Argentina reports 500 deaths in attack

Argentina said Monday its secondlargest war ship, the cruiser General Belgrano, apparently sank from a British submarine torpedo attack, reportedly killing 500 of its 700-man crew

The official Argentine news agency Telam, meanwhile, claimed 11 Britishspeaking residents of the Falkland Islands were killed in twin British air strikes Saturday on the island air strip. In a communique, the Argentine joint chiefs of staff said rescue ships were sailing to the South Atlantic, 140 miles southeast of Tierra del Fuego, where the Belgrano apparently sank.

"There are indications that make one presume it has sunk," the military command said. An Argentine navy plane sighted several lifeboats in the area. Argentine news agencies said the boats can hold 20 to 25 people each.

AT THE UNITED nations, Argentine representatives told Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar that at least 500 crewmen were killed, U.S. diplomatic sources said

The nuclear-powered Conqueror, a hunter-killer British submarine escorting two frigates, torpedoed the Belgrano Sunday outside the 200-mile British sea-and-air blockade because it 'was a threat to our men." British Defense Minister John Nott said in justifying the attack.

Argentina accused Britain of sharply escalating the fighting by firing outside the blockade zone and told its forces they "now can attack whatever ship of the (British) fleet anywhere, even outside the exclusion zone, because it was not respected by the submarine," a military spokesman said.

U.S. Navy officials said the attack on the cruiser was the first submarine action against a ship since World War II. The Argentine Embassy in Washington claimed the British submarine may have been helped by 'means other than those of the British fleet" — suggesting American spy data located the ship for the British. The statement did not mention the United States.

lives" from the apparent sinking. Earlier, British Lynx helicopters fired rockets and sank one Argentine patrol boat and damaged another within the blockade zone, the Defense Ministry said in London.

It also requisitioned the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2 to transport 3,000 British infantrymen to the 5,500 already reported to be stationed on the war fleet in the South Atlantic. About 9,000 Argentine troops are entrenched on the main islands of East and West

Joseph Reap denied the allegation and said "we deeply regret the loss of The 44-year-old cruiser Belgrano, originally commissioned as the U.S.S. Phoenix in 1938, was sold by the United States to Argentina in 1951. It was one of the few ships in Pearl Harbor to escape unharmed from the 1941 surprise Japanese attack

On the third day of the British offensive, Foreign Secretary Francis Pym told a U.N. news conference that only a total Argentine withdrawal from the Falklands could bring peace.

College Hill Park preservationists won a small battle Monday as the Iowa City Council approved a 60-day moratorium on building permits in the area by a vote of 6-1.

The council set a June 8 public hearing on a ordinance that would not allow building permits to be issued in the neighborhood, which according to the city code automatically triggers a moratorium on any new permits. But that moratorium "will not necessarily stay permits already issued" for that area, City Attorney Robert Jansen said.

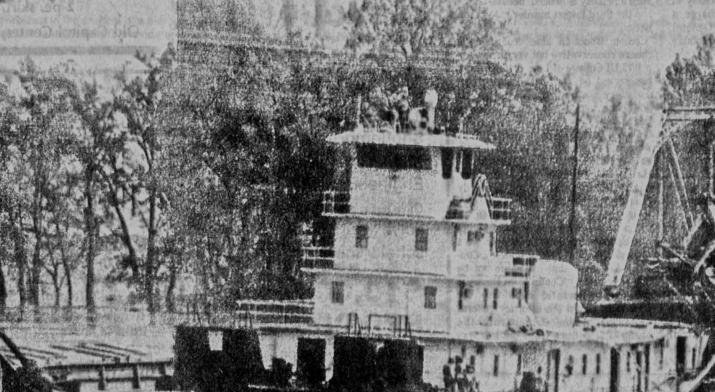

Four building permits and six demolition permits have been filed for the area as of Monday, Jansen said.

Residents of College Hill Park neighborhood submitted petitions to the council April 27 urging it to downzone the neighborhood to avoid demolition of older homes so apartment complexes can be constructed.

COUNCILOR LARRY LYNCH voted against the motion, saying that the council is "doing this in a rush."

"I've never in my two-and-a-half years on the council seen us react this way," he said.

The council received the petition one week ago and is pushing the rezoning request through before it has had proper review by the city's Planning and Zoning Commission, Lynch said, adding that the council should wait until the planning commission has reviewed the request.

The council deferred action on a motion that would set a public hearing on whether to rezone all or part of the R3 zone that includes College Hill Park. The neighborhood is now zoned R3A, which allows one dwelling unit per 1,000 square feet. Changing the area to R3 would permit only one dwelling per 3,000 square feet.

