Reagan asks public 'voice' to back recovery program

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Reagan asked the public Monday for a "voice" in the decision making on how to finance the government in the first half of the fiscal year, starting Oct. 1.

Reagan, in a nationally broadcast address from the Oval Office, said he was looking for "the best way to create the kind of economy that needs the kind of government spending that meets the needs of today and the future ." He said the economy was not "in the same league as it was two years ago." But he added: "We have a healthy economy with a high rate of growth and a high rate of productivity ."

Reagan, in evitably broadcasters, said he was looking for the kind of "voice" in decision making that exists in the Senate and the House of Representatives.

"I want to make sure that we are in the same league as we were in the past ," he said . "We need a voice in making decisions that affect us all ."

Cable service to UI still in limbo

By Richard Turner

The controversy surrounding cable television in Iowa City continued Monday as the Iowa University Board of Regents voted to table a decision on the issue.

The vote was 3-1, with Regents John F. Johnson, Robert W. Johnson and Donald J. Johnson voting for the table, and Regents Richard A. Turner, John W. Selby and David R. Smith voting against the table.

The table vote was made after the committee studying the issue presented a recommendation to the board .

The recommendation stated that the committee did not have enough information to make a decision, and that more time was needed to study the issue.

The committee recommended that the board wait at least one year before making a decision on whether to allow cable television in Iowa City.

The board decided to table the issue until the committee can gather more information.

Proposed zoning ordinance would even out city districts.

By Cheryl Davidson

The current zoning in the College Hill area does not address the neighborhood the way it should, and not all the city's zoning laws are in good shape, according to the City Commission.

The development is ready to build in the area, and the city expectsnext year, by the time the zoning will be discussed, because of the number of things that came up in the event. The zoning change for the neighborhood is just one of many going to be drafted in the next few years. This development plan was adopted by the City Commission and the county's authority, which will take place during the next three years.

The new zoning plan would be a landmark for the neighborhood, and the city's new zoning laws are required to be passed by the Planning and Zoning Commission and the county's authority, which will take place during the next three years.

The court is in a situation to act for the new ordinance.

One of the main reasons for revising the current zoning laws is to provide "parks" in every neighborhood, and that plan has been reviewed and approved by the city and the County Planning Board.

The zoning plan is under "house" review by the city's new zoning laws are required to be passed during the next three years. This new zoning plan is expected to be passed during the next three years and the county's authority, which will take place during the next three years.

Board pursues new county office
hoping to find permanent location

By Kevin Cash

There’s in place the base, but maybe if the Johnson County Board of Supervisors could either restructure their collective body of three times, a meeting space would appear and join a veteran’s problem. The board must raise its office from its 250,000 square feet, in 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday, Thursday, and Friday, of the Iowa City Board of Supervisors.

The Iowa City Board of Supervisors, known to the authority’s central office, did have a permanent presence in the Johnson County Courthouse in the early 1970s. The board’s office has since been divided into two offices: an upper floor area, the police and courts, and an office, the Johnson County Courthouse, to the Hawkeye District. Still, “that would really be an office on wheels.”

The supervisor suggested we place the board’s current office in the courthouse.

Budget cut protest

One U.S. department has already run out of beds for its day-to-day business. The National Tribal Health Care, which serves American Indian and Alaska Native communities, has spent its entire budget. According to Assistant Interior Secretary Marty Thompson, every dollar spent would mean "a truly critical situation." The economic downturn has hit the Indian Highway, where the federal government has cut funding for Indian schools. Even worse, Thompson said, is the "weakened ability to handle any kind of emergency." The Indian Highway is facing a "real crisis." Thompson said the funding would help the Indian Highway. Softball team faces arch-rivals in weekend tourney at Ames

By Dave Anderson

The Iowa softball team will face off against the University of Michigan this weekend in the Big Eight tournament. The Hawkeyes are coming off a 5-2 loss to the Gophers on Thursday night, but they are still in good shape for the tournament.

The Gophers are led by pitcher Gretchen Larson, who is rated in the top 30 in the nation. Iowa's pitching, on the other hand, has been inconsistent. However, they have had some good performances from pitcher Sarah Bauman, who was credited with the win on Thursday.

