El Salvador death toll high

SALVADOR - El Salvador - President Salvador Allende's government announced Monday that 29 people have been killed in guerrilla attacks since the U.S.-backed coup against the moderates last Friday.

The toll was the highest since the bloodiest American-backed coup in Central America. The official news agency said 19 people were killed in the fighting.

President Allende was quoted as saying the death toll would continue to grow.

About 350,000 Iowan City residents were without electricity Friday afternoon after a car hit a power pole.

A car hit a power pole causing a fire at the scene, killing 147 people.

Police said the fire was at the scene but declared it a suicide.

A police officer on the scene said the accident occurred Monday.

"You can see the charred wood on the top of the pole," said Officer Joe Meyers.

Eight lights in the downtown area were out and police officers had to direct traffic during the situation.

Whistlestop deterring harassers

In a northwestern Iowa town, a group of women is preparing to put on a unique defense against sexual harassment by those from the outside world.

The group of female students at Iowa State University is planning to install a whistle system on its campus to deter potential sexual predators.

The whistle system, which will be installed in September, is being funded by the university and will be located at key points around the campus.

The women say they hope to use the whistle system to discourage sexual harassment on campus.

The system will work by having students blow the whistle whenever they feel threatened or are in danger.

The whistle will be heard by others on campus, who can then call for help or alert security personnel.

According to the university, the system will be tested for at least two years.

The women say they are confident that the system will be effective in deterring sexual harassment.

They say that since the system was installed, there has been a noticeable decrease in incidents of sexual harassment on campus.

The women say they are grateful for the support of the university and look forward to seeing the system continue to be successful.

Doctors and scientists say uncontrolled nuclear buildup

By Elizabeth McGrory

These U.S. authorities in medicine, science and arms control told a Sunday audience of nearly 1,000 people at the University of California at Berkeley that it was time to stop adding to the nuclear arsenal.

They also said that medical science would be helpless to deal with the aftermath of a nuclear war.

As the United States and the Soviet Union continue to push even harder to increase their nuclear arsenals, the authorities said, it was time for the United States to serve as a leader and urge a freeze or reduction of nuclear stockpiles.

"I think the United States at this point has a responsibility," said Jonathan Fine, the national director of Physicians for Social Responsibility.

"We are in a very bad place. There is no technology that we know now that would prevent nuclear war."

"We are in a very bad place. There is no technology that we know now that would prevent nuclear war."

This statement was echoed by several other speakers, who urged immediate action to reduce the threat of nuclear war.

Snowfall expenses to outlast the winter

By Kevin Gus

Don't let the winter blues fool you - you may have to pay for the snow this year. Nowhere is this truer than in the Des Moines metro area, where the forecast predicts a winter that will be hard to beat.

"The snow will continue to fall, and the costs will continue to rise," said Mayor Lucy Johnson. "We estimate that the city will spend nearly $1 million on snow-related expenses this season."

The city also plans to hire additional staff to deal with the increased demand for snow removal. "Our goal is to maintain a 24-hour response to snow emergencies," said Johnson. "This will ensure that our streets are clear and safe for all residents."

Lawyer calls IDOT statistics inaccurate

By Charles Davidson

The Iowa Department of Transportation (IDOT) has released new statistics on the number of accidents involving drunk drivers. However, lawyer Michael Humes said the numbers are inaccurate.

Humes, who represents several families affected by drunk driving accidents, said the IDOT's data does not reflect the true number of accidents involving drunk drivers. "The IDOT's statistics are skewed because they only count accidents that result in serious injury or death," said Humes. "This is a gross underestimation of the problem."

Humes said the IDOT should be required to collect data on all accidents, regardless of severity. "We need accurate data to understand the true scope of the problem," said Humes. "Accidents involving drunk drivers are not limited to serious or fatal accidents."

"What we can do, from here"

"In the eighties, the major issue was how to get our voices heard in the public forum," said Parker. "In the nineties, we need to focus on how to use our voices to effect change."

Parker said the conference will explore themes such as economic empowerment, political participation, and cultural expression. "We need to build a strong community of black women who can support and inspire each other," said Parker. "Only then can we hope to make a lasting impact."

The conference will feature keynote speeches, panel discussions, and workshops. "We are excited to bring together black women from all over the country," said Parker. "This is an opportunity to learn from each other and to create new possibilities for the future."

