denzel Washington as Roger counters Segal's slightly larger-than-life style with nice understatement.

Bill Conti's music is loud, brassy and a big turn-off. It almost describes the entire movie.

Belushi salvages film with role in light comedy

By Craig Wyrick

It's hard to get anything done late at night anymore. The reruns of "Saturday Night Live" are the best before-bed treats since "M.A.S.H." went into syndication.

John Belushi deserves no small credit for his contributions to that show. Remember the Killer Bee, Beethoven, Henry Kissinger, Joe Cocker, Marlon Brando, the Greek restaurant owner and the Samurai warrior? They've all become nostalgic remembrances of the past (with rose-tinted glasses), and today we have to contend with a glut of mediocre late night comedy. Belushi and the rest of the "Saturday Night Live" gang are still at work, but show up more on the silver screen these days than on the tube.

There is a big difference between Belushi's work on the screen and live TV. Once he's in a film, he can't switch to another sketch. Belushi would have liked to have done that with Old Boyfriends and 1941. But the largest problem is the big budget some of the directors are allowed to flaunt — it virtually destroyed The Blues Brothers. Belushi's latest, Continental Divide, provides us with a much tamer Belushi than we saw in Animal House, and the result is a surprisingly light romantic comedy that didn't need a big budget.

CONTINENTAL DIVIDE owes its very life to Belushi — without him it might have fallen flat on its back. Lawrence Kasdan has received much of the attention for his script, most of it undeserved. Kasdan is being touted as the up-and-coming director/writer with his contributions to Raiders of the Lost Ark and The Empire Strikes Back and his direction and writing of one of the year's best films, Body Heat. But Continental Divide catches Kasdan on an off day, despite a script with some unusually strong narrative ideas.

Belushi, a famous muckraking Chicago Sun-Times columnist, puts his life in danger with his exposes, so he's sent to the Rockies to do a light story on a female ornithologist (Blair Brown) who lives among the eagles. They meet, she plays hard to get, Belushi doesn't, and they eventually fall in love. It's a variation of the country mouse-city mouse story, with neither able to live apart from his or her environment. The conflict sets the tension of the film.

BROWN IS ADEQUATE, but her role is basically a repeat of the one she played in Altered States — the scientific lady in love with a nut. As the nut, Belushi gives an oddly mature performance, but doesn't lose that natural comedy touch. You can actually believe that Brown would fall in love with him, a man who women wouldn't touch in Animal House.

Neighbors, Belushi's next release with Dan Aykroyd, is already touting one of the biggest advertising budgets for the Christmas season, and advanced word is that it's a failure. But Belushi proves again that he has a long way to go before he gets canceled — he'll always have another skit up his sleeve.

Natalie Wood found dead at island retreat

AVALON, Calif. (UPI) — The body of actress Natalie Wood was found Sunday floating in a shallow lagoon off Santa Catalina Island, where she was spending the holiday weekend with her husband, actor Robert Wagner, authorities said.

County lifeguards said the actress apparently drowned, but coroner's officers were en route to the island to determine the exact cause of death.

Wood, 43, was found fully clothed in shallow waters at the base of a small cliff, officials said.

The actress and her husband had sailed to the island 26 miles off the coast from Los Angeles on their yacht, and had been celebrating the holiday weekend with friends.

Wood wandered off by herself Saturday night, witnesses told authorities. Wagner and their friends became concerned and notified lifeguards shortly before dawn.

SHERIFF'S OFFICERS said the body would remain on the island until an investigation by detectives was completed later Sunday, and then would be flown by helicopter to the coroner's office in Los Angeles.

The body, clothed in a dress and red jacket, was discovered floating just under the surface of the lagoon about 200 yards from a point on the northern end of the island.

Lt. Gary Crum of the County Lifeguard Department said the death "looks like an accident."

A small inflatable boat equipped with an outboard motor was found near the body.

Wood had been working on the movie Brainstorm, at MGM since Sept. 14 with Christopher Walken, Louise Fletcher and Cliff Robertson.

