Britain imposes naval blockade in South America

President Reagan's proposed cuts in South America financial aid to six private colleges may go under. "We find Federal student financial aid is the lifeblood of Iowa's small private colleges," said Thomas Field, president of the Iowa College Aid Commission. The national unemployment rate is currently 5.5 percent. Columnist "Hill" Hall comments on the economic situation in the United States. The hotel's dedication ceremony was a grand occasion attended by hundreds of guests and dignitaries.

UI lighting, sexism troubling to women

By Jonathan Brand

The problem of women in science and engineering is not new, but the struggle for equality continues. Despite the progress of women in the last thirty years, women still face significant obstacles in these fields. Women often encounter gender biases and discrimination, which can deter them from pursuing careers in science and engineering. It is important to recognize and address these issues in order to create a more inclusive and equitable environment for all.}

Elderhostel: college for senior citizens

By Paula Martin

Elderhostels are college programs designed for senior citizens. These programs offer a range of courses and activities that cater to the interests and needs of older adults. They provide an opportunity for lifelong learning and personal growth. Elderhostels are located in various settings, including college campuses and public buildings. The programs are typically run by local community organizations and are open to anyone over the age of fifty.

The benefits of participating in an Elderhostel program include intellectual stimulation, social interaction, and the opportunity to explore new interests. Many programs also offer scholarships and financial assistance to those who qualify.

Committee okays prospeets for downtown I.C. complex
By Scott Barnone
A city-staying commission revised and upgraded plans for a downtown complex wed­ tuesday evening.

The seven-man commission, meeting in the City Hall meeting room, reviewed a plan for a complex planned to fill the site of a long-empty car park.

The plan, which was revised by the commission and published in the city's official newspaper, the Democrat, was presented by the developer, Mr. Acker, who said he would be happy to answer any questions.

The plan includes a mix of residential, commercial, and office space, with a large park and recreation area as a central feature.

The commission members said they were pleased with the revised plan and recommended it for approval to the city council.

The city council is expected to discuss the plan at its next meeting, which is scheduled for next month.

Colleges

Iowa business leaders and state officials last week took action to prevent Iowa's 15 public and private colleges from being charged a 25-cent charge for directory lists.

Terrill Bell, president of the Iowa College and University System, said that the $120,000 annual fee for directory listings would be too much for the small colleges.

"We want to make sure that all public and private colleges have equal access to directory listings," Bell said.

The colleges will now have to pay a $100 fee per directory listing, which is half of what they were charged before.

"This is a win-win situation for everyone," Bell said.

Drinking by minors

The Iowa City Police Department recently began aggressively enforcing Iowa's legal drinking age. Several local bars and retail establishments have been cited for selling alcohol to anyone appearing under an acceptable age. consequences usually result in a fine.

There has been an increase in police presence in bars and other establishments. In one incident, a local restaurant was cited for allowing minors to drink in the bar area. The restaurant has vowed to take corrective actions to prevent future incidents.

While the new law has been effective in reducing underage drinking, some bar owners and patrons are concerned about the impact on their business.

tax evasion

The federal government is vigorously pursuing programs to combat tax evasion, and new legislation has been introduced to further strengthen enforcement measures.

The Internal Revenue Service estimates that federal income tax revenue losses due to tax evasion are in the billions of dollars each year. In 1981, the IRS estimated that at least one-third of all taxpayers failed to report their full taxable income. This amounts to a significant portion of the federal budget.

The proposals to combat tax evasion include an increase in penalties for non-payment, more thorough audits, and increased enforcement efforts. The government is also considering proposals to simplify tax filing and make it more convenient for taxpayers.

While some argue that increased enforcement is necessary to combat tax evasion, others raise concerns about the impact on individual rights and the burden placed on taxpayers.

guest opinion

In the context of the current fiscal crisis, the focus on tax evasion as a means to reduce federal deficits is problematic.