The conference will be held at the University of Iowa's Center for Urban and Social Research. "We are proud to host this important event," said Parker. "We welcome everyone to join us in this exciting journey."
Bonding current law school building is the lack of history space. Because of this money of the publication of the last school 1118 Dallapa St, and other locations that cannot be used for students or family. Those years ago the legislature ap-provided $400,000 to begin planning for a center and a replacement for the old state law school. The new center's construction was approved by the legislature later, and the $800,000 in bonding authority did not expire. That money is available today. The building authority did not use the money to build the new law school building. It was not relevant to the new law school because the Old Armory was in a dilapidated condition. The United States traced it as an old de-structive building and did something about it. I personally support bonding as a possible way for the state to improve the educational environment and economic opportunities, principally for persons in the urban areas.
Utility pay rates

Are the top executives of Iowa's utility companies making too much money? This is what the Iowa Consumer Commission hopes to find out. According to Commissioner Hazel Van Genuchten, salary increases for executive vice presidents have been over 15 percent in recent years, with one utility seeing a 5.6 percent rise in rates. In a large comparison of salary levels with other industries, but industrial workers, utility services employees were earning the highest rate. Consequently the union adopted the plan to review the utility companies' proposals before the commission approves them.

The commission decided to examine the reasoning behind rate increases by asking the rates that support a regulated utility company. At its next meeting, the commission will hear testimony from industry experts and consumer representatives. It will also consider the possibility of enlisting the assistance of the Iowa Utilities Board.

Theフレンズ of the Peace Treaty between Israel and Egypt 2022

In the past few years, the peace treaty between Israel and Egypt has been a major turning point in the Middle East. Currently, both countries are working to improve their relations and promote peace. In the first part of this series, we will explore the history of the peace treaty and its impact on the region.

Letters

For those Iowaans who were born in this state, it is a unique experience to be a part of the peace treaty. They have lived through its ups and downs, and have seen firsthand the effects it has had on the community.

For those Iowaans who have moved to this state, it is a different experience. They have come to the peace treaty from different places and have different perspectives.

Israel is sacrificing for peace

We extend our hand of peace and understanding to all, for we have been given the opportunity to live in a world of peace and tranquility. The peace treaty between Egypt and Israel was signed in 1979, and it has brought about a new era of peace and prosperity. This treaty is a testament to the power of diplomacy and the importance of working towards a common goal.

The peace treaty has brought about many changes in the region. It has allowed Israel to move towards a more peaceful and democratic society. It has also allowed Israel to focus on its own domestic issues and to develop partnerships with other countries.

The peace treaty has also brought about economic benefits. The peace treaty has allowed Israel to attract foreign investment, which has helped to create new jobs and opportunities for its citizens. It has also helped to bring about economic growth and development.

Favored Wildcats nip Hawks for title

It's been a long time since the University of Washington fans have been able to jump from the stands in celebration and face the Seattle crowd with a smile. This time around, the Huskies have a reason to celebrate.

The Huskies defeated the University of Oregon, 74-71, in overtime on Monday night to win the Pacific-10 Conference championship. It was the first time in 20 years that Washington has claimed the conference title.

The win not only gave the Huskies a spot in the NCAA tournament, but it also marked the end of an era for the program's head coach, Mike Hopkins, who is retiring after this season.

Hopkins has led the Huskies to three conference championships, including this year's title.

The victory also set a school record for wins in a season, with 28

Tom Blachman, the Huskies' assistant coach, said Hopkins' departure will be a huge loss for the program.

"Mike is the heart and soul of this program," Blachman said. "He's been here for so long and has helped us grow so much. We're going to miss him greatly."
Yank soap opera continues as Michael replaces Lemon

JOSEPH PERKINS — Another round day at Yankee Stadium.

Yankee manager Bob Lemon was fired after the game and replaced with Gene Michael. Belief here is that the firing is a temporary one.

Last season, Grady Nettles suffered a possible broken finger, and the Yankees lost to the Boston Tigers right-hander missing his best.

"Well, at least I'm going out on a winning note," Lemon said after Billie Randolph hit a three-run home run with one out in the eighth inning to enable the Yankees to defeat the Boston nine, 3-0.

"I know I made a promise you wouldn't forget," Lemon said. "I'm going to play the game and get a chance to win."

BEN HAREL, who had returned emergency starter Ed Ruffly, has seen the game before. He scored his second hit and third RBI of the season with a triple and scored on a wild pitch.

