British fleet on increased war alert

The British warfleet steaming toward the Falkland Islands went on increased war alert Thursday as it drew within range of Argentine war planes. U.S. intelligence sources expected the fleet to seize the remote sland of South Georgia — part of the Falkland chain — as a staging point for further military operations.

The intelligence sources said the fleet was within 800 miles of South Georgia, a desolate mountain outpost with few if any areas suitable for an amphibious assualt.

Argentine soldiers captured a British scientific base on the island April 3.

Argentine military sources admitted the British aramada was capable of overwhelming the 140-man Argentine garrison on the glacier-covered fron-tier island, but at a high cost in lives.

Diplomatic officials in Buenos Aires indicated that any attack could endanger the lives of two British women marooned on the island. The two - Annie Price and Cindy Buxton, daughter of Lord Buxton of Alsa, chairman of Independent Television News - were filming wildlife on South Georgia. Inexplicably, they did not leave earlier with 13 other British Antarctic Survey scientists and 29 Royal Marines stationed there.

FLEET COMMANDER Rear Admiral Sandy Woodward said the task force would go to 24-hour war stations at 9 p.m. Iowa time Thursday because the fleet would then be in range of landbased Argentine warplanes.

"I think they would be very illadvised to take us on," he said of the Argentine force on the main Falkland

"They would inevitably suffer severe losses. Inevitably there would be losses on our side too, but in the end I think we would win.

Earlier, pilots on the aircraft carrier Invincible scrambled aboard Harrier jump jets for a second consecutive day and chased off an Argentine Boeing 707 without incident. Battle stations rang several times when sonar soundings showed possible submarines in the area. Those alerts proved false.

On the Falklands, President Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri became the first Argentine ruler to land on the disputed chain 450 miles off the mainland. He urged 10,000 soldiers entrenched with tanks, 'jets, armored carriers and bazookas to defend their posts "until the last drop of blood" is shed.

In Washington, British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym met for four hours with Secretary of State Alexander Haig to discuss a three-point British proposal on the Falklands, a British colony of 149 years that Argentina invaded April 2 and claimed as its See Falklands, page 6

House reviews bill for budget requests

By Rochelle Bozman

The state's appropriations bill, which contains the state Board of Regents' supplemental budget requests, was approved Thursday by the Iowa Senate after two days of floor debate and moves into the Iowa House today.

Although regents' requests were approved Wednesday, the bill was not approved in final form until Thursday. House members expected the bill to be passed on to the House Appropriations Committee Thursday, but it did not get the bill until this morning.

"We got the 83 supplemental appropriations approved and sent that on to the house," Sen. Clarence Carney, R-Sioux City, said Thursday night.

Now the appropriations bill will face the House Appropriations Committee and the full House. Amendments can be made at any point, which would send the bill back to the Senate for final approval.

This process could drag on for as long as the legislators want to work, said Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City.

BUT CARNEY SAID the appropriations bill should soon be passed to Gov. Ray's office because the House will likely accept the Senate-version of the appropriations bill. 'I think they'll pretty much take what we give them," Carney said. "If they do make any changes they will be in social services. We'll probably approve the changes if they aren't ma-

The bill includes $1 million for the UI College of Medicine, $1.3 million for fuel and purchasing and $1 million for sity of Northern Iowa for additional teaching assistants to handle overcrowding in classrooms.

Legislators said although they had planned on wrapping up the second session today, they may be held over for another day because of the Senate's slow pace.

"I don't know how we're ever going to get out of here," Doderer said.

Carney said: "We're still trying to get through tomorrow night. We passed one tax bill today and if the House approves that we should be done tomorrow. We may have to go into Saturday, or maybe even into Monday, but we hope to finish tomorrow."

THE SENATE will move on to the bonding bills today, which includes the regents' request for $23.4 million in bonding to finance the UI law center.

The Senate did some initial work on the bill on Thursday and two amendments were proposed, although no action was taken. "One amendment is to add a planning bond for the veterinary clinic at ISU and one was to offer to do the communications building at UNI.

"That has been at the top of our priorities for many years and the regents never do anything about it," Carney said. "UNI seems to always take a back seat - or third place actually - to the other two schools."

Carney said there will probably be some other amendments to the bill before the vote, but the bill will go to the House by today. "I'm surprised. I expected some senators to push for funds for the agronomy building at ISU, but that will probably come

You've seen them: those television ads for different towns and cities. The Quad Cities were the first in this area to go whole hog, as it were, spending $70,000 a couple of years ago on their slick "Quad Cities, U.S.A." number, according to Carl Adrian of the Quad Cities Development Group.

The Quad Cities ads started their play on radio, television, billboards and in three local newspapers in February of 1980. All the time and space were donated by the media, a total of more than $300,000 worth of time and space, according to Adrian.

"It's been a successful campaign," Adrian says, and from the amount of play the ad series gets one could only

According to Dave Kelch of KRNA radio, who helped the Chamber find a recording studio "within their budget," the jingle "was being used by someone in Wisconsin somewhere. They just re-lyricked it for us."

The video for the Iowa City ad was provided by KCRG-TV in Cedar Rapids as part of an ad-buying package. According to Emily Rubright, chairperson of the Chamber's Retail Committee, the video was created for the intitial voice-over ads as part of a $600

> "SOME PEOPLE say it sounds like what we paid for," Kirk joked. "That may be true, but we didn't have much money to work with.'

The best of the lot — or at least the slickest - would have to be Waterloo's 'My Waterloo: I'll Share it With You'' campaign. At a cost of approximately $53,000, according to Jim Lawrence of the Waterloo Chamber of Commerce, $13,000 went to Triad Studios in Des Moines for the catchy tune.

A film company spent a couple of weeks last October and early November finding bright spots to highlight and managed to splice together a series of ads making Waterloo seem like a garden spot for only $40,000.

The ads, which were originally scheduled to end in March, are being carried over because of their popularity.

And what of Iowa City's plans in this battle for the buyer's dollar? Is there a high-priced, professional advertising campaign waiting in the wings

"We are producing another commercial for the Christmas season," Kirk said. "This will be without the jingle. The jingle will be primarily for radio from now on."

Board and White disagree on road inspection minutes

By Kevin Cook

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors unanimously approved a resolution Thursday in support of a nuclear arms freeze.

The measure, similar to the resolution passed by the Iowa City Council March 30, was placed on the agenda at the request of Supervisor Lorada Cilek. The freeze resolution was drafted by the Iowa City Peace Network.

The proposal passed with much less attention than the council's resolution. No Johnson County residents attended the morning meeting to voice their opinions of the measure, and the supervisors voted 5-0 without discussion or objections.

The resolution states that the supervisors support a mutual and verifiable freeze by the United States and the Soviet Union of the testing and production of

IN OTHER ACTION, the board squabbled with First Assistant County Attorney J. Patrick White about an interpretation of the Iowa Open Meetings

The disagreement was sparked by the intention of four of the five supervisors to inspect a county road in response to complaints of poor drainage. White said the supervisors would violate the law if someone did not take minutes of the gathering. The road involved is the Hinek road one mile north of Lone Tree. According to Supervisor Don Sehr. residents have asked that supervisors inspect the road to see what can be done to improve the road.

According to White, who handles legal duties for the board, whenever a majority of the board deliberates county business they must do it in a scheduled meeting and minutes must be taken.

White told the board that a majority could visit the site if they did not discuss the matter.

SUPERVISOR Harold Donnelly said that such restraint would be difficult to enforce unless a state official "gags us before we leave and takes them off when we get back.'

Supervisor Dennis Langenberg disputed White's interpretation of the open meetings law. "I don't think that was the intent of the law.

But White said such gatherings as the road inspection are a "very simple matter" because the board can list site visits on the meeting agendas and take unelaborate minutes of the visit

Sehr told White that the supervisors have disussed business informally before, but White warned the board that the county attorney's office could prosecute supervisors if a majority of the board deliberate county business when minutes are not

The supervisors cooperated with White's request, and only two board members - Chairwoman Betty Ockenfels and Sehr - inspected the road.