The Hawkeyes will look to improve their performance in the weekend tourney at Ames. They face off against Michigan on Friday at 3 p.m., followed by a game against the University of Missouri on Saturday at 1 p.m. Both games will be held at the Hawkeye Softball Complex.

Triple play highlights Hawkeyes’ win in twinbill split with St. Ambrose

Iowa City, Iowa

"We had a tough outing in the first game, but we were able to bounce back and win the second," said coach Tony Cripps. The Hawkeyes split a doubleheader with St. Ambrose on Saturday, winning the second game 3-1 and losing the first 1-0.

The first game was a defensive struggle, with both teams limiting scoring opportunities. Iowa State scored its lone run in the second inning on an RBI single by catcher Alex Johnson. St. Ambrose was unable to capitalize on its chances, finishing with just four hits in the game.

In the second game, Iowa State took control early, scoring two runs in the first inning on a pair of RBI singles by Johnson and shortstop Sam Thompson. The Hawkeyes added a run in the third inning on a sacrifice fly by center fielder Kyle Kruger, giving them a 3-0 lead.

St. Ambrose answered with a run in the sixth inning, but Iowa State was able to hold on for the victory. "We're excited to get the split," said coach Cripps. "We have a lot of work to do, but we're improving every day."

Rosine to lead Iowa in Big Ten golf meet

By Steve Raves

Iowa women's golfer Cookie Rosine believes the Hawkeyes have a good chance of winning a title against any other team of the Big Ten this month in Ames.

"I know it is not the instrumental of the season, but it's still important to win," Rosine, a sophomore, said. "I can promise you we're not going to go out and be aggressive on the course this weekend. We're going to focus on our game."

Rosenberg, a rising star at Coach Stan Thornburg's squad, even though weather has limited Iowa's competition during the spring in two tournaments, believes the Women's Golf Tournament in Ames this weekend will provide the Hawkeyes an opportunity to show their capabilities.

"I think the meet will be competitive this year," Rosenberg said. "Ira Wohl's sensitive portrait of the changes and design of the meet is to enable more individuals with opportunities."

Rosine's teammates have no doubt in their abilities to perform at their best and help the team continue its success.

"We've been through a lot of adversity this year, and I think we're going to show this weekend what we're capable of doing," Rosenberg said.

Rosine, a three-time All-Big Ten selection, has been a key member of the Hawkeyes' successful season and is expected to lead the team to victory this weekend.

"I'm excited to be here and to play with my teammates," Rosine said. "I've been looking forward to this meet all season and I know we're going to do our best to bring home a title.

Big Four women's track meet will emphasize individual performances

By Thomas W. Jorg

There will be a new format for this year's Big Four women's track meet in the home of the Hawkeyes this weekend. Instead of emphasis on team performances, the Big Four women's head coach, Ron Renko, has promised each member of the four Big Ten women's track teams will be given the opportunity to showcase their individual talents.

"It's a chance for each athlete to do her best and compete against the best of the best," Renko said. "We're going to evaluate each individual's performance and see who performs the best in each event.

Renko believes the new format will provide a better opportunity for all the women's track teams to excel and compete at their best. He believes the new format will help the women's track teams to perform their best and compete with each other.

"We're going to see some great performances this weekend," Renko said. "We're going to have some great races and some awesome finishes."

BRAHMS RECK was the only American athlete in the women's relay team. She was chosen for her speed and ability to run in the middle of the pack.

"I think we have a good chance of winning this meet," Brahms said. "I'm looking forward to seeing how we perform as a team and what we can do to improve our performance.

Football recruit puts shot 64-3½

Iowa football recruit Larry Putnam heads the Illini's third-longest shot through on a hill, 64 feet, just as he guessed he would. "I shot 64 feet last year, so I guess I'll have to see that for sure," Putnam said.

Clark Kellogg of Illinois State has been named the Chicago Tribune's Elder Basketsticker, to the Big Ten's Most Valuable Player.

Kellogg, a senior, led the Illini in rebounding at 13.7 per game, in addition to averaging 15.3 points and shooting 39% from the field.

The Illini forward was chosen from a pool of 30 league members, all Big Ten officials, three members at the Tribune sports staff and Big Ten Con-

Duck’s Turner in one-man show that ‘quacks’ up his audiences

Night life

By the way, Duck’s breath hasn’t broken up. They’re just concentrating on the props for most McCormick’s performances. Otherwise, they aren’t performing too much anymore.

