Bonding for law school clears hurdle

Bonding authority for the proposed UI law center was approved by the Iowa Senate Appropriations Committee Tuesday, but law center supporters said there may not be enough time to get final approval before the Iowa Legislature adjourns Friday.

Ruling may cause county money woes

By Kevin Cook

In a decision that may create a financial crisis for Johnson County, the state Appeals Board recently denied a request from the county board of supervisors to raise $370,000 for fiscal 1983 by assessing an emergency fund

Johnson County Auditor Tom Slockett said the appeals board was "overstepping their authority," and said Johnson County's elected officials should have the responsibility of determining the best fiscal policy for the constituency.

Slockett said the provision in the Iowa Code dealing with the emergency fund is written in broad-based language and described the state board's decision as "bad financial policy" because it would require "causing a financial crisis before averting a bad situation."

The appeals board ruled that no "emergency" exists in Johnson

The Iowa Code states that "transfers of money may be made from the emergency fund to any other fund of the municipality for the purpose of meeting deficiencies in any such fund arising from any cause" subject to the approval of the appeals board.

The supervisors indicated at Tuesday's informal board meeting they plan to appeal the board's ruling.

IF THE APPEAL BOARD, which is made up of State Auditor Richard Johnson, State Treasurer Maurice Baringer and State Comptroller Ronald Mosher, do not reverse their decision, the supervisors can appeal in Johnson County District Court.

The auditor's office was informed of the decision last week by telephone and Slockett said he is still waiting for official documentation.

Until last year, the emergency levy was routinely assessed by Johnson County, officials said. The supervisors planned to use the revenue from the fund to aid the strained general fund. If the appeals board decision is upheld, Slockett said that the supervisors have three options:

Cut expenditures from the general

• Increase income into the fund by cutting back expenditures elsewhere.

ruling are "not good."
"There's a lot of politics," said Ockenfels. "I don't think it's (a successful appeal) going to happen."

Supervisor Dennis Langenberg also indicated there may be political

"IT'S AN election year, and it doesn't help when you've got five Democrats on the board," Langenberg said referring to the all-Democratic board. The three members of the appeals board are Republicans.

Slockett said even with an emergency levy, Johnson County's property tax rate was lower this year than last year.

'The good efforts (of county officials) were not recognized, we were penalized for holding the cost down," Slockett said

Supervisor Harold Donnelly said county taxpayers are willing to pay for needed services. Because of Reaganomics and decisions by state officials, "troubles are piling up" on local governments, he said.

"The legislature doesn't understand the problems of county government,' Donnelly said.

Although Donnelly said he "wouldn't bet on it," he predicted there will be a good chance for a successful appeal. Supervisor Lorada Cilek, who is recuperating from illness and participated in the supervisors meeting by way of conference telephone, told the board she already has a plan for making the necessary budget cuts.

SLOCKETT, WHO will be the Democratic candidate for state auditor in November, questioned whether the appeal board understands the reasoning of Johnson County's elected of-

If no changes are made in the budget, the elimination of the emergency levy will leave Johnson County's general fund with a deficit of $140,000 for fiscal year 1982-83.

The county must maintain a general fund balance of $200,000 at the end of the year because the fiscal year begins July 1 and first-half property taxes aren't due until September 1. The $200,000 covers the general fund expenditures during that period.

The general fund finances the following county offices and departments: auditor, board of supervisors, sheriff, jail, motor vehicle, data elections, zoning processing

Clark hasn't ruled out '84 Senate bid

By Jackie Baylor

Former U.S. Sen. Dick Clark said Tuesday he is "giving some thought" to running in 1984 for the seat he once held.

After a foreign policy lecture at the UI, the 52-year-old Iowa Democrat kept the door open to a comeback bid against Republican en. Roger Jepsen when he said he had not decided against the attempt:

"I don't really know. It's so far off," he said. "I haven't ruled it out."

Clark said he has not yet discussed a senatorial election campaign with his family and state Democratic Party leaders. Jepsen defeated Clark's 1978 re-election bid by just 1 percent of the vote

During the UI lecture, Clark said the United States cannot win friends among undeveloped and developing nations until it stops its die-hard support of any government that opposes the Soviet Union.

"Russia is the enemy. If countries are anti-Soviet we support them. This policy has literally paralyzed us especially with the Third World," Clark said. "We may be sympathetic to change, nevertheless we continue to support authoritarian governments."

Clark's lecture was entitled "U.S. Foreign Policy in the 1980s: Can America Adjust to a Changing World?"

THE UNITED STATES'S anti-Soviet stance prevents it from supporting fledgling governments that might accept Soviet aid, although the U.S. government is willing to support even communist countries, he said. 'There are more communist countries that are friends to us than Russia, so obviously it's not communism that we fear or dislike." The U.S. government's fear of Soviet expansion prevents it from helping new governments that would make good partners. "The central dilemma becomes increasingly clear," Clark said. "Since we cannot adjust to change we are never a part of it."

For example, the U.S. government isolated itself from the Third World because it supported governments opposed to decolonization. "We inevitably side with the status quo, the old regime - the regime that's going to be replaced," he said.

'We aren't oblivious to changes," Clark added. "It's just obvious that we haven't been able to shift our policy to the change of

The U.S. government's fear actually assures the Soviets of success because revolutionary groups naturally turn to the Soviets for aid

"SOVIET-SPONSORED liberation always wins - we are the loser," he said. "If we aren't able to adjust we will continue to make the Soviets look better and better. And we will continue to look reactionary."

Jonestown should not be casually dismissed as a cult but should be studied by the academic community, said Jonathan Z. Smith of the University of Chicago Benton professor of religion and human sciences.

After noticing that none of his colleagues were giving scholarly attention to Jonestown he decided to investigate the religious implications. He said labeling Jonestown a cult is a way to avoid the touchy issue. "A cult is just a religion we don't like," he said.

To Smith, Jonestown represented more than this interpretation of the term cult. He said six months before the deaths of the Jonestown residents, Jones was invited to the White House to receive a humanitarian award from then-first lady Rosalyn Carter, which symbolized how Jones and the People's Temple were a part of mainstream society.

ALTHOUGH SOME CLAIM the Jonestown incident is unique, Smith said it is the responsibility of academia to try to understand unique phenomenon.

Jones was no Charles Manson living on some backlot of a movie set," he said.

Jonestown was established in 1976 in the small South American country Guyana by Jim Jones, minister of the People's Temple, and hundreds of his followers.

Two years later, in November 1978, Rep. Leo Ryan of California was shot to death by members of the People's Temple outside Jonestown after investigating complaints about the religious community. That same day on Jones' order more than 900 residents of Jonestown committed suicide or were

Smith said religious scholars tend to shy away from controversial issues because they don't want religion to be associated with things like wars and mass suicides.