The senate's Budgeting and Auditing Comttee recommended Thursday night that the Students' Right to Life Committee receive 59.21 during the next academic year to er office expenses.

The last time the pro-life group's budget rest was before the senate it failed after two votes. The pro-life group claimed the senate acted unconstitution when it denied the funds, and filed a complaint with the UI Student Judicial Court Oct. 21, 1981. After extensive deliberation, the court upheld the senate's decision on March 11.

BUT THE PRO-LIFE group was not satisfied with the student court decision and iled an appeal with the UI administration's Human Rights Committee on March 12.

There has been "a lot of maneuvering" since the case was filed with the human rights committee, according to Jeffrey Renander, a law student representing the right-to-life

Study, work can benefit MBAs

By Kathy Anthony Special to The Daily Iowan

Third in a series

About half of the students in the UI Master of Business Administration program are in off-campus programs, and most of these students work fulltime and have their tuition paid by their employers.

Faculty of the UI College of Business Administration teach about 230 MBA students at Augustana College in Rock Island and at Coe College in Cedar Rapids. Classes are held in the evenings and on Saturdays.

Most of the businesses that employ off-campus MBA students pay for "100 percent" of the students' tuition costs, according to Colin Bell, associate dean of UI College of Business Administration graduate programs.

Del Ray Axtell, 33, took classes at Coe College for five and a half years while he worked full-time as a finan-

His company paid for 85 percent of his tuition while he attended school and reimbursed him for the remaining 15 percent when he received his degree last December.

SHORTLY AFTER HIS graduation, Axtell was hired by another Cedar Rapids firm as a product planner at a 20 percent pay increase.

Bell said most off-campus students enroll in one or two classes each semester and complete their degrees in three to five years, compared to two years for most full-time students.

Although working MBA students usually take longer to complete their degrees, MBA graduates with previous work experience are usually placed in higher starting positions than those without experience, according to Ruth Williams, president of the UI MBA Association.

In addition, those with experience may be able to skip training programs that many businesses and companies have instituted for newly hired MBA

Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust in Chicago, which consistently hires UI MBA graduates, requires most of them to go through a seven month training program, according to bank representative David Weber.

Another consistent employer of UI MBA graduates, the Chicago accounting firm Arthur Andersen & Co., requires most newly hired MBA graduates to go through a three-year training program, consulting director Peggy McMillin said.

However, McMillin indicated that all new MBA graduates, regardless of their previous work experience, are required to go through the training

Because foundation courses may be waived, students who majored in siness as undergraduates may finish a semester to a year earlier. In this sense, the "program structure discriminates against non-business undergraduate majors," Bell said.

In addition, they must take nine semester hours of more advanced management classes and six hours of concentrated study in a specific sub-

Spacelab to have more automation

By Jonathan Brandt

The spacelab that a 1983 space shuttle mission will hoist into orbit will be used commercially to process exotic materials, separate living cells and grow crystals, according to U.S. astronaut Owen Garriott.

Garriot, a veteran of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's 1973 skylab mission, said Thursday during a UI lecture that improved automation will allow astronauts to conduct experiments in the weightlessness of space of interest to industry, pharmaceutical companies and academic disciplines.

Garriott was one of three astronauts of doing those things that are

Rather than the 59 days Garriott spent in skylab, his upcoming trip aboard spacelab will be limited to eight to 10 days because of the shuttle's lesser power abilities.

But Garriott said improvements are planned for the space shuttle's engines to allow it to stay in orbit for longer periods of time.

NASA's administration is in favor of putting some sort of space station in orbit, he said. Such a permanentlymanned space station would greatly expand the type and number of experiments NASA could perform, as well as make possible services like satellite

'Economic hangover' forecast

By Nancy Lonergan

After a 20-year drunk, the United States is facing an economic hangover, a Republican candidate for Lt. Governor told about 10 UI College Rebublican's Thursday

"We've all gone to a consumption organized society ... and somebody took away the liquor," state Sen. Rolf Craft, R-Decorah, said.

Some people overindulged and now have economic hangovers, he said. "That had to happen." *

Although the Republican Party has no "magic solution" to the country's or states' economic woes, there is hope. "The best thing to do for jobs in the long run is to have a strong business base," he said.

To achieve this, Craft, Ways and Means Committee chairman, would like to give the many small Iowa businesses a boost, he said.

"You've got a problem when anyone's paying 171/2 percent interest on operating costs," as Iowa's small businessmen are, he said.

ALTHOUGH President Reagan's new federalism will require more state spending on services for residents, Craft remains optimistic.

When, and if, the new federalism occurs, I'd like to see them (Iowa answers to our problems," he said. One of those answers will - legislators) come up with some new ideas. I think Iowa can come up with

'eventually" - be a tax increase, he Craft said he favors user and sales taxes. "There are two pages in the Iowa Codes which are full of tax exemptions ... If you fill those gaps it

Finding a safe way to use high sulphur Iowa coal and promoting passive solar energy are two ways to aid the ailing state economy, he said. Another solution to the state's economic problems is a "gradual tax break," he said. "The tax rate is higher on the working poor than on any other group," he said.

IOWA BANKS could also be part of the solution, he said. "Iowa banks are not used to making loans for unique business ventures," he said. Iowans should adopt an innovative attitude and learn "to take a risk." Iowa's success in creating new solutions is demonstrated by the gasahol program, he said. "It's been so successful it has screwed up the road-building program, " he said. Yet, energy costs hurt Iowans because for every dollar spent on energy 85 cents leaves Iowa. Picking up the slack left in student loan programs because of federal budget cuts is also a priority for

The Senate has put together a bill to help private colleges and Craft believes this idea should be applied to Iowa's three state universities.

Craft said he stands apart from his opposition because of a willingness to try new ideas and the ability to work with Republicans of different personalities and political beliefs. Lawrence Pope, R-Des Moines, House majority leader, will face Craft in the Republican primaries. Pope will address the UI College Republicans April 29.

Student groups receiving top funding priority - in accordance with senate by-laws — are senate, senate committees and senate commissions. Because the senate and its committees and commissions needed additional funds from last year, only about $27,000 of the $138,890 was left to divvy up between the other 40 groups. Last year there was about $40,000 to divide between non-senate groups.

Special 3 credit course is available this fall to undergraduates that explores how cities have evolved, are changing, and what city planners are attempting to do to improve them. The course, listed as 102:101, is offered by the Graduate Program in Urban and Regional Planning. It meets on Monday, Wednesday, Friday at 9:30 am. Students from all majors are welcome.

Daylight-saving time into effect Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Daylightsaving time is about to perform its annual trick of making an hour disappear

- at least until October. The shift to daylight time officially occurs at 2 a.m. local time Sunday, April 25, when it automatically becomes 3 a.m. The lost hour will be recaptured the last Sunday of October, when clocks will be set back one hour, to "standard" time, under the Uniform Time Act of 1966.

Only a few Americans escape the conversion to "fast time" - those living in Arizona, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and 81 Indiana counties.

But people in all other parts of the country should set their clocks ahead one hour before they go to sleep Saturday night. The simple reminder for keeping it all straight is: Spring forward, fall back.

LEGISLATION IS pending in Congress to extend daylight-saving time to include March and early April. Supporters say the move would not only save crime by providing extending daylight embargo of 1973 and 1974. into the evening.

"There is much work to be done and we are dealing with a very difficult problem," Pym told reporters as he emerged from the meeting

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told Parliament, "The idea of force cannot be ruled out" at any point in the negotiations over the islands.

INTELLIGENCE SOURCES in Washington who refused to be identified said the British aircraft carriers Hermes and Invincible were among the forward ships in the British task force branching off for the Georgia Islands, 900 miles east of the Falklands.

South Georgia is part of the south Atlantic archipelago and, according to military sources, is occupied by 140 Argentine soldiers.

Because of its mountainous glacierpocked terrain, it may be difficult to land a force on South Georgia. Only a few areas of the windswept, almost uninhabited islands are flat, an Argentine expert said.

Before the Argentine invasion, 15 British scientists living at a meteorological and zoological station were the only inhabitants on the the Falklands, the U.S. sources said. If the task force, about 800 miles from South Georgia, maintains its present speed, lead elements should be at the island by Saturday, they said.