Although the financial aid programs are not assured yet, student activism is being credited with helping to convince Congress to kill President Reagan's proposal to cut about half of the funding to federal student financial aid programs - including his attempt to qualify graduate students from a popular student loan program.

cells and endangered medical technicians.

General estimates for all types of cancer show that about 45 percent of cancer patients who receive radiation treatment will live at least five years. Ten to 20 years ago, only 25 percent of the cancer patients treated with radiation lived that long, according to properly. Hamed Tewfik, UI professor of radiation therapy

RADIATION IS not only used to treat may try to stop or slow the cancer's cancer patients, but to diagnose cancer and other diseases

In the UI Hospitals' Divison of Nuclear Medicine, patients are given a chemical dose which is "tagged" with small amounts of radioactive material. When the dose is absorbed by a targeted part of the body, such as the kidneys, doctors can take a picture of the organ with a "camera." The camera detects radiation as a peppering of dots on transparent film.

By studying the radiation image, doctors can determine the size and shape of the organ to determine whether it is normal. In addition, a series of pictures taken of the organ may indicate whether it is functioning A picture of an abnormally shaped organ may indicate a tumor.

If the tumor is cancerous, doctors spread with radiation. Because radiation kills fast-growing cells more effectively than slow-growing cells, radiation doses can be carefully measured so that the rapidly reproducing cancer cells - and not the normal body cells - are destroyed.

About 100 patients each day are treated with radiation at UI Hospitals' radiation therapy department, Tewfik said. Patients may receive several minutes of radiation exposure once a day or several times a week for one to seven weeks.

THE RADIATION is administered in several doses because the radiation level needed to kill the cancer cells would kill a patient if administered in a single dosage.

Doctors may use different types of radiation beams to treat different kinds of cancer, Tewfik said. Some of the beams penetrate deep into the body, while others radiate only the skin

The machines that generate these beams are shielded with lead, according to Bill Twaler, director of the UI Radiation Protection Office.

If the shield is cracked, melted or removed - which Twaler said would See Radiation, page 6

Decertification of police officers prompts controversy about control

By Cherann Davidson Staff Writer

Iowa City Police Chief Harvey Miller and the city are opposing a plan by the Iowa Law Enforcement Academy Council that would allow the group to revoke certification of police officers because of misbehavior or retirement.

Miller said Monday that the ILEA should not have the power to revoke a police officer's certification because the proposal does not spell out criteria for revocation of certification. According to Iowa law, a police officer must receive a certification from a licensed law enforcement agency in order to serve as a police officer.

But Johnson County Sheriff Gary Hughes, who is a member of the ILEA council, said currently there is a certified police officer in the Fort Madison Penitentiary serving a sentence for murder, and the powers the proposal gives ILEA would be beneficial in a case like this. Hughes said there should be some agency that would oversee the certification process so that, if necessary, an individual could have her or his certification revoked.

HUGHES ALSO SAID the Iowa Attorney General's Office is reviewing the decertification plan because the ILEA has received some objections to the proposal. The decertification plan was sent last week and Hughes did not know when the ILEA would receive the legal opinion

Miller said he agrees that there should be some control over who can retain certification, but that the ILEA should not be the board that makes that decision.

In an April 12 letter to Jack Callaghan, director of the ILEA, Miller said he opposes "the extension of the power to revoke or rescind law enforcement certification to the (ILEA) council, without judicial proceedings; hearing; or judicial notice in the absence of a clearly stated legislative act permitting such revocation or removal. Clearly, certification is not licensing," the letter states

Iowa City Mayor Mary Neuhauser also sent an April 26 letter to the Administrative Rules Review Committee agreeing with Miller. "While there may be certain valid reasons for decertification, the proposal to afford ILEA staff complete discretion to develop a set of very general and very sub-jective criteria, and to interpret and apply such criteria unilaterally, is totally unacceptable," the letter states.

lowa death penalty re-instatement urged

The death penalty should be reinstated in Iowa for criminals who murder policemen or public officials or who commit murder while already in prison on a previous murder charge, a candidate for state Attorney General told his Republican colleagues Monday night.

Walter Conlon, a six-term Republican legislator from Muscatine, called for the death penalty during a speech to the Jasper County Central Committee, citing the recent murder of two Waterloo policemen last summer as evidence that such a law is needed.

"The police face dangerous situations each day. We must try to protect them by demanding the forfeiture of the murderer's life," Conlon said in a statement.

