talks to be kept secret

GENEVA. Switzerland (UPI) The United States and the Soviet Union began talks Monday on limiting nuclear weapons in Europe by agreeing that the "very high stakes" involved demand the negotiations be kept

"We want these talks to succeed." veteran U.S. arms control negotiator Paul H. Nitze said after opening the first U.S.-Soviet arms talks in more than two years. But in Washington. Secretary of State Alexander Haig warned that the success of the talks depended on NATO's continued resolve to produce and deploy Pershing II and cruise missiles in Europe.

"These preparations are the incentive that brought the Soviets to the negotiations and that will encourage them now to take a serious position." Haig said in a radio broadcast to

In Moscow, the Kremlin said in a statement it welcomed the renewal of arms talks with the United States but would not allow the United States to gain a military advantage through the negotiations

NITZE AND CHIEF Soviet delegate Yuli A. Kvitsinsky agreed on the need for strict confidentiality during a private 90minute opening meeting.

They also fixed a first working session between full delegations for Tuesday morning

"We have concurred that the details of the negotiations must be kept inside the negotiating rooms," Nitze said in a brief statement seen and approved beforehand by Kvitsinsky.

"Since the stakes are very high for all of us. I ask you to help us maintain an atmosphere in which we achieve concrete results," Nitze said in asking for news media understanding.

"It is only by mutual respect for the confidentiality of these proceedings that we can hope to look at the hard issues which divide us, and to search for solutions that will assure security and reduce tensions." the 74year-old U.S. negotiator said.

NITZE MET with Kvitsinsky, who is 45 and an expert on European affairs, at the Soviet diplomatic mission. The two men stood outside for three minutes in the falling snow, laughing at repeated requests from photographers to shake hands.

Tuesday's first full working session between the 20-member U.S. and 34-member Soviet delegations was to be held at the U.S. delegation offices with subsequent sessions to take place on an alternating basis between the two buildings.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The govern- last year's $36.4 billion deficit. ment's leading economic indicators dropped 1.8 percent last month, the Commerce Department reported Monday - a grim economic weather forecast of still more unemployment and business setbacks.

The Commerce Department said October's decline completed the first consecutive three-month string of losses for the composite index since the one that pointed to last year's recession.

In a separate report Monday, the department said the nation's trade deficit for October grew to $5.3 billion. It was the third month this year of a trade deficit above $5 billion, leading department experts to predict a yearend total of "several billions" beyond

The drop in the leading indicators points to further moderate weakness in the economy," said Robert Ortner, the Commerce Department's chief economist. "The layoff rate accounted for about 40 percent of it."

Bowl tickets assured to student reps

By Jackie Baylor

In exchange for keeping the UI student Rose Bowl tour running smoothly in Pasadena, Calif., approximately 30 UI student government leaders will go on the tour - with expenses paid.

According to Frank Robinson, tour manager from the Washington, D.C., agency that is coordinating the UI tours, it is traditional to send "student tour aides" to do "a lot of work" to ensure that customers are satisfied.

UI Student Senate President Tim Dickson said Monday from Pasadena, 'It's not a free trip. We have a lot of administrative duties.

Dickson and Eddie Peters, associate director of the UI Alumni Association, were in Pasadena Monday to finalize plans for their group's tour packages.

DICKSON SAID the student government leaders will help with crowd control, provide information services and direct people. One tour seat out of every 50 sold by the senate will be available for student government representatives. There are approximately 1,500 student tour

Dickson said the seats will be "spread out among student government leaders." Students will be ap-basis at its meeting Thursday. A staff person from the UI Student Activities Center and a physician from the UI Student Health Center will be top priorities, Dickson said.

PRESIDENTS OF student groups such as the senate, Collegiate Associations Council, Associated Residence Halls, Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, Black Student Union and the Chicano/Native American Student Union will be second priority, he

Dickson said he will recommend to the senate that any extra spaces be given to senate committee chairpersons and senate commission directors.

Peters said Monday from Pasadena that alumni association staff members will also receive paid expenses to the Rose Bowl to maintain its tour. "We will be on duty 24 hours a day," he said. The staff members' jobs will be similar to student government leaders'

THE $913 association tour is available to staff, faculty, alumni and the general public on a first-come-firstserved basis in conjunction with the ticket priority system set by the Athletic Department, Peters said.

Firefighters approve 7.5 percent pay hike

By Cherann Davidson

The Iowa City firefighters' union approved a new contract Monday with the city that will give firefighters a 7.5 percent pay increase for each of the next two years.

The new contract will take effect July 1, 1982, if approved by the Iowa City Council, and Assistant City Manager Dale Helling said he expects the council to approve the contract. The mayor must then sign the contract, he said.

The pay increase will mean that the highest paid firefighters will receive a salary increase from $19,044 to $20,472 next year, reaching $22,007 the follow-

The other major change in the new contract is a $1 increase per month in parking fees paid by firefighters for city parking stickers, said Nate Hopkins, negotiator for the Iowa City Association of Professional Fire Fighters Local 610. The fire department currently pays $60 annually for each of 10 parking stickers that allow firefighters to park in the Civic Center

NEGOTIATORS for the city and the firefighters' union had reached a temporary agreement on the contract Nov. 18 after both sides began submitting proposals Oct. 6.

