Cabbies refute driving records

By Elizabeth Flansburg

Numerous accidents and traffic violations are appearing on driving records of local cab drivers, but the drivers said the records compiled by the state are "malarkey.

The records were included in Iowa City cab companies' applications for operating permits for the year beginning March 1 The Iowa City Council will consider the applications tonight at its informal meeting.

But the drivers and owners of the three Iowa City companies say the records are inaccurate.

"I haven't had an accident since 1956," said Maurice Toomer Sr., owner of City Cab Company. The records state that Toomer had two accidents in 1981 and has been convicted of several violations

"THIS IS CRAZY, it's a bunch of dingyness" Toomer said. He added that the records show that he lives in Riverside, but he actually lives in the Meadowbrook Trailer Park. "I haven't even lived in Riverside for at least three years. It's just all screwed

City Manager Neal Berlin said Monday the data was compiled by the state Department of Transportation and then given to the council.

Roy Finley and Donald Kral, the owners of Hawkeye Cab Company and A Better Cab Company, also said the DOT reports were untrue and were anxious to discover where the information originated from Kral said he has not had a chance to look through the material yet, but he said Monday night that his own driving record as reported by the DOT was incorrect. Kral was listed as having two accidents in 1977. But Kral said he has never had an ac-

Finley's driving record was not reported by the DOT, but he said that none of his drivers have had any accidents and have committed few traffic violations. The DOT reported that one of his drivers had one accident in 1978 and numerous speeding violations were reported.

FINLEY SAID ALL of his drivers are covered under his insurance policy, and that if his drivers even had as many as two speeding tickets, his company would not insure them. "None of my people have ever been turned down by my insurance company, so something is definitely wrong with that report," Finley said.

Berlin said the Iowa City Police Department helped compile the data, but Police Chief Harvey Miller and his assistants were unavailable for comment Monday because of the national holiday

The DOT was also closed Monday because of the holiday.

A public hearing on each application is scheduled for tonight at the council's formal meeting.

Little hope for 84 oil rig victims

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (UPI) -Battered by 50-foot waves, the world's largest oil rig sank in the storm-tossed northern Atlantic Monday. After an allday search, rescuers abandoned any hope of survival for the 84 crew members, including 15 Americans.

Helicopter pilot Capt. Mike Clarke said there was no sign of life - "other than sea gulls" - when he flew over the site where Mobil Oil Canada's 35story-high Ocean Ranger sank in heavy seas 170 nautical miles southeast of St.

Clarke said he saw only "a few bodies floating around, a couple of life rafts and various debris." Other pilots said the only visible signs at the site of the world's second-worst oil rig disaster were marker buoys and an

'Mobil certainly cannot hold out much hope for survivors," Mobil President William Mason said after search aircraft returned to base at nightfall.

A MOBIL SUPPLY tug got close enough to all three lifeboats for the crew to see through the side portholes. Two were empty and there were two bodies in the third, one of which was recovered before the heavy swell carried the craft out of reach, Mobilsaid. It was the only body yet

Mobil said a "provisional breakdown" indicated the rig was manned by 52 Newfoundlanders, 16 other Canadians, 15 Americans and one the world, measuring 398 feet long, 262 British citizen.

Mobil said the drilling crew evacuated the $50 million rig at 12:15 a.m. Iowa time after sending a mayday signal reporting a 15-degree list. Mobil operations manager Steve Romansky said a half-hour later "there were no sightings of the rig either on radar or

Industry officials said a rig of this type is abandoned when it lists 15 degrees because it tips over at 18 degrees. The Mobil rig had been leased from American-owned Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co.

THE OCEAN RANGER was the largest semi-submersible drilling rig in feet wide and 357 feet high. One hundred feet of it floated above the water. It had been drilling for 14 months in the oil-rich Hibernia field.

A fleet of planes, Coast Guard vessels and the bulk carrier "Gadus Atlantica" battled turbulent seas to reach the area, but Coast Guard Capt. Robert Alford said the rescue efforts were severely hampered by the vicious storm that threw up 50-foot high

Within hours, Romansky said "three lifeboats and one raft and several bodies and debris were sighted" within a five-mile radius of where the rig was sinking an exploratory well.

THE RIG had been equipped with about a dozen life rafts and three fiberglass lifeboats, torpedo-shaped vessels which had a covering hatch. Mobil said one of the lifeboats was spotted "in a capsized position." Another was "stern down," Mobil said, indicating both had taken on water.

Romansky said there were no design problems and the Ocean Ranger should have been able to withstand the winter storm. He said the rig had operated in the North Sea and off the Alaska coast where "the waters are as stormy as they are here."

The American Bureau of Shipping gave the rig a "total inspection" only last June, Romansky said.

Church push on for tax credit

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Top Roman Catholic officials are concerned at the failure of President Reagan's fiscal 1983 budget to spell out a provision for tuition tax credits for parents sending youngsters to private schools.

There is limited encouragement in the budget message's statement that the administration will send Congress a tax credit plan 'later in the year,' said the Rev. Daniel F. Hoye, the new general secretary of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

"But the failure to make provision now for tax credits is troubling," he said in a statement. Reagan is on the record favoring legislation to provide tax credits for parents of children in private or parochial schools. Such legislation has been introduced by Sens. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., and Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., but no action has been taken.

"Last year the president took the position that tax credit legislation should wait until Congress acted on his first round of economic legislation," Hoye said. "That happened in 1981.

"YET THE MESSAGE of his new budget is that, as far as the administration is concerned, tuition tax credits are an idea whose time must be deferred," Hoye said.

The Rev. John Meyers, president of the National Catholic Education Association, said his group is encouraged by Reagan's statement that tax credits are still on the agenda.

But he said the president was "too vague" to fulfill the expectations of Catholic school parents and other supporters of tuition tax credits.

"Despite this repetition of the president's promise to send a tax credit plan to Congress, we are asked to wait, this time until 'later in the year,' " Meyers

"It is already past the time that private and parochial school parents receive an equitable share of the education tax dollar, regardless of the financial problems facing the administration," he said.

Less than four months ago, Meyers said, Reagan reassured Catholic school superintendents that he remained "strongly committed to tuition tax fluential head of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Washington D.C., meanwhile, released a letter to all members of the House and Senate, voicing support for the legislation.

"I am pleased to say that I entirely support this legislation, which will provide tax relief to the many low- and moderate-income families who wish to exercise their freedom of choice in education," Hickey's letter said.

"It is important to note ... that the financial sacrifices now being made by millions of American families to send their children to nonpublic schools save other taxpayers billions of dollars every year," he said.

Israel 'horrified' at Jordan arms deal

JERUSALEM (UPI) - Prime Minister Menachem Begin appealed directly to President Reagan Monday not to break his personal pledge to ensure Israel's "qualitative edge" over its Arab foes by selling advanced weapons to Jordan.

Begin won overwhelming governmental support for a resolution urging the United States not to sell F-16 jets and advanced mobile Hawk antiaircraft missiles to Jordan because the sale would endanger Israeli security.