Wood, in her second marriage to Wagner, the co-star of television's "Hart to Hart," was born Natasha Gurdin in San Francisco July 20, 1938, one of three daughters of Nicholas and Marci Gurdin.

In 1947, Parents Magazine named her the most talented juvenile motion picture star of the year. She was Child Star of the Year in 1950, so judged by the Children's Day National Council of New York.

Her portrayal as the child Susan in the classic Miracle on 34th Street, brought a second Box Office Blue Ribbon Award.

Cast as James Dean's sweetheart in Rebel Without a Cause, she won an Academy Award nomination as Best Supporting Actress in 1957.

Pittsburgh shuts out Rams, 24-0

By United Press International
Pittsburgh renewed acquaintances with a former Super Bowl rival Sunday and the Steelers continued to show that championship glow.

Terry Bradshaw passed for 204 yards and a touchdown and ran for another score and Franco Harris rushed for 114 yards and a touchdown to lead the Steelers to a 24-0 victory over the reeling Los Angeles Rams in the first rematch between the teams since Pittsburgh's 31-19 triumph in Super Bowl XIV nearly two years ago.

It marked the first time the Steelers, 8-5, had shut out an opponent since they held Buffalo scoreless in 1977. It was the first time the Rams, 5-8, had been blanked since a game with San Francisco in 1976.

THE TRIUMPH KEPT the Steelers' hopes for a wild card playoff berth intact and doomed the Rams' post-season chances as Los Angeles now has lost eight games in a season for the first time since 1965.

Bradshaw, struggling somewhat against Los Angeles' strong pass rush, hit 10-of-19 with no interceptions but was sacked four times. He teamed with Lynn Swann on a nine-yard TD pass that gave the Steelers a 14-0 lead early in the second quarter.

Two plays later, Jack Ham intercepted Pat Haden's pass and returned to the Los Angeles two and two plays later. Bradshaw went in from a yard out for the score and a 21-0 halftime lead.

Harris, getting just his second plus 100-yard rushing game of the year, scored the Steelers' first TD in the first period on a one-yard plunge. In the Steelers' second scoring drive, Harris had a 50-yard gain, his longest of the season.

Harris became the NFL's all-time leader in rushing attempts with 2,420.

Elsewhere Sunday, San Francisco downed the New York Giants, 17-10. The New York Jets blanked Baltimore, 25-0. Green Bay upset Minnesota, 35-23. Cincinnati routed Cleveland, 41-21. Buffalo defeated Washington, 21-14. Tampa Bay beat New Orleans, 31-14. St. Louis topped New England, 27-20. San Diego whipped Denver, 34-17. Atlanta beat Houston, 31-27 and Oakland edged Seattle, 32-31. Philadelphia is at Miami Monday night.

On Thursday, Detroit whipped Kansas City 27-10 and Dallas edged Chicago, 10-9.

Joe Montana ran for one TD and set up 10 other points with a fine short passing game as San Francisco clinched its first NFC West title since 1972 and became the first team in the NFL to win a playoff berth. Johnny Davis scored on a one-yard run and Montana ran 20 yards for the other 49er touchdown while Ray Werschling kicked a 23-yard field goal. The Giants slipped to 6-7 and fell a game behind in the race for the final NFC playoff berth.

Rookie Freeman McNeil registered his first two pro touchdowns rushing on runs of 30 and one yard and Pat Leahy kicked four field goals as the Jets won their fifth straight to assume sole possession of first place in the AFC East with an 8-4-1 record. New York posted its first shutout in five years as the Colts dropped their 12th straight.

Harlan Huckleby rushed for two TDs and caught one of Lynn Dickey's three TD passes to spark the Packers' upset.

The loss dropped Minnesota, 7-6, into a three-way tie with Detroit and Tampa Bay for first in the NFC Central. Minnesota's Tommy Kramer completed 38-of-55 passes for 384 yards and two TDs but was intercepted five times.

Ken Anderson, continuing a fabulous comeback season, threw four TD passes and Pete Johnson caught one TD pass and ran for two more to highlight Cincinnati's rout. The loss mathematically eliminated the Browns from repeating as AFC Central Division champs.