Union representatives for the firefighters had earlier requested a 9 percent across-the-board pay increase. Union proposals released Oct. 6 also included additional pay increase requests — 4 percent for housing inspection work, 2.4 percent for vehicular and security patrols, 1.6 percent for clerktypist work and 1.4 percent for computer operations.

Hopkins said he was glad the contract was approved. "You're never really sure it's going to be ratified" before the ballots are counted, he said. The firefighters' union is retaining a mediator "for our own protection" until the council votes on the agreement,

Helling said in the past four years, only last year's contract settlement had to be reached through arbitration. See Contract, page 6

Reagen budget to ease finances may cut 300 state jobs, services

DES MOINES (UPI) - Iowa Social Services Commissioner Michael Reagen Sunday unveiled the "most painful and controversial budget" he said he has ever prepared - one that may cost 300 state employees their jobs

Reagen said the department, at its current level of service, will finish the current fiscal year ending June 30 with a $8.5-million deficit and fiscal 1982 with a $36-million debt.

To ease the department's financial situa-tion, Reagen has proposed "massive and profound" changes aimed mainly at the state's corrections system, Medicaid and Title XX services.

"It's simply a case of needing money when there isn't any," he said.

"This is probably the most painful and controversial budget I'm sure in Iowa that the Department of Social Services of the Commission has ever recommended," he security camp. These changes would cost the state $4.5 million over the next two years, he said. For Title XX services - primarily homemaker services to the elderly and daycare services - Reagen recommended much stiffer eligibility guidelines. This change would cut $1 million from this

$266,000 Bridge owners charged

ROCK ISLAND, III. (UPI) - The owners of a railroad bridge that collapsed and blocked barge traffic on the Mississippi River for a week in July have been issued a bill for more than $266,000, a government attorney said Monday.

Thomas F. Crane, district counsel for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, said a bill was mailed to Trans-Action Associates Inc. of Joliet, Ill., and four teenagers who allegedly caused the June 30 collapse by setting a fire on the bridge.

Crane said the Corps of Engineers had to remove the fallen 400-ton bridge span near Keithsburg, Ill., after Trans-Action Associates refused to do so, despite the firm's responsibility under the River and Harbor Act of 1899.

One of the teenagers named on the Corps of Engineers bill is Alan C. Grove, 18, of

Ul Hospitals' use of new drug may put clamp on heart attacks

By Scott Sonner

UI Hospitals' new use of a drug that dissolves blood clots in coronary arteries may nelp put a clamp on the nation's number one ciller - heart attacks.

William Witterholt, 46, of Dyersville, lowa, recently became the UI Hospital's first patient to receive the new application of the drug streptokinase.

Witterholt was taken to UI Hospitals from Mercy Health Center in Dyersville on Nov. 10. The drug was administered to him six hours after the onset of a heart attack. dissolving a blood clot in his coronary artery that had blocked the flow of blood to

THE DRUG has been used before, but only recently has it been applied in emergency situations, according to Howard Lewis, chief of Science Information at the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute in Bethesda, Maryland.

The new application of streptokinase involves directly injecting the drug through a catheter - a long, hollow tube - at the point of the clot. Lewis said in a telephone inter-

"Before, it was put into the patient's cirartery," he said.

Dr. Carl White, a UI associate professor of internal medicine who assisted with the procedure, called the new use of the drug the most exciting therapeutic development in the cardiology field in the last 15

"THIS IS THE beginning of a new era of limiting the amount of heart tissue damage from heart attacks," he said.

UI Hospital approval three weeks ago of direct use of the drug in coronary arteries will not necessarily prevent heart attacks but will limit the extent of tissue damage caused by attacks. White said Monday.

Timing is the critical issue in the use of the drug, he said. He said there is a limited amount of time, usually six to eight hours, before the heart tissue damage is irreversi-

"If we can get the artery open and blood flowing within three hours of the heart attack, we can save 65-70 percent of the muscle that otherwise would have died." he

THE PROCEDURE has been attempted once at UI Hospitals since it was used for Witterholt, but was unsuccessful because the patient did not arrive at the hospitals in time. Dr. David Ferguson, another

The average time from the onset of symptoms to a patient's arrival for cardiac catheterization is four to six hours. White said. "For optimal use, we'll have to improve on that.

The arrival time can be improved, "even in rural areas like Iowa," with the use of Air Care Emergency Helicopter Service and if patients report to their physician immediately when they experience heart attack symptoms, he said.

In a telephone interview from his home Monday. Witterholt said he was "doing fine so far. I feel great. I don't have any chest

He said he had the heart attack at the Mercy Health Center in Dyersville after he had been admitted for chest pains. His doctor told him about the drug's new use and the need for quick action "so I told him we best get going

UI doctors told Witterholt that without the injection the massive amount of heart damage would have incapacitated him.

'They said I wouldn't be able to go hunting or fishing or anything like that, if I survived at all," Witterholt said. He said the treatment left him with a minimum amount of tissue damage.

Council asked to delay Dodge St. downzoning

South Dodge Street have petitioned the Iowa City Council to place a moratorium on construction of multiunit apartment buildings that would force the demolition of existing houses.