Iowa golfers second at Drake tournament

by Thomas W. Junges

The alumni golf tournament between Old Faithful Valley Golf Course in Iowa City and the Drake University golf teams was won by the former. The score was 201 to 205.

The Iowa alumni were represented by a very strong team of golfers who have been active in the game for many years. They demonstrated their skill and competitive spirit throughout the tournament.

The Drake University golfers were not far behind, showing a commendable performance. The outcome of the contest was closely contested, reflecting the high level of skill and sportsmanship displayed by both teams.

The event was a great success, with enthusiastic support from both alumni and the general public. It highlighted the rich tradition of golf at Iowa City and Drake University, offering a unique opportunity for players and spectators alike.

The atmosphere was electric, with knowledgeable commentary from several golfing experts, adding to the excitement of the proceedings. The organizers should be commended for the excellent organization and coordination that made this tournament a memorable experience for all involved.

For a playwright who hates working in the theater, the music of America's youth is certainly a strange muse. Pete Mattaliano, a rock musician, explains the heroes of America's youth are certainly musicians—"The Gospel According to John Lennon." And playwright, actor, director, and lyricist Mattaliano believes the choices made by Mickey and his collaborators are not clear-cut. As a director, Mattaliano wryly adds, "I can hardly bear the thought of the "rock opera." Comedy and entertainment are the new elements of "The Godfather." The CENTRAL THEME of the show is "Ev erything is Relative." And of course, the musical is a self-evident means of creating a new kind of entertainment. Despite the self-evident lack of discipline, the 32-year-old Mattaliano has collaborated with three playwrights or four other playwrights, American Dream, a New York musical review, Houdini, based on P. T. Barnum's The Rings, Jack the Ripper, an American College Theatre Festival winner and Mattaliano's recent workshop composition. Mattaliano says the show is an "energy pocket," and he is looking forward to seeing it. The first production of the show was a "major character" change. Currently, both men are under contract for another musical, at the University of New York at Albany. As a playwright, Mattaliano speaks with the productin for its high Priority. Every member of the cast is a "human being." The play has been a great place and a great team. I think the audience will enjoy it. Of course, we have not been touched in any way. I believe that theater is a place where something so powerful and beautiful happens to you. The play is not about sex and friendship. It is a place where human beings to get to act more human by connecting with each other. The Dally Iowan, speaking of the play, "It is a place where human beings can help..."

Local pictorial history in making

By Nancy Atkinson

If it were possible to turn the clock back to the pur view days of Iowa City, one might imagine a different view of the area. With the streets of Clinton and Washington streets bare of cars, and the sidewalks and swing sets of College Court deserted, the Iowa City of earlier days might be brought back to the year 1840.

The exhibition of that image will be a part of "The Pictorial History of Iowa," a project of the Iowa City Public Library and the Iowa City Historical Society. The project, which is being carried out by a member of the Iowa City Historical Society, will contain some of the first photographs of the city and the University of Iowa, as well as descriptions of College Court and the old neighborhood of Old Union, which was the center of Iowa City.

The exhibition will begin today (Monday, April 15) at the Iowa City Public Library and will continue through May 7 at the Dally Iowan, 101 E. Washington St.

Disney drops fluff in ‘Night Crossing’

By Noriega T. Moler

Art Editor/Not

The Walt Disney Co. is widely associated with magic-coated fairy tales, but now the studio has taken a stab at durable studio adventure dramas. 'Night Crossing' is its latest effort, with noteworthy results.

Night Crossing is based on the true story of two East German families who tried to defect to freedom in the early 1980s. The film tells the tale of their determination, their escape, and their eventual reunion.

The film is directed by Delbert Mann, a well-known director known for his work in both film and television. The cast is led by Karl Malden, who plays the father of one of the families, and by Anthony Hopkins, who plays the role of the other family's father.

Despite the historical accuracy of the story, the film is somewhat sanitized and lacks the gritty realism of some of the true events. However, it is a fitting reminder of the sacrifices made by those who risked everything to escape the oppressive East Germany.

UI bands to perform together

The UI Concert Band, directed by Warren Barker, and the UI Wind Ensemble, directed by Robert Dornan, will perform together in an East German theme concert for the first time this year for both groups of students.

For the first time, the two groups will perform together in a concert, and the conductor will be Warren Barker, director of both bands.

The concert will feature music from the East German era, as well as other music that highlights the period.