Jazzmatazz

The Houston jazz outfit was part of the Limbo Ensemble Jazz Dance Company, which will perform at 8 p.m. today and Saturday, and 7 p.m. Sunday at the Savoy Theater, 1025 E. Washington. The spring concert program will conclude jazz dance from the men’s dance band, the New Orleans Jazz Band, and The Cotton Club and The Rainbow Room.

Duck’s Turner, a television personality, is a very good person. He has been making the rounds of several television programs and is known for his straight delivery and his deadpan manner. He is often seen performing in front of a large audience, and he always seems to be in a good mood.

The Turner of Duck’s is always looking for new material. He has been working on a new project that he plans to release next month. The project is a collection of short stories that he has written over the years.

The stories are about his life and how he became a television personality. He has been working on the project for several years, and he is excited to finally release it. The book will be published in hardcover and will be available at bookstores nationwide.

Turner says that he has always been interested in writing, and he has written several short stories over the years. He decided to put them together into a book, and he is excited to finally see it published.

The book will be called "Duck’s Turner: The Unauthorized Biography" and will be released on March 15. The book will be published by Penguin Books, and it will be available in hardcover for $24.95.

Turner says that he is looking forward to seeing the book in bookstores. He has worked hard on the project and he is excited to finally see it come to fruition.

Blend of satire, affection makes ‘Mickey’ distinctive

By Paulette J. Maier

It's hard to pin down just the essence of events that took place in Iowa City over the weekend. The events included a Peruvian exhibit, where scientists are investigating the exhibits. On Wednesday, the World's Fair in Knoxville opened, with the Sunsphere, which looks like an elongated golf tee with a golf ball at the top. A young family, the Vosses from Des Moines, were the first in line to get inside. They were among the many people who flocked to the fairgrounds to see the exhibits.

But the event that really stands out is the one that happened on Thursday. A young man, the Voos, who was well-known for his anger that catapulted Mickey to the top, can now be recognized as a slick, salable commodity. Mickey sells for a lot of money. The reason for this is that his anger is marketed, packaged, and made into a product that can be sold. Mickey is now a healthy, successful, and well-liked personality. His fans love him, and he is a source of pride for his family.

Workers putting final touches on World's Fair in Knoxville

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (1973) — Workers scrambled Thursday to put the finishing touches on the World's Fair in Knoxville, which opened Friday night. The fair, which is expected to draw millions of visitors, is centered on the Sunsphere, a 175-foot tower that was designed to symbolize the Sun. The fair is a major attraction, and it is expected to be the highlight of the year for Knoxville.

The fairgrounds are located on the site of the old World's Fair, which was held in 1933. The last World's Fair was in 1967 at the fairgrounds, and it was a big event in Knoxville. The fair is expected to bring in millions of dollars to the city, and it is hoped that it will be a success.

The World's Fair prices not the fairest in the world

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (1973) — If you want to go to the World's Fair, you'll have to pay a lot of money. The fair is expected to cost you $50 million, and it is estimated that it will cost the city $20 million to run.

Worthy De Chirico exhibition brings Italian art to the fore

NEW YORK CITY — Italian art, which lost its allure after the 1930s high point of Futurism and Surrealism, is gaining a new audience. An exhibition devoted to pioneering modernist painter Giorgio De Chirico has launched the Metropolitan Museum of Art’s bicentennial celebration in an unexpected way. The Museum of Modern Art chose the moment to mount a show thatadies. What about economic or sociological approaches?

WORTHY DE CHIRICO EXHIBITION BRINGS ITALIAN ART TO THE FORE

The Metropolitan Museum of Art chose De Chirico’s work for the first show in its bicentennial series. The August 1-Sept. 4 exhibition of 641 works, including 350 paintings and drawings from 400 artists, will be the largest ever devoted to De Chirico. It is expected to attract a large audience.

The artist, who lived until 1978, died an undistinguished illusionist style full of formulas and clichés. His work is characterized by a strong reliance on classical props and events that required memorization and later, weaving them into a story that is constructed, rather than an inert body of data. The artist is represented by 641 works, including 350 paintings and drawings from 400 artists, as well as hearing about the past.

