points and leading the Cyclones with five assists a game. Freshman forward Barry Stevens (9.7 points, 5.7 rebounds) joins Estes and Falenscheck on the front line.

"I think our guards certainly have to do a great job," Orr said. "Our front line will have to rebound better than they have ever done before."

The Hawks, 3-0, are coming off a big come-from-behind overtime win against Marquette in Milwaukee. "The victory at Marquette was important to us," Olson said. "It proves we can win at a school that traditionally has excellent teams."

WITH THE EXCEPTION of the sizzling 70.8 shooting percentage of Kevin Boyle, Iowa has not done all that well from the field (42.3 percent, not counting Boyle). However, the Hawks' inconsistent shooting in the early going hasn't made Olson break into a worrisome cold sweat. "We're not shooting well, but that doesn't concern me," he said. "I know we have good shooters. We'll come around and be okay."

Orr offered nothing but praise for the Iowa players, particularly Boyle and freshman Michael Payne. "I can't think of anyone in the country who wouldn't want Kevin Boyle on his team," Orr said. "And there certainly can't be a better freshman in the country than Payne."

(Kenny) Arnold, (Bob) Hansen, (Steve) Carfino — my goodness! We just hope we can make it a good game. They're ranked in the top five or six in the country and they deserve to be."

hopes

son, a 6-7 sophomore, could see action at both forward and guard, and 6-1 sophomore Dan Pelekoudas is a possibility to make a run at one of the guard spots.

Freshman football player Greg Washington, 6-3, will join the basketball team after the Wolverines make their appearance at the Bluebonnet Bowl on New Year's Eve.

How does Frieder see the conference race this season? "I think the Big Ten race will be like it was a year ago. A lot of close games, great balance from top to bottom and probably a race in which it won't be decided until the last weekend of the season."

Michigan will take on the Hawkeyes in Iowa City Jan. 23.

Ralston Creek bonds approved

By Martha Manikas
Staff Writer

After a lengthy public hearing, the Iowa City Council Tuesday approved 5-2 the issuance of as much as $2 million in industrial revenue bonds to finance the Ralston Creek Apartments project.

Community members questioned the issuance of the bonds to Clark, the owner of hundreds of apartment units in Iowa City. Residents also questioned the wisdom of building an apartment complex on a floodplain.

Clark's attorney, C. Joseph Holland, told the councilors they were in a position to make the project possible by making funding affordable for the developer. Without the bonds, which offer Clark lower interest payments, the project would be prohibitively expensive and would not be built.

Holland said figures provided by the city staff show that in the event of a 100-year flood — a flood of the magnitude that occurs about once in 100 years — the parking lot would be under less than three feet of water. Developers are considering various systems for warning tenants when the lot may flood, he added.

CLARK HAS SAID he intends to build the apartments according to plans approved by the city in March 1980. The plans call for three buildings to be built atop six-foot-high mounds.

Larry Baker, 521 S. Dodge St., represented a group of Iowa City people in the public hearing and told the council that "perhaps Mr. Clark is not the person for this project."

"I don't believe Mr. Clark believes older neighborhoods have any kind of integrity," he said.

Baker told the council he did not understand granting bonds to finance floodplain development when the same developer can afford to develop in established neighborhoods.

UI Student Senate president Tim Dickson presented a proposal he plans to present to the senate on Thursday. "We're really concerned — we do want housing, but we want adequate housing," he said.

Several other issues were brought up, and Mayor John Balmer found it necessary to ask the audience to speak to the bonding resolution, "and not to Mr. Clark as a landlord."

COUNCILORS David Perret and Clemens Erdahl voted against the resolution, Perret said. "It is extremely difficult for people to say no" when a developer offers to build needed housing in Iowa City. "The real issue is whether we want to have housing located at that particular place."

Iowa City needs more housing, "but not more housing at any cost," Perret said.

Erdahl said, "I'm starting to be convinced that we may be making a mistake" unless the council looks at the dangers involved with the project.

"Within the scope of considering IRB's we can take a lot of things into consideration," he said. Safety is one of those things, and is "of paramount concern."

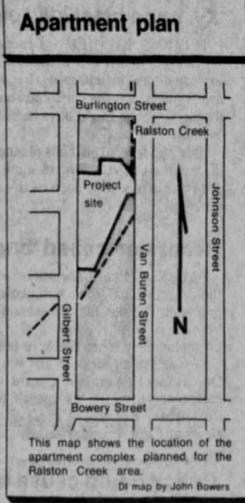

THE COUNCIL should consider whether cars could float away in a parking lot flood when people are not present to move them, he said.

Councilor Robert Vevera said that during his years on the council, students have stressed the need for housing. "I don't think the flooding problem is that big of a concern" because flooding would occur in the parking lot, not in the apartments, he said.

In other matters the council approved preliminary plats for Water's First Addition and Oakes Meadow Addition.

The council approved the issuance of as much as $100,000 in IRBs to Juceco, which plans to build an Orange Julius restaurant in the Old Capitol Center.

Perret said that because a project is within the urban renewal area and eligible for bonds does not mean the city should approve an issuance of bonds. "I do not see this as a very strong application," he said.

University can't ban religious services

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A public university cannot ban student groups from holding religious services on campus if the school allows students to hold other kinds of meetings, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

The 8-1 decision was a victory for Cornerstone, a student evangelical group that had been barred from meeting on the campus of the University of Missouri at Kansas City to praise Jesus Christ with song and discussion.

The university had argued its buildings and grounds could not be used for worship services because of the Constitution's ban against entanglement of government and religion.

But in a narrowly drawn decision, the high court held that if a university opens its facilities to student groups, it cannot discriminate against some just because the content of their speech is religious.

THE KEY CONSIDERATION in the free-speech controversy is equal access, the court said.

"Having created a forum generally open to student groups," wrote Justice Lewis Powell, "the university seeks to enforce a content-based exclusion of religious speech."

"Its exclusionary policy violates the fundamental principle that a state regulation of speech should be content-neutral, and the university is unable to justify this violation under applicable constitutional standards."

The decision in the religion case still allows universities discretion to limit use of their campuses. It does not, for example, automatically open campuses to use by non-student religious groups. It simply requires equal access.

AS EXPLAINED by Justice John Paul Stevens in a concurring opinion, it would be unjust to allow "groups of young philosophers to meet to discuss their skepticism that a Supreme Being exists" but at the same time to ban "a group desiring to express a belief in God."

The court's ruling upholds a federal appeals court ruling invalidating the university's written policy against use of its facilities for worship or religious instruction.

Justice Byron White, the only dissenter on the high court, said he would See Court, page 6

Peace

Keeping vigil Tuesday outside the Dakota apartment where former Beatle John Lennon was killed a year ago, a youngster holds Lennon's photo while flashing the peace sign. About 100 stood outside the Dakota and another 25 gathered in Central Park. One of Lennon's famous songs was "Give Peace A Chance."

DMSO testing at UI stopped amid questions

By Rochelle Bozman
Staff Writer

A study to test a drug at the UI Student Health Service has been terminated "to get a look at the information" — only weeks before the study was slated to end.

The drug, used as an industrial solvent, has been applied to sprained ankles at student health since October in order to study its effects. The drug is not recognized as safe by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Harley Feldick, director of student health, said dimethylsulfoxide has previously been used to treat arthritis and can be taken orally, intravenously and as injections.

"The FDA and the drug company involved decided to get a look at the information they had before they proceeded. Now that doesn't mean they won't start it again," Feldick said.

"They have at least temporarily stopped (the experiment) and if information does not warrant them going on then they probably will not," Feldick said Thursday.

BUT JENNIFER TUCKER, information assistant for the FDA, said the agency had never heard of a study on DMSO in Iowa.

"They (officials in the agency's drug testing department) have no record of a study in Iowa at all. That means that if there was a study going on in Iowa, the FDA didn't know about it," Tucker said.

Drug companies do not have to register studies with the FDA if they do not choose to, Tucker said. But if they hope to market the product, it must first be approved by the FDA.