The resolution, approved in the abstentions, won the support of opposition Labor Party leader Shimon Peres, who said the thought of such sophisticated weapons in Jordan was "horrifying."

Expressing hope a solution will be found, Begin told reporters he planned to write a personal message to Reagan to inform him of the resolution.

Begin said he will appeal directly to "President Reagan, friend of Israel," to quash any arms sale to Jordan that would nullify the "qualititative edge" Israel currently enjoys over the arms arsenal of its Arab foes.

BEGIN'S SPEECH and the parliament vote capped a weekend of mounting frenzy in Israel over reports attributed to a high U.S. official traveling with Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger.

"It is presently not clear to us if Mr. Weinberger spoke in his own name or issued his statements on behalf of his government," said Begin, recovering from a broken hip and speaking from a wheelchair.

"We shall certainly clarify this question in the next few days," he said.

Such a sale, Begin said, means "a categorical undertaking given by the United States (would) be violated ... a particular obligation stipulated by the decision of the American Congress be reduced to nothing."

The prime minister said Israel already faced a combination of Arab states with an overwhelming quantitative edge that includes 9,000 tanks, 1,400 warplanes and 6,000 heavy guns.

According to the London-based International Institute of Strategic Studies, Israel has 3,050 tanks, 576 combat aircraft and about 1,000 heavy artillery

Mistrial halts college embezzlement case

MOUNT VERNON, III. (UPI) - A mistrial was declared Monday in the embezzlement trial of former University of Illinois official Robert Parker because a jury - split 10-2 in favor of a guilty verdict - was unable to reach

Judge Harold Jensen scheduled a March 8 hearing to decide whether to set a new trial date for Parker, accused of embezzling more than $600,000 from the university and lavishing it on women he met at an X-rated Chicagoarea club.

Jensen declared the mistrial after the six-man, six-woman jury reported for the second time it was deadlocked.

Jury foreman Joe Rust, a community college professor, said 10 jurors voted for a guilty verdict but two held out for a verdict of innocent by reason of insanity.

Parker had admitted taking the money, but his lawyer argued the former university vice president was paranoid and not responsible for his actions because he was mentally ill.

The Jefferson County jury deliberated about 51/2 hours before first reporting it was deadlocked, then returned to the jury room for another 11/2 hours before again saying it could not make a decision.

JENSEN POLLED each juror in the court room, and all said they were convinced further attempts at reaching a verdict would be futile.

Champaign County State's Attorney Thomas Difanis, saying he was personally upset with the lack of a verdict, said no decision had been made whether Parker would be tried again. Difanis had said in final arguments earlier Monday Parker reveled in the extravagant lifestyle - complete with fancy dinners and fancy women - that he bought with his embezzled funds. Parker, 60, admitted taking the money and lavishing it on a succession of women in return for companionship, conversation and sexual encounters which he said were unfulfilling. His defense was based on psychological testimony.

Defense attorney Arthur Lerner told the jurors Parker, a long-time and trusted financial administrator at the Urbana campus, suffered from paranoia and was estranged from his boss at the university.

ced his superior took credit for work Parker did and excluded his underling from office-related social events.

"It is a disease like cancer or tuberculosis," Lerner said. "A mental disease is like a window into hell. It's something you can't control."

Testimony last week indicated Parker gave most of the embezzled money to women he met through the Club Taray - an X-rated establishment in the Chicago suburbs. Four women testified about spending time with Parker - having dinner in lavish restaurants and sometimes engaging in unsuccessful group sex - and getting ige checks at the end of the evening.

"WHY DOES he do it?" asked

LERNER SAID Parker was convin- Difanis, state's attorney for Champaign County. "He does it because he likes the lifestyle. He's having a good time. He's not suffering from paranoia. He's a thief."

"He's a thief," Difanis repeated. "A very adept thief.'

"He knew exactly what he was doing. He lied, not because he was suffering from a mental disease but to keep his scheme going."

Parker, who worked for the university for 29 years, resigned in June. The indictments charged he funneled money from two university-related accounts to a third account which had been dormant. He then wrote checks to the women - as much as $12,000 an evening - and to the Club Taray on the third account.

County neighborhood center faltering from federal cuts

By Scott Sonner Staff Writer

Another local human service agency acknowledged the sting of federal budget cuts at its monthly advisory board meeting Monday.

Johnson County Hawkeye Area Community Action Program advisory board members were told if local financial support cannot be found within six months, they will have to plan the elimination of the center

'The neighborhood center will cease to exist unless we find local funding," said Don Maniccia, executive director of the HACAP central office in

Johnson County HACAP provides assistance and resources to low-income residents to help them become self-sufficient, he said. Its programs include Head Start, congregate meals, heating assistance, food banks and housing counseling.

In an effort to raise support, the board voted un-animously to request funds totaling $20,791 from the Johnson County Board of Supervisors, the Iowa City Council, the Coralville City Council and United Way of Johnson County.

THE MONEY would help offset President Reagan's proposed cut of more than 75 percent in the federal Community Services Block Grant Fund -HACAP's major source of revenue, Maniccia said.

Maniccia said HACAP primarily serves people outside the main welfare system. He said 70 percent of the 605 people served in Johnson County last year depended on Social Security as their main source of Margaret Stephenson, Johnson County HACAP supervisor, said the agency will receive only 48 percent of its present funding next year — a year in heads of l which demand for HACAP services is expected to inhouseholds.

"We have to pick up that extra 52 percent somewhere to keep the office open," she said.

Maniccia said the $20,791 requested from local governments would pay for the center supervisor's salary of $13,706, rent, utilities and telephone services; it would not cover additional staff or equip-

The requested funding will save the county and city tax dollars in the long run, Maniccia said.

"I'LL MAKE the statement and back it up any time: It will cost the county a lot more than $20,000 if they don't fund us," he said.

Iowa City Councilor Kate Dickson said Monday she does not think the council is aware of HACAP's "immediate condition." She said she did not know if any city funding would be available.

'The budget is real tight. We are trying to spend $2 and we have $1 ... They would probably be wisest to look toward the Board of Supervisors," she said.

HACAP board member David Hickman said the Cedar Rapids office has suggested they "identify local power groups — the people with money — and convince them there is a need" for their support. Bill Porter, advisory board president, recommended an "all-out community campaign" to raise funds and educate the community about why it is important to the citizens of Johnson County that the neighborhood center stay open. Board members exchanged information about the needs of Johnson County and how those needs will increase next year.

Homeless dogs face destruction if not adopted

Three of the nine dogs living alone in a one-room Stumptown home have been adopted, but the others remain and will be destroyed soon if homes cannot be found for them.

The dogs were raised by 93-year-old Anna Houseal who recently moved into a nursing home in Wellman. Houseal's neighbors C. Jemsek and Steve Frederick are feeding the dogs a few times per week, but cannot continue to do so indefinitely. Jemsek and Frederick, are caring for three of Houseal's animals - one of which is up for adoption.

THE DOGS have never been allowed to go outside because two of Houseal's dogs were shot once and she feared for their safety.

