Economic indicators drop 1.8 percent

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The government's leading economic indicators dropped 1.4 percent last month, the Commerce Department reported Monday, a drop consistent with slowing growth, but not a sign of recession.

The Composite Indicators Index, a measure of economic trends, falls below 50 in October for the first time in nearly two years. But in Washington, Secretary of Commerce Eugene R. Schueller said that the index of the index remained on an upward trend, a sign that the economy was healthy.

"It's a statistical matter that the index fell by a small amount," Schueller said. "It's part of the normal movements in the economy." Schueller noted that the index was down in the first quarter of the year, but had been rising since then.

UI Hospitals’ use of new drug may put clamp on heart attacks

By Kent Kremer

UI Hospitals’ news of a drug that dissolves blood clots in coronary arteries may not have come as a shock to another major user—heart attacks.

William Thompson, Jr., of Des Moines, best known recently as the UI Hospitals’ doorman, now believes the new application of streptokinase in the cardiac area is another example of how the latest technology benefits the patient in the cardiac area.

The new application of streptokinase is being widely studied through a three-year study under the direction of Dr. Carl White, chief of Science Information at the Mercy Heart Center in Des Moines. For 18 months, Dr. White has directed the study of the drug as a means of dissolving clots in the coronary arteries in the heart.

The treatment is still being tested in a few cities of offering the benefit of the drug, White said. It is the latest treatment against a high rate of heart attacks during the past recording benefiting development in the cardiac area in the last 15 years.

"This is still emerging," White said. "In 10 hospitals in Des Moines, the use of clot-dissolving drugs has not shown the extent of effect that was expected. The most likely reason for this is the delay between the start of the heart attack and the application of the clot-dissolving drug.

"The sooner the better" has been the rule for treatment of heart attacks and the drug has been shown to be successful. However, "Sometimes the drug is not effective, and the patient is taken to surgery to remove the clot," White added.

Dr. Donald Witterholt, a pharmacist and registered nurse at Mercy Heart Center, has been instrumental in the use of the clot-dissolving drug. He said the drug has been used to remove clots in the coronary arteries in the heart.

The treatment is offered to patients who have heart attacks and the drug is injected into the coronary arteries in the heart. The patient is then given the drug and the drug is injected again to dissolve the clot.

The procedure has been attempted at UI Hospitals since it was used by Witterholt, but was unsuccessful because the patient did not arrive at the hospital in time.

"I don’t think that would have saved him," he said.

Power Plant pumpman whistles while, before and after you work

By Mary Taylor

(Email to the Daily towan)

The pumpman steps by roaring motors, making over ocean gales and around pipes. A clock in the cozy UI Power Plant can be a thing; most people never notice it. It’s been 7:55 when I get to the power plant. The VI business manager permitted me to switch over to automation with a little wiring. "Frankly, I see no need for that expense when this does the job," he said.

Brandy X jabs Norton anthology

By Jo Garrels
Special to The Daily Iowan

Brandy X, a satirist of the academic establishment, is also an acknowledged expert in the history of the English language and is the author of "The Dictionary of Obscenities and Slang." Her latest book, "The Norton Anthology," is a parody of the Norton Anthology of English Literature, a staple of the composition course at the University of Iowa. Brandy X's book is an attempt to take the classic anthology and turn it on its head, creating a parody that is both hilarious and thought-provoking.

Nancy tells riches to riches story

By R. T. Johnson

Nancy by Nancy Reagan with Bill Libby (Plume, $16.50)

There are serious book reviewers who love the world. There are some who do not. A few of us, however, seem to be engaged in a debate over whether or not Nancy Reagan is interested in exploring her life. The book "Nancy" is one of those books that one might call "serious" in nature. There are long passages that describe Nancy's childhood and early years, as well as her marriage to Ronald Reagan, her role as First Lady, and her time in the White House. Nancy Reagan writes about her family, her friends, and her experiences in the White House, providing an intimate glimpse into her life and the life of one of the most powerful women in the world.

Books

The book opens with "A Day in the Life," perhaps the first of its kind, and continues with a series of short stories and essays that explore the roles and responsibilities of women in society. The book is divided into sections, each focusing on a different aspect of a woman's life, such as family, work, and personal relationships. It is an exploration of the many facets of a woman's life, and how she navigates the challenges and opportunities that come with it.

Brandy X's book, "The Dictionary of Obscenities and Slang," is a fun and informative read, and a great addition to any language lover's collection. It is a unique and entertaining book, and is sure to provide hours of entertainment for anyone who is interested in the history and culture of language.

Dizzy? Head hammering? Try a hangover handbook

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Jewel is not a book on hangover cures. It is a book on how to avoid hangovers in the first place. The book is written by John Dewey, a professor at the University of Illinois, and provides practical advice for preventing hangovers. It is a must-read for anyone who enjoys drinking.

The book provides a number of tips for preventing hangovers, including:

- Drink slowly. If you drink too fast, your body will absorb alcohol faster, which can lead to a hangover.
- Drink water. Drinking water can help dilute the alcohol in your system, reducing the risk of a hangover.
- Eat before drinking. Eating before drinking can help slow the absorption of alcohol into your bloodstream.
- Avoid drinking on an empty stomach.
- Drink before you get too drunk. Drinking before you get too drunk can help reduce the amount of alcohol in your system.
- Drink alcohol slowly. Drinking alcohol slowly can help reduce the amount of alcohol in your system.
- Drink alcohol slowly. Drinking alcohol slowly can help reduce the amount of alcohol in your system.