"In order to get our approval we have to help them in setting up testing procedures. If someone was wanting to test a product and get it on the market they have to go through us to do any human testing at all," Tucker said.

She said no additional information on the UI study could be obtained without the name of the drug company. Feldick refused to provide the name of the company.

Venezuela hijack ends; Libya drama continues

By United Press International

Three hijacked Venezuelan planes with 102 hostages landed in Cuba to end a two-day drama, but Moslem extremists holding 41 hostages aboard a Libyan jetliner continued their odyssey, taking off for Iran early Wednesday.

The three Moslems, after stops in Athens, Rome and Beirut Tuesday, forced Lebanese authorities to refuel their pirated Libyan Boeing 727 and took off for Tehran at 2:15 a.m. (6:15 p.m. Iowa time Tuesday), Lebanese authorities said.

The hijackers are members of a Moslem Shiite paramilitary sect and are demanding the release of their religious leader, who they say is held in Libya.

Iran is the only Moslem country in which the Shiite branch dominates, and the Lebanese hijackers may be looking for a more sympathetic reception there than other nations, including their own, have given them.

THE LEFTIST Latin American guerrillas who demanded a $30 million ransom landed in Havana after a seven-nation odyssey. The official Cuban press agency Prensa Latina said the passengers and crew were safe and resting.

Prensa Latina said the Avensa Boeing 727 and two Aeropostal DC-9s landed shortly before noon at Havana's Jose Marti International Airport — the apparent final destination of the two-day triple skyjack which was punctuated by repeated threats to kill the passengers and blow up the planes.

Prensa Latina gave no word on the fate of the 11 gunmen, who said they represented three guerrilla groups, one Puerto Rican, one Venezuelan and one See Hijacks, page 6

20-year-old eyes third management job

By Alyson C. Berg
Special to The Daily Iowan

He was selling cars when he was 16 and one year later he managed a salvage yard. Now at the age of 20, UI sophomore Mike Colwell is managing an Iowa City branch of his father's sports T-shirt business.

"I've usually gotten involved in things that my dad is doing," Colwell said. "Getting me involved in his business was my father's way of passing things on. That's why he wanted me to get involved in Jerseys Unlimited. It's basically a learning experience."

The business sells athletic clothes embossed with silkscreened and hand-sewn letters.

Colwell's father, Bill Colwell Sr., owns the Waterloo-based Jerseys Unlimited, Inc., and the car dealership where Mike sold cars. He also owned the salvage yard where Mike worked.

The elder Colwell said his parents were poor "so if I wanted something, I had to get it myself. I raised my kids the same way. I believe in having a child earn his own way."

"I'VE LET MIKE run the Iowa City branch of Jerseys Unlimited because Mike's a good salesperson. He's a good hustler and a good worker," he said.

Colwell said he obtained his Iowa City clientele by promoting his business before local groups. He works 25-30 hours each week and spends the rest of the week studying or relaxing. But despite his workload, he wants to replace his present operation with an Iowa City clothing store by August and manage it full time.

For now, the T-shirt business comes first and school second, Colwell said.

But Colwell's father said the only stipulation Mike has to meet in order to run the Iowa City outlet is to keep his grades up.

Next year, in addition to managing the store, Colwell plans to attend school part-time and work on his bachelor's degree in business. "I may not be working in this business for the rest of my life, so I'll need my degree if I ever have to go out and look for something else," he said.

Colwell is not afraid of the future because he said he is a hard worker, and that he will work through any difficult times he might encounter.

"PEOPLE TODAY try to get their business too big at first," Colwell said. "My goal is to make my store small at first, then if I should lose money on it, I won't lose big."

Colwell was heavily involved in business while he was a high school student, but he said the experience more than compensated for the social life he missed.

"I matured a lot sooner than most people my age, but I liked that," he said. "I was honored that I had this much responsibility. My dad trusted me to a job that he couldn't be there every minute to supervise."

Colwell said that many people were shocked that a high school student was capable of selling cars. He said he didn't make it a point to tell people he was only 16 when he was selling a car, but that if they asked he would tell them.

"If it did come out later that I was younger than they had originally thought, I had already made a good impression, and that was what was the most important thing," Colwell said. "That first impression is the most important thing in business."

13 killed in Tenn. mine blast

PALMER, Tenn. (UPI) — Thirteen coal miners were killed Tuesday in an explosion that ripped through a mine shaft and buried them in rubble nearly a quarter mile from the surface.

The third Appalachian coal mine disaster in six days collapsed a shaft of Tennessee Consolidated Coal Co.'s Mine No. 21 about noon (Iowa time).

Ky. mine blast kills eight

TOPMOST, Ky. (UPI) — Rescue crews took eight dead men from a narrow shaft in an explosion-torn mountain coal mine Tuesday, and miners at the pit entrance said the thunderous blast might have been triggered by dynamite.

State and federal officials planned to inspect the Adkins Coal Co. No. 18 mine Wednesday and issue a report by noon on the cause of the explosion.

Recession called 'bad one'

DALLAS (UPI) — The senior economist for the congressional Joint Economic Committee predicted Tuesday the recession will get worse before it gets better and the rate of unemployment could reach 10 percent.

"We are in a recession and it's a bad one," Dr. Robert Weintraub said in a news conference prior to his speech to Southwest Corporate Federal Credit Union's 1981 Economic Forum. "But we will get out of it."

Deficit could cause tax hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amid estimates that the 1982 budget deficit could reach a staggering $109 billion, President Reagan met with top economic advisers Tuesday to consider new austerity moves and the increasing likelihood of a tax hike.

The president got the bad news from budget director David Stockman during an afternoon meeting in the Cabinet room.

Affirmative action defended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Civil rights lawyer Joseph L. Rauh Jr. Tuesday urged continuation of the government's affirmative action program, saying unequal job opportunities for women and minorities remain "a national scandal."

His testimony was termed "nonsense" by black economist Walter E. Williams, who said Congress should abolish the affirmative action program and repeal the Davis-Bacon Act.

FTC files against Mobil

(UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission decided Tuesday to file suit to block Mobil Corp.'s $6.5 billion takeover bid for Marathon Oil Co. on grounds the merger of the two oil companies would violate federal antitrust laws.

The FTC, in a unanimous vote, agreed to file suit charging the merger may substantially reduce competition in the wholesale markets of gasoline and other distillates in about a dozen Midwestern metropolitan areas.

Hultman vote stirs Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's nomination of Evan Hultman Tuesday as Iowa's Northern District U.S. attorney set the stage for a showdown in a Senate panel, where Hultman's main backer admits there could be trouble.

"The only way it can be stopped is if there is a unanimous vote of the Democrats against it," Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, said of the nomination.

One Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee, Sen. Orrin G. Hatch of Utah, already has said he will oppose Hultman because of allegations that he engineered a cover-up in a grand jury proceeding.

"Hatch said he would vote against the nomination, but he wouldn't fight it," said Grassley, Hultman's main supporter and also a committee member.

With Hatch's opposition, Democratic members of the panel, if they banded together, could garner enough votes to block the president's nomination.

Hultman, 56, has already served in the U.S. attorney post under the Nixon and Ford administrations.

McSparen unable to stand trial

The Jan. 11, 1982, first-degree murder trial of an Illinois woman accused of killing her two young sons has been indefinitely suspended.

According to Johnson County District Court records, Mildred McSparen, 28, of Lomax, Ill., is "in a state of coma," and is unable to stand trial. Judge Robert Osmundson ruled that her trial be suspended as requested by her attorney, Douglas Olson, of Coralville.

McSparen was charged in connection with poisoning her 6-year-old son Stephen McSparen in April while he was a patient at UI Hospitals. She is scheduled to go on trial in Des Moines County in April for the poisoning death of her 9-year-old son Michael.

McSparen attempted suicide Friday night and was found hanging from a strip of blanket in her Johnson County jail cell. Officials said she was not breathing at the time she was discovered.

She remained comatose and in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Mercy Hospital Tuesday night.