The small dogs are of varying color and mixed heritage. Although they currently are not housetrained. Jemsek said the dogs she adopted about two weeks ago are good pets and are already trained. If the dogs do not find homes soon, they may be sent to the Iowa City animal shelter where they will be put up for adoption. But because of limited space in the shelter the dogs could not live there for long and would have to be "put to sleep.

The only other alternative would be to file a complaint with the Johnson County Sheriff's Department and have the dogs shot to death.

Persons interested in caring for the animals can contact Jemsek at (319) 629-5382.

The facts in a case between the UI Student Senate and the UI Students' Right to Life group are not being disputed. The conclusions the UI Student ludicial Court should draw from those facts are, however.

The case stems from Right to Life's Oct. 21 complaint filed with the court claiming the senate acted unconstitutionally when it denied funds to the anti-abortion group last spring.

Both parties filed documents with the court stating their understanding of the facts. They also submitted motions for summary judgment stating how each feel the court should act based on the facts and why.

A summary judgment is simpler than a trial as the court is not required to summon witnesses.

Right to Life is asking for the $145 it was denied by the senate and $500 in damages. It is also requesting the court prohibit the senate from allocating mandatory student fees to student groups and for senate expenses until the senate adopts and publishes standards for funding recognized

RIGHT TO LIFE'S motion for a summary judgment asks for a favorable finding "due to the harm suffered by RTL and the unconstitutionality of the senate's budgetary process both on its face and as applied to RTL."

The group claims it has been harmed in the following ways:

 Membership has decreased by almost one-half.

 Its activities have been limited to free or inexpensive events.

• It has been unable to adequately plan activities on an annual basis because it doesn't receive a stable source of funds from the senate.

But the senate motion claims the Right to Life group "is a vigorous and vital participant in the university community, enjoying benefits the university provides. No harm has been

Right to Life's motion also claims "the senate has taken the role of an advocate for one particular philosophy on the abortion issue, and is allocating mandatory student fees to propagate that philosophy. This the senate cannot

THE SENATE has funded the following pro-choice groups and activities: UI Student Abortion Rights Action League, $151; New Wave, $1,107; and a lecture by pro-choice activist Bill Baird, $750.

However, the senate motion said Right to Life's contention that it should receive funds equal to those allocated to groups opposite in viewpoint is an "absurd notion" that "misconstrues equal protection and has no foundation in constitutional law.'

"It would compel the senate to undertake to balance all of the competing interest groups contending for a slice of the budget procedure," the motion stated. "Such a procedure would violate the legislative process and imperil the student voters' mandate to their representatives."

The Right to Life motion claims the absence of written senate guidelines for use in approval or rejection of group funding recommendations from the Budgeting and Auditing Commission - means "RTL has no idea of how to reconstruct its programs to meet whatever standards the senate is ap-standards the Senate is using when it makes its final decision."

BUT THE SENATE claims its 'budget allocation process is in complete conformity with constitutional due process. The Supreme Court has long recognized that due process is not an inflexible notion but depends on the interest at stake.'

The senate's motion contends its procedures for allocating student fees are "consistent with the Constitution," and grant every recognized student organization access to student activity "The fact that it (RTL) failed to receive funds does not imply that it was denied access. An unfavorable outcome does not imply that its access was impaired.'

Friday each group will file a six-page reply to the other party's summary

On Feb. 22 each side will have 30 minutes to present an oral argument before the court. The court may then question the groups before making a decision or adjourning for further

Language exchange assists foreigners

Foreign students at the UI are learning better spoken English through participation in a conversational exchange program spon-sored by the UI Office of International Education and Services.

The foreign students practice speaking English with the help of an American student who they meet with regularly once or twice a week for several hours over one or more semesters, said Kelly Nelson, a UI senior who coordinates the program.

"We try to help foreign students as much as possible to feel more comfortable in speaking English,' Nelson said.

About 65 foreign and American students are currently participating in the exchange, although the program is larger in the fall when more foreign students are new to the UI.

Foreign students from Taiwan, Korea, Japan, Latin America, Malasia and Europe participate in the program, Nelson said.

AMERICAN STUDENTS who are majoring in foreign languages also participate in the program to improve their conversational skills in foreign languages. The learning "goes both ways," she

American students also participate in the program for enjoyment as much as for education. "A lot of them (American students) just like to meet foreign students," Nelson said.

Church and human service officials and volunteers have formed a task force to study the extent of unmet food needs in the Iowa City area. The possibility of establishing a food bank in Johnson County is one that is being seriously discussed.

The problem of people not having enough to eat has become more evident in the last year, as shown by the fact that the Iowa City Crisis Center's Emergency Food Assistance program served 30 percent more people in 1981 than it did in 1980. Director Kay Duncan has expressed concern that the Crisis Center's food bank will not be able to handle the increasing number of individuals and families who need food assistance more frequently, and that anticipated cutbacks in the Food Stamp and Aid to Families with Dependent Children programs will make the problem worse.

If a food bank is to be established in Johnson County, there are examples of successful food banks already operating in eastern Iowa, some of them of long standing. One of them is in Cedar Rapids.

Director Linda Lalgen said the Cedar Rapids food bank served more than 800 families in 1981. The food bank works closely with the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program, which screens potential clients to determine their level of need and whether or not they are eligible for other assistance programs. The bank is overseen by s steering committee under the auspices of Churches United, with central food storage facilities donated by the First Presbyterian Church in Cedar Rapids. Cedar Rapids churches channel donations of food and cash to the food bank.

Lalgen said she has not been contacted by anyone involved with organizing a Johnson County food bank — that is understandable. considering that the idea is in its earliest stages of development. But as plans for the food bank progress, advice should be sought from those who are already running successful programs.

Revitalizing cities

With unemployment figures nearing 10 percent, one thing President Reagan must do is provide viable income alternatives for those whose federal aid has been cut - especially since he wants further cuts in that aid.

One of Reagan's proposals to provide relief for those on the very lowest end of the economic scale, the inner city poor, is to create "urban enterprise zones." These urban poor live in the midst of the economic blight left behind by the white migration to the suburbs. Where there are few employers, there are few employees, but much despair.

The idea is that corporations will reinvest in the inner city, building plants which will be staffed by the urban poor — who will be trained for skilled labor positions by the employing companies. In a new variation on the domino theory, this surge of money back into the inner city will attract more businesses, which will in turn hire more unemployed workers.

But as Reagan has said many times, "There's no such thing as a free lunch." Businesses will not move into high risk areas without a profit motive, and some critics worry that even with tax incentives they will not find it profitable to move to high crime, low skill

Moreover, there is no plan to ensure that this program does not simply move jobs from one blighted area to another — with no increase in jobs. And Reagan has severely cut the federal job training programs that might equip the people to fill the jobs. Finally the president has cut many of the other urban renewal programs. so that even if his program does work, there is no real increase in the amount of help going to blighted urban areas.