The U.S. intelligence sources said it was highly likely the British first would attempt to retake South Georgia and use it as a staging area for any operation against Argentine forces on the Falklands.

ROYAL MARINES EMBARKED aboard both the Hermes and Invincible, small "pocket carriers" that ferry helicopters, two weeks ago and had been reinforced by two regiments of paratroopers totaling about 800 men.

About 10,000 Argentine troops were believed to be holding the Falklands, intelligence sources in Washington said. The troops were being supplied by airlift because of a blockade by British

The British peace proposals, which have not been publicly released, were said to call for complete withdrawal of Argentine forces in accordance with the U.N. Security Council resolution passed after the Argentine invasion.

Britain also called for creation of a joint British-U.S. interim administration, for an election by the 1,800 islanders to decide their own future and for joint Anglo-Argentine use of the oil and

BANK SHOTS, TRICK SHOTS AND OTHER TABLE MANNERS.

I'm gonna teach you a coupla things that'll 1) impress your friends. and 2) maybe lose some friends.

All you need is good eyesight, a little dexterity, and three essentials: a pool table, pool cue, and some Lite Beer from Miller.

CHEAP SHOTS

Here's a goodie. I call it the "Cheap Shot." Place a ball on the edge of the corner pocket. Then, take a half-dollar and lean it against the side rail at the other end of the table. (If you don't have a half-dollar, you can always write home to your parents: they'd love to hear from you.)

Tell your friends you're gonna sink the ball in the corner, using the half-dollar as a cue ball. It's not hard. Hit the coin solidly on the edge, just above the center, and it will roll along the rail knocking the ball in the pocket. But don't forget to scoff up the half-dollar. Because you're not supposed to lose money doing trick shots-just win Lite Beers.

THE COIN TRICK

his one drives people nuts. Place a ball on the head spot. With the chalk, make a circle around it, approximately 8" in diameter. Then put a quarter or half-dollar on top of the ball. (Yes, you can use the same one from before, or you can write home to your parents again.) Place the cue ball behind the foot line and have your friends

EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED IN A BEER. AND LESS.

by Steve Mizerak

try to knock the coin out of the circle. Chances are, they won't be able to (this is a good time to work on your Lite Beer and act smug).

When you shoot, do one of two things: hit the object ball head-on with follow-through so the cue ball knocks the coin out, or hit the cue ball very, very slowly so the coin rolls off the object ball.

TABLE MANNERS

Now for simple table etiquette. After you've "hustled" your friends, you gotta keep 'em. So do what I call Clearing the Table." Simply offer to buy the next round of Lite Beer. They'll all clear the table fast and head for the bar (or to your room or apartment). Then, once they all have Lite (just one apiece-you're not too rich, remember), tell them with Lite in hand and a smirk on your face that your shots were no big deal-you were just showin' off.

Money was the major issue then, and it is financial damage that will hurt them now. Three hundred thousand dollars will not replace Patrica Kehm, but this decision, and the precedent it sets for others like it, may scare Procter and Gamble and other companies enough for them to exercise more social responsibility in the future.

In from the cold

Adm. Bobby Inman, deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, resigned recently. There have been many reasons given for his taking this step, but one of the main ones seems to be dissatisfaction with recent policy trends in the CIA.

Inman is reportly unhappy with Reagan administration attempts to increase the power of the agency to engage in domestic spying. The New York Times quotes Inman as saying he was "doing his damnedest" to prevent "a series of repugnant changes for which I would not stay in this administration." Former agents reportly are saying Inman has been carrying most of the workload because CIA Director William Casey has spent so much time traveling abroad in disguise to visit agency installations.

It would be wrong to view this as another conservative-liberal clash. Inman was appointed to the number two spot by President Reagan, and he is highly regarded by conservative congressmen. Barry Goldwater, chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said "If there was ever the right man for the right job at the right time, this is it." Inman was confirmed by the Senate on a 94 to 0 vote, and is highly respected for his expertise in the technological Congress was particularly happy to have such a well qualified man at the agency because of the strong doubts many had about both the competence and the integrity of Director Casey - who has been investigated for a number of business practices.

It is imperative that the Senate take the advice part of its role seriously and insist that the administration find a competent replacement. Another episode like that of Max Hugel, former director of covert operations who resigned in disgrace because of business dealings, would do serious damage to the agency.

Linda Schuppener

The final frontier

To spice the space program up a bit, NASA has announced that in 1963, on the seventh and eighth shuttle missions, the crews will include Dr. Sally Ride, a woman, and Lt. Col. Guion Bluford, who

It has been 20 years since the last woman went into space, namely Valentina Tereshkova of the Soviet Union on Vostok 6 in B62. But sending Ride into space is more meaningful than the Tereshkova mission in several respects. First of all, Tereshkova didn't do much while she was up there; she was strapped down to her seat while ground control crews did all the work that needed doing. Her mission was entirely for propaganda purposes.

Ride, on the other hand, will do quite a bit. She is one of the first bona fide scientists to be sent into space, holding a Ph.D in physics from Stanford University. The rest of the crew on her mission, in true NASA fashion, will be military men, albeit with a goodly amount of scientific training.

Bluford is, obviously, a military man as well, but is as much a scientist as a soldier, as former head of the Aerodynamic and Airframe branch of the Air Force Institute of Technology,

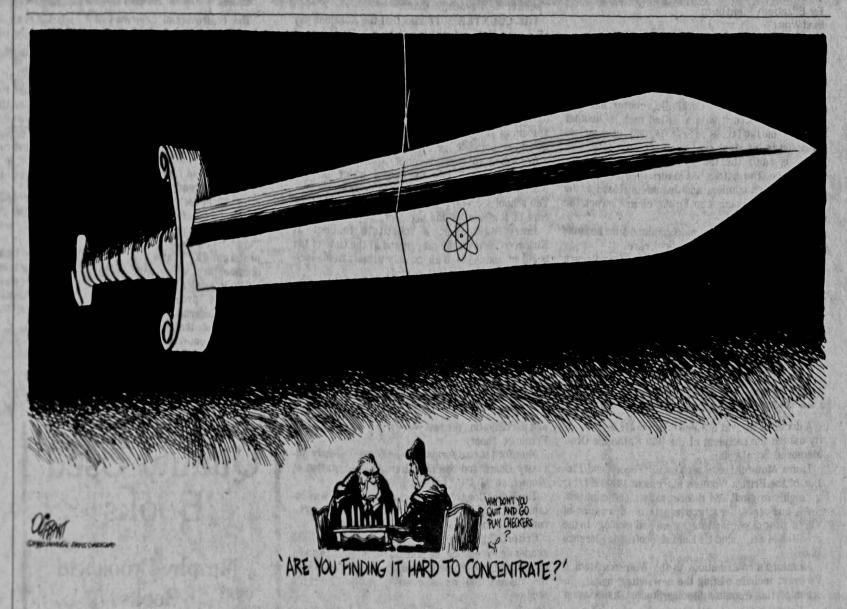

It is to be hoped that the Ride and Bluford mission will contribute to breaking up the military monopoly on space missions. There is a danger, especially with the shuttle, that manned space flight will cease being a scientific enterprise and become a military one. Space exploration is a proper avenue for advancing the sum of human knowledge; turning it into just another battlefield would be a waste

Pulp romances make big money

WASHINGTON - Ronald Reagan's supply-side economic theories aren't the only stuff dreams are made of in America. Nor is the president our nation's only dreamer.

At least 20 million other Americans will reduce some of life's more difficult problems to absurdly primitive solutions this year. They'll do it inexpensively by simply losing themselves in one of the latest romance novels that seem to be on sale everywhere.

