Recession confirmed by sag in GNP

Reagan's arithmetic befuddled

WEDNESDAY — The recession continues. After President Reagan tried to set the stage for an economic recovery during his State of the Union address Tuesday night, he faces a new challenge: mustering a record or sustained growth in the gross national product.

The United States economy is in the second year of a recession. The national GNP, which measures the total output of goods and services, is expected to fall in 1982. The recession began in early 1982, when the economy expanded at a rate of 1.9%.

Policy makers and economists are divided over the course of action the government should take to stimulate the economy. Some believe that the government should increase spending on public works projects, while others believe that the government should cut taxes.

The government has already implemented several economic policies, including increased spending on public works projects and tax cuts. However, these policies have not been effective in reversing the recession. The national GNP has continued to fall in recent months.

The unemployment rate, which measures the percentage of the labor force that is unemployed, has increased in recent months. The unemployment rate is currently 7.6%, up from 5.5% in January 1981.

The national GNP is expected to fall in 1982, and the unemployment rate is expected to increase. The government is expected to implement additional economic policies in the coming months to stimulate the economy.

Physician says drinking game might be too tough to swallow

By Mary Scheker

"I was okay, I was okay," said the man who had just quit drinking. "I felt like I was okay," he said. "I felt like I was okay." He had just quit drinking for the first time.

The man was a 32-year-old man who had been drinking heavily for several years. He had just quit drinking because he realized that he was no longer able to drink responsibly.

The man was one of many people who were trying to quit drinking. Many people find it difficult to quit drinking, and they need the support of others to help them through the process.

Many people who are trying to quit drinking find that they need to attend recovery meetings, such as Alcoholics Anonymous, to help them stay on the right track.

Construction workers are scheduled to be on strike at the end of the week. The strike is expected to last for about two weeks.

The area is scheduled to be completed in time for the start of the school year. The school district has already invested millions of dollars in the construction project.

Fact-finder called to talks

BERKELEY, Calif. - Negotiators for Iowa City and the police officers' union agreed to the appointment of a fact-finder Wednesday at a meeting of the Iowa City Council.

The council voted to appoint a fact-finder after hours of closed-door negotiations failed to produce an agreement. The union and city have been in negotiations for several weeks on a new contract.

The fact-finder, appointed by the Iowa City Council, is to meet with the union and city representatives to try to reach an agreement. The fact-finder's report is due within 10 days.

The council also voted to authorize the city manager to negotiate with the union on behalf of the city. The city has been without a new contract since the old one expired last year.

The union has been seeking increases in pay and benefits, while the city has been seeking to reduce costs.

Here is the stupendous furniture sale you’ve been waiting for the whole year. The once-a-year sale when we mark down practically everything in the whole store from 10% to 40%.

What's everything? Our regular stuff. You see, we don’t bring in so-called specials or bring up on things that no one wants at regular prices the way a lot of other places do. Instead we take our best stuff—and that includes butcher block tables, upholstery, oak tables, systems, mattresses, beds, nightstands, lamps, chairs and marvelous accessories.

Of course, there are some things, like brand new items and stuff that's overstocked, that we don't want on sale. (But then no one is totally perfect.) But, what’s on sale is amazing. So don’t miss out. Because, to the best of our knowledge, (and we've done a lot of checking), we’re the only furniture store we know that has only one storewide sale a year. Which means if you miss it, you’ll have to wait all the way until 1983 to get bargains like these again. And by 1983, you know who lives where prices will be.
Johnson halts legislative bid after UI trespass warning

In Search of Ray's rule

The University of Iowa's Board of Regents was under fire Wednesday from the state's Auditor General Richard Gordon for actions of Ray, state 'regents because it is thought that such an action was in violation of the regent's hiring and firing power to the university's UI Staff Council.

The board advised that the university's regents' hiring and firing power to thecentral personnel office, supported by Ray but feared by Gordon, was not violated. The auditor general also expressed anger at Ray's refusal to recognize formalized personnel office, which he stated was under the regents' authority.

The board voted to have the council consider the issue of Ray's removal and the related personnel office. The regents have until Jan. 6 to take action on the action.

Anniversary

In Iowa City, Thursday and Friday will be days of both reflection and action. Along with concernediger residents throughout the country, many will be marking the half-century anniversary of the legalization of abortion, which resulted from the Jan. 22, 1973 Supreme Court decision.

At the local level, groups will be holding a benefit and vigil for the tense FedEx plant strike on Thursday. One proposal involves students boycotting a dress rehearsal Wednesday night of the University Opera Theatre's opera "Don Giovanni." The protest would be non-violent, according to the Iowa Student Movement.