ROLAND HOOKS, subbing for the injured Joe Cribbs, ran for 109 yards and two TDs as Buffalo, 8-5, stayed alive in the AFC playoff race with a victory over Washington.

Doug Williams passed for two touchdowns and ran for another score to help Tampa Bay erase an early 14-0 deficit and help the Bucs grab a share of first place in the NFC Central. New Orleans' star rookie, George Rogers, regained the NFL rushing lead with 120 yards and a TD on 23 carries, giving him 1,399 yards for the year.

Rookie Neil Lomax hit 20-of-28 passes for 285 yards, including a 33-yard scoring pass to Roy Green with 33 seconds left, to lift St. Louis to its third straight triumph.

Chuck Muncie ran for four first-half TDs as the Chargers, 8-5, forged a three-way tie atop the AFC West with Denver and Kansas City. Muncie now has 18 rushing TDs this season, one shy of the NFL record. He scored on runs of 14 and one yard in the first quarter and four and three yards in the second quarter.

Steve Bartkowski riddled the Houston defense for 372 yards and two TDs as Atlanta improved to 7-6 and remained in strong position for a wild card playoff berth in the NFC.

Marc Wilson fired three second-half scoring passes to rally Oakland past Seattle in a battle among AFC West also-rans. Seattle quarterback Jim Zorn suffered a possible broken left leg in the loss.

Knight lauds Miami effort despite Indiana's 71-64 win

United Press International

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight became a fan for a day — and he wasn't rooting for his Hoosiers.

"I was very disappointed Miami didn't win," the Hoosier coach said after 11th-ranked Indiana registered a 71-64 victory over Miami (Ohio). "As a basketball fan of sorts, I've always rooted for the team that plays the hardest and executes the best. They outplayed us at all five positions and I'm very sorry they didn't win the game."

Ted Kitchel scored 24 points to lead the Hoosiers. Randy Wittman added 12 and Jim Thomas had 10 for the defending national champions.

Miami coach Darrell Hedric admitted this edition of the Indiana team is not the toughest he has ever seen, but said it will get better.

"I THINK INDIANA would have been an awesome team with Isiah (Thomas) and (Landon) Turner," he said. "They'll be a good team by the time the Big Ten season rolls around."

"We made mistakes but we were able to do things we wanted to do. I've come over here before when they just completely took us out of everything we wanted to do."

Indiana led 42-33 at halftime and opened double-figure advantages several times in the second half. The Hoosiers' biggest lead was 12 points in the second half, 59-47.

But Miami pulled back to within 65-60 as George Sweigert, who led the Redskins with 18 points, hit a basket with 2:50 remaining. Sophomore guard Billy Lewis made two free throws to get Miami within three points, but that was as close as the Redskins could get.

Indiana, which did not score from the five minute, seven second mark of the second half until the last minute, closed out the scoring with two free throws each from Wittman, Thomas and freshman Rick Roway.

In Saturday night's games involving the nation's top 10 teams, No. 1 North Carolina edged Kansas, 74-67. No. 2 UCLA got by Pepperdine, 76-69, third-ranked Kentucky crushed Akron, 83-64, No. 5 Georgetown defeated Alaska-Anchorage, 77-67 in the Great Alaska Shootout tournament and No. 8 Iowa topped Northern Illinois, 84-66.

Rounding out the Top 20, No. 12 Tulsa belted U.S. International, 89-62, 13th-ranked Georgia lost to 16th-rated San Francisco, 92-84, No. 14 Wake Forest lost to Richmond, 64-61, 17th-ranked Alabama-Birmingham downed Pittsburgh, 78-62, 18th-ranked Louisiana State lost to No. 20 Nevada-Las Vegas, 83-79 in overtime and No. 19 Arkansas defeated Michigan, 83-72.

James Worthy scored 23 points and ignited a second-half rally to lead the top-ranked Tar Heels over Kansas. Worthy, who scored 12 of his points in the second half, was joined in double figures by center Sam Perkins with 16 and guards Matt Doherty and Mike Jordan with 12 points each.