Peace comes to Chad

The civil war in Chad might be coming to an end. The Organization of African Unity has come up with a peace plan. It calls for a cease-fire, new legislative and presidential elections and a pullout of the OAU peacekeeping forces. There are currently 3,000 OAU

These troops were sent in last December at the behest of Chadian President Goukouni Oeddi. He had fomerly been aided by the Libyan military. However, after he asked the Libyans to leave and before the OAU forces were sent, former Chadian Defense Minister Hissene Habri's armies occupied several towns in the eastern part of the country.

Chad is a poverty-stricken nation. Besides the toll of war-related casualties, the internal struggles have hindered social and economic development, causing even more unnecessary suffering. The efforts of the OAU in seeking "a durable political solution" to the crisis in Chad are laudable.

Although it is too early to speculate on the success of the plan, it is definitely a step in the right direction. As Kenyan President Daniel Arap Moi, the OAU chairman, has noted, the situation in Chad poses a threat to all Africa's security. A solution must be reached for the sake of both national and international peace.

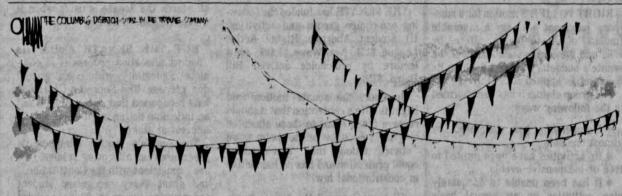

Part of that solution ought to include economic aid from the West and from the oil-rich Arab nations. Countries like Chad are living illustrations of the need for the United States and the rest of the world to use their resources for economic not military aid.

The fight of the Polish workers is fight for freedom world-wide

This is the first part of a two part article ex ploring events in Poland and the U.S.

By Wilbur Hathaway and Henry Schauffler

The headline on a guest opinion by Paul Dougan was "U.S. media misunderstand and distort events in Poland.' (DI, Feb. 4). While this may or may not be true, the article attempts to make a different point; that Solidarity is actually Marxist. To quote Dougan the Polish workers are actually more Marxist than their government.' He also seems to confuse the terms socialism and Marxism.

The political left in the West likes to bend things to fit its needs. Two commonly used tactics are to maintain that all socialism is Marxism - that the words are synonymous, and to discount any criticism of Marxism based on the reality of the Soviet Union's crimes against humanity by saying that Soviet communism is not "true" Marxism. A third liberty that Dougan takes is to label Solidarity as Marxist.

Taking a few quotes and using them for his own purpose, Dougan makes an incredible case. Let's say the Poles don't want capitalism but "democratic socialism." Fine, but that does not mean Marxism. Britain and the Scandinavian countries are attempts at democratic socialism — the former not so successful, the latter quite successful - but no Marxism is involved.

THEN DOUGAN tries a good trick he takes quotes from two "Solidarity activist/Communist party dissidents.' who say they are "not challenging communist ideology, only the gap between theory and practice." They are obviously Marxist-Communists who dissent from the Polish-Soviet system and have joined Solidarity, but that doesn't mean that the rest of Solidarity is Marxist. In fact just the opposite. In communist countries, few of the common people are in the Communist Party. Only the leaders, security forces and a small percentage of the population support communism in a Collegiate Association for the Research of Principles members have been involved with the Solidarity issue nationwide, on over 100 campuses and all major cities. We have met with Polish-American leaders and met many Solidarity members who are refugees or students in the United States. They all say that Communism-Marxism-Leninism is the cause of the oppression in Poland. Solidarity is not Marxist. It is a freedom movement against Marxism-Communism. The fact that Solidarity leaders may talk about socialism is inconsequential. Socialism does not equal Marxism.

that the attempt to make a "true Marxist Revolution" always ended up in oppression and blood-shed. Why? Marxism has a number of basic tenets. four of which are appropriate to men-

 There is no God — atheism. · Man is basically just a highly developed animal.

 History develops through class struggle and conflict.

 Revolutionaries and progressives must therefore take up arms against their oppressors and overthrow them.

If SOVIET MARXIST practice is not 'true' Marxist practice, then what is? The fact is, there is very little difference between any of the Marxist nations in the world - or between them and Poland. Totalitarian oppression is a natural outcome of Marxism.

Solidarity is a workers' movement against Marxist totalitarian oppression. Dougan ought to go to Poland and tell the workers that the fight for freedom by Solidarity represents the fight for freedom world-wide. There is no gap between Marxist "theory and practice." The theory leads to oppressive practice and human misery. The struggle of the Polish workers is the cry of the oppressed, and Marxism is the instigator of more oppression than any other single movement in this century. (This is not to defend capitalism. It has its problems.)

The Polish workers want democratic socialism, but they do not want Marxism in any form. We in the West should wake up and start listening to Russian dissidents. Vietnamese refugees. Cuban refugees, Polish refugees and now Solidarity.

I've done 15 minutes as a desk clerk for Holiday Inn and three months as an editor of computer-generated horoscopes. Lunatic as these jobs were, they gave me a chance to meet people I could otherwise not imagine. Often I've wanted to write "My Most Memorable Character" for Reader's Digest, but my characters, save a handful, have few Good Housekeeping-approved traits

FOR INSTANCE, I was an editor in Boston for the Department of Transportation. My boss was a former teacher at a parochial girls' school. Lou hated women, particularly non-Caucasians and even Caucasians if they were not Protestant. Lou was Jewish. He'd lived with his mother, save for the glory of World War II as a supply sergeant in the army.

I "carpooled" with Lou, although he didn't have a car. He was too smart for that. He had a master's degree in education from Harvard. He excoriated all deviates, meaning bearded, mustachioed or long-haired men (draft resisters, traitors, fifthcolumnists) - and homosexuals. The other member of the carpool, whom Lou had depended on for years to get him into Boston, some 30 miles south, was a balding homosexual. He was, no inflected innuendo intended, a nice

He returned at 12:20, flossed his teeth in the office and discussed the cafeteria menu with B'Hemo, an editor under heavy medication, who'd suffered a breakdown during an editorial group progress report the previous year.

B'Hemo was nearly deaf and obese. Medication accelerated his appetite. He'd been something of a twig before. B'Hemo never gave out with more than three words at a time: "Yes, think so deliciously scrumscious, that ... oh, hello there.

HE WAS wonderfully friendly as long as you approached him head-on. He'd smile like sunshine if he saw you coming. A friend from another department became furious with B'Hemo because he never said hello to him, but B'Hemo was very formal and insisted on proper introductions. I told my friend he had to speak directly into B'Hemo's good ear or all was lost.

B'Hemo was also a Harvard man. Lou placed his desk so he always had B'Hemo's good ear. Lou loved enunciating plans for his weekly "progress reports," the ones that had driven B'Hemo crazy. We rarely saw jobs Lou planned for us to edit. The other departments refused to turn them

So we had time on our hands. Lou demanded we look busy. He suggested hunching over our desks, elbows planted, head in hands. Appear pensive. Frown, never smile. The tendency for Iowa fans is to treat the Minnesota players in the same manner. But Hawkeye fans are known for their good sportsmanship during both good and bad times, and we wouldn't want to ruin that reputation.

So I propose an alternative solution.