While sociological watchdogs may worry about a culture that scarfed up $250 million worth of heart-wrenching screed last year, our brows are far from furrowed. Should there be anything unusual about a genre that represents more than 40 percent of the nation's mass paperback market each week? It's like "Fantasy Island" for just $1.75. Romance novelists know best that Americans have never had trouble pretending. We believe in Scrubbing Bubbles, the Easter Bunny, political polls and other illusive images. We cling to the Tidy Bowl man for security., For a people who thrive on make-believe, it only made good sense two years ago to choose, as our leader, a former actor. The White Tornado. Mr. Goodwrench. He made a challenge look

Glen & Shearer

BUT ROMANCE industrialists say there's been a change in our whims: The days of ingenues falling for brooding tycoons with chiseled faces are long gone. The famous "he came, he saw, he conquered" formula has been upstaged somewhat by the Erica Jongs of the world.

Reports Vivien Lee Jennings, editor of "Boy Meets Girl," a weekly romance trade newsletter, "publishers have begun to shift their attention from coy 19-year-old girls to mature women in more realistic situations."

As our reporter John Riccardi discovered, the heroine of the latest romances is usually career-oriented, occasionally divorced or widowed, and not the type to get pushed around by a man. "None of us ever liked heroines who were wimpy and victimized," Judy Sullivan of Richard Gallen books

If less bodice-ripping laces the pages of today's pulp press, fewer Heathcliff

column (DI, April 13). Needles claims to be "marching to the tune of a different drummer" in his lifelong search for an "old fashioned girl" who still believes in the "old morality."

Reading his column brought tears to my eyes - when I wasn't laughing, that is. So I thought perhaps I could offer some suggestions to help him in his plight.

I might first suggest that he leave the perusal of the personal columns for the severely bored or sexually frustrated. Instead he might start attending some of the moral majority meetings in his state. They claim an abundance of the type of girl Needles is is, not surprisingly, often more sensitive, vulnerable and subject to victimization than the heroine. When the Modern Man violates a woman, he does so emotionally; moreover, he'll lose his job, shed tears, eat quiche.

THIS REALISM is evident in Glitter Girl, a recently released Second Chance At Love romance from Jove. Our heroine, Tiffany Harte, comes home to Cougar Beach after an unfulfilling and meaningless marriage to the wealthy Winchester Regan. She meets Clay Gossard, a warm, ompassionate, sensitive logger (somewhat of a contradiction, according to our understanding of the vocation) she once jilted for Regan's megabucks (you see, women can be rats, too). Can Tiffany convince a heartbroken Clay that she's seen the errors of her ways? No problem. The new hero's love for the new heroine conquers all. It's an ordinary fantasy.

Regulars at drugstore bookstalls know that "historical" romances will comprise a good chunk of what has traditionally been escapist fiction for women. Gothic and Victorian settings continue to provide sure-fire vehicles for lulling the modern mind. Publishers admit, however, that the types show up as well. Our hero today more contemporary venues, such as

"Cougar Beach," are chiefly responsible for their industry's recent sales

YET, ROMANCE afficionados need not despair. Though the sex roles are revised and the interludes a bit spicier, the bottom line remains the same: boy meets girl and, after 180 pages of fighting, they form a bond more invincible than Crazy Glue. Nor does the new realism shatter the lingering importance of make-believe; endings must bring a smile to our faces, if only because we won't fall for anything

While we've only made a preliminary diagnosis, the medicinal benefits of reading books which are "all for love" should be clear. Tiffany Harte's last-page revelation (however ungrammatical) that "nothing else matters as long as there's you and me" gives one a few hours of peace in a noisy and chaotic world. It's the cheap fortune inside the cookie.

Though ardent romance lovers won't soon grow tired of their repetitive fare, we're not worried. After all, if the president can build his castles in the air, why can't the rest of us eat our pie in the sky?

Keeping Nestle record 'straight'

To the editor:

This is concerning Rafael Pagan's complaint that information about the Nestle boycott published in The Daily Iowan perpetuated "lies and half truths" and omitted "facts" (DI, April

One may recognize with some relief that this month Nestle announced that it would "unilaterally implement the WHO code in all countries that have not yet developed national codes." But one must also remember that the Nestle company has been aware of the problem for years, that the nationwide Nestle boycott has been underway literally for years, that a continuous cry for such implementation has been raised, for years, by almost every country in the world except the United States, and that during those years, in which Nestle steadfastly ignored all pleas, countless children suffered and died for the sake of profits.

This is just an attempt to keep the truth "whole. Charlie Langton 215 Ronalds St.

Advice for Needles

I am responding to Gene Needle's

some of the local churches hoping to spot the "girl of his dreams." (Hint, leave the ones in the black habits alone.) He might also consider - this last one is a bit drastic — packing his bags and heading for Pennsylvania. Who knows, maybe he really has relatives there.

In any event I'd like to say, don't give up Needles, and thank your lucky stars that you're not a woman looking for a man who still believes in the "old morality," because they are surely in scarcer supply than their female Moira B. Clarke

MacBride Campus

To the editor:

The Macbride Field Campus has been a part of the UI for 23 years, yet little has been done to promote its existence. The student organization Friends of the Field Campus intends to change that.

Friends of the Field Campus believes that the Field Campus is an invaluable asset to the UI, providing a unique outdoor setting for research, instruction and recreation, and that more of the university population

Or perhaps he could just hang around should be made aware of what it has to

The Field Campus is currently being used by a large number, yet small proportion of the UI, for classes, research, UI hospital programs and recreation and is home for the UI sailing and cross-country ski clubs. In order to show your support for a varied educational experience at the UI, please check off Friends of the Field Campus on your optional fee card at registration.

Friends of the Field Campus plans to promote the campus by holding a Field Day in the fall that would include educational and recreational activities as well as a 10 km. run and 5 km. walk. Friends also plans to be a regular topic in the new Chinook Winds Newsletter of Free Environment. Friends of the Field Campus is a support group to the campus and intends to actively encourage use of the campus as an educational and recreational resource within an environmental philosophy.

Again, the Field Campus is invaluable to a rich and varied university experience. Please show your support on the optional fee card.

Trial preparations made in suit against school district

By Elizabeth Flansburg

Trial preparations are being made in a negligence suit filed by a woman who claims her son was blinded by a rock during recess at a Coralville elemen-

Patricia C. Fulton, Coralville, claims her son, Roger, was "struck with a batted rock by another student" during recess on Sept. 15, 1981, causing loss of vision in his right eye, court records state.

She is suing the Iowa City School District for negligence. The district has in turn filed a cross petition against Kazimierz and Jeannette Kozadja, the parents of the youth who Fulton claims struck the rock or stone.

Fulton is suing for an undetermined sum because her son is still receiving medical care.

The district has denied being guilty of negligence or liable for the accident.

The district's counter suit against Kazimierz and Jeannette Kozajda, Steve Kozajda's parents, states that Steve's alleged actions should be considered negligent because they are the "proximate cause" of Roger's injuries. The suit also states that the district's actions should be considered no more than

THE COUNTER SUIT asks that the Kozajdas pay all damages awarded if the district is found free of negligence. If both the district and the Kozajdas are found negligent, the counter suit asks, both parties should pay half of the damages.

The district's suit claims that the school district is entitled to be reimbursed from each of the defendants, Kazimierz and Jeannette Kozajda in the amount of $1,000 in the event that the school district is held responsible for the accident.

According to court records, after the accident Roger was taken into the school where he was treated by Joan Buxton, the residing school nurse. The school secretary and principal also aided in the care of Roger after the accident

Janet Messenger, a substitute teacher at Kirkwood, was on the playground at the time of the accident and is listed as the only witness to the incident, according to court records. A pretrial conference has been set for May 13 in the Johnson County courthouse before a judge. Althouth the Kozajda's legal counsel has requested a jury trial, no trial date has been set.

Legal counsels for the district, Fulton, and the Kozajdas were unavailable for comment Thursday.

Symposium speaker is embattled Bennett

The controversial chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities will be the guest speaker at the UI for a two-day symposium on humanities beginning today.

William J. Bennett will speak on 'Humanities and Teaching: Where do Knowledge and Value Judgments Intersect?" at 8 tonight at Shambaugh Auditorium in the UI Main Library.

Bennett recently received harsh criticism in the New York Times editorial pages for calling a television documentary on Nicaragua "unabashed socialist-realism propaganda," and said the documentary, which appeared on public television, was not an "appropriate project' to have received federal funds.