KENNY FIELDS SCORED 19 points to lead UCLA to a rugged non-conference victory over stubborn Pepperdine. The victory evened UCLA's record at 1-1 after the Bruins' upset loss to BYU Friday night and was the first for new Coach Larry Farmer.

Derrick Hord scored a career-high 28 points to spark third-ranked Kentucky in its season-opener. Hord netted 14 points in each half and added a game-high 11 rebounds.

Georgetown, coming off a nine-point upset loss to Southwestern Louisiana in Friday's opening round, was outscored on the floor 50-46 by Alaska-Anchorage, and couldn't put away the Seawolves until the final minute. Freshman center Patrick Ewing sank 11 of the Hoyas' 31 free throws, and tied teammate Mike Hancock for game scoring honors with 17 points.

FRESHMAN TODD BERKENPAS scored 16 points, 10 in the second half, to spark Iowa. Berkenpas, the all-time scorer in Iowa prep school history, hit eight-of-nine shots from the field during the game.

In tournament action, Vince Hamilton scored 16 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead Clemson to a 79-72 victory over Stetson in the championship game of the ninth annual IPTAY tournament.

Jasper McElroy and Walker Russell combined for 47 points to lead Western Michigan to an 83-79 victory over Michigan State and the Spartan Classic title.

Freshman Chris Mullin scored 20 points to lead St. John's (N.Y.) to a 91-71 victory over Fordham, giving the Redmen their seventh straight Joe Lapchick Memorial Tournament championship.

The University of Tennessee-Chattanooga, led by center Russ Schoene, scored 12 straight points near the end of the first half and went on to defeat Tennessee State 85-57 in the championship of the Tennessee Classic.

Alaska-Anchorage, the lone NCAA Division II school in the tourney, trailed by just six points going into the final minute. Rawley Farris and Johnny Gilbert led the Seawolves with 16 points apiece.

he can score and he can rebound."
WHEN ASKED about whether starting a freshman or a sophomore at forward would make a difference, Miller said that "being a starter really won't make much of a difference to us."

Starting at center will be Waiters. The Columbus, Ohio, native saw considerable action during last season and will step into a starting role this year. The junior has committed the fewest number of errors on the floor in the Buckeye scrimmages so far this season.

The Buckeyes opened their season over the Thanksgiving break at the Great Alaskan Shootout. Miller believes that the trip to the north will be good for Ohio State in the long run. "It will give us some experience with traveling," Miller said. "With so many young players on our roster it will be good for us to get used to being on the road. None of the road trips in the Big Ten will seem quite as long after this one."

WITH NEW PLAYERS at three of the starting positions, Miller is concerned about the Buckeyes rebounding strength in the defensive-minded Big Ten. "We'll get our rebounds from the center and power forward positions," he said. "It's the other rebounds we are concerned about. It's the ones you have to get after."

Miller knows all too well what might have happened to him had the Buckeyes not finished strong the last week of the season last year. There is belief from Miller this year's team won't be producing the same results.

"I've never really enjoyed mediocrity in the 20 years I've been associated with the game," Miller said. "I enjoyed last year a lot more than a lot of my friends thought I did."

Gymnasts capture second place as Cyclones win Midwest Open

By Steve Batterson
Staff Writer

The Iowa men's gymnastics team got the job done this weekend, finishing second to Iowa State in the Midwest Open on Saturday.

"It was a very good weekend for us," Iowa Coach Tom Dunn said. "We got in another competition before the Windy City Invitational next weekend and it helped to build a little confidence. We came out clean in terms of injuries and the kids had an opportunity to be home for a few days."

Iowa's Kelly Crumley took second in the all-around competition with a 54.45 and Brett Garland finished sixth in his first competition of the year. Dunn was pleased with both of their performances.

"Kelly had a great meet," Dunn said. "He looked fairly consistent everywhere and did a super job getting a 9.65 and winning the high bar finals. He had a slow start this season, but he's getting it together. Brett did an outstanding job for his first meet. He had a little trouble on a couple of events but generally he was pretty solid everywhere."