Councilor David Perret said the residents are asking that the moratorium - which could take up to two months to be implemented — be in effect until the city zoning plan, which was adopted in 1978, is implemented.

The zoning plan called for downzoning - reducing the number of residential units allowed in the area - the South Dodge Street neighborhood but would not be implemented until next year, Larry Baker, 521 S. Dodge St., said Monday

Book targets Soviet convoluted paranoia

By Ken Harper

Pretender to the Throne by Vladimir Voinovich. Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 1981, 357 pages.

If you haven't read the first novel, which is a belly laugh at the expense of the Soviet system during World War II, you owe yourself that treat before going on to Pretender. It will help clear any confusion over the identity of certain minor characters whose presence is not explained in the sequel Pretender's only deficiency is the lack of a summary of the first novel.

Ivan Chonkin, the chubby, big-eared hero of The Life and Adventures, now inds himself in the clutches of the KGB. He has no idea how much trouble his presence in prison causes Soviet operatives. In scenes seemingly rived from a mixture of Catch-22 and Marx Brothers skits, Voinovich depicts the convoluted paranoia that characterizes official Soviet thinking. What is the best way to condemn a man in the SR? Praise him are they after? To keep the system pure, of course. To keep the system in place - the incompetent in, the capable out; to see to it that only official, pro-Soviet thoughts are spoken, written and conceived. But this can be tricky even for a KGB major: 'Perhaps he... had been too quick to say that the poem was not anti-Soviet, perhaps it was even 100 percent anti-Soviet. Strictly speaking, it was a matter of interpretation. In essence, every word written or just spoken aloud or, to go all the way, hatched in someone's brain, is anti-Soviet.

IN THE MIDST of this madness. Chonkin's pregnant common law wife, Nyura, struggles with the system to make their marriage legal. She wants Ivan's future progeny to receive the benefits of legitimacy but gets caught in a web of bureaucratic idiocies that make love a political crime. Eventually. Nyura loses her job because of her attempts to become Chonkin's law-

Anyone interested in humor as an act of courage should read Pretender to the Throne. You will understand why the Soviets did not want Voinovich to remain in Russia. He was kicked out in the last year and now lives in the U.S. Not only is his humor politically dangerous, but it can have harmful side effects. As the exiled Russian virtuoso Mstislav Rostropovich said of Voinovich's first novel, "Ivan Chonkin made me laugh so hard the fillings in my teeth nearly melted.

Pain should always be so pleasurably treated. I only hope Voinovich will in-

Brand-X jabs Norton anthology

By Eric Grevstad Special to The Daily Iowan

The Brand-X Anthology of Poetry (Burnt Norton Edition), edited by William Zaranka. Apple-Wood Books, Inc., 1981, 350 pages.

The Norton Anthology of Poetry is the standard reference work in its field. New editions appear regularly and are found on hundreds of professors' shelves and in thousands of course descriptions. So is Paul Samuelson's Economics. But would anyone print a full-length parody of Samuelson's Economics?

Well, English majors like inside jokes as much as the rest of us. William Zaranka, director of the writing program at the University of Denver, has copied the Norton book's layout and typeface, taken 400 parodies of famous and obscure poems, and assembled The Brand-X Anthology of Poetry. The front cover is very clever, with the title and a parody of one of William Blake's lurid paintings; the back cover is blank and says "Picture Your Blurb Here." Parody is hard to

AS AUTHOR, Zaranka contributes 14 of the poems and several historical and critical interludes — "1485: Henry VII invents Tudor Ford, ends War of the Roadsters"; "1811-20: Hotel Wars: English Regency vs. Spanish Ramada": "1789: Kenneth Burke: Symbolic Action in a Revolution by the French." The text sections are moderately amusing, although Zaranka relies mainly on mediocre puns and witty misspellings.

As editor, Zaranka shows the same overall judgment that he shows in printing eight parodies of Hamlet's 'To be or not to be' speech: The poems range from brilliant to funny to boring. Three-hundred-fifty pages is a Thopas" (perhaps the first parody known) and various "Old and Middle English Gnomes, Ribalds, Chainsaws and Endearing Young Charms." From there, the jokes come chronologically: Marvell's "To His Coy Mistress" inpires seven selections (led by Charles Robinson's "Had I but Strength enough, and Time") and Herrick, Donne, Milton, Wordsworth, Poe, Whitman, Eliot and all the easy targets are well skewered.

IT'S ALSO FUN to read parodies of more recent or less frequently mocked writers. Kenneth Koch disposes of Robert Frost ("Hiram, I think the sump is backing up"); Andrea Peterson does the same to Emily Dickinson ("Because I could not Dump the Trash/Joe kindly stopped for Me"). Mark Defoe shows Wallace Stevens "13 Ways of Eradicating Blackbirds." Roy Kelly upends John Betjeman in 'Death, Don't Be Boring.'

There's Gilbert Highet's devastating "Homage" to Ezra Pound and contem-ton, Adrienne Rich, Gary Snyder and Diane Wakoski face the music as well.

Some parodists are authors in their own right. Keats lampoons Spenser, Pope lampoons Swift. Housman teases Blake and Longfellow. Chesterton does Browning, Whitman and Yeats. Physicist James Clerk Maxwell rephrases Robert Burns ("Gin a body meet a body/Flyin' through the air").