The local vigil, which is expected to be attended by students from the University, Cedar Rapids, COMMUNITY AND IOWA City, will be held at 7 p.m. at the site of the strike, the center for squadrons and the FedEx headquarters building.

Prisons can’t keep pace with population

By JIM WILSON (1973 - ADAP) Corrections Director Hal Farrier said Thursday the state is running out of space for medium-security prisoners and there’s an urgent need to build a new site for the women’s reformatory.

The new site is needed, he said, because the current facility is too small to accommodate the rising population. He noted that the current reformatory has only been operating for two years and is already at capacity.

Farrier said that with the population now at 2,650, it’s going to be difficult to maintain a level of services. Farrier also said that medium-security facilities are “where we need to be” and that he’s working with the legislature to find a solution.

The Department of Correctional Services (DCCS) is currently trying to find a new location for the women’s reformatory. The current facility in Mitchellville is overcrowded and is not able to provide the necessary services to the inmates.

Mitchellville, the Department of Correctional Services, is currently operating at its maximum capacity. The department has proposed changing the status of the facility from medium-security to maximum-security, which would allow them to accommodate the growing population.

“Because the population is up 2,650," Farrier said, "we’re looking at a new site and I know that’s a difficult one for us to do with the legislature." Farrier also said that they plan to work with the legislature to find a new location for the reformatory.

“Everything we consider, housing is at the core of it,” he said. "We’re trying to be realistic about the size of our building, but we’re trying to make it happen this year and we’re making sure that we’re working with the legislature to make sure it’s a priority.

In the meantime, Farrier said they are working on finding a new site for the women’s reformatory, which is currently located in Mitchellville. They have proposed changing the status of the facility from medium-security to maximum-security, which would allow them to accommodate the growing population.
One year earlier: The Iran crisis

John Burns

From the Daily Times

Almost immediately after the fall of the Shah, Americans who had been held hostage in Iran began celebrating their first day of freedom. They were emotionally drained, and eight embassy workers who had been held hostage in Iran for almost 2 years left the compound at the end of the day. The Shah was deposed, and the American people celebrated their first day of freedom.

Within three hours, the embassy was in the hands of the protesters. The takeover commanded the attention of the world. The Shah was deposed, and the American people celebrated their first day of freedom.

The U.S. government was not pleased. They expected the American government to pay them for their suffering. They did not believe the American government would do anything to ease their suffering.

THE BLIND CREDITOR, who oversaw the takeover of the embassy in Tehran and seized the embassy workers, was often the chain on the gate. Iranian guards monitored the American embassy takeover. A large banner with a message for the Shah was displayed. Americans who ended 444 days of captivity with anger, gratitude and a deepening pride were ignored.

"My life was threatened and I was spat in the face by a middle-aged man in a Hardee's restaurant," said a former U.S. Embassy official. Violent Kentucky coal mine blast leaves three dead, four trapped

CHATTANOOGA, Ky. (AP) — A Terra coal mine explosion that blackened a mountainside in eastern Tennessee was one of the deadliest mining disasters in more than a decade in the state. At least three miners were killed and four were injured.

The explosion at the mine in Scott County, about 20 miles north of Chattanooga, was one of the largest in the state in recent years. The state's mine safety agency said it was investigating the blast.

Officials said they were still determining the cause of the blast, which occurred at about 6 a.m. ET. They said they were trying to determine if there were any survivors.

"It looks like it may have been smaller than our expectations," said Page Mill, a spokesman for the Tennessee coal mine safety agency. "We're just trying to figure out what happened and get the truth out there.

The mine was closed to workers after the explosion and was being searched for possible survivors.

Mill said he could not provide any further details about the blast or the injured miners.

Natural gas itself is odorless. We add a strong, pungent odor to it before it is delivered to your home. The purpose of adding the odor is to make it easy for you to detect even small gas leaks quickly. If you smell natural gas, here's what to do:

1. Open doors and windows. If the odor is very strong, evacuate the building.
2. Call low-inflammability Gas and Electric Company from a neighbor's phone to prevent sparks that may result when you use your own phone.
3. Turn off the main gas valve, if you know where it is and can do it safely.
4. Avoid producing any fire or sparks. Don't turn any electrical switches, do not open any clothes dryer, do not move anything that can cause a spark.
5. Have only qualified low-inflammability people turn your gas back on, and wait until they indicate that it is safe.

The region is on alert for escaping gas.

- Be sure gas appliances are properly flushed before turning on gas.
- Keep flammable liquids and gasoline away from gas appliances.
- Make sure a shut-off valve is installed, and if you have any doubts, call the gas company.