POMMEL HORSE specialist Joe Leo finished third place with a 9.5 in the finals and still rings specialist Terry Heffron finished with a 9.25, good for fourth place. "Leo turned in a super performance," Dunn said. "He could have been second as easily as third. Terry was first after the preliminaries and he turned in a good final routine, but a couple of others turned in super performances."

The Hawks placed three people in the top seven in the horizontal bar competition. In addition to Crumley winning the event, Paul Goedecke tied for fourth with a 9.25 and Aaron BreMiller finished in seventh with a 9.2.

Dunn also cited the work of two other Hawks in finishing within five one hundredths of a point of making finals. "Tim Magee did a real good job on the parallel bars and Jon McCollum just missed the floor exercise finals," Dunn said. "Magee did a good job coming off of an injury and not being able to practice all of his moves this past week."

"IT WAS A good team effort. We had a few people who were in a little trouble, especially after last week's parallel bar performance, but they fought it off and finished strong."

The Hawks will be preparing for the Windy City Invitational this week and Dunn said his team will concentrate on pommel horse, an event that gave Iowa a little trouble at the Midwest Open.

"If we improve a little bit this next week, we should be in Iowa State's range next week," Dunn said. "We made a good impression on all the people in the Chicago area and we picked up a little hardware, which was nice. This meet gave me a good look at our team in terms of picking a 10-man team. We should be able to decide after a couple of days of practice and get the people who are going thinking about the meet."

Chapela disenchanted by team's performance in season opener

By Steve Batterson
Staff Writer

Iowa Women's Gymnastics Coach Diane Chapela said she was "pretty disappointed" with her team's fourth-place finish in the Midwest Open Friday in Chicago.

The Hawkeys finished fourth out of five teams but to make matters worse, Iowa's top all-arounder Laura Laponsky and Iowa freshman Kim Husser were injured.

"I think that with Laura getting hurt, there is a possibility that the injury may have had an influence on some people and the effectiveness of some people's performance," Chapela said. Laponsky dislocated an elbow and Husser strained a ligament in her knee during the last event.

Iowa's highest finish was a second-place tie on the balance beam by Heidi DeBoer. Chapela praised DeBoer's performance, which earned her an 8.55 score.

"SHE DID ONE of the best beam performances I've ever seen her do," Chapela said. "She outclassed every other competitor in that event. Her polish and style were impeccable. I'm very proud of her."

"We started out doing a pretty good job on the vault, but then we had trouble on the uneven bars," Chapela said. Freshman Leslie Schipper finished fourth in the vault for the Hawks. Iowa was without the services of Linda Tremain on the uneven bars due to a previous injury.

Other than DeBoer's performance on the beam, the rest of the squad had a tough time. "We had too many falls again and we rushed and didn't finish our moves to the fullest extent," Chapela said. "Linda (Tremain) had two falls but without them she would have made the top three easily."

"The FINAL event, the floor exercise, saw the Hawks continuing with their rough day. "We had a very rough time," Chapela said. "We weren't close to being at our best form on the floor exercise. We had Tremain with an 8.3, but she missed a tumbling run that she really needed. We just weren't as sharp as we are capable of being."

Chapela said: "It was just one of those days when things didn't click. We'll be doing a lot of repetition this week and hopefully we'll see some competitors that have been sidelined with injuries back."

She said that it is "onward and upward" for her team as it prepares to host the Iowa Invitational Saturday at 1 p.m.

Bryant gets record-setting victory

By United Press International

There may be an even greater prize awaiting Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant in college football this season besides the all-time record for victories.

Another national championship remains in the grasp of the Crimson Tide following a regular season-ending 28-17 triumph Saturday over state rival Auburn that gave Bryant his record-setting 35th career win.

"I'm just glad it's over (the chase of Amos Alonzo Stagg's record)," said Bryant. "We've tried to keep it from interfering with other, more important, things that this team has had to do. But it hasn't been easy."