Although several books have been written about Jonestown, all are sensationalized and do not deal with the more substantive issues the Jonestown phenomenon presents, he said.

Using the small amount of specific information available, Smith constructed two models that may explain the events surrounding Jonestown.

THE FIRST IDEA is that the mass deaths of Jonestown were an attempt by the members of the People's Temple to escape from persecution they were receiving from relatives and the government. Through mass suicide they could flee to what they called the a gesture to show that the community was a success, even in death. Although Smith said his models don't settle the question of why Jonestown happened,

If you hear a whistle, call the police and atnot to reach the victim, he said, "Often. mowing people will come will frighten an at-

The residence hall whistles, which cost $4,850, were purchased through the Whistlestop program. The program was organized by ARH, UI Student Senate and the UI Panhellenic Association Council in 1981 in an effort to curb assaults against women in Iowa City. The senate sold 5,000 whistles in December to women, disabled and elderly

BUT UI students who receive whistles at dormitory meetings this week must be taught how to use the whistles effectively. Bartels said, so members of the UI Rape Victim Advocacy Program and the UI Women's Resource and Action Center will present rape preventative methods.

In addition to the whistles, organizers of the Whistlestop program want to educate students of the rape problem in Iowa City.

'At the beginning of the (school) year, a lot ople from small towns come here and don't realize there is a problem." Bartels said. Also, UI students from big cities view Iowa City as a small, safe town and "don't understand that rape also could be a problem

Man who violated probation period given suspended 10-year sentence

istant Metro Editor

Probation violations, including a trip to a Molly Hatchet concert, have led to an Iowa City man receiving a 10-year suspended sentence and three years' probation.

William Daniel Krause, 21, was given a deferred sentence Nov. 13, 1981, with three years' probation after pleading guilty to a second-degree burglary charge.

A deferred sentence will be erased from an individual's record if that person meets her or his probation agreement.

But a February 16 report from the Community Corrections Center in Cedar Rapids lists several incidents in which officials claim Krause violated his probation agree-

Krause violated "conditions of his residency at this facility and the conditions of his probation," the report, signed by center residential counselor Richard Nebiker and residential manager Jeffrey Hanover.

Among those conditions violated by Krause, the report states, are complete abstinence from alcoholic beverages, finding and keeping a minimum 40-hours per week job, and being at a "designated place of assignment" - the corrections center, work or on a pass.

ON FEB. 13, Krause was issued a pass to attend an Alcoholics Anonymous meeting.

returning, a corrections center worker 'telephoned the Cedar Rapids Police Department to make arrangements to meet with him at the Five Seasons Center," the report states.

Records state Krause was arrested as he was leaving the concert.

Krause admitted violating his probation, and District Court Chief Judge William Eads rescinded the deferred sentence, replacing it with "a term not to exceed 10 years at hard labor," records state.

But Eads suspended that sentence and ordered Krause be given three years' probation and participate "in any alcoholic and drug abuse counseling" ordered by the department of corrections.

Eads gave several reasons for the suspended sentence, including Krause's age, the absence of personal victim injuries in the incident, the nature of the violation and because "a lengthy period of supervision by the Department of Correctional Services can be rehabilitative and act as a deterrent against future misbehavior" as the suspension could be revoked and Krause sent to prison.

Eads also ordered that Krause reside in the Hope House in Iowa City for a maximum 130 days. In addition, Eads ordered that Krause be taken on a tour of the Men's

The announcement of Lewellyn's surrender was made at a news conference Tuesday in the offices of Lewellyn's attorney. Present for the announcement were attorneys Gerald Craw-ford, Donald Neiman and Bob Baudino and former Iowa Sen. and Gov. Harold Hughes.

Crawford said he, Neiman, Lewellyn's parents and Hughes met with the former Des Moines broker at an undisclosed location Monday. He said it was "inappropriate to comment" on Lewellyn's current whereabouts or where he had been since his March 31 disappearance. "He will show up at federal court in Cedar Rapids," he said.

A bicyclist who had been in the UI Hospitals' intensive care unit since being struck from behind by a passing motorist Friday night died late Monday evening. Vicki L. Johnson, 30, 107 Second Ave.,

died from the extensive injuries she received in the hit-and-run accident. According to police reports, Johnson had been riding her bike along the 300 block of Highway 6 Friday, when a motorist in a maroon Ford Ranchero or Chevrolet El Camino struck her from the rear. Coralville Police Chief Donald Ewalt said the police have received conflicting reports from witnesses as to what type of vehicle struck Johnson.

"Some witnesses at the scene told us the vehicle was a maroon Ford, then later other witnesses told us the car was a light colored Mercury, possibly maroon; we are still continuing our investigation," he said

The Iowa City commission that regulates the city's cable television network soon will be making decisions that will affect local cable programming and procedures for the next three

But each of the four commissioners has her or his own opinion of the group's role as a regulatory commission and the issues they should address while conducting the first triennial review of Hawkeye CableVision.

City Media Specialist Drew Shaffer said the intent of the triennial review is to compare what Hawkeye Cable Vision intitially proposed it would do with what it actually has done, as well as "give projections as to where they are

"If there are any particular problems, either party can make requests for changes," Shaffer said.

He said the thoroughness of the review will be "dictated by the number of people involved and the energy they have ... Nobody is getting paid full time to work on this. We can't possibly cover every possible question.

It is the degree of the thoroughness, or intensity, of the triennial review that finds the Broadband Telecommunication commissioners tuned to different channels

COMMISSIONER Nicholas Johnson, an Iowa City lawyer, said the commission has an obligation to devise a plan to dictate specific standards that Hawkeye CableVision must follow for the next three years.

"If we don't do it in Iowa City, who is? The people of Iowa City aren't going to do it. The city council isn't going to do it," he said.

The city granted a 15-year nonexclusive franchise to operate a cable network to Hawkeye CableVision in 1979. The franchise is subject to the provisions of the Broadband Telecommunications Enabling Franchise Ordinance that includes a review of the franchise's "performance, plans and prospects" once about every three

Last week Johnson, a former commissioner on the Federal Communications Commission, asked for help from the city staff to wade through the ordinance's legal jargon and prepare a written document that addresses all aspects of the ordinance.

tand every provision," he said. "As it cablecast live is now, the burden is on our shoulders . It is a very heavy responsibility.

But Assistant City Manager Dale Helling said the Iowa City Council had a different intent in mind when it mandated the triennial review. Helling told the commission last week he thought the council wanted the commission to work as concerned citizens, not experts. He said he thought the council not intended such a thorough review every three years.

Commission Chairman William Terry said he agrees with the idea of developing a three-year plan, but limited city staff will force the commission to devise the plan on its own. We are going to do the best we can. We will make the report to the best of our ability."