Instead of booing the Minnesota

"The groundhog lied," said a Quad
Cities weather observer. "The snow is melting as fast as ice cream on a summer's day." Three people were golfing at the Tri-County Country Club near Augusta, Ill., and famers were out inspecting their fields.

In Chicago, where temperatures warmed Monday past 40 degrees, police found a partially decomposed body of a 64-year-old man in his Northwest Side home. Police said Norman Axness, described as a recluse by neighbors, may have frozen to death two months ago during the deep freeze that engulfed much of the Midwest.

OFFICERS SAID THE heat in the house had been turned off and water pipes had apparently burst. They said there was no evidence of foul play.

The most severe rain and windstorms since a January deluge that killed 37 pushed rivers in the Pacific Northwest to flood stage Monday, prompted avalanche warnings in Washington and threatened Northern California with mudslides.

Northern California authorities, searching for the body of a 5-year-old boy swept away in the rain-swollen waters of the American River while on a camping trip, said their prospects of finding him were bleak.

TWO MORE inches of rain was reported in Quillayute, Wash., bringing to 10 inches the total rainfall that has drenched the area in the last five days.

The new storms set off snow and mudslides in Washington, burying one highway worker who had been clearing debris. Avalanche warnings were issued as rapidly rising temperatures melted more than 3 feet of snow that accumulated in some mountain areas since last Wednesday, making top lavers unstable

Heavy rains pounded Northern California and the National Weather Service predicted another 4 inches of rain in the already saturated area through the evening.

Worried homeowners in the San Francisco area, still haunted by January's nightmare mudslides, jammed switchboards with calls to local authorities seeking information on evacuations as rain fell for a second

"Everything is stable right now," said a California Highway Patrol spokesman in Santa Cruz County, worst hit by the January storms that claimed 37 lives. "But the ground can't take too much more water."

Last-minute details finished, shuttle moves to launch pad

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) - Space shuttle technicians Monday removed work platforms and cleared up last-minute details for Columbia's planned pre-dawn rollout from its rocket assembly building to the oceanside launch pad.

The 3½-mile trip from the Vehicle Assembly

Building to the launch pad is scheduled for 4 a.m. Iowa time today, but it could begin as early as 3:15 a.m., said Hugh Harris, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman.

"We have built in some extra time in the schedule so if everything goes as planned, it could start moving 45 minutes early," Harris said.

He said it will take the shuttle between seven and eight hours to get from the 525-foot-tall assembly building to the launch site.

THE COLUMBIA, equipped with a new fuel tank and new solid booster rockets, is mounted on a mobile launch platform and the entire assembly will be hauled on the back of a mammoth crawling machine. The eight-tread tractor, which is bigger than a baseball infield, only moves three-quarters of a mile an hour, officials said.

Launch director George Page is scheduled to give a progress report of Columbia's third voyage into space during the rollout today. The launch is set for

Rebels attack Salvadoran posts following army success claims

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) - Leftist guerrillas attacked five military posts around El Salvador Monday in response to army claims of success against insurgents, and 53 people were reported killed in weekend violence.

Rebels reportedly killed five Army officers and five paramilitary Civilian Guardsmen, and military troops claimed to have wiped out more than 40 insurgents in the eastern province of Usulutan and around the capital. Thirteen civilians also were reported killed in San Salvador.

Army officers in Usulutan, the provincial capital 56 miles east of San Salvador, claimed a weekend anti-rebel sweep in the region "had been a success, eliminating a great number of guerrillas."

One officer estimated the army killed 30 guerrillas but made no mention of military casualties.

THE GUERRILLAS, who earlier this month laid siege to Usulutan in a week of bloody attacks, claimed in a broadcast on clandestine Radio Venceremos that troops were "overwhelmed and are being repelled" around the provincial town of Jurcuran.

World welterweight champion Sugar Ray Leonard raises his arms after decking challenger Bruce Finch for the first time during their fight Monday night. Leornard won the fight with a TKO in the third round.

Sugar Ray TKOs Finch in the third

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Sugar Ray Leonard turned Bruce Finch's dreams of glory into a sudden nightmare Monday night, giving him a thorough boxing lesson and successfully defending his world welterweight title with a devastating third-round technical

Fighting for the first time since winning the undisputed title last September with a 14th-round TKO of Thomas Hearns, Leonard wasted little time in dismantling

After a slow first round in which Leonard was content to lay back champion opened up with both barrels in the second round.

BACKED INTO a neutral corner midway through the round, Leonard ripped three consecutive hard lefts to Finch's body that sent the challenger backward. A rapidfire combination to the head dropped Finch in front of his corner and he barely beat the count, getting up at nine.

Leonard smiled briefly, nodded and then went in for the kill. He unleashed another flurry of blows to the head and Finch fell forward on his face, his head between Leonard's feet. But again he rolled over, staggered to his feet at the count of six and managed to finish the round.

In the third, Leonard quickly landed a sharp overhand right to the head and Finch's legs turned rubbery. Blood began to pour from his mouth. Another flurry to the head put him down, but again he staggered to his feet before referee Mills Lane stopped it at 1:50 of the third round.

Finch pursued from the start but hardly landed a blow.

A CAPACITY crowd of nearly 7,000 jammed the Centennial Coliseum for Reno's first title fight in 72 years since Jack Johnson knocked out Jim Jeffries for the heavyweight title in 1910. Leonard, who weighed 146 pounds to 1451/4 pounds for Finch, his 32nd victory against one loss and his 23rd knockout. Finch, who earned $100,000, saw his record fall to 30-4-1. He had not lost in three years and had an 11-fight

The fight satisfied requirements for a mandatory title defense for Leonard. Finch, a 27-year-old native of Milwaukee who now fights out of Las Vegas, was ranked third by the World Boxing Council and sixth by the World Boxing Association.

Leonard will make his next title defense against Roger Stafford, a recent upset winner over former champion Pipino Cuevas. The bout against Stafford, who watched from ringside Monday night, probably will be at the Meadowlands Arena in East Rutherford, N.J., in early June.

Polish officials say U.S. backs rebels weekend demonstrations and the discovery of a powerful bomb, Polish officials charged Monday that the United States backs the rising resistance to martial law that is pushing Poland toward "civil war."

Police found the 13-pound, homemade time bomb Saturday at a downtown gas station in Lubin, in southwest Poland. It was hidden in a shopping bag full of potatoes, the official news agency PAP reported.

The bomb would have destroyed a nearby hospital, nursery, school and Communist Party office building if police had not defused it in time, the agency said.

However, in the port city of Gdansk, birthplace of Solidarity, Warsaw Radio said there has been a "visible growth in discipline" that will allow an easing of martial law restrictions beginning

Warsaw Radio quoted the Gdansk provincial defense committee as saying, "The situation is normalizing, with a visible growth in discipline and a reduction in public tension."

THE PROVINCIAL defense committee authorized the Gdansk mayor, starting Tuesday, to reconnect the city telephone network and reduce the curfew to seven hours beginning at 10 p.m. In addition, the use of private cars will be allowed and cultural and sports events will resume, all beginning today.