Alabama's victory, coupled with ninth-ranked Penn State's 48-14 rout of top-ranked Pittsburgh, puts the Crimson Tide firmly in the chase for the UPI Board of Coaches national championship, which will be decided after the bowl games.

"WE'VE STILL GOT a chance," Bryant said. Second-ranked Clemson, which finished its regular season a week ago with an 11-0 record, figures to move into the No. 1 position in this week's ratings while Alabama, ranked fourth last week, can be expected to move up at least one notch.

Third-ranked Georgia, fifth-ranked Nebraska and sixth-ranked Texas also should move up in the ratings, setting the stage for the national chamampionship to be decided with the Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowls on Jan. 1.

Clemson meets Nebraska in the Orange Bowl, Georgia takes on Pittsburgh in the Sugar Bowl and Alabama meets Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

While Bryant held his head proud, Coach Jackie Sherrill of Pittsburgh bowed his in shame.

Sherrill's Panthers, who entered the game as the nation's top-ranked defense, were completely crushed by Penn State, 48-14. The Panthers watched their chances for the national championship virtually disappear.

SOPHOMORE TODD BLACKLEDGE passed for 262 yards and two touchdowns and ran for another score in helping the Fiesta Bowl-bound Nittany Lions snap Pittsburgh's 17-game winning streak.

Penn State's upset was made more amazing by the fact that the Lions, 9-2, trailed 14-0 after managing a minus-one yard in total offense in the first quarter.

Another sophomore quarterback, Wayne Peace, turned in a strong effort in helping Florida fill the last remaining bowl berth. Peace passed for four touchdowns to spark the Gators to a 35-3 rout of Florida State and a spot in the Peach Bowl against West Virginia.

Peace, who had touchdown passes of four, eight, 27 and 34 yards, left the game late in the fourth quarter after hitting 20 of 23 passes for 275 yards to help the Gators end a string of four straight defeats to Florida State.

Eastern Montana upsets sluggish Cyclones, 66-55

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — Iowa State Coach Johnny Orr said his young and quick basketball team looked old and sluggish in its season-opening loss to Eastern Montana.

The Yellowjackets picked up their fourth straight win without a loss Saturday night by upsetting Iowa State, 66-55.

Orr said his team, touted before the season as one of the quickest in the Big Eight conference, was slow on defense.

"We'll have to look at the films and try to correct mistakes and do better," Orr said. "I was disappointed in the way we pressured them, we were only 75-to-80 percent. We're not a tall team so we have to pressure them on defense."

"They played extremely well and that's to their credit," Orr said of Eastern. "But I sincerely don't feel that some of our players gave their best effort tonight."

The Yellowjackets led 33-29 at the half.

Eastern Montana's Barry Green took game scoring honors with 15 points. Yellowjackets Scott Barnes and Ron Osborne each hit 11, while Jeff Kinman added 10.

Iowa State, which fell to 0-1, was led by the 12-point performance of Barry Stevens.

Eastern Montana shot nearly 80 percent in the second half. Many Eastern buckets came on back-door plays that resulted from their ball control offense.

"I just don't understand that," said Orr of the easy baskets the Cyclones surrendered. "It's like we were going to sleep out there."

Sophomore Ron Harris added 10 points for Iowa State. Freshman Paul Bense tossed in nine and senior Robert Estes had eight.

Frosh lead Iowa cagers past Huskies

By Thomas W. Jargo
Staff Writer

Iowa's highly-touted freshmen class passed its initiation test Saturday afternoon, leading the Hawks to an 84-66 thumping of Northern Illinois at the Field House.

Freshman guard Todd Berkenpas, who received much playing time because Bobby Hansen and Steve Carfino were in foul trouble, hit eight of nine attempts from the field for 16 points. Freshman center Michael Payne added 13 points and 10 rebounds despite sitting out most of the first half with foul trouble. The third freshman, Greg Stokes, added eight points in 17 minutes of playing time.

The Hawkeyes were sluggish in the first half and couldn't shake a very fine Northern Illinois team, led by senior Allen Rayhorn. He scored a game-high 19 points.