He added that the show portrayed present-day Nicaragua in a manner that ignored human rights violations there.

BENNETT'S COMMENTS

sparked criticism from the former chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, who wrote to the New York Times editorial page to say the role of the chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities was "not to review and pass on the political or intellectual perspective of every grant made by the federal agency, but to administer a credible peer review process."

Bennett replied in a letter to the editor of the Times that his comments had "nothing to do with supporting or opposing certain political positons; it has everything to do with maintaining the intellectual integrity of the endowment and the humanities themselves."

A graduate of Harvard Law School in 1971, Bennett also served as the president, executive director and director of the National Humanities Center.

Mumford wins Orne scholarship

A doctoral student in English at the UI was recently named the recipient of the 1982 Katherine Orne Memorial Scholarship

Laura Mumford's dissertation, "Theory and Fiction of the British Womens Movement 1880-1920," is a "highly original and theoretically significant project" and serves as a "representative discussion of the relation of political statement and ideology to the creation of art," said UI English professor Florence

Mumford's contributions to the Women's Studies Program include editing the newsletter, helping to organize the Women's Studies Student Association and participating for two years in a reading group on Feminist Theory. Mumford is also serving on the Women's Study Advisory Board and teaches Literary Presentation of Women at the UI.

The Katherine Orne Memorial Scholarship was established last year by Pauline Munn of Iowa City as a continuing memorial to her granddaughter.

Criteria for choosing the recipient include academic excellence, demonstrated interest in and a commitment to Women's Studies, and the promise of the dissertation as a contribution to Women's lowa's 4 x 100-meter quartet has not yet been determined, but candidates include Terrence Duckett, Victor Greer, Gordon Beecham, Ronnie McCoy, Jeff Breiman and Treye Jackson.

Wheeler said it depends on the braith of Beecham, Greer and Jackson, who are rebounding from injuries, as to who will run on the relay. Wheeler figures the 4 x 100 to be the Hawkeyes' best

The 4 x 100 will "probably be a race between Arizona State. Georgia and Oklahoma State," serverting to Groke Assistant Sports Information Director Dave Williford, Williford said lows's best time of 40.94 seconds is ranked "about 20th."

WHEELER SAID the Hawks' 4 x 400-meter relay would be comprised of four out of six possible runners — again it will depend on how Beecham's, Greer's and Jackson's injuries progress. Michael Marsh is added to this list of possibilities.

Alahama and Arizona State are the 4 x 400 favorities, according to lowa's other relay will be the f 1 1,600-meters, comprised of Mike Clancy, Clarrissimeaux, Jon Betz and Korb.

Clarrissimeaux said this relay has a chance of doing well. "Our four-mile relay (4 x 1,600) I'm really excited about," he said. "We have a bunch of guys who can go about 4:10." lows ran 17:04.0 in Florida.

Williford said Illinois, which has run 16:43.11, is the favorite. INDIVIDUALLY, the Hawks will enter Rousie McCoy and Chris Williams in the 110-meter hurdles. McCoy in the long Jump, Steve Brewer in the pole vault and Pat O'Connor in the shot put. The hurdles favorite is Henry Andrade of Southern Methodist who has done 13.6. McCoy has done 14.21.

Williford said there are a bunch of 26-footers in the long jump." McCey has leaped 24-4%. The pole-vault favorite is David Volz of Indiana, who has gone 18-614. Brewer's season best is 15-6. The Drake favorite for the shot put is Kevin Akins of Ohio State, with a 70-11/2 toss. O'Connor has thrown 52-8.

The first six teams will receive byes with the No. 7 team playing the No. 10 team and the No. 8 team playing the No. 9 seed. THE HAWKS WILL use Karen Kettenacker in the No. 1 position followed by Sara Loetscher at No. 2, Nancy Schumacher at No. 3, Laura Lagen at No. 4. Mallory Coleman at No. 5 and Peggy Kubitz at No. 6.

Kettenacker and Lagen will be the No. 1 doubles team, with Loetscher and Schumacher at No. 2. Kemi Gustafson will be paired with Coleman at No. 3

Kettenacker, who will be playing in her final conference meet, hopes to do well at Big Tens but realizes this isn't the most important meet as far as the Hawks are concerned. "Although this is a big meet, it doesn't really have any bearing on regionals (which will be held in Iowa City, May 13-14)," she said. "But if we play well at Big Tens,

Although it is Kettenacker's fourth

Big Ten meet, she is the only Iowa player with much experience. Coleman, the only freshman on the Hawkeye squad, doesn't think she will be intimidated. "I'm really looking forward to the opportunity to play in the meet," Coleman said. "This is something we have been shooting for all season.'

AS FAR AS her own health is concerned, Coleman feels that she is over all the injury problems that have had her in and out of the line-up. "I've finally had a chance to be on the court every day," she said. "Being able to do that has helped to keep me in a rhythm and I feel my game is nearly back to level it was at before the injury problems."

Ballard is very optimistic about her squad's chances this weekend. Everyone is playing very well right now," Ballard said. "We went to Northwestern last weekend for an exhibition and the kids played very well against a tough team. Karen went three sets with Randi Rosen (the No. 11 runners await Hawkeyes By Thomas W. Jargo This year's women's field at the Drake Relays is touted as one of the strongest ever, according to Iowa Head Coach Jerry Hassard, whose team will be competing in Des Moines this weekend.

"Not too many people know just how good this field is," Hassard said. 'We'll face some tremendous runners. Much better then usual. Weather permitting, this could be the greatest Drake Relays ever."

Iowa's Kay Stormo will be running in the 1,500-meter event against some excellent competition, which includes defending champions Cindy Bremser and Debbie Vetter.

ALSO IN THE field are Cathy Twomey, who is the national Track Athletic Congress indoor mile champion, and Joan Hansen, tabbed as the fifth-rated American in the mile last year. Bremser was second to Twomey in the TAC mile.

The 5,000-meter run will feature Francie Larrieu Smith, who has run a record-setting time of 15 minutes, 51.5 seconds in the event. Her time is better then the Drake Relay's record of 15:52.2. Nan Doak, Jodi Hershberger and Jenny Spangler will be competing for the Hawkeyes in the event.

The 400-meter hurdles feature eight hurdlers with times under one minute in the event. This field includes Hawkeye hurdler Chris Davenport, who has run a 59.8 second race.

Also included in the field is Debbie Esser, four-time national Association for Litercollegiate Athletics for Women champion and three-time Drake Relays champion. She has been named American hurdler of the decade (1970's) by Track and Field Magazine. She will be coming out of a three year retirement to compete.

LAST YEAR'S CHAMPION Jill Lancaster and Big Ten champion Judy Brown of Michigan State will also be competing in the event. Deb DeCosta. a Florida high school standout, will also be running the 400-meter hurdles.

The Hawkeyes will also have a team in the 800-meter medley, and the 4 x 800-meter relay. Running open 100 meters for Iowa in the medley are Angela Menson and Diane Steinhart, followed by Mary Knoblauch, running 200 meters. Stormo will anchor the

Sims likely No. 1 choice of New England

England Patriots' waiting game for a dominating defensive lineman is over.

The Patriots, owners of a 2-14 record last year and in the pole position for the National Football League draft starting Tuesday in New York, will choose powerful Kenneth Sims of Texas with the No. 1 pick in the first

Sims, a 6-foot-7, 270-tackle, called "the best I've ever been around" by Texas Coach Fred Akers, won the Lombardi Trophy as the nation's top lineman. His presence could immediately help the porous Patriots defense, dubbed "The Red Sea Defense" by critics.