The radio said no martial law violations had been recorded since Jan. 30. when more than 200 people were arrested and 14 others injured in clashes with police during protests

But less discipline is visible elsewhere in Poland Police arrested 194 young people and released 162 others in a protest in Poznan in southwestern Poland Saturday. A witness said "thousands" of young people had defied martial law regulations and chanted, "Solidarity, Solidarity" in support of the nowbanned free trade union.

The youths and thousands of followers lit candles in the evening near the monument to the poet Adam Miskiewicz, Poland's 19th century national hero.

SUDDENLY, the witness said, 'something happened" and police in helmets, swinging nightsticks scattered people in all directions.

Officials banned motor traffic and closed movie and stage theaters. But life was back to normal Monday, the witness said.

And security patrols searched Warsaw residents thoroughly Monday for clandestine leaflets officials say are the work of the United States.

"It is not enough for the authors of the leaflets to call for a boycott of work," said the official Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu. "Now they have started to call for conspiracy against the authorities, instigating again adventuristic moods and fixing the dates of the confrontation. "The same forces which before (the imposition of martial law) Dec. 13 pushed the nation towards tragic catastrophe have efforted and will continue to effort to use this direction. The whole bitter anti-Polish campaign by President Reagan and his closest allies serves this goal," it said.

CAC: Maintain student aid fight

By Karen Herzog

Last week's phone and letter lobbying campaign for continued student financial aids, coordinated by UI student government, was very successful and well received, according to Randy Rings, Collegiate Associations Council vice president.

"I think we're making an impact, so we should keep pushing," Rings said. More than 1,000 letters and 50 phone calls were directed at Iowa legislators in Washington during the three-day campaign last week, he said.

The campaign has just begun though, he said. The phones in the CAC office will be available for as long as students express interest in using them, and tables will be set up on Wednesdays at

Councilor Ken Albrecht suggested that student government should not send all the letters at the same time. "It will keep them (legislators) busier longer because they won't be able to lump them together when they answer them," he said.

IN DISCUSSION of a previously planned CAC activity, CAC President Karol Sole said three persons, rather than the previously approved six, will be attending a five-day national lobbying conference in Washington.

'Although we feel the council expressed a concern when deciding to send six delegates, we (the executives) decided to only send three.

The additional request includes $835 for entertainment, $1600 for music and $500 for publicity brochures. These allocations were referred back to the CAC's Budgeting and Auditing Committee for further discussion.

RIVERFEST, scheduled for the weekend of April 15, is aimed at recruiting students for UI organizations and colleges, said Kim Callanan, a Riverfest coordinator.

tainment," said Councilor Mike

"In the past, Riverfest was funded (by CAC) with the idea that it would become more educational and be recognized (as an academic UI student group) by CAC," Sole said. As such, it would be eligible for student fee allocations through the regular budgeting

Mondale jabs at Reagan's budget

President Walter Mondale Monday harshly criticized President Reagan's budget as a record-breaking disaster and declared American agriculture is in a "depression."

"I believe there is a depression in American agriculture and the American economy will soon follow,"

Speaking at a campaign appearance for Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, Mondale said Reagan's policies have lead to the highest interest rates in U.S. history. President Carter's former running mate is on a nationwide tour promoting Democratic congressional candidates. Mondale also planned to visit Council Bluffs on behalf of Rep. Tom Harkin. Mondale said Reagan's new budget, with a projected $91 billion deficit, is the most "irresponsible budget presented by any president in history.' Mondale said Reagan is deliberately understating the budget. He said the Congressional Budget Office has predicted much higher deficits, perhaps as high as $160 billion, creating disastrous interest rates.

MONDALE ACCUSED the Reagan administration of trying to destroy the so-called farm coalition in Congress. He quoted David Stockman, from the budget director's infamous interview in The Atlantic Monthly, as saying the purpose of the Reagan farm bill was to pit various farm interests against each

Asked about Reagan's challenge to his budget critics to "put up or shut up" Mondale said he accepted the

"The deficit has to be brought down," Mondale said. "Reagan says you can't touch defense or the tax structure; if that's true then the only thing left is to repeal Social Security.'

Mondale proposed making the July tax cut retroactive to Jan. 1 to stimulate the economy now and then repeal the 1983 tax cut.

Mondale also wants corporate income taxes studied.

'The corporation tax is like the United Fund: You send what you feel you can afford," Mondale joked.

Former Vice President Walter Mondale spoke at a rally for Rep. Neal Smith, Dlowa, in Des Moines Monday, sharply criticizing the Reagan budget.

Armatrading gives high-powered act

Arts and entertainment

By Jim Musser

Joan Armatrading and her formidable five-piece band gave a crowd of roughly 1,700 an unforgettable Valentine's Day performance at Hancher Auditorium Sunday night. Almost from the moment the curtain opened and the hypnotic synthesizer drone of "I'm Lucky" filled the auditorium, Armatrading and company took total command of the audience, presenting a powerful collection of this remarkable singer/songwriter/guitarist's

Aided by a striking set design, expert lighting and a clean, punchy sound system, Armatrading gave ample evidence as to why her record company (A&M) has (finally) seen fit to give her the backing needed to make the push for the "big time."

Armatrading demonstrated a fluid, magnificent voice throughout, ranging from pure and sweet in her higher register to strong, tough and no-nonsense at the low end. Her guitar playing was compelling, if somewhat unorthodox, as she moved from sixto 12-string acoustic to electric guitars. And while she predominantly concentrated on her unique slipped-rhythm patterns, she showed occasional flashes of blistering hot lead guitar work - particularly on "I Wanna Hold You," "Me, Myself, I" and "How Cruel."

THE BACKUP BAND of Gary Sanford (guitar), Julian Diggle (percussion, keyboard and harmonica), Jeremy Meek (bass), Justin Hildreth (drums) and Dean Klavett (keyboards) was nearperfect - a workmanlike, solid, dynamic and always supportive unit. Veteran jack-of-all-trades Diggle proved invaluable, providing each song with tasteful finishing touches on his many instruments, as well as exhibiting contagious enthusiasm for the music all night long.

The song selection was pulled from the various stages of Armatrading's 10-year recording career, and nearly all of the requests shouted out by the enthusiastic crowd were touched on at some point in the show.

The band followed "I'm Lucky" with "Down To Zero" from Joan Armatrading, then pulled out all of the stops on the powerful, melodic "I Wanna Hold You." Armatrading set down her guitar for "Rosie," a funky reggae tune that had her skipping and sliding about the stage and also featured a nice piano break by Klavett.

"Is It Tomorrow Yet," a bouncy, percussive romp, was followed by the ice-and-fire "Cool Blue Stole My Heart." Guitarist Sanford stood out on "Cool Blue" as he contributed eerie volumecontrol fills and a soaring solo in addition to some fine vocal tradeoffs at the song's finale.