Although Iowa never trailed throughout the first half, the Hawks couldn't manage a lead bigger than eight points. The Huskies cut Iowa's lead to two, 30-28, on two jumpers by Carl Armato and a Ross Kingsley basket with three minutes 54 seconds left in the half.

BERKENPAS THEN hit his first attempt to increase the margin to four. Hansen added two free throws, but Rayhorn scored on a short jumper in the lane. Berkenpas hit two more jumpers to put the Hawks up by eight. The Huskies closed the gap to four, 38-34, as the half ended.

Iowa finally started to pull away from the Huskies with 2:24 gone in the second half when Ron Linfors, the Huskies' junior center, committed his fourth foul.

Kevin Boyle hit two of his 12 points and Carfino added two quick baskets to give the Hawks a 10-point lead, 48-38. John McDougal, the Huskies head coach, called this sequence the turning point in the game. "In the first half we had the ability to come back," McDougal said. "But when we got 10 points down, we just couldn't catch up."

The Hawks increased their lead to 14, 54-40, when Carfino stole the ball and fed a wide-open Payne at the other end of the court. Payne excited the crowd with a slam dunk. The rest of the game was Iowa's as the Huskies couldn't get any closer than 10 points.

PAYNE LEFT with 13:24 to go in the first half with two fouls and never returned the rest of the half. Iowa Head Coach Lute Olson said the move gave Payne's counterpart, Greg Stokes, some much-needed playing time, but adds, "Michael (Payne) will play as long as he stays out of foul trouble. We're obviously not as good a team with Michael on the bench."

Olson expressed his concern over the other forward spot, which is occupied by Mark Gannon and Craig Anderson. "They only had four rebounds between them," he said. "We need more from them."

Boyle led Iowa on Olson's performance chart with a plus 26. "I thought Boyle gave us good leadership both offensively and defensively," Olson said. Payne, Carfino, Berkenpas and Gannon were all positive on the performance chart, but Hansen was in the negative numbers. "He (Hansen) had a lot of rebounds (10)," Olson said. "But he had some poor shot selections."

Iowa's next game is tonight against the University of Nebraska-Omaha at the Field House. Game time is set for 7:35 p.m.

Todd Berkenpas scores the last of his 16 points on a short jumper over Northern Illinois' Carl Armato. Allen Rayhorn (40) of the Huskies watches.

Todd gives his father, the coach at Maple Valley High School in Mapleton, a great deal of credit for his success in basketball. "Dad always stressed fundamentals to me, especially passing," Berkenpas said. "Here at Iowa I try to pick up things from the other guys. I've never seen a better passer for his size than Kevin Boyle. He does so many different things in practice."

Berkenpas showed Saturday he could put the ball in the basket. If he corrects other areas of his game, he could be one of the finest guards to ever don the black and gold.

Tippett, Roby get All-American grid honors for Hawks

By Mike Kent
Staff Writer

The post-season honors are rolling in for Iowa's Rose Bowl-bound football team. The most notable recognition was received by lineman Andre Tippett and punter Reggie Roby, as both earned All-American status.

Additionally, Head Coach Hayden Fry, who guided the Hawks to a share of the conference title and their first Rose Bowl bid in 23 years, was named United Press International Big Ten Coach of the Year.

Tippett was named to the Football Writers Association of America's All-American list Wednesday. Joining Tippett in the elite group are Georgia running back Herschel Walker and Texas defensive lineman Kenneth Sims.

Roby, who set an NCAA record for punting average this year, was selected to the Walter Camp Football Foundation All-American team last Wednesday. Among others selected are Walker, Sims, Southern Cal running back Marcus Allen and Michigan wide receiver Anthony Carter.

TIPPETT AND ROBY also made the UPI all-Big Ten first team. Other Hawkeyes making the first team are nose guard Pat Dean, linebacker Mel Cole and offensive guard Ron Hallstrom.