Eight home break-ins reported

Burglars were on the prowl again Monday, as the Iowa City Police Department received reports of eight attempted or confirmed break-ins at local residences.

Marie McIlree, 411 Fairchild St., told police that eight silver half-dollars were stolen from her home when burglars broke in sometime between 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. and ransacked the drawers.

Two other residences on the 400 block of Fairchild were the scenes of burglary attempts Monday. One resident told police he saw a tall, slender white male suspect in a gray sweat shirt running from the scene of an attempted break-in at 421 Fairchild St.

Fire: A fire that broke out behind a fireplace early Tuesday caused an estimated $4,500 damage to an apartment rented to a UI student, according to Iowa City Fire Department records.

A fire department official said the fire probably started when some type of lighter fluid leaked down a hole in a metal fireplace and ignited the framing behind it in an apartment rented to Reed Foster, 359 Willowind Place.

The fire department handled the blaze at shortly after 4 a.m., according to a fire department official.

Coming up roses

Very few UI students realize the extent of the sacrifice, in terms of time and energy, undertaken by student senators in service to the student body: regular senate meetings, service on nine senate committees and 11 senate commissions. And the regular classwork with which each student must cope.

Now the senate has added yet another burden to its list of duties. It passed a resolution last Thursday requiring certain senate officers to serve as student tour aides for the upcoming senate-sponsored Rose Bowl tour. Student tour aides will provide services to students on the tour in return for free trips to the Rose Bowl.

There will be one tour aide for every 50 students on the tour. Senate officers will not be the only ones forced to accept this free trip to Pasadena — the director of campus programs and spouse and presidents of various student organizations will also have to make the trip. All told, 30 aides will be needed for the 1,500 tour seats.

The aides will perform such services as necessary during the trip. It is to be expected that these may include directing traffic, preventing or breaking up fights between Hawk and Husky fans and checking out airport or hotel bars to see if they are safe to enter. Of course, the aides will have the compensation of seeing the Rose Bowl game, albeit live and without the benefit of expert commentary and slow motion replays.

It seems unfair to expect senate officers, who already devote so much of their time and energy to serving others, to take on this added responsibility alone. Perhaps they could share the burden with some other UI students. Perhaps a lottery could be created to open up this onerous task to students willing to shoulder one more job for their alma mater.

Prelude to war?

The United States should be at war in Central America some time next year — if Secretary of State Alexander Haig has his way. Or so it appears. Last week, at an Organization of American States' General Assembly, Haig stated that the arms buildup in Nicaragua was the "prelude to a widening war in Central America." Haig singled out a reported 1500 Cuban military advisers in Nicaragua as the catalysts. He hinted that the Nicaraguans were sending pilots to Bulgaria for MIG flight training, and that the Nicaraguans expected to receive a squadron or more of the Russian fighters from Cuba soon. He did not mention increased American support for Honduras, Guatemala and, most obviously, El Salvador.

For years the United States has been looking for a way to get at Fidel Castro and there are indications that this administration is laying the groundwork to do that in the future. By implementing policies which push the government in Nicaragua further to the left, in fact helping to create a "Marxist" government in Nicaragua, the United States will thus supply itself with a reason to intervene there.

By denying the Sandinista government the foreign aid necessary to rebuild its economy, the Reagan administration has forced the Nicaraguans to turn to sources the Americans cannot influence: the Soviets and the Cubans. It would not, conceivably, take much force to oust the Sandinistas. And after that?

Draft registration is already in place, the CIA has been given a longer, looser leash to look into American lives, and there is a war waiting for American troops — maybe. Tonkin Gulf here we come? But who remembers the Tonkin Gulf resolution?

Reforming reforms

Rumors are circulating that longtime Democratic politicians wish to reform their former reforms. Although that line is reminiscent of the madhatter's tea party, this revision attempt could seriously decrease the political influence of the American voter.

The reforms the political revisionaries particularly want to repudiate concern the selection of a presidential candidate. Until the 1968 election this was largely an inner party backroom affair; despite the gaudy display of "democracy" on the convention floor, the real power was manipulated by a few influential bigwigs — remember Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley? — who often controlled slates of uncommitted delegates.

The purportedly idealistic reason for the change is that the post 1968 rules have produced presidential candidates not of presidential stature — George McGovern, Jimmy Carter — while the old ways had produced admirable candidates like Franklin Roosevelt and Adlai Stevenson.

Closer examination shows the real reason to be a pragmatic one: the Democrats' influence brokers were unable to exercise sufficient control over candidates who were outside the mainstream of "old-buddy" politics, who owed their candidacy to a populist groundswell rather than to wheeler-dealing.

As for the quality of previous presidents, well, America has done much worse than Jimmy Carter. The roll call of American presidents abounds in the inept or mediocre; the great are few and far between. Most famous of all backroom deals was the Republicans' selection of Warren Harding during a deadlocked convention. An inept president, Harding's principal legacy to America was the Teapot Dome scandal. At least under the Democrats' present system, average citizens can be significantly involved in the choice.

Cold cruel treatment of Haitians

BOCA RATON, Fla. — When you're sitting in sunshine and 80-degree temperatures, it is hard to imagine icicles and blood hanging from the armpits of the Statue of Liberty.

But when you think about what our government is doing to the Haitians who have fled the wretched Duvalier tyranny, icicles and blood symbolize accurately the way this Justice Department is defiling the lady with the torch who has for so long welcomed so many tired and huddled masses, yearning to be free.

Thousands of Haitians now incarcerated in Puerto Rico and in the Krome Avenue detention center in Miami, already have been treated so miserably that their threats of mass suicide must be taken seriously. Still, the Reagan administration is going to take many of these wretched people, who have spent their entire lives in the tropics, and put them in a veritable concentration camp at Fort Drum, N.Y., where they will live in decaying, uninsulated barracks built in 1940 and have to endure temperatures that drop to 35 below zero.

Pneumonia and frostbite will get hundreds of these Haitians (and a few "undesirable" Cubans) at Fort Drum long before they can exercise impulses toward suicide.

WHAT THIS administration is doing, in the interest of partisan politics, will one day rank in infamy alongside the treatment of Japanese citizens during World War II — if Americans ever really came to give a damn about Haiti or the Haitians.

In many respects, these Haitians would be better off if they committed some heinous crime and got sent to prison. There they could not be subjected to "cruel and unusual punishment," which wintertime incarceration at Fort Drum surely is. Most Americans treat their dogs more humanely than the Haitians and some Cubans are being treated.

"So what? We didn't invite them," some Americans say.

I am aware that millions of Americans feel passionately that the United States must act ruthlessly to seal off its borders and stop the oncoming tide of illegal aliens. These Americans argue that aliens grab up jobs at a time when nine million U.S. citizens are unemployed, with the number rising dramatically. They argue that the flood of aliens has put an intolerable strain on welfare and other social services, including the public school system. So these Americans will adopt the Reagan policy, which seems to be "treat them so beastly that they'll soon beg to be sent back to Haiti!" — notwithstanding the likelihood that returnees will face quick "retribution" at the hands of the Duvalier dictatorship.

THE QUESTION IS: Why doesn't the United States adopt a policy that makes it clear which aliens get locked up, and which ones do not? Most of the best restaurants in Washington, New York, Los Angeles and other cities would probably close immediately if all their employees who are in the United States illegally were arrested and exiled to Fort Drum.

President Reagan's corporate-farmer friends and rich ranchers out West would be in a mess, and raising hell, if the United States arrested and locked up all their Mexican workers who entered the United States illegally — many transported here by the farmers and ranchers.

The Haitians are but a ripple in the incessant tide of people who enter the United States illegally, seeking comfort and protection from years of tyranny, or looking for "a good life."

Why this singling out of the Haitians and the "undesirable" Cubans for a display of shameful cruelty? Spokesmen and lawyers for the Haitians say "blatant racism" is the answer. But much of this outrage can be explained in the arithmetic of politics. A lot of Americans will vote against those who extend a hand to "the aliens." Not many Americans will cast a single-issue vote against those who treat Haitians cruelly.