CURRENT Attorney General Tom Miller, who is running for re-election, opposses the death penalty on moral grounds, according to campaign aide Bill Roach.

Roach, relating a conversation with Miller, said the attorney general would support the death penalty only if it can be proved that it would deter potential murderers. Roach also said Miller doesn't think such a penalty is needed, because Iowa has the third lowest murder rate in the nation.

Conlon, whom an aide described as "more conservative but very open," is a 1975 UI College of Law graduate who has served on the Iowa Legislature's Judiciary Committee since 1977, and was chairman of the committee last year.

Conlon, in an interview Monday morning, said Miller has been afraid to handle "hot potato" issues, such as the Harold Hughes residency question, and has led the office on an unsteady course.

He also said he is running on an "idea:" That through cooperation, opposing groups can reach compromises that will lead to effective policies. Conlon, who asked that his name not be confused with "Conlin" - Roxanne Conlin, Democratic candidate for governor - said the attorney general must learn how to separate the business of politics from the business of governing.

Elevator explosions

Grain dust, formed by the abrasion between grain particles, is easily ignited - as the annual toll of grain elevator explosions demonstrates. The recent explosion in Council Bluffs that killed five people and injured 12 was only one of several grain dust explosions likely to occur this spring and summer.

And little is being doing to prevent further tragedy. John Beddow, a UI materials engineering professor, is frustrated because the National Institute of Health would not fund his study, which pursues a different line. Most research studied the large quantities of grain dust normally found in elevators. Beddow believes studying individual dust particles may be more fruitful; he and his associates have developed a new method to characterize the shapes and sizes of such individual particles. Significantly, the Council Bluffs elevators contained "acceptable levels" of grain dust when inspected March 30 and 31. Also significant was that the inspections were made by the Council Bluffs Fire Department and the Iowa Commerce Commission; the Iowa Bureau of Labor, the state agency with most responsibility for preventing grain explosions, had never checked the site because it had somehow been omitted from the IBL's master list. Incredibly, neither federal nor state law even requires routine inspection of grain elevators.

Last week Frank Hoese, president of the American Federation of Grain Millers, blasted the U.S. Department of Agriculture for failing to investigate and curtail elevator explosions. It seems that the Reagan administration's budget cutting had included elimination of the office of grain elevator safety.

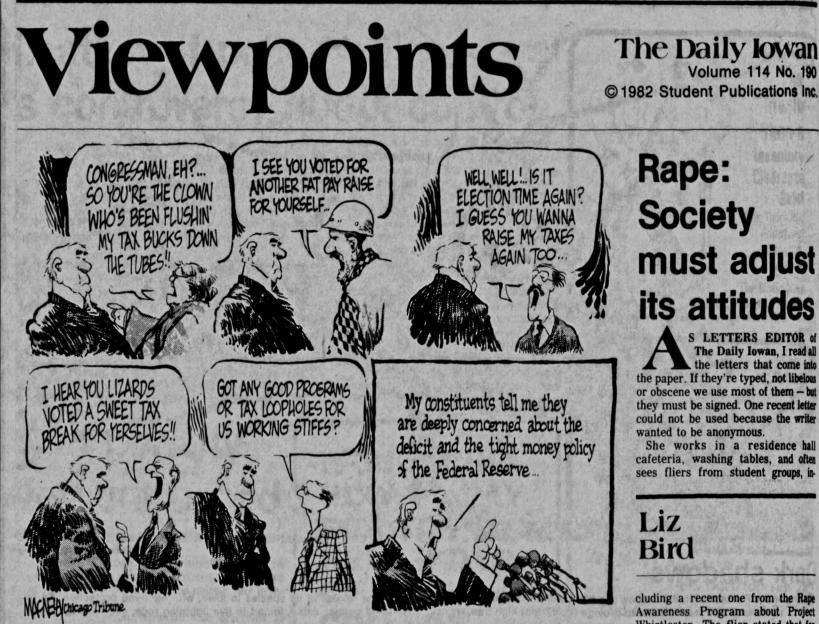

However, Congress subsequently restored a $50,000 appropriation for USDA to reestablish the office and continue investigation. The appropriation was made last December. So far, as Hoese points out, the USDA has neither reopened the office nor spent any of the appropriation money.

The USDA admits that, but a USDA spokesman blames the delay on the National Academy of Sciences, which is months behind schedule in producing a four-volume report on elevator accidents, an undertaking being underwritten by the USDA and the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Only one volume has been completed, and the academy now estimates the project won't be completed until September, almost a full year behind schedule.