"He's in a class by himself in this year's draft. As far as size, quickness and strength, he reminds me a lot of Joe Greene," said Patriots draft czar

THE RESERVE OF THE PARTY OF THE

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) - The New Dick Steinberg. "He has the same style of play. He can overpower you or finesse you. Of course, he has to prove

Sims figures to be a most-needed addition to the Patriots. Four of New England's defensive lineman are 31 or older and another is a free agent. The unit gave up a team record 2,950 yards ng while falling from 44 sacks to

IT ALSO WILL be a landmark choice of sorts for the Patriots, who for years have needed a defensive lineman, but have never drafted one early. In fact, the last defensive lineman taken by the Patriots in either the first or second round was Julius Adams in 1971. This year, they may get more than just Sims. The Pats have their second pick, the 29th choice overall, and two in the third round, Nos. 56 and 60. And Steinberg said the draft has some quality defensive lineman available. "I do think we'll be able to come up with two defensive linemen with our first four picks without reaching down (overlooking someone rated higher). I look for five or six to go in the first round. But there's no question Sims is at the top," Steinberg said.

Sims' arrival in New England has been anticipated ever since the Patriots earned the No. 1 choice with a loss to Baltimore (also 2-14) on the final weekend. Sims broke an ankle, missing Texas' last two games and the Cotton Bowl, but still led Texas in tackles with 110 (81 unassisted) and 10 sacks.

He was tested recently by Patriots officials in Austin, Texas, and two weeks ago in New England and received a clean bill of health.

"HE LOOKED BETTER than we expected," Steinberg said. "He could play Sunday if we were in season. He's running well and there's no soreness or weakness. He just has to lose a little weight. He's up to 279 and should play

Unlike 1971, when the Patriots last held the No. 1 pick and chose quarterback Jim Plunkett, there has been a little talk of trading the pick, probably because of the demonstrated need for a player of Sims' caliber.

"Nobody has made any encores at all," Steinberg said. "I think they all assume that if he (Sims) is healthy, we're going to take him. And if he's not, there's no need trading up. We have not received an offer for the choice and very frankly, we're not interested in trading it."

But it also reflects New England's determination to build through the draft, an area in which the Patriots usually are successful.

"We are totally committed to building our club through the common draft," says new Coach Ron Meyer. Meyer, who coached last year at Southern Methodist, also was a personnel scout for the Dallas Cowboys from

"We'll continue to take the best available guy," Steinberg said.

Steinberg said the Patriots might take a chance on a third defensive lineman and listed other priorities as an inside linebacker, a "developmental-type" offensive tackle, a fleet wide receiver and a run-

"You always need a running back. It's good to take one in every draft," he

Banks looking for improvement

By Steve Batterson

Iowa Baseball Coach Duane Banks, pleased with the way the Hawkeyes hit the ball in Wednesday's split with Iowa State, is looking for continued improvement as the Hawkeyes play host to Warthurg today and Northern Iowa Saturday in double-headers.

Both twinbills begin at 1 p.m. on the

The Hawks, who managed only 15 hits in 28 innings at Illinois last weekend, pounded out 17 hits in 15 innings against the Cyclones Wednesday. I thought we hit the ball well yesterday (Wednesday)," Banks said. "We need to continue to improve our hitting and play aggressively. I think our hitting will come around."

Wartburg, 6-11 on the current season, team is looking to finish in the top two in the Iowa Conference. And Knight Coach Earnest Oppermann said: "The exposure we get with teams like Iowa, Iowa State and Northern Iowa gives us a feeling that we can at least compete with the big schools. We're thankful for men like Banks who let us compete.

"BASEBALL IS A sport where we can match-up, at least through our top five players, with schools like Iowa and not get hurt physically," Oppermann said. "The only year we ever beat them was the year they went on to win the

The Knights will be coming to Iowa City after splitting a twinbill with Simpson, dropping the opener, 2-0, but picking up the nightcap, 3-2, Wednes-day in Waverly, Iowa.

"We are primarily a power-hitting team," Oppermann said. "We've got about four men who are very capable of hitting the long ball. We're not fast, so we have to hit the ball. Our pitching isn't overly good, but we are fairly ex-

Oppermann will pitch Dick Shindelar in the opener and Kevin Lutekenhaus in the second game against the Hawks. Iowa, 19-15 on the year, will counter with freshman Mike Darby and more Jeff Ott. Pitching is still a concern for Banks. 'We just can't walk nine batters like we did against Iowa State and expect to win ball games," Banks said. "Maybe tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday will be better."

BANKS WILL go with Bill Drambel and Jeff Green in Saturday's doubleheader against Northern Iowa. Panther Coach J.D. Anderson hasn't picked his starting hurlers yet.

Anderson believes the biggest problem the Panthers, 8-6, have is a lack of game experience. "We've been hitting the ball fairly good in the games we've played. Our pitching isn't exactly where it should be, but we just haven't played enough games yet.

'We're not very fast, you could probably say we're big and slow," he said. "We do hit the ball once in a while, though. We know that Duane always has a good team down there and we hope to play well and maybe come away with a win." The Hawks soundly defeated the Panthers, 14-1, in a rainshortened game in Waterloo last year.

The first game of the Northern Iowa double-header will be broadcast by KRUI radio, 570 AM and 97.1 FM, Iowa

Scrimmage keys on big play

Iowa's football scrimmage Thursday afternoon was a "hard hitting and a learning scrimmage," Head Coach Hayden Fry said as the Hawkeyes ready for the Black and Gold game May 1.

"We were emphasizing the big play," he added - "the third down and one or two yards and the third and seven or eight vards."

Fry said there wasn't any individual or group that stood out during the two-hour workout in Kinnick Stadium. "The No. 1 offense and No. 1 defense did look good at times, but they weren't as consistent as we would like them to be at this time," he said.

to give the Hawkeyes' coaching staff an opportunity to look at the younger players. Many of the No. 1 players, Fry said, may not play in the spring game because of surgery over the winter from injuries sustained late last fall, or because the doctors have put them into immoblizers for an additional two weeks' rest.

Looking forward to the first game against Nebraska next season, Fry said the attitude on this years' team is good. Although the Hawks are an inexperienced team, (Iowa lost 16 of last years starters) Fry said they should give the Cornhuskers a strong game.

lows itself is a newcomer to the vens and fairways of the Finkbine Jolf Course. "It's always an advantage to be on the hotte course, but we've mly been on it for four days this year," lows Coach Diane Thomason said. They know how the greens are and how to play our holes and we're counting on that to help us."

But, as Thomason added, the flankeyes are in the same boat as everyone else. "I feel that at this point it the season we're about two weeks behind, one tournament short and a day strong this week it will give a con-fidence boost going into the Big Ten tournament next weekend. Everyone else is about as far behind as we are with the weather we've been having.

"THIS IS THE biggest and the best field we've had in the seven years I've been here. The course is in pretty good shape, so we'll probably see some pretty good scores this weekend,"

Iowa will be looking to defend its 1981 Iowa Invitational title when the Hawks edged Minnesota by four strokes to win the crown. The Hawks will enter two teams in the tournament. "We're looking to get some good tournament experience by having two teams en-

The nine teams that will be teeing off starting at 8 a.m. today include Nebraska, Stephens College, Iowa State, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Northern Iowa, Kansas State and Southwest Missouri State. Central College of Pella will also enter one individual in the meet.

THOMASON SAID Nebraska, the 1980 champion, Stephens, Illinois and Iowa should be the teams to beat. Nebraska Coach Jerry Fisher doesn't mind being put in the position of being the team to beat. "This year's team is the best one we've ever had," Fisher said. "We've shot two of the best day scores we've ever had earlier in the season. We hope to shoot around 310 each day and we're looking to win the meet. That's the only reason we're

The Cornhuskers have a third-place finish in the Sooner Invitational to their credit, but haven't competed since then due to poor weather conditions.

The meet will be the last home appearance for Iowa's only senior team member, Sonya Stalberger. Cookie Rosine, Therese Ehrhart, Lisa Masters and freshman Dena Bennett join Stalberger on the Iowa "Gold" team.

For Bennett, the start is her first of the year. "She came close to qualifying last fall, just missing by a couple of strokes," Thomason said. Starting for the Iowa "Black," or second-string, squad will be five freshmen: Mary Kramer, Marcia Pekar, Beth Beiersdorf, Meg Mowrey and Amy

Netters test rugged Minnesota

By Mike Condon

At least Iowa Head Tennis Coach Steve Houghton was very honest in assessing his squad's chances of winning today's dual meet with the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

"We will consider it a good meet if we are able to win a couple of matches," he said. "Minnesota is just loaded from top to bottom and it will be a very tough match for us."