"THE POLITICS of this can be brutal," said David Hiller, special assistant to the U.S. attorney general. Hiller was acknowledging to the Miami Herald what is obvious to most Americans: that the traditional American open door for the politically brutalized and the economically and medically desperate is not going to get in the way of Republican opportunism. Arkansas Republican governor Frank White vowed to get the Cubans out of Fort Chaffee within a year, so a Reagan administration wanting to hold Arkansas surely isn't going to send Haitians there. Floridians are so upset about the massive influxes of Cubans and now Haitians that freshman senator Paula Hawkins has convinced the White House that her state is no place for a permanent settlement of Haitians.

But Hiller and his bosses surely know that where troublesome human issues are involved, politics is not brutal. It is politicians who are brutal.

'DI' missed Leary's messages

To the editor:

It was unfortunate that the reporter at the Timothy Leary event (DI, Dec. 1) was unable to stay to hear the second half of the lecture, during which Leary discussed the necessity of space colonization as the next step in evolution. For the past several years Leary has been advocating what he calls "SMILE," which stands for Space Migration for Increased Intelligence and Life Extension. There was a much deeper message at the lecture than the drug jokes he felt obligated to tell during the first part.

Of course, we know that Leary is a drug crazed loon, yet he is only advocating ideas originally proposed by real scientists such as Gerald K. O'Neill of Princeton University, whose book The High Frontier presents the basic scientific and engineering details of building habitats out of lunar and asteroidal material with existing technology. O'Neill gives valid reasons why space should be colonized now.

For example, civilization cannot grow on Earth for much longer, because the increase of heat into the biosphere through increased energy usage will cause vast climatic changes.

such as the partial melting of the polar ice caps. While it's true that people in the United States and Europe can do much to conserve energy, this is not true of the majority of Earth's population. Third World nations must have a vast increase in energy usage to bring them to the adequate standards of agriculture and health care that they deserve.

Carl Sagan, testifying before Congress in 1976, stated: "Our technology is capable of extraordinary new ventures in space, one of which is the space city idea ... The engineering aspects of it as far as I can tell are perfectly well worked out by O'Neill's study group. It is practical."

But what right does anyone have to advocate this while billions of people starve? I think that most space advocates agree that social inequalities must be corrected now, yet at the same time there must be some investment of resources to solve the problem of ruining the Earth created by exceeding its physical limits. The resources needed to begin construction of cities floating in free space are insignificant compared to the resources the United States wastes on the insane nuclear arms race.

Space advocates aren't escapists; we generally think about the future on a longer time scale than that to which most people are accustomed.

Inappropriate emotion?

To the editor:

We had to chuckle when we read Charlie Lilly's review of Fran Ulke's review of Chuck Mangione's performance (DI, Dec. 2). Who is this Lilly and what qualifies him to discuss Ulke's qualifications for discussing the quality of Chuck Mangione's performance?

Lighten up, Lilly! Your letter betrays a fanatical obsession with insignificant facts about Chuck Mangione. So what if the reviewer wasn't aware that a particular song can be found on two different albums?

Then there's the monumental conflict over deciding whether or not the song "Chase the Clouds Away" can be described as a "bouncy pop number." As labels go, we find that description quite reasonable. Let's listen to the song without worrying about labeling it or taking music courses. And let's leave the hearing aid industry out of it — God knows they have enough trouble as it is.

Lilly, your amazing display of inappropriate emotion while accusing Ulke of an amazing display of ignorance over what amounts to amazingly insignificant points is amazingly dumb on your part. Don't you remember when your mother told you to mellow out and not get all bent out of shape over trivial matters? It's hard on your blood pressure.

Although the UI student government has the arbitrary right to grant recognition to student groups, it cannot take that right away unless the group violates policy.

When asked if he thinks the student government should have the right to restrict the recognition of student groups, Dixon said, "Yes. (Because) I think I have acted upon it (recognition) deal with responsibility."

Policy violations would impede CARP's status as student group

By Jackie Baylor
Staff Writer

Although the UI student government has the arbitrary right to grant recognition to student groups, it cannot take that recognition away unless the group violates UI policy.

UI Student Senate President Tim Dickson said Tuesday, "It's my feeling that the senate would never refuse a group (recognition) if it fulfills the requirements of the Student Activities Board. Every group has the right to free speech and access to UI buildings."

When asked if he thinks the student government should have the right to restrict the recognition of student groups, Dickson said, "Yes. (Because) I think we have acted upon it (recognition decisions) with responsibility."

The senate would only revoke a group's official recognition "if the group displays any action against UI policy," he said.

THE STATUS of the Collegiate Association for the Research of Principles will be reviewed by the board tonight. The group could find its status changed from that of a social or cultural group to a religious group because of its affiliation with the controversial Unification Church, headed by the Rev. Sun Myung Moon.

However, the board cannot change the status of the group. It can only make a recommendation to the senate.

"We (the board) cannot deprive a group to be recognized," said Bart Bycroft, board director. "We make sure that everything is in line. We are the bookkeepers."

Dickson asked for the review, because "if the group is a religious group, they should be recognized as a religious group."

BYCROFT SAID there are three different classifications under which a student group can be recognized.

• Permanent status, includes the right to use UI facilities, request Activities Center office space and to apply for student government funding. The groups are required to file annual recognition forms by Oct. 1. The group, whether academic or non-academic, must have a non-discriminatory membership policy and a constitution.

• Ad Hoc status, which lasts a maximum of one year and is non-renewable. Ad hoc groups can use UI facilities except for financial endeavors.

• Religious status, which allows groups to restrict membership to people of its faith. The group is permitted the use of UI rooms, but it is not eligible for funding or UI office space.

Cheaper heating modes adopted

When heating fuel was less expensive, Americans thought nothing of pushing up the thermostat and flooding their entire home with warmth on a cold winter day.

But many Americans are now working to reduce skyrocketing home fuel bills by heating only occupied rooms.

A number of devices, ranging from woodstoves to portable electric and kerosene heaters, are available on the market. The popularity of kerosene heaters has grown because of the advancements in design, materials and performance, and the passage in most states of legislation permitting their use in dwellings.

"If used correctly, the heaters pose a limited hazard. The danger comes from improper or careless use," Ervin Fuller, superintendent of fire protection engineering at Aetna Life and Casualty, said.

"Kerosene heaters appear to be an effective way to help reduce home fuel bills, and the recent approvals for use in many states will result in their widespread use," he said.

Childcare workshop to give parents insights into children's development

By Scott Sonner

Parents can learn how to better understand the behavior of their infant or toddler by attending a workshop tonight at the Iowa City Public Library.

The workshop, sponsored by the Johnson County Community Coordinated Child Care and the library, is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Meeting Room A.

Jane Rosenthal, former head teacher for infants and toddlers at the now-defunct UI Early Childhood Education Center, said her presentation will focus on parental expectations of children.

Tonight's presentation is designed to last about 45 minutes, followed by an "informal rap session," Rosenthal said. Such discussions help parents develop more realistic expectations of their children, she said.

"When they hear other parents' problems, it makes them realize they aren't out there by themselves."

BY UNDERSTANDING a child's developmental level parents can establish more realistic expectations and build better relationships with their child, she said.

Nora Roy, director of the county child care group, said parents often expect too much of their children, especially as they develop verbal skills.

Roy said her 3-year-old son's impressive use of words often causes her to expect him to have higher than average reasoning capabilities.

Parents base many of their expectations on the achievements of other parents' children, Roy said, and developmental stages are often expected to follow a timetable.

"A lot of parents still think the child has to walk by a certain age or talk by a certain age," Roy said. She said children who cannot sit up by age six months may be considered abnormal by parents.

"SOMETIMES parents have to lower or change their expectations," Roy said.

Rosenthal said much of a child's development depends on the individual child and parents. She said children develop at different rates and therefore require different approaches. She said she "warns (parents) against teaming up and doing things one way."