ARMATRADING DONNED a 12-string and Diggle checked in with a smooth harmonica break on the sweeping "Love and Affection" from Joan Armatrading. At the singer's invitation ("What I'd like you to do is get up and dance"), the front third of the aisles filled with dancers as the band whipped through the hilarious and catchy "Eating the Bear," which was highlighted by some crackling electric rhythm work by Armatrading and Jeremy Meek as the voice of the bear. Diggle's harp introduced "When I Get It Right," after which Klavett's cheesy organ propelled the reggae-rocker "I Can't Lie To Myself." The title tune from 1980's

Joan Armatrading

Music

Me, Myself, I won over what few doubters were left in the audience as Armatrading absolutely blazed on electric guitar. "Me, Myself, I" is a perfectly conceived and realized pop song — a rare, but well-defined celebration of the joys of being alone.

A BEAUTIFULLY MOVING version of "The Weakness In Me" from Walk Under Ladders was highlighted by what was arguably Armatrading's strongest vocal of the evening. The entire band shone on "You Rope You Tie Me" from To The Limit. Opening with Sanford's fuzzy Duane Eddy guitar line, including a tasty organ fill by Klavett and a jazzy break that was set off by a harmonica quote by Diggle from Van Morrison's "Moondance," the song ebbed and flowed in breathtaking fashion as Armatrading pranced from side to

"Kissin' and Huggin," a driving, funky piece from Show Some Emotion, was set off by a swinging stride piano break by Klavett. "Tall In The Saddle" closed the set in a moody, late-night confessional vein. Sanford contributed a clear, over-amped, bluesy solo that recalled Roy Buchanan's finest work, as well as some rapidfire solos toward the end of the tune. Armatrading and her band were awarded a genuinely heartfelt standing ovation as they left the stage, and responded with two two-song encores.

THE FIRST ENCORE opened with Armatrading and Sanford in a Chuck Berry-style rave-up that worked into a rocking "Back to the Night." "Show Some Emotion" followed, after which the audience made it clear that they still hadn't had enough. The second encore included "How Cruel," a hot piece of reggae from the EP of the same name, and the evening was polished off with "Willow" from Show Some Emotion.

'Willow' employed some beautiful piano work over a churchy organ line, and had a good portion of the center section singing along. The opening act by J.W. Everitt was a run-of-the-mill exhibition of post-hippie folksiness that was briefly highlighted by the appearance of folk trio the Waubeek Trackers on backing vocals. Everitt was hampered by the lastminute loss of guitarist/bassist

Michael LaMontia to bronchitis. The night belonged to Armatrading and those lucky enough to be in attendance for this luminous performance by one of pop music's greatest talents.

'Border' looks at human impulse

By Roxanne T. Mueller Arts/Entertainment Editor

There has always been something vitally threatening in Jack Nicholson. His eyes can be hooded and leaden, shielding a mean streak that won't quit. Or they can be dancing and animated, to which too often he adds arched eyebrows and devilish winking. After One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Nicholson began a slow slide (Goin' South, The Missouri Breaks, The Shining) that has only been arrested in his current two films, Reds and now The Border. In the interval, Nicholson's physical presence has noticeably changed. Where once he was the lean and angular rebel in Five Easy Pieces, he's slipped into middle age with a steady thickening of the body. He's just this side of fat in The Border, but it's the comfortable, familiar fat of advancing years. It makes his character of a veteran officer of the U.S. Bureau of Naturalization and Immigration that much more

AS CHARLIE SMITH, Nicholson is a world-weary Border Patrol officer who finds it increasingly difficult to deal with the materialistic demands of his wife Marcy (Valerie Perrine) and the suffocating corruption of his fellow

On the one hand, Charlie regularly rounds up the never-ending streams of illegal aliens crossing from Mexico into Texas and on the other, he watches his superiors and fellow officers get in on the distasteful business of "running" the desperate Mexican workers themselves.

It's a no-win situation and Charlie, much as he seeks to avoid it, enters into the corruption himself. The difference is that Charlie can't stomach it as easily as his acquaintances and his resulting anger stems from a moral base rather than a realization that his piece of the pie isn't big enough. In a cinematic world that more often than not glamorizes the con man, the proposition is a startling one. THE SUBTLE TONE of Nicholson's performance is matched by director Tony Richardson's careful control of the film's look. The bleached-out desertscapes are as bleak as the Mexicans' future while the vacancy of middle class life is pointed up perhaps a little too obviously - Charlie's "dream house" (a phrase his wife insists upon) becomes more and more stripped of humanity as it fills with plasticcovered sofas and the latest in bedroom furniture.

Perrine accomplishes the feat of sympathetically presenting the material-mad homemaker (at one point she offers Nicholson a choice between a big TV dinner and a smaller one) and the vacant-minded but wellmeaning wife. Marcy doesn't understand Charlie's agonizing and never will. Hers is a world bordered by TV commercials and plastic money; naivete laced with a simple heart.

No less impressive are a toned-down Harvey Keitel playing a patrolman caught in the corruption and Elpidia Carrillo as an exploited Mexican whose desperate situation sparks Charlie to

Streif's assists do not show in lowa box score

By Melissa Isaacson

The healing process of an athletic injury requires much more than a little help from mother nature.

As any athlete knows, mental and physical preparation are equally important when rehabilitating an injury. The Iowa basketball team's answer to an injury psychologist is trainer John Streif, the man with the 24-hour job.

One recent example was the rapid recovery of Iowa forward Mark Gannon. The 6-foot-7 junior is still receiving treatment for a sprained ankle suffered in practice the Monday prior to the Hawks' game with Indiana two teammate during a three-on-three drill and went down clutching his right ankle. The injury was initially thought to be very severe, possibly broken.

Gannon was brought to UI Hospitals where the ankle was X-rayed and determined to be a sprain. Ligaments were already extremely weak from previous traumas, a condition that very possibly prevented a ligament tear or break. Gannon was fitted with a cast for immobilization purposes as the recovery process began.

Three days later, a suited-up Gannon jogged onto the court before the Indiana-Iowa game, much to the delight of the 13,365 Hawkeye fans. The crowd roared as his name was announced. Gannon certainly still felt the effects of the injury, but the limp was

AND IN THE shadows stood John Streif, taking no credit for the rapid recovery. Perhaps Streif was as much responsible for those five points and eight rebounds as Gannon himself.

The fans saw only Gannon - running, jumping, shooting and rebounding. But only Streif and Mark knew the real story. Only the dedicated trainer and determined athlete experienced the three days prior to the game. Only the two were fully aware of both the mental and physical preperation involved.

Following the injury, Gannon stayed at Streif's home so that the trainer could care for the ankle on a 24-hour basis, making sure the ankle was properly elevated and iced. He also Streif's 24-hour job would appear to cause tension but he does not see it that way. "I guess it's an advantage that I'm not married because it's a hobby. They (the team) are my family. I really want to do it. I enjoy it. If I didn't, I wouldn't be doing it.'

Iowa Head Coach Lute Olson considers Streif the Hawkeyes' "biggest salesman" when it comes to recruiting. "John has a deep concern for young people," Olson said. "He has a great relationship with all the athletes. With coaching, by nature, there is some kind of gap maintained." Streif narrows that gap. "John's friendship with the players is based on as a trainer is that he can pick out whether the injury is more physical or mental. I've known John since high school and he knows what's best for me. Most athletes don't know their bodies as well as they think they do."