Iowa players included on the second team are defensive lineman Mark Bortz and linebacker Todd Simonsen. Brad Webb received honorable mention at linebacker. More post-season honors are not out of the question. Fry is considered a leading candidate for national coach-of-the-year honors. Tippett is a nominee for the Vince Lombardi Award for the most outstanding defensive end or linebacker.

But there won't be much time to cherish the honors, as Fry has made up his team's arrival date at Pasadena, Calif., for the Rose Bowl. The Hawks will fly by charter plane to the Rose Bowl Dec. 20. Originally, Fry was planning on an arrival date two or three days later. But chances of good weather and a lack of indoor facilities that would limit the Hawks' opportunities to practice made Fry change his mind.

Young players key Ohio State chances

By Steve Batterson
Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Ill. — With a team that many felt had the talent to win the Big Ten last year and a final record of 14-13 in 1980-81, the pressure is on Ohio State Basketball Coach Eldon Miller.

This year's Ohio State team appears to be a young one and Miller is promising that Buckeye fans will be seeing a lot of new people in action. "Ohio State is a totally new team this year," Miller said. "This team will be unique. There will be freshmen on the floor playing and we don't expect them to play like freshmen — we expect them to play like players."

"We aren't without experience," Miller said. "When we put Larry (Huggins), Clark (Kellogg) and Granville (Walters) on the floor we'll have three people who have gone to war before."

Ohio State returns two starters off last season's team. Huggins at guard and Kellogg, the Big Ten's leading rebounder last season. Miller will be relying heavily on two freshman recruits, Ron Stokes and Troy Taylor, both from Canton, Ohio's McKinley High School, to fill the other guard spot.

"WE'VE GOT good depth in the backcourt," Miller said. "All of our guards will see playing time this year. Huggins won't play point as much this season unless we run into trouble."

Huggins sees a difference in this edition of Ohio State basketball. "We'll be a lot different because in past years everything was geared to the inside with the big men we had and this season you'll see us playing more perimeter basketball," Huggins said. "The offense should be more exciting this year. We used to just bring it down and kick it off to Herb (Williams) in the middle."

Kellogg has one of the forward positions locked up, but the second guard spot is still a toss-up. "It's really a fight between a sophomore, Troy Campbell, who is probably the best athlete in our program and freshman Jon Concheck," Miller said. "Campbell is a much more disciplined player than he was a year ago. He has the ability to be a tremendous player."

Berkenpas hopes to show improvement

By Mike Condon
Staff Writer

"I didn't know he was that good of a shooter."

Northern Illinois Head Basketball Coach John McDougal's assessment of Iowa guard Todd Berkenpas came after the 6-foot-2 freshman went eight for nine in the Hawkeyes' 84-66 victory Saturday.

Berkenpas, the all-time leading Iowa prep scorer with 2,536 career points, is one of three freshmen on the Iowa roster. But despite his 16-point effort, Berky, as he is known to his teammates, believes he still needs a lot of improvement. "I have a lot to learn," he said. "My shots were just there today but some days you can expect 19 shots and others you can only expect five."

Iowa Head Coach Lute Olson had mixed reactions when asked to evaluate Berkenpas' performance. "Todd played well today, but he has to be a stronger leader on the point to get the guys running the offense," Olson said. Although Berkenpas shot well from the field, he received a rating of eight on Olson's total performance chart. "Todd had a few turnovers and other mistakes that brought his total down," Olson said.

THE MAPLETON, Iowa, native says he always wanted to stay in Iowa to play college basketball and didn't feel any pressure to live up to his high school statistics. "I always wanted to play in Iowa," Berkenpas said. "I know I'm not going to be a big scorer because I feel a scorer has to be quick or big."

Playing time is another area that doesn't really concern Berkenpas. "I was watching the Detroit Lions play on Thanksgiving and their quarterback Eric Hipple said he was just waiting for his time," Berkenpas said. "It's the same way with me. Today Steve (Carfino) was in foul trouble and Bobby (Hansen) was just a little off so I got my chance and tried to make the best of it."

Alden and Joyce Berkenpas, Todd's parents, were in the crowd Saturday.