"Parents need to become confident in what they are doing" after they know what to expect, she said. While this is especially true with new parents, more and more parents of preschoolers say they do not know if they are "doing the right thing."

Roy said she thinks parents, especially women, are under more pressures today than they have been in the past.

"WOMEN ARE expected to be both a good mother and a working woman," she said. She said it is difficult to do both, and mothers end up feeling guilty because they think success at one means neglect of the other.

The workshop is the second in a series on understanding and developing relationships with children. A session on understanding and guiding the behavior of three- and four-year-old children's behavior is scheduled for Jan. 7 at the library.

Workshops are videotaped so they can be viewed at the library or checked out for viewing.

Absences block subcommittee action

By Elizabeth Flansburg
Staff Writer

A subcommittee meeting of policymakers for the Johnson County Council of Government lacked a quorum Tuesday, turning the scheduled official meeting on transportation for the elderly and handicapped into an unofficial rap session.

Three of the policymakers — Harold Donnelly, a member of the Johnson County Board of Supervisors; Robert Dvorsky, a member of the Coralville City Council; and Michael Finnegan, of the UI Business Office — did not attend the 2:30 p.m. meeting.

The fourth subcommittee policymaker, Iowa City Councilor David Perret, was present but late.

"I think we'll get signed affidavits from them next time," said John Lundell, Johnson County transportation planner. Lundell's assistant, Jeff Davidson, said he had notified all four of the policymakers on Monday and that all had said they would attend the Tuesday meeting.

FINNEGAN SAID Tuesday night that he had "other pressing things to do" at the time of the meeting and could not attend. Donnelly said he did not think he was supposed to be at the meeting and Dvorsky could not be reached for comment.

Although the scheduled "official" meeting was canceled, Lundell and Davidson presented five possible transportation alternatives for the elderly and handicapped to be considered by the committee.

The first alternative is to expand by two hours the hours of operation of SEATS, which transports people confined to wheelchairs. Currently SEATS operates from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and the proposal would expand the hours to 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Lundell said this proposal, which would cost an additional $5,355 annually, would make it easier for people confined to wheelchairs to be transported to and from work on a regular basis.

Another option would make use of local taxi companies, which would offer a 10 percent to 15 percent discount in fares, to transport the elderly and handicapped to work. The cost for a single person taking a taxi to work would be about $3 per day.

GINGER HEGG, a UI student who is confined to a wheelchair, said taking taxis is not a problem for most handicapped people but added, "it's the expense that's a problem on a fixed income."

There was also discussion of coordinating the SEATS program and the Bionic Bus, which is operated by Cambus and currently serves only UI students.

Dave Ricketts, Cambus coordinator, and Steve Kaiser, SEATS program manager, said the coordination of the programs is a possibility. But Kaiser said there could only be limited expansion due to the budget crunch.

Cambus is scheduled to receive a new Bionic Bus in January.

Another alternative is to sell the oldest Bionic Bus to a local group that could use it to transport people not connected with the UI. It would cost about $38,450 annually to operate the bus.

An alternative regarding coordination with vehicles used by Systems Unlimited and Grantwood Area Education Association was not extensively discussed, and does not seem to be viable.

UI doctor develops 'voice button'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A $20 plastic part now widely available allows persons without voiceboxes to speak.

The device is called the Panje Voice Prosthesis or a "voice button." It was developed by Dr. William R. Panje of the UI.

Surgeons anchor the device between the trachea and esophagus in a simple operation. Last year, 9,000 persons had the operation in the United States.

Panje said it makes possible clear and understandable speech for thousands who have had a cancerous larynx removed. Worldwide, one million have had such operations.

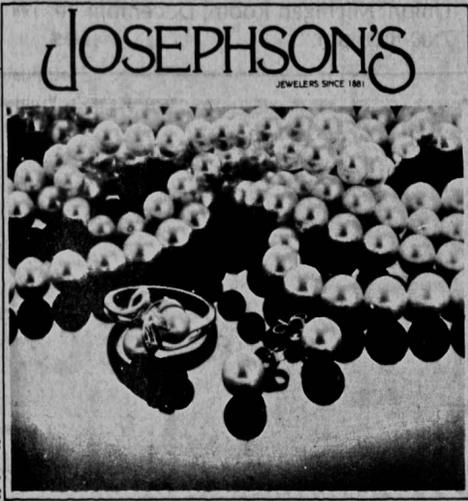

Senate to urge nomination for Fed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Tuesday to urge President Reagan to nominate a farmer or a person associated with small business to the Federal Reserve Board when the next vacancy comes up in January.

The Senate defeated an attempt to require the president to name a small, business representative or farmer, but voted 87-3 to accept Senate Republican leader Howard Baker's substitute that expresses the "sense of the Senate" that such a person be named.

Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, said that of the 60 people who had served on the Fed, only seven had agricultural or small business experience and none of these had served in the last 20 years.

Artful variations of student work viewed at Clapp

By Suzanne Richerson
Staff Writer

The 65 works currently on display in the lobby of Clapp Recital Hall testify to a number of directions that are possible in the visual arts. The show is the first of what the UI Fine Arts Council hopes will become an annual exhibit of student works.

Modeled after other juried competitions, the show was limited to students in art classes at the UI and many of the artists show a professional degree of both technical and conceptual proficiency.

The catalogue states that viewers are not to "presume that the works are by individuals so unformed or immature as to be considered amateurs," and in many cases, the works reveal deft use of their media.

ONE OUTSTANDING example is Anne Gochenour's large cast-iron cube of grids and interior patterns of interlacing metal, a piece of both strength and delicacy.

Another sculpture, by Brian Beck, has two stacked rectangles separated by a group of slabs arranged in circular staircase fashion that balance the form and give it a paradoxical appearance.

The show is dominated by pictures — photos, prints, paintings and drawings. Some, such as Judy K. Thomas's delightful variations on the theme of geometric shapes, "Explorations of the Universe," and Alesia Lacina's untitled oil, are exercises in line and color.

Others, like Pat Edwards' "Still Life," an oil on paper of textured reds and grays in weighty block forms that create a dense grouping on the picture plane or Charles Pompilius' self-portraits, concentrate on the possibilities of paint uses and techniques.

NOTABLE WORKS in printmaking techniques include Hartini E. Bahr's "Interior Scenes," three drypoint views which suggest depth by spare use of line, Michelle Edwards' lighthearted intaglio "Circus Days," with its balloon shapes and gentle shadings of blue and pink, and Karen Bloom Wellstead's "Glasses IV," an etching of four drinking glasses in which shapes mirror and reflect each other to fairly vibrate on the paper.

Some important media are missing; no examples of ceramics are represented nor are there any smaller metal works or large soft sculpture pieces. But as a debut of student art, the show marks the beginning of what promises to be an opportunity for artists to show their work and for the public to view developing talent.

The exhibit continues through Friday.

The Daily Iowan/Dirk VanDerwerker

"Still Life" is one of 65 student works on display in Clapp Hall.

Lennon mourners mark death with pleas for peace

By United Press International

Fans of John Lennon marked the first anniversary of his death Tuesday by singing his songs, making pilgrimages to Beatles landmarks, standing in silence and, in one city, scaling a skyscraper.

In Liverpool, England, a group of admirers that included many from the United States gathered outside the city's famed Cavern Club, where the Beatles got their start, to commemorate the singer-composer's death.

In San Francisco, Edwin Drummond, 36, and Lia Simnacher, 21, began an ascent of the 41-story tower of the Embarcadero Center at dawn and quickly attracted a crowd of cheering fans.

The couple was halted at the ninth floor by building officials who insisted that they descend for their own safety. But before they rappelled downwards, the climbers unfurled a banner reading "Imagine no arms." The slogan is an allusion to a pacifist song on Lennon's "Imagine" LP.

Once on the ground, the climbers were charged with trespassing and released on their own recognizance.

IN NEW YORK, a small group of followers stood quietly in a light, steady rain outside The Dakota, the apartment where Lennon lived and where he was fatally shot one year ago by Mark David Chapman, 25, a former security guard.