There should be another category on Olson's total performance chart. When Gannon scores, credit John Streif with

Carter's contract rich

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) - Gary Carter, star catcher for the Montreal Expos, signed an eight-year contract Monday which club President John McHale called one of the five richest in baseball

The contract, which has been under negotiation since 1979, calls for the 27-year-old Carter to earn "well in excess of $1 million a year," plus bonuses, McHale said.

"It's the largest contract we've ever had on our club and probably rates somewhere within the first five in all baseball," he said.

"There are all kinds of things built into it, incentives, guarantees, options. The lawyers and the accountants had a field day. I've been through a ringer for about three years and I'm glad it's over.

The eight-year contract, which runs through 1989, includes a renegotiation of the 1982 season. Carter signed it at the Expos' training office at West Palm Beach's Municipal Auditorium Monday.

Brewers' Gantner unsigned

MILWAUKEE (UPI) - The Milwaukee Brewers said Monday two rookie pitchers have signed contracts but Jim Gantner, the team's starting second baseman, has not come to

General Manager Harry Dalton said the club signed pitchers Chuck Porter and Jaime Cocanower. That leaves Gantner, infielders Ed Romero and Lawrence Rush and pitchers Willie Mueller and Doug Jones unsigned.

An arbitration hearing is set for Wednesday in Gantner's contract dispute. Dalton said he talked with Gantner's agent, Tony Benacchia, Monday but does not know if they will be able to come to an agreement.

CHICAGO (UPI) - Four more players have come to terms with the Chicago Cubs, dropping the number of unsigned players to eight, the team said Monday.

Outfielder Steve Henderson, catcher Bill Hayes, infielder Tye Waller and utility player Ryne Sandberg all inked one-year contracts.

Gentz dives to regional victory

Chris Gentz had a special rooting section Monday during the Association of Intercollegate Athletics for Women regional one-meter diving meet held at the Field House pool. The Minnesota senior was cheered to victory by her husband Mike.

"I'm sure Mike was pleased with Chris' performance tonight," said Gopher Head Coach Craig Lincoln. Gentz, who is the defending national champion on the three-meter board, walked away with the regional title with a total score of 436.35. Second place went to Mary Ann Eddie of Iowa State, while Ann Bowers of Iowa finished third.

"I REALLY HIT my last dive and it was a good way to end," said Gentz, who totaled a 57.6 on the inward oneand-a-half summersault. "I expect really tough competition at the national meet.

Iowa Coach Bob Rydze was pleased two Hawkeyes — Jane Alexander and Bowers - qualified for nationals. "Our girls did as well as they could," Rydze said. "Bowers could have dove a little better but she is still not in shape from the ankle injury that kept her out for two weeks. As far as the other divers are concerned, it was their first national competition and they did as well as can be expected.'

Bowers and Gentz will have the day off tomorrow as the meet moves to three-meter competition. Both have qualified on the basis of their finishes at last year's national meet. Gentz won the event, while Bowers finished eighth.

Cager Boyle gets backing from Olson

By Jay Christensen Sports Editor

Iowa Head Basketball Coach Lute Olson said Monday he plans to start Kevin Boyle on Thursday against Michigan State, despite the fact the senior has an injuried wrist and is shooting the ball poorly.

Boyle is averaging only 4.8 points per game this season and has a sprained right wrist, which first occured in the Michigan State game three weeks ago, according to Olson. He apparently injuried it again last Thursday against Northwestern. The wrist was then placed in an immobilizer before the Indiana game.

"I SHALL SAY he (Boyle) will start," Olson said. "He's been over for X-rays on two separate occasions. He'll be in the starting line-up, even if he can't go for long.

Boyle has been a Hawkeye mainstay the past four years. He has never missed a starting assignment at Iowa dating back to his freshman season starting 110 consecutive games for the Hawks.

Olson said the the guard is contributing to the squad in other ways.

'He's not shooting well and I'll be the first to admit it. But people who don't understand the game do not realize Boyle is playing very well. He is the most aware person on the court as far as knowing what our needs are.

"I should remind people our record is 10-2 in the Big Ten and 18-3 overall." Olson said. "We've had three straight 20-win seasons. Kevin Boyle has been as much a part of it as anybody OLSON ACKNOWLEDGED opponents are backing off defensively on Boyle, "But we can alleviate that. They have to guard him under the throws, we might set him down late in the game.'

Boyle leads the Hawks in assists with 85 and is second in steals with 31. He is third on the squad in rebounds with 100.

The Iowa coach, who is only three triumphs away from tying the school record of 146 coaching victories by Rollie Williams, did not talk much about the Hawkeyes' 73-58 loss to Indiana last Saturday. Instead, Olson chatted about the NBC-TV broadcast of

'The impartial observers who were doing the game kept saying we're not getting the breaks," he said. "That's a nice way of saying we're getting jab-

THE IMPARTIAL observers Olson was refering to are Dick Enberg and Al McGuire of NBC. McGuire once commented during the broadcast that Iowa's Kenny Arnold needed to go 'playground,' or one-on-one against the Hoosiers.

"That's a typical ridiculous statement by McGuire, who doesn't understand our team. He hasn't seen a game or practice until our 40 minute practice

Michigan State is a team Iowa defeated 57-56 in East Lansing, Mich. back on Jan. 28. Olson expects Thursday's contest to be a ball game similar to the first meeting.

'I saw the first half of the Ohio State-Michigan State game in Bloomington before we went to Assembly Hall," he said. "They were in a three-two zone defense. They have played a lot of two-on-two matchup in the past, but three-two now."

After the Michigan State game Thursday night in the Field House. Iowa travels to Ann Arbor, Mich., to challenge Wolverines.

JOHN MORRELL DIDN'T BECOME A TRAINEE AFTER COLLEGE. HE BECAME A MANAGER.

"As Executive Officer of the Army's Defense Language Institute at Monterey, California, I'm responsible for the housing, feeding and wellbeing of 500 students. And that's no small task. I manage an annual food budget of over a million and a half dollars. And I'm accountable for five million dollars worth Talways wanted to do something that would allow me to have a constructive impact on people's lives," says John. "That's why I became an Army officer. This way, I'm both a leader and a manager.

"On top of managing money, I also supervise a staff of 24 people. And each one has unique problems that I have to handle on a daily basis. You better believe the leadership and management training I received in Army ROTC is paying off."

Taking Army ROTC is

a great way to prepare for being an Army officer. In ROTC, you develop poise, stamina and self-confidence - the three trademarks of an Army officer.

There are other good reasons for taking ROTC, too. Like scholarship opportunities. And financial assistance-up to $1,000 a year for your last two years of ROTC But most ROTC graduates will agree that the best reason is the commission youll earn along with your college So if you want a job after college that offers real challenge and real responsibility, do what John Morrell did. Take Army ROTC.

And begin your future as an officer.