EVEN THE immortal William McGonagall, generally thought the worst poet of all time, is on hand with his incredible "The Albion Battleship Calamity," though to follow that with five parodies of McGonagall is excessive. True greatness cannot be

English majors will laugh at a lot of what's in this book. To other readers. Zaranka's sense of humor may seem narrow; to most readers, he'll seem easy to please. Right now, he's working on The Brand-X Anthology of Fiction. No doubt, it has at least seven

Senate group favors home video recorder

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A bill to video recorders produced by Sony remove a legal cloud from home video recorders used by millions of Americans was given a strong push Monday by members of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The bill would reverse a recent federal court ruling that use of the machines to record movies or other television broadcasts was a copyright infringement.

A statement released by Senate Judiciary Committee chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., described the measure as "sound legislation.

But a movie industry spokesman said the bill was "unfair, unjust, and in our view, unconstitutional."

THE BILL "strips from authors and creators the rights to their property without just compensation" said Sid Sheinberg of MCA Inc., the parent company of Universal City Studios Inc.

In 1976, Universal and Walt Disney Productions sued the Sony Corp. of America, claiming the

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., co-sponsor of the bill to reverse the court decision, presided at the committee hearing, saying "this is clearly an issue for Congress to decide, not the courts." Congress "never intended to deprive the individual of his or her rights to tape signals legally entering their living room for replay at a more convenient time or times,' DeConcini said.

'Indeed, it is this senator's view that once a signal crosses the threshold of the individual's home, all copyright obligations cease unless the signal is captured for commercial purposes.

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., also co-sponsor of the bill, noted that under the court decision "over 3 million owners of video recorders would be liable for damages if they used their equipment to record from their television."

Nancy by Nancy Reagan with Bill Libby. Berkley Books, 1981, 234

There are serious book reviews in the world. This is not one of them, for obvious reasons. Nancy Reagan's autobiography, which she cleverly titled Nancy, is one of those pulpy jobs aimed at the People magazine crowd. There are lots of pictures of her and Ronnie and Ronnie and her, if you aren't able to read.

For some reason, Nancy and her ghostwriter, Bill Libby, feel that people will be interested in Nancy's memoirs. The jacket copy says, "Here is the story of a woman deeply in love with her husband..." (sounds interesting so far, right?) "...a mother committed to her delightful family..." (can't put it down) "...and a lady enjoying the task of bringing warmth..."

Another reason this book should not be seriously reviewed: Nothing in printed form leaves the White House without at least tacit approval from the office of the president, unless it is a 'leak." Somehow, I don't think Nancy sneaked Nancy out the bathroom window without Ronnie's approval.

THE IMAGE the book gives of Nancy must, then, be taken to be the image that the politicos and PR wizards want to offer of Nancy. The voluntary acts of charity and less encumbered days before the birth of bureaucracy are probably very close to Ronnie's volunteeristic vision of nirvana; the book is thus a propagandistic

Then she met Ronnie. And now the entire world knows their story.

Nancy sees that world as a sort of 'Peanuts' cartoon: easy to understand and three-panel orderly. It is not that Nancy is stupid; it's just that she's so limited that all she seems to know about is expensive clothing, fine china and how to redecorate a house for only

It comes down to whether one is interested in people like Nancy. She is but one of many superfluous trendsetters who, by their actions and words, departments and truckload furniture marts. The book is certainly not the enlightening look into the American power structure it might have been.

Oates book sown against grain

cial to The Daily Iowan

Angel of Light by Joyce Carol Oates. Dutton, 1981, 434 pages.

Joyce Carol Oates' long-promised political novel, finally published this fall, is political only in the most super-

Angel of Light deals with the family of Maurice Halleck, a disgraced political honcho who is killed in a mysterious car wreck. Although a suicide note is found, Halleck's two children suspect that the accident like their father's political demise was the result of sabotage. As the story begins. Kirsten and Owen make a blood pact to avenge their father's death.

Once this framework is established, though. Oates retreats to more familiar territory, lingering for chapters at a time on the heightened sensitivities and quirky behavior of her characters. The early pages, for inBooks stance, are largely concerned with the daughter, a certified genius, who sometimes sleeps all day and other times not at all. As a prank, Kirsten occasionally plucks out half of her

Oates' description of Kirsten's detached wanderings is realistic and riveting: "Staring for 15 minutes at the classy Maillol nude in front of Evre Hall ... Circling the statue, her hands in her pockets. Brooding. Chewing at her lower lip ... Sitting alone in the dining hall, pretending to read a book."

Her characterization of Maurice Halleck is concise and wise: "It is soon clear that Maurice Halleck, by tradition an excellent loser, is a most discourteous winner: because, no doubt, he has had so little practice at winn-

Like all of Oates' writing, Angel of Light succeeds because of its compelling characterization. But the book's failures are familiar as well. The danger of her highly-charged writing has always been that if readers don't get caught up in the emotion of her story, they become too aware of the undisciplined nature of her prose.

Angel of Light seems particularly haphazard in both style and structure. The story jumps, in a disordered fashion, among 10 different time periods, ranging from 1859 to several dates during 1980. The stream of consciousness sections appear too often and too randomly, and tend to be so intense that they become unbelievable. Her physical description is sometimes good but other times uninspired: "A swamp, a dying forest. Immense. Miles. Most of the trees were leafless.'