About 100 people stood outside the building. Another 25 stood inside a section of Central Park renamed "Strawberry Fields" for one of the group's songs.

"All we are saying, is give peace a chance," the fans sang. The phrase was one of Lennon's most famous.

Lennon's widow, Yoko Ono, 48, and their son, Sean, 6, were in seclusion and said to be meditating at their Long Island retreat in Cold Spring Harbor on Long Island's north shore.

Guidry leans toward A's

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Free agent pitcher Ron Guidry has given his personal word to Billy Martin he will give his ex-manager the last shot at signing him, making the Oakland A's the favorite to get the All-Star left-hander if he decides not to return to the New York Yankees.

John Schneider, Guidry's agent, said Tuesday the A's have made an attractive offer that he will present to his client Wednesday night. Schneider said he will then meet with Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner Thursday to see if the Yankees will come up with the dollars necessary to retain Guidry.

"MY CONVERSATION with (A's owner) Roy Eisenhardt was one of the two best I've had in negotiations," said Schneider. "The other was with Kansas City. Roy's words were if he (Guidry) didn't sign with the Yankees, he's got an attractive offer for him. It is an alternative to the Yankees and a deal which he could live with."

"Ron will have to make a decision and he will make that tomorrow night. When I meet with the Yankees Thursday, Mr. Steinbrenner will have the opportunity to give us what we're asking. It might only be a courtesy meeting with the Yankees."

Schneider admitted he was playing a type of poker game with Steinbrenner. Although he has been quoted as saying that Guidry won't sign with the Yankees for less than five years at $7.5 million, Schneider said the money figure and length of contract wasn't necessarily fixed.

"RON SAID THERE is a minimum that he will insist upon from the Yankees," said Schneider. "For all George knows it's five years at $7.5 million. I have the face card down. I know what the card is. George doesn't know if it's a ten or a two, $7.5 million or less. I know what Ron is firm at."

Meanwhile, Chicago Cubs General Manager Dallas Green has shaken up the winter baseball meetings with the acquisition of players from the team he used to manage, the Philadelphia Phillies.

Green traded hard-hitting catcher Keith Moreland and pitchers Dickie Noles and Dan Larson for pitcher Mike Krukow and a player to be named later. Additionally, Green signed two free agent pitchers, Ferguson Jenkins, formerly of the Texas Rangers and one-time Cy Young Award winner with the Cubs, has agreed to a one-year contract. The other is reliever Bill Campbell of the Boston Red Sox, who signed a three-year, $1.2 million contract with Chicago.

In other baseball news, the New York Yankees have signed Manager Bob Lemon to a "lifetime contract," with a guarantee to manage the team through at least 1982. The signing of Lemon dispelled rumors of former Yankee skipper Gene "Stick" Michael returning to manage the club.

Sports bring Iowa City fame

By Randy Minkoff
United Press International

CHICAGO — Where is the sports capital of the United States?

Is it Los Angeles, home of the Dodgers and Lakers? Maybe Philadelphia, where the Eagles, Phillies and 76ers toil. Possibly New York, host to the Yankees and Jets.

For the next couple of months, look for the sports world to center on Iowa City, Iowa.

For so many years, the Iowa Hawkeyes toiled in national obscurity. Occasionally the wrestling team would grab a few headlines with its perennially strong program. The basketball program had its moments in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

BUT IOWA IS ON a roll now. The football team shared the Big Ten championship and is preparing for the Rose Bowl. And the basketball team threatens to pursue the momentum it built the past several years toward a league championship and possible national crown.

Coach Lute Olson's team was a final four participant two years ago and rivaled Indiana as one of the best teams in the Big Ten last year. The Hawkeyes lost their twin towers, Steve Kraficisin and Steve Waite, but landed one of the top preps in the country in Michael Payne.

In addition, Kevin Boyle returns and he may be the best overall player in the conference. He isn't flashy, won't lead the league in scoring, but when tournament time comes, he could be to Iowa what Isiah Thomas was to defending league champion and NCAA titlist Indiana.

DON'T FEEL SORRY for Bobby Knight at Indiana. Thomas and Ray Tolbert graduated and Landon Turner was injured in a traffic accident. But Knight is the league's best coach and returns a solid unit in Randy Wittman, Ted Kitchel, Jim Thomas, Steve Bouchie and 7-foot-2 freshman Uwe Blab. Look for the Hoosiers and Hawkeyes to battle again for the league title.

Here's a guess at the outcome of the league race:

1. Iowa
2. Indiana
3. Minnesota
4. Purdue
5. Illinois
6. Michigan
7. Michigan State
8. Ohio State
9. Northwestern

10. Wisconsin

Minnesota was the preseason pick of the coaches because of the number of veterans returning. But the Gophers were 19-11 with the same cast last year and the team at times looked lethargic. There is enough talent to win it all here, but I doubt it.

Illinois lost too much firepower to contend when Mark Smith and Eddie Johnson graduated. Ohio State, also a disappointment last year, must replace center Herb Williams.

MICHIGAN HAS AN outstanding freshman in Eric Turner and some good young talent. The Wolverines may start slow but should finish strong. Purdue will miss the injured Russell Cross early, but is a dark horse favorite for an NCAA bid along with improving Michigan State, which also has a blue chipper in freshman Sam Vincent.

Northwestern could be the sleeper team of the second division if it can avoid the type of disastrous injuries that plagued the Wildcats last year. A healthy Wildcat team could finish as high as seventh.

Wisconsin was 11-16 last year, lost its two top scorers and could be in for a long season battling the quality opposition in a conference that usually wins 75 percent of its non-conference games.

Malone shines after Bradshaw injures hand

OAKLAND (UPI) — The book on Mark Malone at Arizona State was "strong-armed scrapper, good on-field leadership and a sometimes dangerous runner."

Those aren't exactly what pro coaches look for in a quarterback, but the Pittsburgh Steelers must have seen something they liked about Malone or they wouldn't have drafted him three years ago.

What most pro teams want in a quarterback is an accurate passer, a six-foot-plus, 210-pounder who won't let linemen chase out him of the pocket and a man smart enough not to run with the ball unless it's for his life.

OF COURSE, AT PITTSBURGH, the Steelers had Terry Bradshaw, a durable quarterback who plays with pain. Malone didn't figure to get much of a chance unless calamity befell Bradshaw or the veteran retired.

Monday, in a 30-27 loss to the Oakland Raiders, Bradshaw suffered a broken right hand and is out of action for a least four weeks. Four weeks comes out to Jan. 10 when the AFC championship will be played.

So, if the Steelers had any hopes of reaching the AFC title game, Malone will have to be the man who leads them. In Monday's game, Malone completed 17 of 27 passes, mostly while on the run, for 244 yards and two touchdowns.

Gopher veteran top con

By Steve Batterson
Staff Writer

CHICAGO — The consensus sportswriters who cover Big Ten basketball is that Minnesota will win the conference championship this season. But Coach Jim Dutcher keeps a low profile, preferring to view the favorites role as only a token.

"We have more known quantities than that's why we're picked," Dutcher said. "One of our strengths is that we have some depth. We are a senior team in a year where the league doesn't have too many seniors."

"WE HAVE SIX GUYS who have played a lot of basketball in the Big Ten and you never know how the freshmen will come around," Dutcher said. "You're just not sure how they play."

The Gophers return all five starters off of a team that finished in a fifth place tie in the Big Ten last season. Minnesota completed the 19-11 season with a 80-69 loss to West Virginia in the quarterfinals of the National Invitation Tournament.

Leading the Gophers will be the man in the Big Ten, Randy Breuer, a foot-3 junior center who has scored points and grabbed 284 rebounds in first two seasons at Minnesota.

Breuer really doesn't like to play in Minnesota in the favorites role, "rather not be in that position," Breuer said. "It gives the other teams the incentive to beat us. Personally, I enjoy the underdog role."