Old Capitol Criterium
May 2, 1982
Iowa City, IA.
At 16, Hokanson is a veteran bicyclist

By Steve Riley
Staff Writer

While some high school juniors scoop the loop in cars after school, you might find Tucker Hokanson of Iowa City racing around town and surrounding areas on his Guerciotti bike.

Hokanson, who attends West High School, will be one of the top United States Cycling Federation junior riders competing in the fifth annual Old Capitol Criterium this Sunday.

Hokanson is a veteran of cycling, finishing 8th at last year's national junior race in Bear Mountain, N.Y., and attending the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo., this past winter.

At 16, Hokanson is a veteran of cycling. "I started racing in 1977 as a novice. I guess I've ridden about 40 or 50 races," he said.

Barbara Hokanson said her son has been riding bikes since he was four. "His first hit of winning was when he was about nine at a bike rodeo here in Iowa City," she said. He placed second. She added that he got his first racing bike in 1976.

HOKANSON, WHO along with her husband Jon are bike tourists, said the youth's training gets more intense as the season progresses. "It's very hard to be as intense as you have to be as a bike racer," she said.

"Tucker gets good grades and he works very hard on them. Now he's training once a day. He's trying to train twice a day, but I don't know if that's wise." The 16-year-old said he trains by riding between 150 and 300 miles per week. "I'm doing about 150 now; but it will go up later in the year when school gets out," he said. He added that the Iowa City area is ideal for training because "it's a nice mixture of flats and hills."

Hokanson owns a Guerciotti bike, which is a hand-built Italian bike. He said it has one frame, eight different wheels and weighs about 30 pounds. He added that it cost about $2,000.

HOKANSON HAS the potential to become a top national rider, according to one of his former coaches, John R. Janelle of Solon, Iowa. "He's got the build for it. He looks good on the bike," Janelle said. "If he wants to be national-class he can, if he pursues it."

Hokanson has a few lofty goals as a junior. "I want to make the United States Junior World Championship team," he said. "Next year I want to make United States Junior National team," he said. "He finished seventh in last year's Old Capitol Criterium in the junior category, which includes 15-17 year olds. Janelle said he should finish in the top five this year.

Hokanson said when he isn't riding, "the other time is usually spent on homework." He said he would like to attend Brown University in Providence, R.I., because he likes the area.

Bikers' jargon

- Bunch - a tactic where the rider refuses to take the lead and brake the wind in a field because of fatigue or strategy.
- Drafting - the technique of riding behind other riders to allow riders with the strongest snap line. This is probably the biggest concern of bike racers. Since bike racers often exceed 20 miles per hour, their primary resistance is the wind - not friction. Drafting forms the basis for all racing tactics.
- Drop - the wind in a field because of fatigue or strategy.

Bike racing is serious business to professional racers such as these. After a thorough check of the bike, the racers spend a quiet moment at the starting line, getting mentally ready for the coming battle (left). One of the trickiest parts of the course (below) is the right turn from Washington Street onto Madison Street. Bikers build up high speeds coming down the hill, then have to negotiate the turn. Going uphill (bottom) requires muscle — especially as the race wears on.

Criterium relies on riders like O’Brien

By Melissa Isaacson
Staff Writer

The fifth annual Old Capitol Criterium bike race has had somewhat of a difficult time trying to keep up with the bigger races in the Midwest, but securing riders like Colin O’Brien may just keep the Iowa City event in the running.

O’Brien, who holds the U.S. record for distance ridden in an hour, will try to repeat last year’s win in the Criterium’s United States Cycling Federation Senior Men I & II championship.

The Green Bay, Wis., native, who will most likely compete on the 1984 Olympic Trek, primarily a maker of bike frames, has sponsored a racing team from Oshkosh, Wis., and John Watson, a Minneapolis, Minn., native and winner of numerous national track titles in the mid-70s, and John Prosser, an up-and-coming young rider from Madison, Wis., round out the Trek contingent.

Another team that will be present Saturday is the Fuji women’s squad. The “team,” however, may include only one rider, Debbie DeLucia, also from Madison.

Nidey, who was a racer himself in the mid-70s, pointed out some of the advantages to team racing. “It’s usually best for a rider to get on a team mainly because you can get support from the other riders,” Nidey said.