Commissioner Jen Madsen said she thinks the commission is a competent one and "has a handle" on the review

WE ARE not going to decide the whole fate of cable television for the next 12 years in this triennial review," she said. "We can't bite off everything. We have to try and get a handle on where we are and where we are go-

Commissioner Sandra Eskin said she thinks the intent of the triennial review is to "say if we think the franchise is on Every point in the franchise ordinance should be mentioned and any 'friction' between the city and Hawkeye CableVision should be negotiated, she said. "I don't think rewriting the franchise is the point at all. We could recommend to the council that some changes be made if the ordinance is not meeting our needs."

She said the city ordinance "spells out" the role and purpose of the triennial review; "We just need to pull it out and read it."

The ordinance also states that the "may inquire in particular whether the grantee is supplying a level and variety of services equivalent to those being generally offered at that time in the industry in comparable market situations.

The commissioners and Hawkeye Cable Vision officials agree that an important part of the review is the public's opportunity to speak out on cable television issues. Commissioners hope to receive input from Iowa City residents at two public hearings scheduled for April 28 at the Iowa City EVEN AS a legal authority I am not Civic Center. THE REVOLUTION put Allen's father in jeopardy. After a British embassy official shot a Bolshevik soldier who was rifling through embassy files, all British men of military age were considered enemy aliens and sought for arrest. "I remember, the minute Russia pulled out of the war, my father who was British became an enemy alien, and a Red Guard would come searching for him at night. They would knock at the door then search the house, but Daddy in the meantime had skipped out a window at the back into

"We left after the revolution. My mother stuck it out, hoping that my father would go with us ... then we couldn't wait any more. The British embassy (officials) were arrested and put in a political fortress, so they couldn't help the 2,000 English people who were trapped. Then the Danish embassy took over ... and the remnants (about 300) of those who could leave which did not include my father were put on the very last refugee train that left.

We were locked into the train and nobody else could board it... We went across Finland, Sweden and Norway - where we had to wait for the British embassy people before finally reaching England."

Allen did not see her father for several years, although he escaped from the Soviet Union by walking over the frozen Gulf of Finland. "When he got to Helsinki, he was kept there by British intelligence. They persuaded him to go back and try to get the release of some of those who'd been put in prison... There was an underground and they went from one peasant house to another, and they bribed guards.'

Times are not good for many of the nation's traditionally black colleges. Christopher Edley, Director of the United Negro College Fund, which acts as fundraiser for 41 private black colleges, says those schools are "in their worst period" since the 1944 formation of the UNCF. Several states plan to merge public black colleges with major state institutions, and many black educators fear that black students will be shortchanged in the process.

The average black student still faces more educational disadvantages than the average white. The median family income of prospective freshman at the UNCF schools is only $11,100, compared to a national median of $22,200. Three-quarters of all black students receive help from Pell grants, and the proposed cutbacks in federal aid will force from schools a higher percentage of blacks than whites.

Since alumni of black colleges generally have lower average incomes than the alumni of predominantly white schools, black colleges have additional fundraising problems. Significantly, faculty salaries at private black colleges trail the national smallcollege average by 25 per cent.

The final dilemma is that with even formerly segregated institutions having sizeable black enrollments, traditional black colleges have to compete with the far better endowed public and private universities for students. In 1970, one out of every two black students attended traditionally black schools; now the figure is one out of six. Meanwhile, efforts to attract more whites have met with limited success.

So, unless federal and state governments act quickly, schools that have played — and can still play — a vital role in the progress of American education will fade from the scene.

Hoyt Olsen

Public education

The quality of education in Iowa City's public schools has significantly declined, according to some of the teachers. The combined effects of budget cuts and inflation have severely hurt our school system, forcing administrators to reduce course offerings and teachers to use fewer supplies and texts.

"I'm ashamed of some of the things we've done in our system," says Dave Kirkman, a West High social studies teacher and audiovisual director. Everyone agrees that trimming the fat from government programs is good. But in terms of our local education, Kirkman and seven other Iowa City school district instructors reported at a recent conference that we have gone too far.

There are no simple answers to the dilemma of funding public education in times of a depressed economy. Taxes must be raised and programs must be cut; these are piecemeal solutions with which no one is happy. Long term planning is required, but there are always some factors that cannot be predicted.

What becomes most needed is a commitment to quality education on the part of the community. Iowa City has traditionally been proud of its school system. In their professional opinion, some local teachers feel we must draw the line and contribute more to public education.

One of the most important roles of the government is to educate its citizens properly. There comes a time when we must say enough is enough; despite tight fiscal restrictions our schools need more money to operate effectively. It is our civic duty to improve the situation, even if it's going to cost us all more money.

NATO on the brink

For years NATO has been considered a simple and secure fact of diplomatic life for the United States. Born during the turbulent post-World War II years, the organization gave concrete form to the political and military alliances forged during the war, and has emerged as one of the world's most durable international treaty organizations. Now, it appears NATO is in trouble.

Cracks in the alliance have been forming for years, but two recent events may have pushed NATO to the brink. First is the renewal of America's insistence on building and maintaining a strong military presence in Europe. American troops and material were once accepted as the only sure means of enforcing postwar treaties, but Europeans are questioning whether they still are needed. Indeed, many Europeans feel their continent is becoming a nuclear playground, and fear that if there is a nuclear war, it would be centered there.

The Argentine takeover of the Falkland Islands represents a more immediate, and potentially far greater, threat to NATO's integrity. Pledged by treaties to defend both Britain and Argentina, the United States is trying desperately to remain neutral in the affair. This response has enraged many Britons, who are understandably perturbed that their oldest and closest ally has refused to side with them against a military dictatorship.

The future of NATO will depend on the ability of American foreign policy planners to strike a delicate balance between protecting our country's interests and meeting its treaty obligations. The United States must become more sensitive to the expectations of those countries with whom it has entered into diplomatic partnership. Otherwise, NATO may not survive what a current Senate report describes as "the most severe crisis it has faced for many years."

Board offices belong in Shimek

By Dona Fae Park

I have been attending school board meetings for more years than I like to remember, probably long before most of the board members lived in Iowa City and possibly before some were

I am a resident, I have seen two children through the Iowa City schools. I own property so I pay taxes, and I have been a staff member of the Iowa City Community School District for 13

I've watched boards come and go and I've seen some very intelligent, wellthought-out, well-researched decisions. And I have seen a few not so intelligent. I've never spoken out at a board meeting to even voice an opinion, much less criticize a decision. I do not like to rock the boat, but the time has come to voice an opinion.

Let me make one thing clear - I am proud to work in the Iowa City School System, and I am genuinely interested in the well-being of this school district. I see much waste - of time, of manpower, of materials, of useless activities — but the board's consideration of remodeling Sabin or Central for a board office is particularly disturbing.