BREUER SAID HE learned a lot playing behind Kevin McHale, a freshman year. "I learned a lot from him - not copied," Breuer said. "It's helpful when we used to play together because he used to draw the defense then I'd have an easy time under the net."

In addition to Breuer, Dutcher will be starting Gary Holmes and Dan Mitchell at the forward positions. Trent Tucker and Mark Hall at guard spots. Hall is ineligible this semester, but will be back for the Ten season beginning in January.

Dutcher doesn't believe that Hall will rejoin the team at semester's end cause any problems. "If he weren't senior it may have been a bit divisive," Dutcher said. "If nothing else will force us to build up our guard depth."

Gophers return veterans; may top conference

By Steve Batterson
Staff Writer

CHICAGO — The consensus of sportswriters who cover Big Ten basketball is that Minnesota will win the conference championship this season. But Coach Jim Dutcher is keeping a low profile, preferring to view the favorites role as only a token. "We have more known quantities and that's why we're picked," Dutcher said. "One of our strengths is that we have some depth. We are a senior team in a year where the league doesn't have too many seniors."

"WE HAVE SIX GUYS who have played a lot of basketball in the Big Ten and you never know how the new freshmen will come around," Dutcher said. "You're just not sure how they'll play."

The Gophers return all five starters off of a team that finished in a fifth-place tie in the Big Ten last season. Minnesota completed the 19-11 season with a 80-69 loss to West Virginia in the quarterfinals of the National Invitational Tournament.

Leading the Gophers will be the big man in the Big Ten, Randy Breuer, a 7-foot-3 junior center who has scored 697 points and grabbed 264 rebounds in his first two seasons at Minnesota.

Breuer really doesn't like to see Minnesota in the favorites role. "I'd rather not be in that position," Breuer said. "It gives the other teams the incentive to beat us. Personally, I enjoy the underdog role."

BREUER SAID HE learned a lot playing behind Kevin McHale his freshman year. "I learned a lot from him—not copied," Breuer said. "It was helpful when we used to play together because he used to draw the defense then I'd have an easy time underneath."

In addition to Breuer, Dutcher will be starting Gary Holmes and Darryl Mitchell at the forward positions and Trent Tucker and Mark Hall at the guard spots. Hall is ineligible this semester, but will be back for the Big Ten season beginning in January.

Dutcher doesn't believe that having Hall rejoin the team at semester will cause any problems. "If he weren't a senior it may have been a bit disruptive," Dutcher said. "If nothing else, it will force us to build up our guard depth."

Two freshman guards, Barry Wohler of Bird Island, Minn., and Tommy Davis of Aberdeen, Md., have been pleasant surprises to Dutcher so far this year and with Hall out, both of them should see action for the Gophers.

WHEN YOU'RE THE top team in the Big Ten your concerns may not seem to be quite as important as with a second division team. Instead of worrying about depth and what kind of an offensive team you are going to be, Dutcher is concerned about his team's free throw shooting and rebounding. "We just have to improve our free throws, we were 10th in the league last season," Dutcher said.

With a line-up as tall as the Gophers, it seems ironic their rebounding concern is real. However, even though the Gophers had a large height advantage against Loyola earlier this season, they were outrebounded and had to rally to earn a 61-60 win.

"WE DON'T HAVE a quick jumper on the team," Dutcher said. "We've been working hard on trying to improve our technique."

He is also interested in improving the Minnesota defense, which allowed Big Ten opponents to score at a 52.6 percent clip last season, ninth in the league. "That is pretty good evidence that we weren't playing good defense last year," Dutcher said. "We will probably be playing more man-to-man defense this year. We can't be a great team in the Big Ten if we can't improve our rebounding and defense."

The Gophers and the Hawkeyes split last season, with Minnesota taking a 60-48 win at the Field House and Iowa defeating the Gophers, 60-58 in overtime, at Williams Arena. The two teams meet at Minneapolis on Jan. 14 and in Iowa City on Feb. 27.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA will hold a news conference Wednesday and will announce its basketball team — the most successful in college history — will be placed on probation for two years and banned from this season's NCAA tournament.

The NCAA was expected to make the announcement Wednesday morning from its Kansas City, Kan., headquarters, and UCLA officials will respond to the NCAA's actions at the 10 a.m. PST news conference.

UCLA WAS ADVISED of the NCAA ruling several weeks ago and didn't appeal the decision.

Details of the charges haven't been made public, but it is known the NCAA began an inquiry into the school's basketball program in 1980 and it later became a full-scale investigation.

Part of the investigation dealt with the acquisition of late-model automobiles by four freshman players during the 1979-80 school year. Those players are Rod Foster, Michael Holton, Cliff Pruitt and Darren Daye. All are now juniors and members of the UCLA varsity team.

Earlier reports also said the NCAA probe included violations by the school that occurred before the 1979 season when Larry Brown — now coach of the NBA's New Jersey Nets — took over as the Bruins' head coach.

Wrestlers out West for dual competition

By Jay Christensen Sports Editor

Iowa's wrestling team opens a western swing of three dual meets tonight when it faces Arizona State in Tempe.

After the Arizona State meet, the Hawkeyes will challenge California-Bakersfield and Cal Poly Friday and Saturday.

California-Bakersfield is expected to be the Hawks' toughest meet. But it was on a similar trip two years ago that Iowa lost at Cal Poly. The defeat ended a string of 34 straight dual meet wins by the Hawkeyes.

MAYBE IOWA'S TEAM is hungry for competition other than themselves in the wrestling room. During a Monday practice, the three Banach brothers on the squad, Ed, Steve and Lou, got into what is more than a wrestling match.

Ed, the team's 177-pounder, and Steve, a reserve 190-pounder, got into a shoving match. Lou, the squad's heavyweight, came over to separate the two, tossing Steve down on the mat. Lou then punched Ed before Coach Dan Gable could stop the conflict. California-Bakersfield is a NCAA Division II school, but that hasn't stopped the Roadrunners from being a national power in Division I. They consistently finish in the top 20 nationally each year at the NCAA tournament.

RETURNING FOR California-Bakersfield this year are the Cuestras brothers. Adam is rated sixth nationally at 118 pounds and Dan is the top-ranked 126 pounder. Perry Shea at 158 pounds is rated third. Cal Poly suffered its first losing season last year in 19 years. The Mustangs were 6-8, but are expected to improve on that mark this year.

Arizona State is in a rebuilding year and isn't expected to severely test the Hawks.

Iowa's line-up is expected to be Barry Davis at 118, Scott Trizzino at 126, Jeff Kerber at 134, Kevin Dresser at 142, Lennie Zalesky at 150, Jim Zalesky at 158, Dave Fitzgerald at 167, Ed Banach at 177, Pete Bush at 190 and Lou Banach at heavyweight.

Marty Kistler, a freshman recruit from California, may also see action at 150 on the trip.

Funds used legally

TUCSON (UPI) —

Arizona Head Basketball Coach Fred Snowden said he could not recall in detail how he spent more than $9,000 he allegedly received from a $35,000 athletic recruiting slush fund.

However, Snowden said that he spent the money to build and promote the school's basketball program.

Second half comeback puts Baggers in finals

By Mike Condon Staff Writer

Nail It let a big second half lead dwindle, and the Baggers took advantage of some sloppy play to post a come-from-behind 35-32 win in semifinals of the intramural pre-holiday tournament.

Center John Hines led Nail It to a 22-16 lead at halftime with some strong inside play on the boards. Hines topped the Nail It scoring with 13 points and teammate Jeff Verhoff added eight points.

Nail It upped their lead to 30-22 with 4 minutes, 29 seconds left in the game before the Baggers proceeded to out-score Nail It, 13-2, for the remainder of the game.

FORMER HAWKEYE basketball player Randy Norton keyed the comeback. He connected on two long jumpers and a drive along the baseline to bring his team within two points.

The Baggers finally tied the game on a Randy Hodson jump shot with 1:36 remaining. After a Nail It turnover, the Baggers went into the four corners and drew a foul with :43 left. Marty McDonald hit one of two free throws. Nail It had an opportunity to take the lead, but missed a shot. Norton made two free throws to seal the win.