Beddow blamed his difficulties in obtaining funding on an "apathetic" grain industry. It appears that the responsible parties are also guilty of considerable confusion and multiple displays of passing-the-buck. Tragically, in the meantime other lives are being endangered.

President Reagan's proposal to spend $1.5 trillion on the military by 1986, with the greatest percentage of the increase being allocated for the procurement of new, high-technology weapons systems, could have disastrous economic effects. The massive expenditures would divert scarce capital and labor to the production of arms, sacrificing opportunites to strengthen civilian industry.

Contrary to common belief, defense spending does not act as a giant public works program. A report issued by the 12,000 more jobs (58,000), than the same amount spent on arms (45,800). Arms production requires a greater concentration of highly skilled, wellpaid engineers and technicians, with few jobs for semi-skilled workers, for whom there is the most need.

The need for engineers and technicians in military production creates a bidding war for their services, driving up prices and removing them from escalation was so inflationary because both guns and butter were deficitfinanced. This is also proving to be true of Reagan's military increases. Financing both domestic spending and a large military expansion with record deficits could be very inflationary.

Soaring deficits required to finance this buildup could keep interest rates up, thus squeezing out new investment. A study was done for the Pentagon by five independent forecasting firms, which all agreed that the most dangerous impact of substantially raising the military budget was slower investment as a result of increased federal borrowing to cover the military

She then asked, "Do people know so little about rape and what it can do? Do people still think of rape in terms of sexual passion instead of vicious assault and mindless rage?" She requested anonymity "because anyone who considers the above to be humorous would probably enjoy a personal assault on me or my property. This woman, though outraged by the vahoo who wrote the comment, was too afraid for her own safety to complain publicly. It's easy to dismiss her fear as illogical - it is unlikely that anyone would bother to seek her out.

BUT HER FEAR is not irrational; it reflects the fear all women, to some extent, have of rape or other violent assault. And not just physical assault, but menta think it's fun to call women on the phone and make them too scared to leave the house Most men who enjoy jokes about rape are not likely themselves to become rapists. But their sexual folklore reflects stereotypes that add to a climate where rape is treated not as a violent act, but as a titilating variation on normal sexuality. Such jokes center on the idea that women enjoy rape, or at least should, because they invite it with their provocative dress and lifestyle. Undoubtedly, rape can figure in women's sexual fantasies, and may be acted out with partners in a normal relationship. That kind of fantasy has absolutely nothing to do with wanting to be the object (the word is used ad visedly) of an act of genuine aggression.

Cost overruns

For years a favorite trick of the Pentagon has been to underestimate the cost of a particular weapons system in order to gain Congressional approval for the project and then to release the actual higher cost of production once construction has begun. The ploy is particularly effective in that most congressmen would rather sink a few more billion dollars into a project than see funds totally wasted by scrapping that project once it's underway.

The problem with these preplanned cost overruns was that sooner or later even Congress was bound to wise up to what was going on - as they did last week when Congressional investigators discovered that the Pentagon had purposely concealed studies showing that the cost of the B-1 bomber would be $7 billion more than was previously promised.

Already the General Accounting Office has requested that Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger hand over the cost data from the two studies he received before the Pentagon's greatly underestimated cost estimate was released. So far, Weinberger has refused to comply, saying that the release of such information "would seriously interfere with the decision-making process."

What Weinberger seems to be saying is that if you give the public access to all the facts they might erroneously come to a different conclusion from the "enlightened" view of the military. Yet as ludicrous as this sounds, it is just this kind of thinking that has led to the countless military cost overruns in the past. It will continue to do so in the future, unless something is done to stop it now that the Pentagon has been caught redhanded.

It would seem that if Reagan is truly interested in his balanced budget, he might do well to cite this multi-billion-dollar government ripoff along with the stories of all those welfare scams he's always so fond of telling.

While not endorsing the budget, he said that it would not prove a major inflationary impetus to the American economy. This evaluation was done using the projection of a $40 billion surplus in the budget by 1985. It is now apparent that instead of a surplus, we are heading for record deficits. The projected 1983 budget could have a deficit of $120 billion or more.

Nordhaus continued with a comparison of the present buildup versus the Vietnam buildup, saying that the major impact of a defense buildup depends on how it is financed. "For a given rate of growth of the money supply, a defense buildup will be expansionary and inflationary to the extent that it is financed by budget deficits."

ONE OF THE principal effects of low investment is slow growth in productivity. New, more efficient factories and equipment are critical to improving the competitiveness and longterm growth of U.S. industries.