The book is a comprehensive guide to avoiding hangovers, and is sure to be a valuable resource for anyone who enjoys drinking.
Autopsy finds Wood intoxicated

L A R I S  ANGERS - At autopsy, Nancy Wood apparently died of alcohol poisoning and drowned in a panic. The death certificate lists the cause of death as accidental drowning, with alcohol as a contributing factor.

The body was autopsied at the Medical Examiner's office. The cause of death was determined to be accidental drowning, with alcohol as a contributing factor.

Books

The book reviews focus on the novel "Double Bubble" by Dally Lowman. The novel is a political thriller that explores the world of high-level government officials and their dealings with foreign powers.

The reviews are mixed, with some praising the novel's fast-paced action and intense plot, while others criticize it for its overreliance on plot twists and its lack of character development.

Oates book soon down against grain

Barbara Oates, a well-known author of crime novels, has published her latest book, "Against Grain," which is set against the backdrop of the American Midwest.

The novel follows the life of a young woman who becomes entangled in the world of organized crime. The story is told from the perspective of the protagonist, who is forced to make choices that will determine her fate.

The novel follows the life of a young woman who becomes entangled in the world of organized crime. The story is told from the perspective of the protagonist, who is forced to make choices that will determine her fate.

Like all of Oates' writing, "Against Grain" is characterized by its gritty realism and its deep understanding of human nature. The book is a compelling read for fans of the genre, and is sure to be enjoyed by anyone who appreciates well-crafted prose and a strong narrative.

Righetti wins rookie award

NEW YORK (AP) - Pitcher Dave Righetti, who started his pro career with the San Francisco Giants, has broken into the major leagues with the New York Yankees.

Righetti, 22, is the 1981 American League Rookie of the Year, receiving 13 first place votes and one second place vote to beat out 27 other players in the voting for the league's top rookie. The second place vote was cast by the Chicago White Sox, who had been the last team to take Righetti in the 1979 draft.

Righetti, who was born in California, appeared in 28 games for the Yankees, winning 8 and losing 5. He struck out 107 and walked 43 in 135 innings, finishing with a 3.93 earned run average.

Clemson still undefeated

COLUMBIA (AP) - Clemson held its own against an allotment of all-stars and conference opponents last week, and it won't get any easier this week. The Tigers will meet a variety of teams in the Orange Bowl, where they'll face their first national championship. With a victory, Clemson can become the first team since 1947 to win the college football championship.

The Tigers, who are 7-1 after their win over Florida State, are scheduled to play against the Oklahoma Sooners on Monday, Dec. 28. The game is expected to draw a large crowd of fans, who have been eagerly awaiting the opportunity to see the two teams play.

The Sooners, who are 8-2, have a strong defense and a powerful offense. They are considered one of the best teams in the college football hierarchy, and they are expected to provide a stiff challenge for the Tigers.

Despite the challenge, Clemson's players are confident. They believe they have what it takes to win the game and bring home the national championship trophy.

Grid coaches seek new jobs

By United Press International

While everyone is talking about job security and increased financial aid for college football coaches, there are still plenty of jobs available to those who are interested in coaching at the collegiate level.

The first group of coaches who are currently looking for work includes those who were fired or resigned during the college football season. These coaches include individuals such as Brian VanGorder of the University of Michigan, Pat Hurlbut of the University of Maryland, and Bill Yeast of the University of Vanderbilt.

Other coaches who are seeking new positions include those who have been let go from their current jobs due to budget cuts or other reasons. These coaches include individuals such as Mike Orlando of the University of Illinois and Mike Leach of the University of Texas.

For more information on these and other football coaches who are currently seeking new positions, visit the website of the National Football Coaches Association (NFCA). The NFCA offers a comprehensive database of college football coaches and就业岗位, and it provides a valuable resource for those who are interested in coaching at the college level.

A Seattle Times pregame special...

The Rose Bowl may not be as glamorous as the Heisman Trophy or the NFL's Super Bowl, but it is one of the most prestigious college football games in the world. The game is held every year on January 1st, and it features the champions of the Pac-12 and Big Ten conferences.

For more information on the Rose Bowl and its history, visit the website of the Rose Bowl Game. The website offers a comprehensive database of past Rose Bowl games, and it provides a valuable resource for anyone who is interested in learning more about this storied college football tradition.
UI group offering Rose Bowl package

Travel, located in the Student Activity Center in the Iowa Union, is offering a Rose Bowl trip for UI students. The trip will include ground transportation, admission to the game, and a one-night stay in San Francisco. The cost is $300 per person, which includes airfare and all expenses. The trip is open to UI students and is a great opportunity to see the game and experience the excitement of the Rose Bowl.

Hawkeyes' win over Mavericks unimpressive

By Mike Gordon

Iowa Head Coach Lute Olson was not a happy man last night after a three-overtime Thriller that saw the No. 2 Hawkeyes lose their first Big Ten Field House.

"We needed more than what we played. The players weren't ready to play. The game went on too long," Olson said.

Player reached team's discipline floor after being ejected for the second time on the trip of a lifetime," Fry said.

"We have players from all over the world. It's going to be a big tour for them."

The Hawks have all previous Missouri, Philadelphia, and Dallas, all are going to prepare the Hawks for the trip to Mississippi.

But Fry said his players are looking forward to this year's game with Mississippi.

"Our goal every year is to win the NCAA championship. Coach Fry said. "We're going to get ready for league competition."

The HAWKES, beginning their first winning season in two decades, scored 97 points.

"Our goal this year was to have a successful season. Our players are just as ready as we are every year," Fry said.

Iowa won its first game last night in Philadelphia, 97-86, against Mississippi.