The Gophers, along with Michigan, are defending co-champions of the Big Ten. The same two squads are expected to fight it out for the title again this season. Michigan defeated Minnesota earlier this season, 5-4.

GOPHER COACH JERRY Noyce is not looking past the Hawks despite the fact his team is heavily favored. "On the surface you would think this would be an easy match for us," Noyce said. "But looking at Iowa's recent matches they are definitely a much improved balance. In fact they have had four different players play at the No. 1 position this year. Senior Ted Kauffmann will draw that spot against Iowa today. Hokan Almstrom, a Swedish exchange student, will be at No. 2, Mike Hoeger will be at No. 3 and Brace Helgeson will be at No. 4.

THIS MEET MIGHT have a bearing on seedings for the Big Tens as far as Iowa's No. 2 doubles team of Rob Moellering and Mike Inman are concerned. They are 12-5 so far this season and Houghton believes a win this weekend will go a long way in getting

"Our two doubles have the best chance for a seed at the Big Ten meet," he said. "They have played well all season and I'm hopeful that they will receive a seed.'

Houghton is also hopeful that Iowa's improvement this season will help him land a couple of top recruits. "Right now I'd like to bring in one really good kid or two average kids," Houghton said. "We have two players, Dave Talbot and Sonny Reddy who are transfers and are sitting out this season. They will definitely help us out

Expansion of stadium's north end on hold following cost estimates

north end of Kinnick Stadium, which came in over UI cost estimates by almost $500,000, has caused some concern in the lowa athletic administrative offices.

Assistant Athletic Director Gary Kurdelmeier said the fact the bids were off by so far means the athletic department can't afford to go with the designs it has now. Athletic administrators, architects and UI officials will be sitting down to decide if the project can be re-designed, the bids let and the project finished by the 1982 football season, or if it will be delayed until 1983.

"You could say we would have to guestimate" the cost," Kurdelmeier said. We'll be calling suppliers to see if supplies are available and if it is feasible."

Although the north-end project is back to step one, the south end expansion of new seats, walkways and a scoreboard with additional fencing around the stadium are continuing on schedule

VIRAGO, finishing with a 1-1-1 record, tied for second at the Grinnell Tournament last Saturday

The Iowa City women's soccer team lost its opening game of the five-team tourney, 3-0, to the eventual champions, Drake. But it came back to tie Grinnell Black, 0-0, before beating Grinnell Red, 1-0. Virago's lone goal of the weekend was scored by Liz Bird with an assist by Holly Woolard.

Virago, 1-1-2, will play in Cedar Rapids against Spirit at Jones Park, 4 p.m.

THE UI LACROSSE club dominated its opponents last weekend beating Washington University of St. Louis, 16-4, and Knox of Galesburg, Ill., 16-3.

Leading scorer for the Washington game was Bill Morris with five goals followed by Mark Asselmeier, Jim Weldon and Bill Morris with three, two and two respec-

Against Knox, Morris and Weldon were high scorers with four goals each. Jim Palmer added three goals and four assists as Tom Semler scored twice.

Team spokesman Kurt Knipper said Jay McCormick and Scott Wisner turned in strong defensive games for the UI club.

The team plays in the Knox four-team tournament this weekend in Galesburg, Ill. The first game is against St. Louis, Saturday at noon with the winner moving into the

Rockets face elimination in mini-series with Sonics

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Seattle SuperSonics go for the series clincher Friday night, but opposing Coach Del Harris says better shooting is all the Houston Rockets need to even things.

The Rockets, also, must find an antidote to the Sonics' "57 Chevy" line-up, which features slick old-timers Fred Brown and John Johnson and which ignited Seattle to a 102-87 win in the series opener Wednesday.

A third and final game if necessary will be played at Seattle Sunday, with the winner facing San Antonio in the second round.

The Rockets, who shot 36 percent in the opener, find themselves in a situation they did not face during their unlikely 1981 playoff roll to the National Basketball Association finals. They never trailed in any series before the final, which they lost to Boston.

"We're down to our last game of the year now," Harris said. "We just have to work to get a better shot and show more patience."

JOHNSON ADMITTED Rockets center Moses Malone, who scored only 20 points Wednesday, didn't need to alter his game. It was just that

Blues claim pressure on Chicago

CHICAGO (UP1) - The St. Louis Blues are backed up against a wall, but they're talking like the pressure's on the Chicago Black Hawks, who carry a 3-2 lead into game six of their Norris Division finals

"They've got to win," said Brian Sutter, captain of a Blues team that has never won a playoff game at the Chicago Stadium. They don't want to come back here (to St.

If the Blues' bluster turns out to be more than that, they could force the series back to St. Louis for a seventh-game showdown in the Checkerdome.

They'd be shooting to become only the third team to buck the odds and come back from a 3-1 deficit to win a Stanley Cup

"THIS CLUB always does things the hard way," acknowledged Black Hawk defenseman Bob Murray after the Blues eluded

Louis Wednesday. "The pressure was all on them and we left them off the hook." It was Bernie Federko, with a little help from Sutter and from Joe Mullen, who shook off that hook at three minutes, 28 seconds of overtime Wednesday night.

Sutter dug the puck away from Chicago's Greg Fox in the corner, then passed behind the net to Mullen. Federko broke to the right of the goal to take Mullen's feed and sliced the puck into the net from seven feet.

"It was about time something went for us," said Federko. "There haven't been too

NBC Nightly News needs time and experience to regain status

By Jeffrey Miller

I was one of those who was bitterly upset when Dan Rather was awarded the "CBS Evening News" anchor job over Roger Mudd. Though he lacked Rather's drive and Walter Cronkite's trustworthiness, Mudd's folksy Texas charm and the sly twinkle in his eye gave the news a touch of humor and While pages have been written about Rather's new sweatered look, a good deal of his recent success comes more from the Mudd-esque relaxation he can now afford in delivering the news.

Mudd has joined Tom Brokaw in anchoring the "NBC Nightly News" (5:30 p.m. weeknights, KWWL-7), and the two make a good team. Brokaw alone, as viewers of "Today" remember, tends to be overly smarmy and snide - his nasty comments about Willard Scott seemed more the rule than the exception. But Mudd's cool humor has rubbed off on Brokaw: like Rather, he's much less the preppy climber now than the calm

Unfortunately, the personability of the two anchors is belied by the technical and stylistic effects that crowd each broadcast. The fancyschmancy new logo, tape clips and electronic music that open the show are just bad copies of ABC's intro.

AT TIMES, the bizarre camera angles and quick cuts make the show look more like the shower scene in tually be corrected (already some of the technical gloss has been stripped), CBS's coverage on the whole is still more thorough than NBC's. But Brokaw and Mudd work well together and given some time and experience, the "NBC Nightly News" could regain stature of its Huntley-Brinkley

Brown, his hair in long dreadlocks, is widely known around the Midwest as a reggae handleader. He was playing reggae before it was brought into the American pop mainstream by the likes of Bob Marley and Toots Hibbert, but his style doesn't stop there.

His music owes much to the rhythm and blues of the American streets. Like some of the later work of Jimmy Cliff. there are departures from the intensely structured Jamaican rhythms of reggae proper. That is one of Brown's real attributes, and quite possibly his tatal flaw as well.

For example, on his newly released debut album, Prisoners in Paradise, Brown seems to suffer a bit from lack of direction. It's almost as if the band members went into the studio without any idea what they wanted to do. There is little in the world of recording more delicate than the recording and mixing of reggae, because reggae is a form fiercely repetitive, with melodic themes developed and abandoned seemingly on whim.

THAT BROWN and his band have goes without saying; they are a tight and wonderfully energetic crew, and the weaknesses of their album shouldn't cast a shadow on the strengths of their live performance. The current band has been together for more than two years and its horizons are definitely expanding; an upcoming tour will take the group up the eastern seaboard, finally swinging down through Texas and Colorado.