SHIMEK SCHOOL has a total of 197 students — about 40 are transfers to Shimek by choice; over 80 are bused to move out as easily and with as little ex-

Guest opinion

Shimek and could be bused to another approximately 66 students actually in the Shimek district; virtually all if not all of those are within walking distance of another school, Horace Mann, which has space for them. They all walked to

Horace Mann before Shimek was built. Dr. John Cazin, a former school board member, very thoughtfully suggested closing Shimek a few years

A few weeks ago, UI Director of Affirmative Action Classie Hoyle gave the most logical, well-thought-out arguments I have heard from this board this year for placing the Board Office in Shimek School. Sixty-six students are actually involved, minimum output for the move, parking, air conditioning, moveable walls, areas for meeting rooms and conference rooms, accessibility to the handicapped, little if any busing.

What she did not mention was that in the event that Shimek should grow, which is very unlikely, the board could ense as it moved in, and I believe small is not necessarily better. Shimek is as centrally located as the present board office. Why does the board office need to be located in the center of town? Prospective teachers and salesmen will find it, wherever it

system that is in dire financial straits hang on to two pieces of the most valuable available property in the city when there is currently extra space in schools and should be inevitable that ultimately at least one school will be

If Sabin can be sold for $485,000 that money could be invested at even 10 percent (and none of us are investing money at 10 percent these days) and earn more than enough to pay twice the rent you are paying on the present facility, which would be better than pouring money into Sabin.

To pour thousands of dollars into Sabin just for a Board Office is chimerical, to put it mildly, in light of the program cuts like the nursing program, students paying book fees, activity fees, reduction in force of teachers, cutting busing, budget cuts everything that affects all students and staff in the district. I have worked in a large school and a small school. I worked in a school while it went from large to small and

THE SYSTEM is in a budgetary bind. It is not apt to get any better. We elected the school board to make intelligent decisions, monetarily sound decisions, some of which are bound to be unpopular with some people. It WHY, INDEED, should a school doesn't seem they are making decisions that are in the best interests of all the children of this district.

> If you are concerned about the Iowa City school system as a student, a parent a taxpayer (everyone pays taxes either directly or indirectly) or just an interested citizen, let it be known by letters or better by attending the school board meeting April 27 and voicing your opinion. Unfortunately the board hears only from those opposed to a board move to Shimek School mainly the parents of the Shimek students who can walk to another school.

A decision to keep a school open for about 66 students, or to pour thousands of dollars into Sabin school or Central Junior High when a board move to Shimek could be accomplished with so little cost and with an effect on so few students, is totally irresponsible. It is hard to believe that a local, elected body could let its constituents down with such an irresponsible decision.

Another view of Nestle's record

To the editor:

After 15 years of worldwide economic and political pressure, Nestle representative Rafael Pagan suggests that the company should be applauded for its role in the implementation of the World Health Organization's recommendations for revised codes governing marketing techniques of infant formulas (DI, April 15).

Hardly. Rafael continues, "We believe these initiatives are consistent with Nestle's tradition of industry leadership and cooperation with the health and medical community." On the contrary, Nestle has historically resisted international pressure to cease flagrant violations of humane marketing practices, that included the use of "milk nurses," using the very lies, half-truths and ommission of facts that Pagan mistakenly states are used by his critics.

Most health organizations, as well as 431 East Market individuals like myself, viewed the Nestle decision with mixed emotion and are not blindly rescinding pressures as Pagan would like us to believe. We will continue to exert economic and political stress until we see whether or not Nestle's actions are consistent with its political jargon. Randy Parkinson

Don't be fooled

To the editor:

Voters, don't be fooled again. The Republicans have resorted to deceitful tricks to cover for their inefficiency. Remember, Ronald Reagan campaigned for the presidency promising to "right the wrongs" the Democrats had perpetuated. He also pledged to balance the budget by 1983.

Now that the projected deficit is approximately $100 billion, the largest in history, the Republicans have aunched a double-talk campaign. They realize they will be ousted in the November elections for not only failing to balance the budget but for increasing it substantially. The Republicans are not cutting the budget, they are merely reapportioning funds away from social programs and into an already-bloated defense budget. Remember, it was Reagan who said, "We now know that inflation results from all that deficit spending.'

To cover for their inability to reduce spending, they have reintroduced a Senate bill for an amendment that supposedly would obligate Congress to balance the budget every year except in times of war or if Congress specifically approved a deficit budget by a three-fifths vote in both the House and the Senate.

This appears to be a noble bill but actually it stinks of deceit because it is connected with those very same people who are approving the largest deficit ever. In addition, if Congress was unable to balance the budget they would merely vote the amendment ineffective. While no one can be against balancing the budget, the purposes for a lame amendment such as this must be questioned. This bill is nothing but another attempt to divert the attention of the voters.

AN AFSCME TRIBUTE TO THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA
CLERICAL-SECRETARIAL STAFF

Roses are nice. But raises are nicer.

A dozen roses. A box of candy. Lunch at a nice restaurant.

For years, that's been the traditional way to show "appreciation" for clerical and secretarial employees on National Secretaries Day or during National Secretaries Week.

But what about the other 51 weeks, the other 364 days?

Iowa state government faces political change and financial problems. In these uncertain times, clerical and secretarial employees need guarantees we can count on for our pay increases and our job security.

Clerical and secretarial employees need the legally binding guarantees of regular pay increases and job security protections that are written into AFSCME contracts. We need the strength and security that comes with uniting with the 16,000 Iowa state employees who are already represented by AFSCME.

The state Public Employment Relations Board has scheduled an election May 10 through 13, in which clerical and secretarial employees will have the opportunity to vote for AFSCME representation.

With AFSCME, clerical and secretarial employees will have guarantees for our economic security 52 weeks, 365 days a year!

Guarantee your future.

Vote AFSCME.

Pitching boosts lowa to victories

By Thomas W. Jargo

Iowa's baseball team received strong pitching performances from seniors Mark Radosevich and Bill Drambel to sweep a double-header from Western Illinois, 6-4 and 2-1, Tuesday on the Iowa baseball diamond.

It was a pitchers' paradise with a strong wind blowing into home plate over the left-field fence. Radosevich, surviving a shaky first inning, tossed a seven-hitter in going the distance in the first game. Drambel continued the strong pitching for the Hawks in the nightcap, firing a two-hitter.

In the opener, Radosevich surrendered a lead-off double to Keith Maragi. He then walked three of the next four men, his only walks of the was hit by a pitch to load the bases.

