Reagan raps Soviets for Poland clamp

President Reagan began his New Year's Day address by lecturing the Soviet Union. "The Warsaw government might think long and hard about its present policies if it wants to preserve any hope of a better future for its people," he said.

REAL KICK 'ROBY

Robin was the last member of the team to come in. He had seemed to be doing well until he was held back by a back injury when they went past the higher level. The higher level was not to be crossed, which had caused Robin to receive a yellow card. However, Robin was able to continue with the team and make his mark on the game.

Warsaw reporter: Rumors abound in shaken nation

The following day, the Warsaw government was in turmoil. Witnesses reported that the government building was on fire, and many people were feared to be dead or injured.

"We're not sure what happened," one witness said. "But we heard that there was a bomb explosion at the government building." Other witnesses reported hearing gunshots and seeing smoke coming from the building.

Yule tidings elude some foreign students

For many foreign students attending the University of Iowa this year, Christmas was a bittersweet time. While they enjoyed the traditional stress of holiday shopping and travel, they also faced the reality of being away from home.

"It's hard to think about Christmas when you're so far away from home," one student said. "But I try to make the best of it and focus on the positive aspects of being here." Other students described the holiday season as a time for reflection and appreciating the culture and traditions of the host country.

"I love the traditions and customs here," another student said. "It's a wonderful way to experience a new culture and learn more about different traditions."

DUBLIN (UPI) - Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir Friday confirmed that his Government had decided to begin construction of a new settlement in the Lebanese occupied Golan Heights.

First Settlers

An Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman said the new settlement would be named after Yitzhak Shamir, the Israeli Prime Minister, and will be named after the late Yitzhak Shamir.

Shamir had approved the new settlement earlier this year and it was expected to be completed within the next two years.

The settlement will be located on the Golan Heights, an area which was captured by Israel from Syria in the 1967 Six-Day War.

The decision to build the new settlement is likely to be seen as a move to assert Israeli sovereignty over the Golan Heights, which Israel has occupied since 1967.

The Golan Heights are a strategic area with important water resources and vital to Israel's national security.

The new settlement will be the first to be built on the Golan Heights, which has been a source of tension with Syria.

The Israeli Government has repeatedly announced its intention to build settlements in the Golan Heights, which is a sensitive issue in the Israeli-Palestinian peace process.

Hill's couples files negligence suits

By Allan M. Miller

A Hill's House husband and wife each filed about $21,000 negligence suits Thursday against Rockwell City and the Rockwell City Community School Board because the couple's car, which was parked in the Rockwell City Public Library parking lot, was reportedly struck by another vehicle. The suit noted that because the city does not provide enough parking spaces and parking rules are unenforced, the couple's vehicle was reportedly struck by a car that was parked in the area.

The Hill's House suit alleged that the city was negligent in failing to maintain the parking lot, which is located near the Rockwell City Public Library. The suit also claimed that the city was responsible for the damages caused by the parking lot.

Reform school may relocate

By Janis K. Miller

The Rockwell City School Board voted Thursday to relocate the Rockwell City schools to a new site on the north side of the city. The Board has been considering a new site for the schools for several months and has been working with the Rockwell City Planning Commission to develop plans for the new site.

The new site would be located near the Rockwell City Public Library and would provide more space for the schools. The Board has also been working with the Rockwell City Economic Development Commission to attract new businesses to the area.

Visitors flock to improved Car Wash Lake

Since the opening of the Car Wash Lake during May, the number of visitors has increased by 200 percent. The improvements made to the lake include the addition of a new boat ramp, the installation of new docks and the addition of new concession stands.

John Herring, the owner of Car Wash Lake, said that the improvements have attracted many new visitors to the lake. "We have been pleasantly surprised by the number of visitors we have had this summer," Herring said.

The lake is located near the Rockwell City Public Library and is open to the public. The lake is open from 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. daily, weather permitting.

Peace hopes reduced

The decision this week of the Israeli government virtually to renounce the peace treaty with Egypt and its commitment to a "Golany" plan for a U.S.-held demilitarized zone along the Israeli-Syrian border is a significant setback for those who hoped for a Middle East peace settlement.

Clearly the Israeli thought had little chance of coming to an agreement with Syria. It is that Syria has kept to a limit that the treaty with Egypt was of little or no value. It has shown no willingness to recognize Israel's right to exist and to negotiate a peace treaty.

But Syria has its own internal problems that make such moves extremely difficult. In Syria's government is controlled by members of a religious minority and it is subject to increasing criticism of the West for its policies toward the Jewish people.

The recent elections in Syria, which were held in April, are a case in point. The elections were held in April, and the government has shown no willingness to recognize the right of the Jewish people to exist and to negotiate a peace treaty.

Energy Department

The U.S. Department of Energy, which has an alphabetized, intellectual and historical role, may be in its way out. Most of its functions are transferred to other federal agencies.

President Reagan is of the opinion that the department of Energy is an unnecessary, bloated, bureaucratic mess. It has been reduced to its smallest size, and its functions are now transferred to other agencies.

Pots and pans

One wouldn't think that a freshman at a public university is living in a dormitory, would he? And yet dormitories, as a whole, can be a place of great excitement and adventure.

I've lived in a dormitory at the University of Iowa, and I have to say that it was one of the best experiences of my life. I had a roommate who was a total freak, and I had to live with him for a whole year. But it was all worth it, because I got to experience the dorm life.

On one occasion, we had a dormitory party that lasted all night. The party started at midnight and ended at dawn, and we had a lot of fun.

