Help is offered to Kalona family

The story was written here earlier by Bill and Tom over Don Texans and United Press

Residents of the close-knit community of Kalona, Iowa, are offering their help to the family that lost home in a fire last Monday night. The home of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Hershberger, Sr., was destroyed in the fire that started before 11:00 Monday night.

The Hershbergers, who are Crescent residents, spent their Thursday night and Friday at the home of neighbors Frank and Thelma Yoder, who live on a farm near Kalona. The Yoders had one of the first fire trucks on the scene. The fire.descripcion was handled by the fire department of the nearby town.

It took several hours for fire fighters to get the blaze under control as it threatened to spread across the farm to the other buildings.

The fire started in the chicken house and destroyed a horse barn and a garage.

The Hershbergers had been unable to find a new home, so they were surprised and grateful for the offer of help.

The fire started in the barn where several horses were kept.

The horses were safely removed by fire fighters who used a horse trailer to transport the animals to a nearby farm.

The family is now planning to move to a new home.

The fire is under investigation by the police department of the community.

"The Jerseys of New York State" was published in 1923.

Crisp Birdwell was the kind of child who loved books, and had been one of the best students in his class. He was a good reader and loved to read, and he loved the library.

The real story begins with Charles Dehaan, who was one of the best students in his class. He was a good reader and loved to read, and he loved the library.

Birdwell, who grew up in Englewood, N.J., discovered the library during a trip to New York City, where he visited the New York Public Library.

Birdwell translated from Portuguese into English, where he received a bachelor's degree in English. In 1923, he received a master's degree in Liberal Science from the UI.

Birdwell had been a student at the University of Chicago, where he received a bachelor's degree in Liberal Science from the UI.

Pennies from Reagan

For these days money still carries in its anticipation of a dénouement from the titanic struggle. But there aren’t plans, really, that they haven’t. A time is past in the expected kid-penny era in the governmental purgatory that is our state capital. Iowa City fathers. Other tales are anticipated from the higher echelons.

Every Day Is Savings Day!
Commitment needed — Spiers-Stertsbach

By Howard M. Spiers

In the face of unprecedented changes in American life, to a significant degree, we are witnessing a crisis of education, a crisis in the system.

In Iowa, at the higher and primary level of education. We have a unique opportunity now to bring about a new era in the education of our young people.

There is no doubt that the state has a role to play in the education of our people. But we must also recognize that the state cannot do it alone.

The state must work closely with the local school districts to ensure that all students have the opportunity to receive a quality education.

This is particularly true in rural areas where the resources are limited.

And it is essential that the state work with the local community to ensure that the schools are adequately funded.

Education is not only about learning, it is about preparing our young people for life in the 21st century.

We need to provide our students with the tools they need to succeed in the workforce.

This includes providing them with the skills they need to think critically and creatively.

The state must also work to ensure that our schools are safe and supportive environments where all students can learn.

In conclusion, we need to remember that education is the foundation of our society.

It is essential that we provide our children with the best possible education.

And we must all work together to ensure that every child has the opportunity to succeed.

Thank you.

Professor feels future 'bleak' for federal research funding

By Mary Sherer

George Knorr, UI professor of physics and astronomy, said he views the scar ces over federal funding as "bleak".
"It is crucially important for research that we get the support that we have in the past," he said. "We've been trying to hold true and keep the government support, but it looks like we will lose a lot of their federal support.
They're making cuts everywhere and we're not sure how much more funding we will get from the federal government for the future." Knorr also noted that researchers have experienced other challenges, including cuts to federal research budgets and increased competition for funds.

Lack of housing no real problem for new sorority

Iowa City's housing shortage hasn't dented the mood of the women in the UI's newest sorority, Sigma Kappa. They met and socialized the weekend before spring break, with many swearing to live in groups during their college careers.
"It's not like we're going to have to look for housing, so I'm not worried," said Kappa president Jane Farrell. "It's going to be tough to find housing, but we'll make it work." Farrell said that she and her friends are looking for opportunities to live together, and are considering off-campus housing.

Student leadership workshops planned

The UI Office of Career Programs and Internships and the UI Counseling Service are offering a series of leadership workshops this semester.
"These workshops are designed to help students develop leadership skills and understand the dynamics of leadership roles," said Jeanne Duggan, workshop coordinator.
The workshop series is free and open to all UI students and faculty.
"The workshops are not limited to just student leaders," Duggan said. "They're for students who want to develop leadership skills from the workshop, and also adults who might be interested in learning more about leadership." The workshops will cover topics such as communication, decision-making, and conflict resolution.

Cold shutdown reached at plant

By Webster - The Navy said Thursday it had stopped the nuclear-powered guided-missile submarine USS Bainbridge from operating temporarily due to difficulties in its nuclear system.

The submarine is now being readied for a 12-day repair mission in the Los Angeles yard of the nuclear-powered guided-missile submarine fleet, according to Navy spokesman John Oberlies.

"The problem did not affect the submarine's ability to continue its mission," Oberlies said.

The repair mission will take place at the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard in Bremerton, Washington.

New theater company aims to add diversity to Iowa City stagecraft

By Susan M. Hunter

For a theater to last, much theater is necessary. The city that nurtures it is even more essential. And so it was with the Iowa City Community Theater, which was sponsored by several local organizations in 1937.

But just as the Iowa City Community Theater thrived in the '30s, it faced challenges in later decades. As the years went on, the city's theater community evolved, with new groups emerging to fill the gaps left by those that had faded away.

One of these new groups is the Juilliard Quartet, which has captured audiences with its performances of classical music. The quartet is sponsored by the University of Iowa, and its members are some of the finest musicians in the world.

"The Juilliard Quartet's music is more than just pleasant to listen to," said a local resident. "Their performances are a true testament to the power of music to move us and inspire us."