Tony Brown is certainly no secret. His brand of dancing music has been growing in popularity for years, and now, with some publicity pressure behind him, he may not be around quite

> Phil Keaggy, guitarist for God, is going to be at the Union Ballroom Monday at 7:30 p.m. If there's anything I dislike more than bouncy versions of Morris Albert songs played by bands in sequined tuxedos at hotels on interstate highways, it's religion

Keaggy is technically good; there's no doubt about that. He recorded his first album at the age of 16 with a band called New Hudson Exit (sounds like bad country/western, doesn't it?) and really showed his stuff a few years later in a band called Glass Harp.

But the mixture of rock and Jesus has always seemed a bit twisted to me. I guess I just never got hip to all of that joyful noise business. Rock at its best is nasty stuff, a celebration of the line between good and evil from the evil side of things. Resource Center's classes help budding young artists

By Jennifer Marme-Ruggeberg Special to The Daily Iowan

Youth classes at the Art Resource Center in the Union "are a lot funner than schoool. We get to do what we want," according to Rayda Krell, a 9year-old ceramics student.

More than 150 children between ages 6 and 14 attend the weekly classes, which range from regimented language instruction to relaxed visual and performing arts classes, said Emily Martin, recreaton coordinator.

Lynda Andrus, who has a master's degree in fine arts and is a former UI art instructor, teaches youth classes in ceramics. She said the children come to the classes "because they want to and because they're not graded. Unlike school, they are free to do what they want.

The center seems to foster special relationships between the students and the 16 youth class instructors. "Because the kids want to be here, discipline isn't a problem. Even kids who are here because of their parents like it after they're here," Martin said.

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD Erin Aschembrener, who takes drama, ceramics and jazz, explained: "The teachers at the center are more like friends than the ones at school. They don't tell you what to do and what not to do."

Several of the children said their teachers show them the basics and then encourage them to use the knowledge or skill as they wish. "You make things the way she says and then you can change it - however you want," Rayda said.

Martin agreed, saying instructors provide guidelines but also encourage the children to be creative. "They are hints, almost — just enough to get them started.'

The children seem to feel they are given enough instruction, but as eight-year-old Evie Zaharis said,

Martin said each teacher may use the teaching methods of her or his preference, since most have had prior teaching experience. Andrus began teaching at the center three years ago and said she feels "very free" to teach the way she wants.

"THE FIRST few times the class meets I cover the basics. After that, I just offer help and advice. The older children have very definite ideas as to what they want to do and how they want to do it," she said.

of times" and likes the unstructured approach at the art center. "It would get boring if I had to listen to instructions all the time.'

Youth class students seem to like the diversity of topics offered, although some enroll in the same class several times. Jossee Robillard, 10, has taken the ceramics class for the past four years.

Author trusts his life's stories 'will resonate with significance'

By James Kaufmann Special to The Daily Iowan

Hunger of Memory: The Education of Richard Rodriquez by Richard Rodriguez. David R. Godine, Boston, 195 pages.

In his prologue to Hunger of Memory: The Education of Richard Rodriguez, the author wonders where the bookstore clerk will shelve his autobiography. Probably he will shelve it alongside specimens of that exotic new genre, 'ethnic literature,' " he thinks, as if "I intend to model my life as the typical Hispanic-American life.'

But that would be a mistake, says Rodriguez. "I write of one life. My own. If my story is true, I trust it will resonate with significance for other lives. Finally, my history deserves public notice as no more than this: a parable for the life of its reader. Here is the life of a middleclass man.'

Rodriguez's book is something more than true: it is elegant, revealing, instructive and so honest as to be truly exceptional. If all middle-class people's lives were more like Rodriguez's, this country would be a far more interesting place than it now is, and the term middle-class would no longer be a

RODRIGUEZ IS A Hispanic-American. His parents came from Mexico to Sacramento, Calif. and through hard work managed to obtain middle-class repectability and produce four children who are successful in the conventional sense. It is a familiar story, one that civics and history textbooks never tire of

What the texts never tell is the price paid by those who must bridge the gap between one culture and another, by those who are assimilated. Old ways of life often conflict with the new; America is not the "melting pot" we like to think it is.

Rodriguez is a "marginal man," a man astride two cultures, weighing and juggling their often contradictory demands. At home his parents practiced the old ways, while at the same time pushing their son toward the achievements in a country that was markedly different.

Rodriguez gradually came to be more and more Americanized - it was inevitable. He did well in school and was frequently rewarded for his academic prowess; indeed, his rewards for doing the right things well - fellowships, teaching offers and the like - continue to this day.

BUT THE SIX interconnected essays that form Hunger of Memory, on subjects such as education, complexion, religion, profession and writing, reveal a sadness - tempered by a realistic view of the world - for what has been lost to Rodriguez by the slow absorption of American values.

Rodriguez is an expert and sought-after speaker on educational issues, in particular the matter of affirmative action, of which, he admits with stunning directness, he has been a beneficiary.

What is most striking about Hunger of Memory is not its graphic portrayal of the problems of balancing two cultures, but rather its unflinchingly honest and revealing look at one life.

Hunger of Memory contains material so deeply personal it would be embarrassing were it not so heartfelt and honest. This is a book about telling the truth, an elegant book that must have been excruciatingly painful to write, but which is made exceptional by its dignity and candor.

Israeli novelist has found way to write about the unspeakable

By Jeffrey S. Rush Special to The Daily Iowan

Aharon Appelfeld, the Israeli novelist who will read from his work at 8 p.m. today in Hillel House, has found a way to write about the unspeakable. Each of his two books which have been translated into English, Badenheim 1939 published in 1980 and The Age of Wonders in 1981, comes from the experience of the Holocaust, yet neither of them ever mentions that word.

SETA MANIOCHE

Appelfeld was born in Tchernowitz, Poland, in 1932. When he was 8, he was deported along with his father to the labor camp at Transnistria from which he soon escaped. After three years of wandering, he was rescued by the Red Army in 1944, then found a way to Italy and finally reached Palestine in 1946. He later served in the Israeli army, married and now teaches Hebrew literature at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev at Beer Sheva.

Badenheim 1939 is set in an Austrian spa where well-off Jews came to spend the summer of 1939 as though it were any other summer. Although there are strange goings-on - the mail is stopped and the sanitation department advertises trips to Poland - everyone makes the best of it. Partially because because they don't want to know, no with what is happening in the outside world. Instead, they spend their time learning Polish and Yiddish, the languages of their grandparents. Even at the end, while boarding the freight cars, Pappenheim, the impresario, says reassuringly, "If the coaches are so dirty it must mean we have not far

In The Age of Wonders, vision is even more limited. This time it is 1938, the year of the Austrian Anschluss. The narrator is a 12-year-old boy concerned mainly with passing exams and puzzling out the maid's affairs. The world is filtered through his eyes. "When Mother said, 'I don't understand," it meant that something had happened. But whatever it was was beyond my comprehension.

WE SEE NONE OF the causes, only their effects. An express train stops between stations in the middle of the night and the Jewish passengers are asked to register. The boy describes the registration with no idea why it takes place because to him - and beyond him, to the whole race he represents - it makes no sense. Only we know the significance of that event.

As the critic A. Alvarez puts it, we communications are cut and partially. are given "only shards of fierce argument briefly overhead, as though a one admits to making any connection door had opened on a roomful quarreling adults, then banged about tly shut again.

Appelfeld works in ironic distances His sentences are short; they are concerned less with involving us in the creation of a feeling than in showing w the residue of that feeling as it spread through a community. In the san way, his plots move in cycles H repeatedly uses short sharp rises and then lingering falls to show that what ultimately affects these people beyond their control.

But he is not writing about victims The conflict in both novels is not be. ween the community of Jews and their Nazi oppressors. That is assumed Rather what interests him is how the community itself disintegrates under these external pressures. "There wen! Jews and there were Jews," says the father in The Age of Wonders.

According to literary critic living Howe, Appelfeld seems "to feel the the unspeakable is beyond direct representation, perhaps even that it is a presumption to try directly to represent it." This is certainly true, be there is something more than that is these novels. Appelfeld's character are working to remain blind. No m wants to acknowledge that anything wrong, that the long history of Jewis lation is coming undone