As if to make up for the formlessness miss.

of her style, Oates has given the book the structure of a 19th century novel It's divided into nine sections and 64 chapters with titles like "The Angry Gnome." "OM." "Turtle Love" and "I." This imposed structure goes against the grain of the actual writing and makes the story seem forced.

Still, Oates' uncanny ability to dig deep into unexplored areas of human emotion remains intact. There is little chance that Angel of Light will much damage her reputation as one of the best fiction writers in the world today. (She was nominated last year, at the age of 42, for the Nobel Prize.)

One only wonders why she has not been able to write a novel with the disciplined tension of her best short stories, stories such as "Where Are You Going, Where Have You Been?" The effectiveness of this book, as of all her novels since Them, is largely hit or

Autopsy finds Wood intoxicated

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - An intoxicated Natalie Wood apparently slipped while trying to board a small dinghy following an argument on her yacht and drowned in a panic, the county coroner said Monday.

There is no evidence of foul play or any cause of death other than accidental drowning." coroner Thomas Noguchi said following an autopsy. Noguchi said Wood left the boat anchored off Santa Catalina Island following an argument between her husband, actor Robert Wagner, and actor friend Christopher Walken. The coroner said it was "not my impression" that the argument had ecome violent or that Wood was personally involved. He also disclosed that the movie star's blood alcohol level at the time of her death was 0.14 and said her intoxication was "one of the factors involved in the fact that she was not able to respond to the emergency.

HE SAID the dinghy was untied when Wood tried to climb into it. He said she scraped her left cheek and possibly banged her head in the fall. He said it further comment. was also "quite possible" that after she,hit the water and bumped her head, she panicked in the dark.

Noguchi said the actress "tragically perished" when she could not reboard the dinghy or yacht.

Asked if he knew why she was trying to get into the dinghy in the middle of the night, Noguchi replied, "A person under the influence could perhaps be going for a ride.'

Noguchi said several prescription drugs were found on the yacht, including sleeping pills, Darvon and Dalomine - both depressant pain killers. He said further toxicological tests, to be completed in about two days, would be performed to determine if the actress had any drugs in her system when she died. Assistant Coroner Richard Wilson said the evidence indicated the two men were arguing in the stateroom of the yacht and Wood "decided to get into the dinghy and take off."

A representative for Wagner said later it was a "general argument" between the two actors and refused

Noguchi said the actress, who expressed a fear of "dark water" in recent interviews, had slipped on the same step at the rear of the yacht about 7:30 that evening on her way to dinner following some "recreational drinking" with Wagner and Walken.

In California, the legal level of intoxication is 0.10.

Asked if he was pursuing the investigation, he said, "I don't intend to drop it." He said standard toxicology and laboratory tests were still being conducted, but noted that all evidence so far is "totally consistent" with an accidental drowning

WOOD'S BODY was found shortly after dawn Sunday, floating just beneath the water's surface about one mile from the boat and 200 yards from the isthmus of the resort island off the Southern California coast.

The 10-foot inflatable dinghy was found beached near the body.

The three-time Oscar nominee had been spending the weekend with Wagner and Walken, with whom she was making the film Brainstorm. They arrived at the island Friday aboard the Wagners' 55-foot yacht, Splendour.

Family friend and attorney Paul Ziffren said the three went ashore for dinner Saturday night and returned to the yacht just before midnight.

"Mr. and Mrs. Wagner had dinner last night in a restaurant on the isthmus, after which they returned to their boat," Ziffren said.

"WHILE MR. WAGNER was in the cabin, Mrs. Wagner apparently went to their stateroom," he said. "When Mr. Wagner went to join her, he found that she was not there and that the dinghy was also gone.

"Since Mrs. Wagner often took the dinghy out alone, Mr. Wagner was not immediately concerned. However, when she did not return in 10 or 15 minutes, Mr. Wagner took his small cruiser and went to look for her. When this proved unsuccessful, he immediately contacted the Coast Guard, who then continued the search.'

NEW YORK (UPI) - Pitcher Dave Righetti of the New York Yankees, who harnessed his awesome talent after being cut from the team in spring training. Monday was named the American League's Rookie of the Year for 1981 by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The 23-year-old left-hander, who posted an 8-4 record with a 2.06 ERA, received 23 first place votes and 127 points from the 28 members of the BBWAA - two from each AL city — who participated in the balloting to easily outdistance catcher Rich Gedman of Boston. Gedman got the remaining five first place votes and 64 points, but neither player was named on all 28 ballots.

PITCHER BOB OJEDA of Boston finished third with 27 points followed by pitcher Mike Jones of Kansas City (8), outfielder Dave Engle of Minnesota (4 1/2), pitcher Mike Witt of California (4), infielder Shooty Babbitt of Oakland (4), outfielder George Bell of Toronto (2), outfielder Gary Ward of Minnesota (1 1/2) and pitcher Brad Havens of Minnesota (1).