The Leathernecks scored twice more in the inning - on a Radosevich wild pitch and an RBI single by left fielder Bill Wright - to take a quick 3-0 lead. Iowa came right back in their half of the inning to score twice on a two-run double by Jeff Nielsen, scoring Tim Davis and Dick Turelli. The Hawks tallied again in the second to knot the

The Hawks tied it up in their half of the third on a sacrifice fly by Gassmann, scoring Darby. They took the lead for good in the fifth when Brian Charipar scored on a wild pitch.

DRAMBEL WASTED no time in securing the victory, striking out three, earning his second victory of the year. With an effective slider, Drambel got 15 Leatherneck ground-outs to the infielders. "I threw a lot of breaking stuff, and they hit them into ground balls - that's my game," Drambel said. "I needed a good start." Iowa Head Coach Duane Banks was pleased to see Drambel pitch as well as he did. "He had 15 ground balls," he

Cyclones pay visit to Hawks' diamond

By Matt Gallo Staff Writer

The Iowa baseball team will attempt to snap a six-game losing streak to Iowa State when the intrastate rivals collide in a twinbill at the Iowa diamond today, starting at 1 p.m.

Despite Iowa State's recent success, Iowa continues to lead the series, 40-31. And although both head coaches, Iowa State's Larry Corrigan and Iowa's Duane Banks, said these match-ups have nothing to do with previous games between the schools, it seems for an athletic season at either university to be considered a success, in any sport, a victory over the arch-rival is needed.

'Something you did yesterday doesn't mean a damn thing today, Banks said. "They're not as good as last year, they lost a lot of pitching, but they'll come at us. We gotta be more aggressive with the bats."

BANKS CERTAINLY wasn't kidding when he said Iowa will have to improve its hitting. In last weekend's series at Illinois, which the Illini swept, the Hawks could manage an average of less than four hits per game while watching their league batting mark dip to .158. "The hitting was very disappointing for me and the kids," he said. When they can't hit, the kids get frustrated and try harder.

While Corrigan said he doesn't point to the Iowa series as being bigger than a Big Eight game, he stressed the fact that Iowa State has defeated the Hawks six times in a row. "This team has nothing to do with last year's team," he said. "We lost 15 seniors off of that team. There is no correlation between this and last year. We have nowhere near the experience of last year. We're probably not as good, but I'm real pleased with this team."

The Cyclones, 18-16, have already beaten Oklahoma State, last year's national runner-up, once this year, and have played several excellent games against top competition. "If you add five runs at key places, we'd be 23-11," Corrigan said. "We play really good on some days and smell really poorly on

Iowa State's line-up, although inexperienced, features some solid hitting. The Cyclones' team average is .307. Slugging third baseman, Mike Hocutt, is hitting an outstanding .438, with five homers. Second baseman Jim Walewander, is at .320 with 33 stolen bases, and shortstop Bob Mancuso, hitting .328, also contributes to the

Key matches set in NHL playoffs

The New York Islanders, Chicago Black Hawks and Vancouver Canucks, picking up momentum as they advance, try tonight for series-clinching victories in their division finals of the NHL playoffs.

The Islanders, seeking to become the first U.S. team to win three straight Stanley Cups, play the New York Rangers, needing one victory in the remaining scheduled three games to clinch their series. They took a 3-1 lead Monday night with a 5-3 triumph which left the Rangers with only forlorn hopes for a comeback.

The Black Hawks, who haven't won a Cup since 1938, face the St. Louis Blues in the same situation - needing one victory in three games. They took a 3-1 margin by beating the Blues 7-4 Monday

THE CANUCKS, seeking the first Cup in their short history, can clinch their series with another triumph over the Los Angeles Kings, whom they defeated 5-4

Monday night. The Quebec Nordiques, meanwhile, beat the Boston Bruins 7-2 and squared their series at two games each. The series will continue at Boston Garden for game five Wednesday and will return to Quebec for game six Fri-

Goalie John Davidson made his first start in the Rangers' goal since last October 14, but suffered a leg injury and was replaced in the second period by Steve Weeks with the Rangers trailing, 3-2.

Duane Sutter snapped a 3-3 tie with a goal at 12 minutes, 27 seconds of the third period and Butch Goring added an empty-net score with 35 seconds left to seal

The Islanders, who looked flat in three games of their opening series with the Pittsburgh Penguins, are now playing well within their ability in the Ranger series. Even Rangers Coach Herb Brooks seemed content that his team hasn't been routed by a clearly superior club.

"WE HAVE come a long way this season," he said after the loss. "I have no complaints about our performance in the playoffs."

"Getting the hat trick won't mean nearly as much to me as getting (into) the Stanley Cup finals," said Savard, who leads the Hawks with six playoff goals.

Chicago forward Ted Bulley scored two goals, including the one that snapped a 4-4 tie at 4:23 of the third period.

Braves edge Reds to set record

ATLANTA (UPI) - Claudell Association, also in 1884 Washington tripled home the go-ahead run and then scored on a wild pitch in the third inning Tuesday night, helping the unbeaten Atlanta Braves defeat the Cincinnati Reds, 4-2, and establish a modern major league record by extending their start of the season winning streak to 12 games.

The Braves tied the all-time National League record set by the New York Giants in 1884, but are still eight victories behind the all-time major league record set by St. Louis of the Union

The Reds jumped to a 2-0 lead in the second when pitcher Frank Pastore singled home Larry Biittner and Eddie Milner singled home Mike O'Berry with his second of four straight hits.

THE BRAVES got one of those runs back in the second when Chris Chambliss hit his second homer of the season, a low liner over the rightcenterfield fence, and Atlanta tied the score when Rafael Ramirez led off the third with his first homer of the year, a left-field foul pole. Two outs later, Glenn Hubbard drew a walk and Washington, playing for the first time since he was beaned by a Pastore pitch a week ago in Cincinnati, rifled a triple to the center field fence, scoring Hubbard, and then scampered home when a Pastore pitch bounced toward the Braves' dugout.

The Braves got strong relief pitching from rookie Steve Bedrosian, who took over in the second with the bases loaded and two outs, and veteran Gene Pastore, Kern (8) and O'Berry, Boggs, Bedrosian (2), Garber (6) and Benedict. W — Bedrosian (1-0), L — Pastore (1-1), HR — (Atlanta) Chambliss (2), Ramirez (1).

Garber, who came on in the seventh when Bedrosian appeared to tire. Bedrosian, picking up his first major league victory, got out of a second inning jam when he got Cessar Cedeno to fly out to center and pitched out of another bases-loaded jam in the fourth by getting Cedeno to bounce out.

Bullets fire past New Jersey

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) - Rick Mahorn, held scoreless in the first half, scored 16 second-half points to lead the Washington Bullets to a 96-83 victory Tuesday night over the New Jersey Nets in the first game of a bestof-three NBA Eastern Conference mini-series The Bullets can wrap up the series with a victory Friday night at Landover, Md. A third game, if necessary, would be played Sunday at the Meadowlands

Washington held New Jersey to 38 second-half points and came from a 10point deficit to open a 14-point lead with just over three-and-a-half minutes to play. Mahorn, who did not take a shot in the first half, scored eight points in the final period, including the Bullets' first six points to pull them into a 69-69 tie with nine minutes remaining in the game.