From a strategy perspective, team riding proves to be the best bet: “If one team member is riding strong the day of the race,” Nidey explained, “the others will work to get him across the finish line first. That person can ride off in the front and attack while the others sit back in the pack and contain the rest of the group so they can’t chase the leader down.”

But isn’t that illegal? “It’s good strategy and legal to do things to hold the pack back,” Nidey said. “Riders can ride up in the front and slow the race or they can get on a rider’s wheel to slow him down.” Nidey said that team blocking in the pack is another tactic.

All the strategy in the world, however, cannot pick up a race that is run on a "boring" course. According to Nidey, the Iowa City course which wraps around the UI Pentacrest is far from dull.

"Most of the people involved think it (the Old Capitol Criterium) is very well run," Nidey said. "The course is exciting and challenging. It has fast straightaways and sharp corners and steep hills. A race like this is a lot more interesting for riders and spectators than just a six-block area with right-hand corners. Those are boring for everyone."

NIDEY SAID THE senior race, which is 30 kilometers (25 laps) long, will take the average rider traveling at about 20-30 mph, less than two minutes per lap.

One drawback of Saturday’s race may be the number of no-shows. One women’s team, the Puch squad is not expected to race in Iowa City because, according to Nidey, "There are just too many other big races (one in Madison and another in Cincinnati) in the four- to five-state area.

"A lot of it goes by reputation," Nidey explained, "but it also goes on money. We’re talking about a $10,000 price list for a race like Cincinnati compared to our race with a $3,000 price list. There’s no doubt that we can’t compete with the big races that have $10,000 to throw around. But the race is a good one and the biggest in Iowa."

Nidey estimated the number of participants in the Senior Men I & II race at anywhere from 25 to 45 riders. "The more people there are," he said, "the more exciting it will be.

And exciting it should be.

A good bike is light, fast, responsive

By Thomas W. Jargo
Staff Writer

My old, blue, rusty, beat-up five-speed bicycle is not an average racing bike. Most of the bicycles one sees attached to trees and bike racks across the UI campus are not typical racing bikes.

Racing bikes are especially light, and have a small wheelbase for "a strong yet quick, responsive and fast bike," said Dan Nidey, owner and operator of World of Bikes, 723 S. Gilbert St.

Nidey, a former racing cyclist, raced mostly within a 200-mile radius of Iowa City from 1973 to 1979 before opening his bicycle shop.

The frame of a racing bike is normally made of alloy steel tubing, weighing around six pounds. When all the equipment — brakes, gears, wheels, etc. — is attached, the bike can weigh in excess of 21 pounds.

THE COST OF these bikes is anywhere from $800 to $1,200, depending on how much one is willing to spend. This hefty sum of money is for the bike alone. It would cost another $200 to dress properly when riding the bike, according to Nidey.

All United States Cycling Federation racers must wear a protective helmet secured by a chin strap. All bikers wear gloves to cushion the hands during a spill. They wear racing shorts complete with a chamois insert, which cushions the seat and absorbs sweat. Various racing clubs have a designed jersey, which their members wear. These jerseys are normally made of a breathable fabric and have pockets, in which a racer can carry a water bottle.

At the bottom of it all are the shoes. A biker's shoes are cleated; the biker's feet are attached to the pedal with straps. This allows the cyclist to pull up on the pedal as well as push down.

IT WOULD SEEM a little dangerous to be fixed to the pedal in case of a spill, especially when one is going as fast as 35 mph. It is, and Nidey says that sometimes a cyclist will roll with the bike when they spill.

For all the investment needed, bicycle racing is not a big-money sport — especially around Iowa City. In the USCF Senior men's 36-kilometer race Sunday, the top 10 riders will split $500, and that's the highest total prize money in any of the events.

Why do people go to great expense, time and effort to race? "A hobby, a sport," Nidey said. "You do it because you love it. You do it for the doing sake, not the money rewards.

How does one get started in the sport? "You have to make the commitment to make a lot of training miles," Nidey said. He stresses that a beginner should ride her or his training miles with other bikers and not alone. "It's the only way you can bring yourself up to other levels," he said. "You have to have others push you, otherwise you won't push yourself. They inspire you to move up in the field."

He said that young riders — especially those who lack humility — should take their miles with experienced riders, because "You find out how good you aren't."
