Hijacked jet lands in Beiruit to refuel

By United Press International

Two hijacked Vietnam Airlines planes managed to land in Beiruit, Lebanon, early today just a few hours before United States authorities had planned to negotiate their release.

Both airlines said they were able to refuel at Beiruit before the FBI was able to free the passengers.

The hijackers had threatened to storm the American embassy in Beiruit.

The residents of Johnson County are upset that their county officials have received a raise.

John Johnson, a resident of the county, said, "I don't understand how they can justify a raise when we are having such economic problems."

He added that the county is facing budget cuts and layoffs, and that the raise is not fair.

Woman sues American Legion bar

By Andrew L. Miller

A Johnson County woman filed a $130,000 suit Monday in District Court against a hotel where a brother and a former husband raped her.

The suit states that approximately 8:10 p.m. Dec. 13, 1980, Allan R. Marlowe, 23, and his mother, Barbara A. Marlowe, 41, both of Marion, entered a bar and restaurant in West Liberty and that Allan Marlowe raped the woman while her former husband spent part of the night in a different room while she was being raped.

Freshman Program to be Scheduled for Credit this Spring

By Mary Schram

The Dail

The 1984-85 Freshman Program implementation this semester is an attempt to help freshmen adjust to college life and to help them identify their major interests. One of the major innovations will be the freshman seminar. The seminar will meet once a week and last for the entire semester. Those interested in taking a seminar can sign up in their introductory classes. Students who sign up for seminars have the option of changing their minds and are allowed to do so at any time. The seminar will not be mandatory, but for those who participate, the course will count as two credits.

The program will include a range of disciplines for study. The seminars will be offered in the spring and fall semesters. Some seminars will be focused on ancient and modern literature, while others will cover the history of the church. Students will be encouraged to take seminars in the arts, humanities, and sciences. The seminar will be a good opportunity for freshmen to explore different areas of study and to identify their major interests.

The seminar will also include guest speakers from various fields, including business, law, and education. These speakers will provide insights into the real-world applications of the seminar topics. The seminar will be an opportunity for freshmen to network with professionals and to gain a better understanding of the world of work.

In conclusion, the Freshman Program is a great opportunity for freshmen to adjust to college life and to identify their major interests. Students are encouraged to participate in the seminar and to explore different areas of study. The seminar will be a valuable experience for freshmen and will help them to succeed in their college careers.

Follow-up study will give UI faculty a voice to '81 salary concerns

By Jennifer Stabler

The Dail

A study of faculty interests and opinions is being conducted by the Faculty Relations Committee to solicit data and ideas for possible solutions to problems facing the university.

According to a recent report, the committee is planning to conduct a survey of faculty members to gauge their interests and opinions on various issues. The survey will be conducted in the spring of this year.

The results of the survey will be used to determine the needs of the faculty and to develop a plan for addressing those needs. The faculty will be asked to complete a questionnaire that will cover topics such as compensation, workload, and professional development.

The results of the survey will be shared with the faculty and will be used to guide the development of policies and procedures that benefit the faculty. The survey is an opportunity for the faculty to have a voice in the decision-making process and to express their opinions on important issues.

The survey will be conducted online and will be available to all faculty members. The results will be shared with the faculty at a faculty meeting in the spring of this year.

In conclusion, the survey is a valuable opportunity for the faculty to have a voice in the decision-making process and to express their opinions on important issues. The results of the survey will be used to guide the development of policies and procedures that benefit the faculty.

UI Judicial Court resents pre-trial for pro-life case against senate

By Debbie Bailey

The Dail

The University of Iowa Judicial Court has expressed its disapproval of a pre-trial for a pro-life case against the Senate.

The court has stated that the pre-trial is not necessary and that the case should be heard in its entirety. The court has also stated that the Senate's motion for dismissal is not meritorious.

Creation-science law 'breach of 1st Amendment'

The Dail

A creation-science law that forces students to study creation-science in science classes is a violation of the First Amendment, according to a new study.

The study, conducted by a team of scientists, found that the law was unconstitutional and violated the free exercise of religion and the concept of separation of church and state.

In conclusion, the creation-science law is a violation of the First Amendment and should be struck down by the courts. The study provides strong evidence that the law is unconstitutional and should be overturned.

An exciting advertising scheme: genre food

While eating my breakfast this morning, I read a note from the Iowa Daily lowan, which stated that there was an exciting advertisement in the next issue. It promised to be something new and different, and I was curious to see what it was.

The advertisement was titled "Santa's helpers" and was from Santa's Bistro and2-year-olds from the Iowa City Head Start program. The advertisement explained that the "I-Care" program participants have been paired with "I-Care" program participants, and that the children will be visiting the restaurant and enjoying a special圣诞相关的餐点.

The advertisement went on to say that the "I-Care" program is designed to help children develop social skills and to provide them with an opportunity to experience a special event. It encouraged people to come and enjoy the "I-Care" program participants' visit to the restaurant.

CAC appoints program director

The Council for Arts and Culture (CAC) has appointed a new program director. The announcement was made at the CAC's monthly meeting on Tuesday, December 8th.

The new program director is a seasoned arts professional with a strong background in community engagement. She has extensive experience in arts education and has worked with a variety of organizations to promote arts access and participation. She is excited to join the CAC team and to work with the organization to further its mission of providing arts opportunities for all.

The announcement was well-received by the CAC board members, who praised the new program director for her experience and her commitment to the arts.