AFTER KEVIN GREVEY hit two foul shots and New Jersey's Buck Williams scored on a dunk, the Bullets went on an 8-0 spurt to take control of the game midway through the final period. Grevey hit from the left corner, Jeff Ruland hit two lavups and Frank Johnson hit a driving shot to give the Bullets a 79-71 lead. After Ray Williams - who was 4-for-19 in the game - hit two foul shots, the Bullets scored eight more points to break the game open.

Mahorn hit from the right of the foul line, Greg Ballard hit a jumper and Johnson and Grevey had two free throws each to give Washington its commanding 87-73 advantage.

Ruland led the Bullets with 18 points, Johnson hit for 15 and Spencer Haywood added 14. Buck Williams led New Jersey with 23 points and Albert King had 15. Darwin Cook poured in 13 points and Ray Williams finished with Washington tied the score 63-63 with four seconds remaining in the third quarter. Scoring the last eight points of the period, the Bullets held New Jersey to 18 third-quarter points as the Nets struggled without starting point guard Foots Walker, out with a sprained right ankle.

The Nets led 45-41 at halftime despite a dreadful shooting streak by Ray Williams. The 6-6 guard, who led New Jersey to four wins in six regular season games against the Bullets with a 20.2 average, shot 1-for-9. Williams

Friendship, unselfishness help in lowa tennis partner's development

By Mike Condon

Iowa's No. 2 team of Nancy Schumacher and Sara Loetscher possesses the unique qualities needed for a good game of doubles in tennis - unselfishness and friendship.

The tandem has an 8-4 record during the spring season. Iowa Head Coach Cathy Ballard is not surprised by their performance and has an interesting theory to the reason for their success.

'Nancy and Sara are the best of friends," Ballard said. "That is the sound basis for a good doubles team. They go out and try to make each other look good during a match and besides that, their games complement each other so well."

With their record, some might wonder why Schumacher and Loetscher are not playing in the No. 1 slot, especially since Iowa's top player, Karen Kettenacker, has not had a regular partner all spring.

BUT INSTEAD of breaking up the No. 2 team and pairing Schumacher or Loetscher with Kettenacker, Ballard has elected to use Laura Lagen with Kettenacker. The reason? Schumacher and Loetscher play so

Schumacher is an aggressive player who uses Loetscher's powerful serve as an advantage. "Sara has a really tough serve that makes me look good," she said. "When she gets her first serve in, it lets me poach (hitting the return right at the net) on the Losing the first set is nothing new for Loetscher and Schumacher. Many of their matches are three set affairs and Loetscher says the duo never thinks they are out of a match.

"We always try to relax each other," Loetscher said. "That helps us to always feel like we're in the match. We never say quit until the last point. We don't think much about our record. We just go out and do the best we can."

Both are also top performers in the classroom with grade point averages of more than 3.0. "Tennis is good for school," Schumacher said. "It makes you buckle down and I feel the busier you are the more you get out of tennis."

LOETSCHER, a Dubuque native, agrees. "It takes a certain amount of discipline to play tennis and get good grades." Schumacher has a special rooting section

Gym region change approved

By Steve Batterson

Because of a protest by Iowa Men's Gymnastics Coach Tom Dunn, the Hawkeyes have been placed in the Mideast region by the NCAA Men's Gymnastics Committee

Dunn became upset after Iowa failed to qualify for the national meet in Lincoln, Neb., April 1-3, despite finishing with the third-best average in the Midwest region. Disenchanted with the regional committee's action that moved the fourth and fifth-place teams above the Hawkeyes, Dunn petitioned the chairman of the NCAA Men's Gymnastics Committee, Bill Roetzheim, to move Iowa to the Mideast region.

"Being in the Big Ten, most of the teams we face are in the Mideast region," Dunn said at the time of the protest. "We can't really justify spending all that money to fly to New Mexico, Texas or Colorado to compete when we have good competition in the

DUNN LEARNED Monday that the rules committee decided to move Iowa and the state of Ohio into the Mideast region. The remainder of the state of Iowa will remain in the Midwest region. The change still needs the approval of the NCAA executive committee, which Dunn believes is no problem "since it doesn't deal with money."

Dunn was pleased with the decision. "Moving us into the Mideast region with Ohio State won't make it any easier for us to qualify," Dunn said. 'We will be in a region, though, where we meet 90 percent of the teams. We'll be judged by people who've seen us compete, and that is what we wanted."

selection committee along with Roetzheim, the athletic director at Illinois-Chicago Circle, Minnesota Coach Fred Roethlisberger, Southern Illinois Coach Bill Meade and Fred Orlafsky of Western Michigan.

The biggest rule change for the 1982-83 season will be a reduction in the number of gymnasts who will be allowed to compete in each meet. A teams line-up will be limited to nine next season rather than the ten-man line-up that was used this year.

IOWA HAD PROPOSED that designated all-arounders be required in the starting line-ups of teams but disagreement over how to substitute in case of an injury saw no designation of all-arounders and a reduction in the possible for guys to work four or five events, encouraging multiple event participation," Dunn said. "It will make it harder on the specialists, though. He'll have to be an exceptional gymnast to make the line-up.

"I'd have preferred the designated Dunn was also named to the Mideast all-arounder rule, but it is still very moved back a week next season.

"I really don't think the rule will hurt us as much as it will hurt the bigger teams," Dunn said. New rules will also allow a coach to enter only one line-up in a triangular meet, rather than using a different line-up for each meet, and exhibition routines will be prohibited during the upcoming season. Both had previously been agreed upon by the competing coaches.

The committee also decided to move the 1983 national meet, scheduled for Penn State, back a week, thus avoiding a conflict with the NCAA basketball championships, which also will be

Cyclones hitting .344, and Chris Schuerg, batting

Corrigan said the Cyclones will probably throw several pitchers, all right handers, at Iowa, unless 'someone goes out and knocks them dead." He mentioned Tony Evetts and Mark Danker as possible starters, with relief help from Nick Zumsande, Reggie Hastings and John Hennessey

It was Illinois who had considerable success against the Hawkeye's predominantly right-handed line-up by throwing all righties last weekend, and apparently, Corrigan took note.

The Hawkeyes, 18-14, most likely will start right-handers Brian Hobaugh and Jeff Green, although Banks said his line-up isn't set.

"If we score any runs Hobaugh will beat them. But we have to score," Banks said. "Our pitching isn't our weak point. It's not the end of the world. We'll come back. We can correct our problems with some hard work. Right now we have to start swinging the bats."