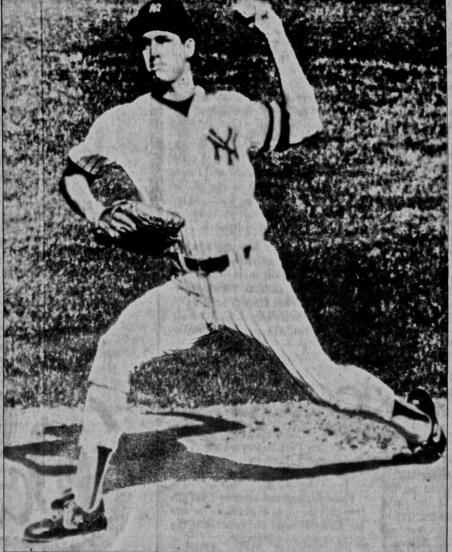

Righetti is the seventh Yankee to win AL Rookie of the Year honors since the award was instituted in 1947. Other Yankee winners include Gil McDougald (1951), Bob Grim (1954), Tony Kubek (1957), Tom Tresh (1962)), Stan Bahnsen (1968) and Thurman Munson (1970).

"I'm not taking anything away from (Fernando) Valenzuela," said Stan Williams, former Yankees' pitching coach who scouted the Los Angeles Dodgers' rookie left-hander prior to the World Series, 'but I wouldn't trade Righetti for him. In fact, I can't think of any pitcher I would trade even-up for Righetti.'

ACQUIRED BY THE Yankees from the Texas Rangers in a 10-player deal in November, 1978, Righetti was a disappointment in his first two seasons with New York and didn't begin to develop his talent until last April when he was sent to Columbus of the International League after being the last player cut by the Yankees in spring training

At Columbus, Righetti came under the watchful eye of Sammy Ellis, the Yankees' minor league pitching instructor, and underwent a metamorphosis. Ellis constantly lectured Righetti on his future and worked with him in harnessing his 95-mile-per hour fastball and developing his curve, slider and

"He helped me grow up," Righetti said. "I quit fooling around and worked hard."

New York Yankees pitcher Dave Righetti shows the form that earned him first place in balloting for the American League Rookie of the Year. Rich Gedman was second.

RIGHETTI POSTED a 5-0 record and a 1.00 ERA at Columbus and was recalled by the Yankees on May 20. Three days later, he went seven innings to beat Cleveland, 3-2, and he won two more decisions and had a no decision before the strike came.

Unlike many players who sat around and did nothing to hone their skills during the 50-day strike, Righetti worked out every day under the tutelage of his father, Leo, a former minor league infielder in the Yankee system. Leo simulated game conditions and had Dave pitch every fifth day, just as if there was no strike.

"I told him, 'If Tommy John or Ron Guidry has a couple of bad games after the strike, nobody is going to say anything," said the elder Righetti. "But if you have a couple of bad games, you'll be back in

After the strike ended, Dave was in top shape and pitched seven strong games in a row, including a 4-1 effort against the Boston Red Sox during which he struck out 11 in seven innings

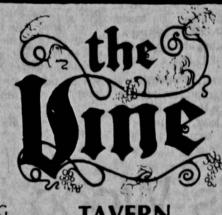

He also won three games in the AI playoffs against Milwaukee and Oakland, although those games did not count in the Rookie of the Year balloting. All ballots had to be sent in before the start of postseason competition. Each writer named three players on his ballot and points were awarded on a 5-3-1 basis for votes from first to Gedman, who replaced the popular Carlton Fisk behind the plate for Boston batted .288 in 62 games while Ojeda posted a 6-2 record in 10 games for the Red Sox.

Grid coaches seek new jobs second Atlantic Coast conference team to 14 when Miami (Ohio) defeated Northern

By United Press International

While everyone is talking about bowl games and national championships, a number of college football coaches have more important things on their minds - like

Here is the first group of coaches who have left their positions, either by firing or resigning.

Sark Arslanian, Colorado State (fired); Roger Theder, California (fired); Tony Knap, Nevada-Las Vegas (retired); Jim Young, Purdue (resigned); Elliot Uzelack. Western Michigan (fired); Wayne Howard, Utah (resigned); Dwain Painter, Northern Arizona (fired); Pat Mondock, Washington & Jefferson (fired); Sonny Lubick, Montana State (fired); Bill Yeagle, Salisbury State (resigned); Fran Curci, Kentucky (fired); Rollie Schmidt, Wilkes College (resigned); Jerry Dabitch, Idaho (fired).

Clemson still undefeated

Of the 137 NCAA Division I-A teams, only Clemson finished with an unbeaten and untied record. However, the Tigers, 11-0, still need a victory over Nebraska in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night to secure their first national championship. With a victory, Clemson can become just the win the national title. Maryland turned the trick in 1953.

Bowl game in Hawaii

If 16 bowl games, some of which will feature teams with five losses, aren't enough to satisfy the college football fanatic, the NCAA Postseason Football Committee has approved another postseason game to be played in Hawaii.

The Pineapple Bowl will be played Dec. 25, 1982 at Aloha Stadium in Honolulu. According to Ralph McFillen, the NCAA's director of championships, the Pineapple Bowl will pit two at-large teams.