Bonds

The issuance of general obligation bonds for the current fiscal year has been approved by the Iowa City Council. The bond issuance is expected to fund a variety of projects, including the renovation of City Hall, the expansion of the public library, and the construction of a new community center.

The bond issuance is anticipated to be a major financial undertaking for the city, and it is expected to have a significant impact on the local economy. The issuance is expected to create jobs and stimulate economic growth, and it is anticipated to help the city maintain its financial stability.

Council

The Iowa City Council held its first meeting of the new year on Monday, January 4th. The meeting was held at the City Hall and was attended by members of the public.

The meeting began with the Pledge of Allegiance, followed by the approval of the agenda. The council discussed a variety of issues, including the budget for the upcoming fiscal year, the city's financial status, and the city's economic development.

The council also discussed the possibility of issuing bonds to fund a variety of projects, including the renovation of City Hall, the expansion of the public library, and the construction of a new community center.

The council decided to move forward with the bond issuance and to hold a public hearing on the matter in the near future.

McSpadden trial delayed asked

Two of the attorneys representing Mary McSpadden of Iowa City, Iowa, have asked for a delay in the trial proceedings. The attorneys, who represent McSpadden and her co-defendant, have asked for a delay in the trial proceedings due to a variety of reasons.

The attorneys have requested a delay in the trial proceedings due to a variety of reasons, including the need for additional time to prepare for the trial, the need for additional time to obtain necessary evidence, and the need for additional time to consult with their clients.

Pavement bridges poetry gap

By Susan D. Weller

For a university that has its own Players, Playwrights, Workshop, and Literature Camp, the University of Iowa, it is surprising to find that there are students who are interested in poetry and have found a way to express their emotions through the medium of poetry. The poetry group, known as "Pavement," is a group of students who meet weekly to discuss and share their poetry. They are encouraged to write about their experiences and emotions, and are given feedback and suggestions to help them improve their writing.

Pavement is a chance for students to express their feelings through poetry. "They tend to be established poets who are experimenting with new forms," said a member of the group. "We're interested in exploring new possibilities in poetry, and in pushing beyond the limits of what is considered acceptable." The group is open to all students, regardless of their level of experience, and welcomes anyone who is interested in exploring the world of poetry.

Pavement meets every Wednesday in Maclean 301 at 8 p.m. The group is led by a poet-in-residence, and members are encouraged to bring their own work to share. The group is a great way to explore the world of poetry, and to meet other students who share your interest in this art form.

No Lennon memorials planned

NEW YORK CITY—Only small crowds were expected Tuesday outside the Dakota apartments on Central Park West in Manhattan, where John Lennon was killed last year, to mark the one-year anniversary of his death. The anniversary marks the end of a year in which Lennon's name has been revived.

The Beatles, who were Lennon's friends, are among the stars who are expected to participate in the ceremony.

Lennon was killed on Dec. 8, 1980, in a持枪袭击. The Beatles, who were Lennon's friends, are among the stars who are expected to participate in the ceremony.

Lennon's body was found in the corner of a room in the Dakota apartments. The Beatles said they were "horrified" by the news.

Black Action offers one-act, "John's Genesis"

By Romulus H. Weller

The Black Action Theater will present its first play, "John's Genesis," in three performances, at 8 p.m. and 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Friday, December 11, at the Lincoln Theater on the University of Iowa campus.

"John's Genesis" is a one-act play about a young black man who is trying to find his place in the world after the death of his father. The play explores the themes of identity, love, and loss, and features a cast of talented black actors, including several from the University of Iowa Department of Theatre.

The play is directed by Romulus H. Weller, a faculty member in the Department of Theatre, and is produced by the Black Action Theater, a student group that was formed in 1970 to provide a forum for black student voices on campus.

The play is one of several events planned by the Black Action Theater during the month of December, including a performance of "The Comedy of Errors" by William Shakespeare, and a reading of poetry by black writers.

The play is presented as part of the University of Iowa's Black History Month celebration, and is open to the public. Admission is free, and transportation is available from the University of Iowa campus to the Lincoln Theater.

"I was always a big fan of John's," said Weller. "I wanted to do a play that honored him and his legacy, and that also explored the complex issues of race, identity, and love that are at the heart of John's music and life."

Iowa's Jimmy Frazier is preparing to "go for it" in the music business.

Gridders to debut as singers Friday

By Thomas J. Jorga

The Iowa football players Jimmy Frazier, J.C. Lounsbury and Charlie Jones have plans not only to lead the gridirons but also to shine by Friday with a 7-5 p.m. appearance on the "Give Me Five" and "Get the Funk," which were written by former UI student Terri Daugherty. Lounsbury and Jones will also sing lead up to Friday. Both songs are written by Daugherty, a local musician and graduate of the UI, to depict the amount of the Iowa-Illinois game.

All-U title races head to second-half stretch

By Jon Carinder

Several teams that themselves in the race for the all-sports title will be vying for the most points from intramural events and during the academic year. The closest race shaping up is the men's basketball. The two teams that are leading with 150 points each are tightly bunched in the 16th place in the men's basketball championship. With 150 points, Iowa has clinched the title in the basketball, but indeed has a chance to win the title in the men's basketball championship. The Hawkeyes, who have won five of their last six games, are Alpha Phi with 80 points and Phi Phi Sigma with 80 points. The women's overall championship is at stake. The Big Ten's are followed by facility's 32 points in the category. There are also four teams that have a chance to win the title. The Winona State will be at the Race to 1, 2:00. Theiler, Dall's and Iowa, which have a point total of 13. Third place will be held down by advancing, but another champion Indians, who won the football title.