If the weather holds out for today's game, Iowa should have its biggest crowd of the year on hand for the double-header. "Iowa State will come in here sky high," Banks said. "I think we'll be ready because of what has happened in the past. We'll be cranked

STONE CITY, Ia. - Somewhere in the basement of the General Store, the little pub along the river here in Stone City, was an 11-year-old entrepreneur named Ben who could have told you all the history you needed to know about the building.

Ben would be a story in himself, a tiny little round-faced kid who sells his home-made bean dip and guacamole to the bar and hotel and owns the town's only pinball machine. He'll take you on a tour of the General Store and the big house up the hill now called The Inn and tell you a little story about every room and maybe play some pinball with you when the tour's done.

And when you get tired and want to sit down and relax, Ben will go to work hauling bottles around or helping in the kitchen, the smile on his face never

Upstairs a couple of waitresses were charging around, picking up empty bottles and trying to get things roughly in shape for Leo Kottke's second show of the night. The room was small and filled with chairs. There was an air of business about it, like a recording

A COUPLE OF PEOPLE in the sound booth of the aspiring musical showcase fiddled with tapes and talked about sound quality.

Kottke was brought in to help celebrate the grand opening of the newly rejuvenated General Store. Between shows he climbed the chrome ladder up to the apartment above the sound booth and split a bottle of sweet burgandy with a stranger.

"I guess I'm just lucky," he said, looking down into the plastic cup full of wine. "I found my instrument, the guitar, just like my dad discovered

Moviemakers lured to Land of Lincoln

The film industry has poured more than $60 million into the Illinois economy in the last five years with about 70 filming projects receiving the okay from state officials.

John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd are shown as Jake and Elwood Blues in a scene from the movie The Blues Brothers filmed on Maxwell Street in Chicago.

By Roxanne T. Mueller Arts/Entertainment Editor

Iowa may be able to boast of having films like Take This Job and Shove It and Sylvester Stallone's F.I.S.T. filmed on Iowa soil, but as far as prestige, Illinois tops all Midwestern states for location filming.

To name just a few of the more than 70 projects filmed in Illinois over the last five years, choose from Ordinary People, The Blues Brothers, My Bodyguard, The Sting, parts of Continental Divide, Arthur Penn's Four Friends and the new television series "Chicago Story."

The success of the Illinois Film Office in luring the powers-that-be in Hollywood to the land of Lincoln comes from high-powered salesmanship from a state-salaried five-person staff based in Chicago. Proof that the commission is worth the office space it occupies is the $60 million the movie industry has poured into the Illinois economy in just five years - an incredible figure when one realizes that before 1977, income of that type was virtually at zero. 'Hizzoner'' Richard Daley, it seems, would allow no film to be shot in Illinois if it weren't something he could take his family to.

SUSIE KELLETT, who acts as assistant to the director at the office, spoke at the regional meeting of Women in Communications, Inc. last week in Springfield, Ill. and proved she has more stories than a sea captain when it comes to relating details of her job. She's done everything from take Shelley Winters to lunch at Water Tower Place to race around Chicago in the dead of night trying to find a bar with a "certain look" that will satisfy a demanding producer.

Kellett's basic description of her job is "cutting red tape" for producers wishing to film in Illinois. Combine that with aggressive sales tactics and a willingness to take on the impossible - and come through - and you have a film commission that producers actually seek out. "Studios come to us now," she said. 'We ask for a script, break it down into locations and then think of five or six alternative locations. We seek those spots out in helicopters, boats, els, whatever, and then photograph everything - panoramas and also interiors. We send it off to L.A. and it's there the executives sit down with the directors and producers."

IN THE CHAOTIC world of filmmaking, time can be a luxury. Kellett related the time a production company called up at 3 o'clock on a Monday afternoon and wanted a list of 15 location specifics by 10 a.m. Wednesday. "Everyone was mobilized and worked day and she said. "You have to be able to work very quickly and creatively. The big key is to lock them in - to get that commitment from the studio that they will do the filming here."

The necessity of give-and-take can take unusual forms. When Robert Altman filmed A Wedding in a Chicago suburb, the commission had secured permission from a homeowner that her mansion could be used for interiors. At the last minute, she backed off, but when Altman promised the woman to premiere the film in Chicago, with all profits to go to her favorite charity, the woman agreed and filming proceeded.

Delays can cost a studio $12,000 an hour, according to Kellett, so when Robert Redford decided to build studio sets for Ordinary People interiors, instead of using the already set up interiors of a house, the film office staffers racked their collective brains to find a place big enough to accommodate a film crew. They came up with an abandoned laundromat some place in the suburbs and the set crew transformed it into Mary Tyler Moore's upper-middle-class

KELLETT SAYS part of the commission's success lies in the relative novelty of making movies in Illinois. "People in California are jaundiced about filmmaking, but in places like Illinois, we still think of it as marvelous and exciting. People want to be in the movies. When The Blues Brothers was in the planning stages, Belushi and Aykroyd went up to Mayor Byrne's office and asked her where to get a good pizza and could they drive through Daley Plaza. She didn't bat an eye, and just turned around and asked the people there, 'Does anybody see any problems with

The utter chaos captured on screen in The Blues Brothers wouldn't have been possible without the state film office, as well as a separate Chicago film commission, smoothing the way. They were also able to accommodate a request from the makers of Steve McQueen's The Hunter to drive a car off a 16-story parking lot into the Chicago River. Needless to say, it had to be done in one take - and was.

"That stunt and the whole of The Blues Brothers did more for us than any amount of talking could ever do." Kellett said.

BESIDES MAJOR films, television has taken advantage of Illinois locations. The opening credits of "Hill Street Blues' are familiar to Chicagoans, and the TV trilogy of "The Awakening Land" - despite its Ohio setting — was filmed entirely in Illinois. "The director decided IIlinois looked more like Ohio than Ohio did," said Kellett.

Affordable Olympic coin price proposed

 $\label{eq:WASHINGTON (UPI)} \textbf{--} \textbf{Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-} \\ \textbf{Ill, said Tuesday the commemorative Olympic coins}$ should be marketed by the U.S. Treasury at a price affordable to the American public.

Annunzio, chairman of the House consumer affairs and coinage subcommittee, has fought bills introduced in the Senate and House that would allow private marketing of the coins. He wants just one coin minted - a silver dollar - to be marketed at a cost of under $25.

The other bills would provide for up to 29 coins in a set, minted by the government and sold by firms selected by the U.S. Olympic Committee and the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, which will stage the 1984 Summer Olympics.

ANNUNZIO SAID that under a contract with the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, Occidental Petroleum and Lazard-Freres, a Parisbased international investment banking firm, would market those sets at prices estimated up to $10,000.