I also had a lot of classroom experiences that I'll never forget. The classes were small, and the professors were really great. They were always willing to help us, and they were always willing to listen to our ideas.

Unfortunately, I had to leave the dormitory after my freshman year, but I'll always remember those good times. They were some of the best years of my life.

If you are Rose Bowl bound...

If you are planning to make the trip to the Rose Bowl, I'd like to offer some advice on how to survive your trip.

First, you should try to fly on a budget airline. This will save you a lot of money, and it will also give you more time to explore the city.

Second, you should try to stay in a hotel downtown. This will give you a chance to see the sights of downtown Los Angeles, and it will also give you a chance to go to the beach.

Third, you should try to rent a car. This will give you a chance to see the sights of the city, and it will also give you a chance to go on longer trips.

In conclusion, I would like to say that the Rose Bowl is a great experience, and I would encourage everyone to take part in it. It's a great way to see the sights of Los Angeles, and it's also a great way to see the sights of downtown.

"I can't provide the American people with the true picture of the American economy," said Larry Speakes, White House deputy press secretary, at a press conference this morning.

"I'm afraid to report the truth because it would be too hard for the American people to understand."

I'm not sure if this is a joke or not, but it is a good example of the way the Reagan administration is trying to cover up the truth about the economy.

Burger with a bite

At the McAlisters' Air Force Base mess hall in Maine, the cost of a meal is only $1.99. The burgers are not only delicious, but also a great value for the money.

"The burgers are really good," said one customer. "I've been coming here for years and I never get tired of them."

Dear Mr. Reagan,

I am writing to express my concern about the rising cost of living in the United States. As a member of the working class, I have noticed a significant increase in the prices of basic necessities such as food, housing, and healthcare.

I am particularly concerned about the rising cost of food. I have to budget carefully to make sure I can afford to buy enough food to feed my family. This is a huge burden, especially during the holiday season.

I would like to suggest some solutions to this problem. First, I believe the government should implement policies that incentivize farmers to produce more food. This would help lower the cost of food, making it more affordable for all Americans.

Second, I think the government should provide more assistance to low-income families. Food stamps and other forms of financial support can help ensure that everyone has access to nutritious food.

I hope you will consider these suggestions and take action to address the rising cost of living.

Sincerely,

John Doe

Katie goes home for normal life

CEDAR RAPIDS (UPI) -- Katie Burford played quietly in the pediatric unit at St. Luke's Hospital Thursday, holding the arm of her 3-year-old sister, Katie, who had been a patient in the hospital ward since age four months because of a brain tumor.

Katie's parents, Rachel and Mark Burford, were still planning to leave town to visit friends and family, but the hospital said the family was free to leave at any time.

"We're just so grateful," said Rachel, who has been interviewed on national television since the child's diagnosis. "She's been such a strong kid."

Ebbets Field was one of the greatest baseball stadiums ever built, but it's not the one that's remembered best in the minds of Americans. That honor goes to the stadium that was built in 1954 and was home to the New York Yankees until 1973. It's called the Polo Grounds, and it was the site of some of the most iconic moments in baseball history, including the home runs hit by Babe Ruth and Mickey Mantle. It's also the place where the first World Series was played, and where Lou Gehrig made his famous farewell speech.

The stadium was originally built as a replacement for the old Polo Grounds in 1913, and it served as the home of the New York Giants until 1957. In 1969, the Giants moved to San Francisco to become the San Francisco Giants, and the New York Mets moved into the Polo Grounds to become the New York Mets.

In 1973, the Polo Grounds was demolished and replaced with a housing project. The site is now known as Hillcrest Park, and it's one of the few remaining reminders of the stadium's past.

While the Polo Grounds may not be around anymore, its legacy lives on through the memories of those who played there, and the stories of the great moments that were witnessed there. It's a place that will always be remembered as one of the greatest baseball stadiums ever built.

In the early days of the NCAA season, the battle over women's athletics was fought across the country. In 1981, the Nebraska women's basketball team was looking to bring home their first Big Ten championship.

The Huskers were coming off a successful season in 1980, but there was much to prove in 1981. The team was led by head coach Sarah Tressler, who had taken over after the previous coach was fired for cause.

Tressler was determined to make a mark at Nebraska, and the team's performance in their first game of the season was a good sign. Against Western Illinois, the Huskers won 87-67, with center Jane Curran scoring 20 points and guard Susan George adding 15.

As the season progressed, the Huskers continued to improve. Their next game was against Missouri, and they came away with a 78-69 victory. Curran led the way with 18 points, while George added 15 again.

The Huskers' success continued as they headed into conference play. In their first Big Ten game, against Iowa, Nebraska won 88-68, with Curran scoring 22 points.
George added 13, and the team made a total of 11 three-pointers.

With their confidence growing, the Huskers looked to take on their next challenge: the annual Border Battle with Missouri. This was a grudge match, as both teams had a history of playing each other heavily. However, Nebraska emerged victorious, with Curran scoring 19 points and George adding 12.

As the season came to a close, the Huskers were looking forward to the chance to prove themselves on the national stage.
They had a shot at making the NCAA Tournament, and the team was working hard to prepare for whatever lay ahead.

In the end, the Huskers' hard work paid off. They made it to the NCAA Tournament, where they faced stiff competition. Despite their efforts, they fell short in the final round, but their season was a success.

Looking back on the 1981 season, it was a time of growth and development for the Nebraska women's basketball team.
They faced challenges and overcame them,
building a strong foundation for the years to come. The Huskers proved that they were a force to be reckoned with, and their legacy lives on today.