We wish you a safe and happy holiday season.

Three poets to read their works

By Jonathan Hodgkins

Laramie Lea, Maggie S. Martin and Mary Salvo—three poets teaching at the University of Iowa—will read from their works at 7 p.m. today in the Main Library on the Iowa City campus. The three will read a collection of poems that reflects on their personal experiences of the Iowa City area.

Laramie Lea's poetry is noted for its exploration of the relationship between the poetic and the ordinary, the personal and the universal. Her work often explores themes of identity, relationships, and the natural world. Lea's poetry has been published in various literary journals and anthologies.

Maggie S. Martin is known for her ability to bring the personal and the political together in her poetry. Her work often addresses issues such as race, gender, and social justice. Martin's poetry has been published in several anthologies and journals.

Mary Salvo is a poet whose work is characterized by its exploration of identity and the human experience. Her poetry often reflects on the intersection of the personal and the political, and she has been published in several literary journals and anthologies.

Skaters prove you're as young as you feel

When you're done with the holiday crowds, there's still one last hurrah for the young at heart: the roller disco. This Wednesday night, the Ragg Sweater Headquarters is playing host to the first roller disco party in the area, and the turnout was overwhelming.

At 7 p.m., the doors opened to a crowd of about 800 people, most of whom were in their twenties. The music was pumping, and the energy was electric. The dance floor was packed, and people were smiling and laughing.

One of the skaters, a woman in her early 20s, said, "This is the best disco party I've ever been to. The music was great, and the energy was incredible. I felt like I was living in the 1970s."}

Iowa to run against Notre Dame

By Keesey Mor shower

Chasing a victory in the prestigious Big Ten Invitational, the Hawkeyes ran a good race on Saturday. They placed 5th overall in the meet.

Despite their results, the team knows they need to do better in the conference games, where they should be ranked 11. "We are off to a good start, but we need to work on our consistency," said coach Warren Slebos.

Notre Dame, on the other hand, was surprised by its performance. "I really had nothing to lose, and it was just a new experience," said head coach Gregg T. L. GREGG. "I'm happy with our results so far, and I think we can do better in the future."

Cyclones lead rebounding
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Big offensive line changes show Iowa State is for real after a 55-10 rout of Texas on Saturday night. But with three games to play in the Big 12, Rusty Hendrickson is far from satisfied. "We know we can do better," he said. "But if we come up with a couple of games through 14 contests this season, I think we can win a couple more games." The Cyclones, who are 8-3 overall and 3-1 in the Big 12, are looking to bounce back from a loss to Oklahoma State last week. "We've been playing well for most of the season," Hendrickson said. "But we need to be more consistent and have some more big plays." The Cyclones face TCU next week.

Griddler summoned
WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A University of Arizona football player has been arrested and charged with assault after a late-night fight in a bar. Police said 20-year-old Dominick Young was taken into custody early Sunday morning. He was arrested for assault and battery, and is being held in the Sedgwick County Jail on $10,000 bond. Police said Young was involved in a fight that started after a group of students left the bar.

Atlanta makes trade
ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Bravos Wednesday traded veteran pitcher Charles Dillon and minor league third baseman Ryan Townend to the Chicago Cubs for four minor league players. Dillon, who had been the Braves' No. 2 starter since 1990, has a 11-9 record with a 4.41 ERA in 22 starts this season. He was acquired by the Braves from the Cubs in the 1987 World Series. The Braves also received three minor league players from the Cubs.

Hawks take on Cyclones at home

By Mike Dodson

Iowa State coach Jerry Blakeslee said Wednesday that the 402-54 victory over the University of Missouri was "a breath of fresh air." The victory was the first at home since early in the season for Blakeslee, who had been coaching at Iowa State for the past five seasons.

"It was a great win," Blakeslee said. "We really needed it to get our season back on track."

Blakeslee said the win was especially important because it was the team's first home victory in three games. He added that the team had been working hard in practice and that the win was a reflection of the hard work.

"We've been working very hard in practice," Blakeslee said. "We've been trying to get our game back to where it was last season."

Blakeslee said that the win was a stepping stone for the team and that it would help them get back on track. He added that the team was looking forward to the remainder of the season.

"We've been working very hard in practice," Blakeslee said. "We're looking forward to the rest of the season."

Super Bowl

Iowa State's Coach Blakeslee knows a thing or two about winning in the Super Bowl. But for now, he's focusing on the Cyclones and their season opener against the University of Missouri.

"I don't think there's any difference between winning the Super Bowl and winning a game at home," Blakeslee said. "I think we're going to have a good season."