The contract would guarantee the Los Angeles committee $50 million, to be shared with the U.S. Olympic Committee and the International Olympic Committee.

"The average American would be more than willing to purchase one or two coins commemorating the 1984 Olympic Games if the profit from those coins went directly to support the Games, our Olympic team and amateur athletics," Annunzio said.

Downstairs the announcer says that if they make some noise maybe Kottke will come down and play. The crowd yells and Kottke, who has spent much of his break fiddling with a broken fingernail, pours the stranger another glass of wine.

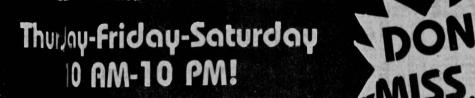

He stands and climbs down the ladder - "Ladies and Gentlemen: Leo Kottke!" - leaving his glass of wine on the desk. Without so much as a moment's preparation he is up on stage, playing a kind of flashy fingerlimberer that really requires little skill from a guitarist.

The second crowd is rowdier, more impatient than the first. Kottke moves the songs around a little, substituting a couple of upbeat ones for those more discursive and challenging to the audience.

Downstairs, Ben had everything put away and was headed for bed. The tapes rolled and Kottke played and everything, it would seem, was well with the opening of the new General Store.

Libel trial continues

COMPTON, Calif. (UPI) - Lawyer Louis Nizer told jurors Tuesday a 1975 Penthouse magazine story reporting on organized crime at the plush Rancho La Costa resort was an example of "destroying people's lives for a buck."

Nizer, in his closing arguments in the long-running $522 million libel trial, said the information in the Penthouse story was incorrect and comparable to a 'lecture on morals in a brothel.'

Nizer apologized to the eight-woman, four-man jury for the length of the trial, telling the panel its decision would probably make history.

"It may be historic in that there is a plague in this country, a plague of sensationalism, of excoriating people falsely, of destroying peoples' lives for a buck," Nizer said.

The jury was expected to begin deliberations Wed-Nizer said his clients, La Costa co-owners Merv

Western Opera wise to convert Puccini's 'La Boheme' into English

Puccini's La Boheme is, according to the director of the Western Opera Theater, "one of the world's most favorite operas." Several commentators on opera who have decried and claimed not to understand Puccini's popularity have grudgingly admitted, in the words of one of them, the "somewhat chloritic charm" that La Boheme exerts.

The Western Opera presented La Boheme Monday night at Hancher Auditorium.

The libretto, in which picturesque, incidental details fill out a story of love blossoming, flourishing, being tested, and finally ending in a tragedy that has threatened to consume that love from the very beginning, is paralleled by Puccini's musical setting, whose telegraphic style alternating with lyrical outbursts manages to convincingly convey the contours of the

The difficulties and inconsistencies in the opera, given this context, have to do with motivation and familiarity. After the exchange of arias by Rodolfo and Mimi in Act I, it is hard to accept the ensuing outpouring of love: Mimi's tone is entirely too conversational and speculative to make the ardency palatable.

IF IT IS AGREED that the love of Mimi and Rodolfo is not very solidly established, one can only resent the death scene, in which Puccini recalls the themes of their prior happiness in so languid a way that the intent is clearly that of making a tearjerker out of an opera in which one has invested no

The final scene thus steps outside the opera's bounds to make its main point, a technique demonstrating poor intellectual craftsmanship that I find deplorable. Obviously I am in the minority on this point, and since audiences respond to the work, to say nothing of the fact that three of the roles enshrine extremely well-known, "standard" arias, La Boheme will be with us for no little time to come.

The Western Opera Theater's performance, led by Mark D. Flint, was a serviceable, straightforward yet unmemorable one. The small orchestra sounded remarkably full, with the winds taking a larger share of the sonority than usual. Except for rather poor harp playing, there were many fine moments in the orchestra, including some rather spiffy work by brass Stephen Smith's Marcello was a wellrounded portrait of the character, with natural acting and a fine, pliable voice. Among the supporting singers, the rich but unrelievedly loud Schaunard of David Kline stood out. Kathryne Jennings sang Musetta capably but without the vocal endowment sometimes heard in the role.

NIKKI LI HARTLIEP'S MIMI was sung with a clear, even, rich voice, but the emotional profile she gave the role was bland and seemingly inhibited. Randolph Locke's Rodolfo was small-voiced, with an easy conversational manner and high notes that were big but slightly forced, with no resemblance to the rest of his voice.

The production did not exploit Hancher's large stage. Act II needed more bustle, but the idea of framing the act with a pose was effective. Elsewhere there were no illuminating production ideas. Flint's translation had some inconsistencies and paradoxes but was not overly absurd, and it sang well. The decision to present the opera in English was a wise one: the audience could understand the words with little

INTERIOR SECRETARY James Watt made an appeal for funds to excavate the site after the Northern Colorado Water Conservancy District, which is building the pipeline, the Interior Department, which oversees federal water reclamation projects, and the Colorado Historical Foundation agreed to delay construction until the excavation until July 31.

A representative for the National Trust for Historic Preservation, which will make the grant, said the funds would help defray the estimated $135,000 cost of excavating the site. Additional remains outside the pipeline area will be undisturbed and studied at a later date.

Arthur C. Townsend, the Colorado State historic preservation officer, said several radiocarbon dating tests have revealed the remains to be between 4,000 and 5,000 years

Hunter Holloway, a public affairs officer for the Bureau of Reclamation, said the 4,000-year-old figure was the "ultra conservative" date given by Watt in his plea for funds to save the site. Holloway said the oldest carbon date so far was 7,900 years.

Thank you for your participation in the River Run. You extended our wildest imagination by the fact that 880 people ran in both races. As you see we have only 801 names listed above. Please accept our apologies if your ommission was due to our

We have the names of the 40 individuals who are to receive T-Shirts. This will be the only notice that on Monday, May 3rd, they will be available for pick up at the Union

Tim Murphy, Ted Chapter, Margie Strangl, Barbara Hussy, Shelia Dalton, and Paula Klein need to pick up their trophies Thursday April 22nd in the Riverfest office between 11 am and 1 pm in the IMU. If you cannot come, please call 353-5120 during this time period and we will arrange a time.

A special thanks to Sherry, Paul and Linda at UFS, Peter who donated the prizes from Athletes Foot, Amateur Radio, React, City and Campus police for traffic control, McDonalds for supplying the refreshments, the women of Chi Omega, Sigma Kappa, and Delta Gamma who helped Saturday morning, Jeff Kudsk for operating the clock at the finish line and Jeff Larew for his assistance in compiling the results.

Remember that the River Run was student organized. If you want to get involved in Riverfest '83, keep informed. Organizational meetings begin soon after Homecoming in the fall of '82.