Toledo headed for bowl

Northern Illinois Football Coach Bill Mallory, a graduate of Miami (Ohio), had an opportunity to help out his alma mater on Nov. 21. Mallory's team met Toledo, and a victory over the Rockets would send Mallory's former school into the inaugural California Bowl on Dec. 19 in Fresno, Calif. So much for gratitude. Toledo walloped Northern Illinois 31-0 to clinch the Mid-American conference championship and the automatic bowl berth. Maybe Mallory was thinking back to Nov.

Drake not alone

Here are the major conference champions, with overall and conference records, who will not be going to a bowl

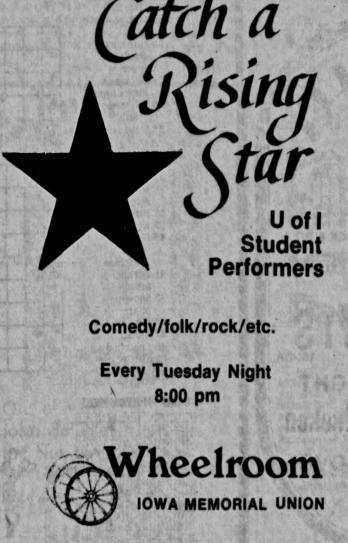

Drake (10-1, 5-1), Missouri Valley; Idaho State (9-1, 6-1), Big Sky; Yale (9-1, 6-1) and Dartmouth (6-4, 6-1), Ivy League; Furman (8-3, 5-2), Southern.

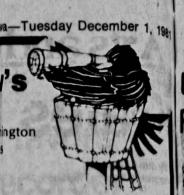

New record for Rams

Even a coaching change midway through the season couldn't help Colorado State win a game. The Rams, who fired Coach Sark Arslanian and replaced him with Assistant Chester Caddas, became the first team ever to lose 12 games in one season. The 0-12 Rams capped their season with a 59-6 loss to Hawaii.

Said Caddas: "I feel a lot of things after something like this. I feel very frustrated, very angry. At one point (in my career) I would have been punching a hole in the blackboard. But the last time I did that the school sent me a bill. I was $150 poorer and had two sore hands.'

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) - It doesn't matter that Iowa last played in the Rose Bowl 23 years ago while Washington will be making its third appearance in four years, the football coaches for both schools said Monday.

"In 1978, we didn't have any experience and we won." Washington's Don James said. "And in 1981, we had experience and didn't win. I guarantee you both teams will be ready to play. It will be the biggest game of their Iowa Head Coach Hayden Fry said: "Washington has the advantage of experience. Our advantage is the excitement of being here for the first time.

JAMES AND FRY were in Southern California to make preparations for the festivities leading to the New Year's

"For many of our players this will be the trip of a lifetime," Fry said. "We have players from all over the United States and coming out here is going to be a big treat for them.

The Huskies have all previously toured Southern California, either to play UCLA or Southern Cal, or for the 1978 and 1981 Rose Bowl games, both against Michigan.

But James said his players are looking forward to this year's game with fresh anticipation.

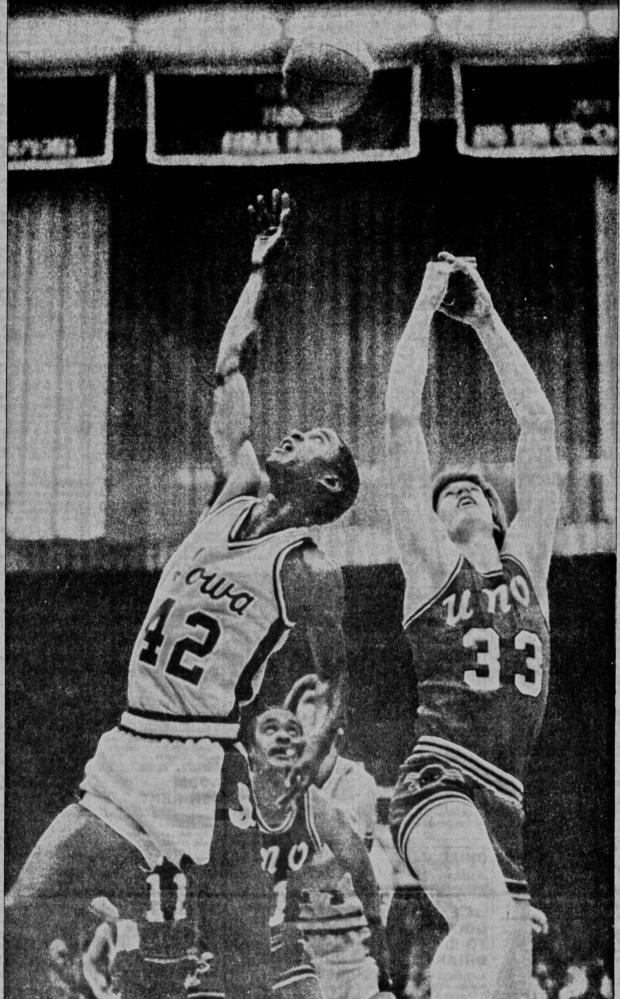

'Our goal every year is to win the (Pacific-Ten) conference championship," he said, "and our players are just as excited this year as they were in '78 and '81.'

THE HAWKEYES, COMING off their first winning season in two decades, never dreamed they'd be spending the new year in California.