It is argued that reducing tax evasion would help alleviate the federal debt burden. However, this approach may not be feasible due to the complexity and challenge of enforcing tax laws.

The government should consider alternative strategies such as increasing tax revenues through fair and efficient tax policies. This would involve a comprehensive review of the tax code and the implementation of reforms that ensure a fair and equitable tax system.

taxation in the Caribbean

The Caribbean region has faced significant challenges in tax administration and enforcement. The region's dependence on tourism and other industries is particularly vulnerable to tax evasion.

The governments of the Caribbean countries have been implementing various initiatives to combat tax evasion. These include increased surveillance, technological advancements, and international cooperation.

While progress has been made, there is still a need for continued efforts to improve tax administration and ensure fair taxation. The region must strive to address the underlying issues that contribute to tax avoidance and evasion.

taxation in Indonesia

Indonesia has also faced challenges in tax collection, with a significant portion of the government's revenue dependent on tax revenues.

The government has introduced measures to improve tax administration, including the implementation of a national integrated tax system. This system is aimed at simplifying tax procedures and increasing tax compliance.

However, there remains a need for further improvements in tax enforcement and a commitment to upholding the rule of law. The government must be transparent and accountable in its tax governance practices.

The second evening will feature an international pianist, with Mr. Christopher Dahl to play Chopin's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E minor, followed by Sir Armand Babich, who will conduct the City of London Orchestra, with soloist Mr. Richard Dunning, in Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5.
Milosz to read his poetry tonight

By Craig Virgil

"The poet's name is Milosz. He is from Poland. He is a famous poet. He has written many books. He is a very good poet."

In the late 1930s, Milosz broke with the Communist Party of Poland and moved to Paris. He continued to write and publish, but his work was censored by the authorities. In 1941, he was arrested by the Nazis and sent to a concentration camp. After the war, he emigrated to the United States and became a citizen.

His poetry is known for its powerful imagery and its exploration of themes such as war, politics, and identity. Milosz has been awarded many honors, including the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1980.

On December 1st, at 8:00 PM, Milosz will be reading from his latest collection of poetry at the Iowa Memorial Union. The event is free and open to the public.

'Cat People' belongs in litter box

By Marc Nivison

"L'art du Critique: Milosz, the Polish poet and exiled intellectual, is a master of the aphorism, the epigram, the pithy remark. His work is a combination of prose, poetry, and essay. He is a master of the subtitle, the pun, the punchline. His poetry is a mixture of the surreal and the mundane."

The film 'Cat People' is a classic example of the genre. It is a story about a woman who can transform into a black panther. The film is a study in the power of the mind and the strength of the imagination.

In the film, the woman, Elsa (played by Joan Crawford), is a scientist who has been experimenting with a new drug that allows her to transform into a black panther. She is forced to confront her inner demons and her own fears.

The film has been praised for its visual style and its use of the femme fatale archetype. It is a film that explores the power of the imagination and the terror of the unknown.

Old Capitol Criterion

Milton's prints are worth a fortune

By John Williams

"The Old Capitol Criterion is a monthly publication that focuses on the history of the Old Capitol building and the University of Iowa. The building was completed in 1847 and is the oldest in the state of Iowa. It has been the site of many significant events in the history of the university.

The Criterion is a place to read about the history of the building and the university. It is a place to learn about the people who have lived here and the events that have taken place.

The Criterion is a place to share your own memories of the building. If you have a story to tell, please send it to the Criterion.

Dealing with problems of self-esteem is part of everyone's everyday life. Just as it is important to take care of physical health, it is equally important to maintain our mental and emotional well-being. This can be achieved through positive self-talk, setting realistic goals, and seeking support from friends and family.

Mark Bunch's Tony Award-winning play was performed by an all-star ensemble cast last night at the Sondheim Theater. The audience was captivated by the powerful performances of the lead actors, who convincingly portrayed the struggles of the characters.