Intramurals

Nail It captain Randy Larson was upset by the loss. "We had a lot of turnovers and just couldn't get shots to drop," Larson said. "Our game plan was to get the ball inside, but it didn't do much good because we never did play defense."

Norton said his team was expecting a tough game from Nail It. "They have a good ball club," he said. "We are a balanced team and we have to play extremely hard in the final (game) to win."

All of Norton's points came in the second half. Despite having a sore knee, Norton said he will be ready for the finals.

Tippett, Roby named grid All-Americans

By Thomas W. Jargo
Staff Writer
and United Press International

Iowa's Andre Tippett and Reggie Roby each received another honor Tuesday as both were chosen to UPI's 1981 All-American team. They join Marcus Allen of Southern California, the Heisman Trophy winner and only college player to rush for more than 2,000 yards in a season, and Georgia sophomore running back Herschel Walker, on the select squad.

Hawkeyes to receive honors this week. Head Coach Hayden Fry has been named Coach of the Year by the Sporting News, and linebacker Mel Cole was voted the team's Most Valuable Player. Nose guard Pat Dean was named a second team All-American by UPI, while offensive guard Ron Hallstrom and Cole were honorable mention picks.

IOWA'S ROSE BOWL opponent, Washington, placed two individuals on the All-American team. Kicker Chuck Nelson and defensive tackle Fletcher

Jenkins were named as honorable mention selections.

Tippett and Roby were selected to their fifth All-American team this year. "That's wonderful," Roby said. "I never thought I'd get all these honors. I guess when you help your team, you help yourself."

Cole was very happy when he heard he was selected the Hawkeye's most valuable player. "It's a pleasure for me to be voted MVP by my teammates," Cole said. "On this team, it (the MVP) could have gone to anyone."

One of Cole's goals when he came to Iowa was to make an All-American team. "I thought I had a good enough year to make one of the teams," he said.

Allen and Walker are joined in the offensive backfield by tailback Curt Warner of Penn State and quarterback Jim McMahon of Brigham Young.

The voting for the team was conducted by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters from around the country.

STATISTICALLY, THE offensive backfield qualifies as the most potent foursome in All-American history.

Allen rushed for 2,342 yards, an average of 212.9 yards per game; Walker, second in the Heisman voting, rushed for 1,891 yards — third highest single-season total ever; Warner ran for 1,044 yards for a 6.1 average per carry and McMahon was the country's top-rated passer with 272 completions in 423 attempts for 3,555 yards and 30 touchdowns.

The Big Ten conference, with four teams in bowl games, placed seven players on the first team — two each from Wisconsin, Iowa and Michigan and one from Michigan State. The Pacific Ten conference was next with four players.

The second team is headed by Pittsburgh quarterback Dan Marino, the nation's second-rated passer. Marino, who threw for 34 touchdowns and 2,615 yards, is one of the three Pittsburgh players to be named on the second team. Joining Marino are teammates Emil Boures at center and Sai Sensuri at linebacker.

Hawkeye cage team rated fifth nationally

NEW YORK (UPI) — Preseason choice North Carolina retained its No. 1 basketball rating Tuesday in the first weekly balloting by UPI's Board of Coaches. Iowa, with a 4-0 record following a victory over Iowa State Tuesday, is ranked fifth in the poll.

Surviving two tough matches last week — a 74-67 win over Kansas and a 78-70 victory over Tulsa — the Tar Heels were voted into first place by 35 coaches as they raised their season's record to 3-0.

Probably the biggest disappointment was UCLA, skidding from No. 2 to No. 20. The Bruins, who have been hit with two years of probation for violating recruiting rules, are 2-2 for the season. Georgetown was not as lucky, dropping from No. 5 right out of the top 20 after losing to Southwestern Louisiana and Ohio State.

KENTUCKY RECEIVED six first place votes and 557 points, 60 less than North Carolina, to gain the No. 2 slot in the ratings after beating Akron and Ohio State.

Rounding out the elite, from No. 3 through No. 10, were Louisville, Virginia, Iowa, Wichita State, DePaul, Indiana, Minnesota and Arkansas.

Missouri, with 146 points, headed the second 10 and there were two giant steps by teams moving up to the next two positions in the ratings. A Gene Bartow-coached Alabama-Birmingham team moved up from No. 17 to No. 12 and Nevada-Las Vegas, coached by Jerry Tarkanian, soared from No. 20 to No. 13.

San Francisco, Oregon State, Tulsa, Southwest Louisiana, Villanova and Alabama occupied the ratings from 14th through 19th places this week.

UCLA still retained some prestige on court by being included in the top 20. The Bruins and Tulsa (2-1) are the only teams among the top 20 with losses in their records.

Iowa breezes past Cyclones in 79-68 win

By Mike Kent
Staff Writer

What started out to be a typical grudge match between Iowa and Iowa State Tuesday in Ames, soon turned into a 79-68 breeze for the Hawkeyes, the country's fifth-rated basketball team.

Michael Payne, Iowa's 6-foot-11 freshman center, came off the bench to score 17 points to lead the Hawks' victory. The win, which raised Iowa's record to 4-0, pleased Head Coach Lute Olson.

"It was a good ball game for us in a lot of different ways," Olson said. "It was another road game and I thought we played with a lot of confidence and more poise than we've shown. It was the strongest game that we've had against Iowa State since I've been here."

AFTER THE GAME'S opening minutes, it appeared as if it would be another knock-down, drag-out contest between the two intrastate rivals. The game started off with a fast pace, as the Hawks raced to an early 8-3 lead on the hot shooting of guard Bob Hansen.

But the Cyclones, 2-2, quickly recovered and led, 15-12, after freshman Barry Stevens scored two of his game-high 18 points. The game remained close until the last 4 minutes, 6 seconds of the first half when Iowa held a 31-28 lead.

From there, the Hawks stretched their lead with the help of six unanswered points, and were comfortably ahead at intermission, 43-32.

In the second half, a Kevin Boyle tap-in extended Iowa's lead to 53-38. Iowa State, after a timeout, managed to cut the deficit to 61-54 on a Stevens' jump shot, but that was the closest the Cyclones would get.

Iowa guard Kenny Arnold then re-enterted the game and slowed the tempo down. The slower pace aided the Hawks in regaining control of the game. Iowa quickly built its lead back up into double figures and kept it that way for the remainder of the game.

OLSON OFFERED NOTHING but praise for the Cyclones. "Iowa State played with a lot of poise tonight," he said. "I think they'll win a lot of games in the Big Eight from what I've seen."

Payne, who did not start the game because of an ankle injury, was pressed into action when the Cyclones grabbed an early lead. Olson said it was the first time Payne ran on his ankle since hurting it.

"He played good defense on the outside," Olson said. "Offensively, he still wants to take the ball up with one hand. He's got to learn in the Big Ten that he has to take the ball up with two hands."

Freshman Greg Stokes, who started in place of Payne, scored six points. "The game was a motivator for Stokes," Olson said. "We started him and he's got a taste of what it is now. He was really fired up both on the floor and on the bench."

Iowa State center Ron Falenschek scored 12 points and pulled down 11 rebounds. Freshman guard Paul Beene added 15 points.

The Hawks committed just 11 turnovers compared to the Cyclones who lost the ball 23 times.

At last, a stereo component designed to improve the 2 weak links in every system—The source and the room.

AUDIO CONTROL D520 EQUALIZER.
$130.

You know the symptoms—Bass that sounds like an elephant wading thru mud, or a classical record where the strings sound like electric guitars. A good equalizer, with its precise tone control, can both improve your speakers response in your listening room, and allow you to change the tonal balance of any recording to suit your ears. THE AUDIO CONTROL D520 EQUALIZER is that kind of equalizer.

And have we got a deal for you! FREE, with any equalizer purchased until Christmas, we will measure the frequency response of your speaker in your room. This real-time analysis is worth $50 and it's yours free, for Christmas.