'Our goal this year was to have a winning season," Fry admitted. "After we won five straight games and got a No. 6 national rating, we kind of folded our tent and lost two straight.

'We did not respond too well to pressure. We got beat by two teams that we should have beat. But we bounced back against Purdue and the

Hawkeyes' win over Mavericks unimpressive

Iowa Head Coach Lute Olson was not a happy man last night after his team's unimpressive 71-58 win over the University of Nebraska-Omaha in the Field House.

"We had guys who played like they were not ready to play," Olson said. 'My main concern is that we have nine games to prepare for league competition and we don't need to waste any op-

Part of Olson's displeasure stemmed from the inspired play of UNO. The Mavericks, a Division II school playing their first game ever against Iowa, jumped out to a quick 15-12 lead on the shooting of sophomore guard Dean Thompson and former Cedar Rapids Washington prep Rick Keel.

Iowa then responded with nine unanswered points as Kevin Boyle, who scored 16 points during the game, nailed two jump shots and bagged a three-point play on a power move inside. The Hawks led at halftime, 42-35. on the inside play of freshman Greg Stokes and medium-range jump shots by Steve Carfino, who finished with

Father's tip assists lowa native's choice

By Mike Kent

For Terry Sodawasser, Nebraska-Omaha's 6-foot-9 freshman forward, it was just a matter of being about 60 miles away from a real homecoming.

Sodawasser, a graduate of nearby Davenport Assumption High School, had a small following of fans from his hometown. Among those attending were his parents and Glenn McPherson, the Assumption coach.

71-58, Sodawasser had reason to smile. Going against the likes of Michael Payne and Greg Stokes, Sodawasser was 7-for-10 from the field with 14 points and pulled down eight rebounds.

SODAWASSER, A THIRD team allstate selection his junior year, "slumped" mildly his final year as a Knight.

averaging 15 points and 10 rebounds a game. But Monday night's performance at the Field House drew praise from his former mentor.

'He's (Sodawasser) playing well,' McPherson said. "He's more physical (than in high school) and he's holding his position well.'

Sodawasser agreed with his prep coach. "That's a big key," he said. "In college you've got to be more physical inside and outside. Aggressiveness is the difference." According to Bob Sodawasser. Terry's father, choosing Nebraska-Omaha was a matter of parental guidance. "I talked him into going there," the elder Sodawasser said Terry could have gone to South Dakota or Augustana (across the river in Rock Island, Ill.), but I wanted him to get away from home

Illini hopes ride with quickness, three-guard offense

CHICAGO - If rebounding wasn't such a vital part of the game of basketball, Lou Henson's Fighting Illini would be a strong contender for the 1981-82 Big Ten title. But it is, so they're not

The loss of the entire starting front line from last year's 21-8 team, which reached the third round of the NCAA playoffs, will have strong effects. Forwards Eddie Johnson and Mark Smith, Illinois' all-time leading scorers and rebounders, and center Derek Holcomb, were all chosen in the first three rounds of the NBA draft.

Big Ten this season, it will be because of their three-guard offense. Perry Range, the 6-foot-4 defensive wizard, leads the talented trio. "I think Perry is the best defensive guard in the Big Ten and that's a big statement because we have a lot of good defensive players in this conference." Henson said. "I rate him number one." According to Henson, Range will have the task of guarding each team's best guard or small forward.

JOINING RANGE IN the backcourt is 6-1 Craig Tucker and 6-4 Derek Harper. Tucker, a junior college transfer from Coffeyville (Kan.) Community

Harper, the point guard and quarterback of the squad, was named to NBC-TV's and ESPN's All-American freshmen teams last year. He set a pair of Illinois records in 1980-81 for most assists in a game (12, twice) and in a season (156).

'We think he's a tremendous ball handler," Henson said. "If Derek Harper was a sophomore last year, we would've probably won the Big Ten." Rounding out the starting five are 6-10 seniors James Griffin and Bryan Leonard. Griffin, who Henson said "has improved considerably over last year," will be asked to go as much as 40 minutes a game this year, which is about 30 minutes longer than he ever had to play last season. Leonard, who tion last season, will also be counted on heavily for rebounding.

THE ILLINI'S DEPTH stops at the guard position with juniors Kevin Bontemps and Quinn Richardson. The reserve forwards are all new: 6-7 transfer Dan Klier (Angelo State), 6-7 freshman Jay Daniels, 6-7 freshman Dee Maras, 6-8 freshman George Montgomery and 6-9 freshman Anthony 'Depth-wise, we're very weak at the present time," Henson said. He was not totally without hope, however. "On any given night, we think we can beat anyone in the league," he said. "How consistent we will be, I don't know."

Indeed depth and a lack of rebounding was a factor in the Illini's first game of the season as they were led the Illini in scoring with 21 points with Range adding 15 points and 10

Illinois bounced back last weekend. defeating Lovola in overtime, 87-83. Tucker again took the scoring honors with 27 points. Harper had 19 and Griffin added 14 points and nine rebounds. Assessing the Big Ten this season.

Henson said, "Even though we lost some key players, the Big Ten is going to be a great league and maybe again. the best in the country. I think some schools are overshadowed because of some of the great teams.

We think the key to winning is a good balanced attack and we're hoping to get that this year.