Bruce Carver Jackson of a Wall Street banking form, and the CEP both found that higher levels of defense expenditures correspond to lower growth rates. According to Jackson, "Indeed, military spending diverts resources and distorts their allocation, hindering growth and contributing to inflation."

Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, has emphasized that our economy is an important tool for foreign policy. 'National security cannot be measured in dollars spent by the Pentagon. Our greatest strategic asset is our economy. To the degree it is stunted, our security is jeopardized. IT WOULDN'T be so bad if these stereotypes were restricted to the locker-room talk of adolescent boys. But, in spite of widespread attempts at education, they appear even in the system that supposedly punishes aggressors. Remember that Wisconsin judge who called a 5-year-old assaultvictim "an unusually promiscuous young lady" because she playfully climbed on top of her mother's lover? And The Des Moines Register recently reported the story of Terry Martizna, a man who rapes repeatedly, is convicted and then paroled. There is no evidence that he is reformed, yet parole boards take his appalling record lightly. A recent victim has had her life changed by Martizna, and lives in fear of his return. Even if he is found, she dreads a court appearance, where "I'll have to listen to people say I seduced him. The fear she experiences is the same fear that leaves 90 percent of rapes unreported and that makes a concerned woman too afraid to sign her name on a letter of protest. While programs such as Whistlestop deserve support in their fight against rape, women will never truly feel safe until the values of our entire society allow rape to be treated with the repugnance it deserves.

Ambulance service asks higher status

By Kevin Cook

Johnson County residents will soon be assured of top-rank emergency edical assistance, according to Mike Deeds, director of the Johnson County Ambulance Service

The service has applied for paramedic status to the Iowa Advanced Care Council, a division of the Iowa Department of Health. Paramedic status signifies the highest level of training for ambulance personnel.

Doug York, paramedic coordinator for the Emergency Medical Services division of the council, will be in Iowa City Thursday to evaluate the county's emergency medical team.

The Advanced Care Council will meet May 20, and will base its decision on York's recommendation.

All ambulance service employees have qualified as paramedics, Deeds said. "On the 20th of May," he predicted, "we'll receive paramedic status." The ambulance service has 17 fulltime and five part-time employees.

Currently, the service operates as an emergency medical technician, level two unit - or EMT-2 - the level just paramedic status.

Elderly I. woman robbed at knifepoint

Two young men were charged with second-degree burglary in connection with the knifepoint robbery of an elderly Iowa City woman at her residence early Monday morning.

According to Iowa City Police reports: Jeff Hoover, 18, of 900 Orchard St. and a 17-year-old Iowa City male juvenile are accused of entering Madolin Mahaffy's home on 305 Douglass Court at 3 a.m., tieing her up and burglarizing the residence. Iowa City detective William Kidwell said Hoover was arrested at his home at 7:45 a.m. and his companion was apprehended a few hours later at the Towncrest Trailer Court, Kidwell said Monday

Mahaffy, who is in her 80s, freed herself and went to her neighbor, Phyllis Svatos of 304 Douglass Court, for help. 'She said that someone had broken into her home and robbed her. That is when I called the police," Svatos said. Kidwell said most of the items reported stolen from Mahaffy's home have been recovered. . . .

UI Campus Security is investigating complaints of missing UI student ID cards used to charge items in the Union Bookstore.

According to reports: Maria Deligiorgis, 434 Lee St., reported the theft of her wallet and student ID card on April 19. She recently received a bill from the Union Bookstore for $178.00 for purchases she did not make.

In a separate case, Gretchen G. Thomas, 2301/2 E. Benton St. told Campus Security that her ID had been stolen and that she received an $80 bill from the Union Bookstore for charges she did not make.

Protestors and police clash in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) - Hundreds of riot police firing tear gas and water cannons clashed Monday with 25,000 Solidarity supporters who took to the streets shouting 'Murderers!" and singing Poland's national anthem

Street battles spread to several parts of the Polish capital, including outside the Communist Party headquarters, as military helicopters directed at least 500 police to disperse the defiant throngs in the worst clashes since martial law was imposed nearly five months ago.

Citing "demonstrations and incidents in the streets of Warsaw and some other Polish towns" - which sources said included Gdansk — authorities promptly cut telephone links in the capital and threatened to reintroduce a curfew as "Radio Solidarity,' the clandestine voice of the outlawed union, planned another broadcast.

"It is a tragedy that there are still people who want to disrupt things this way," Deputy Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski told a news conference.

Witnesses said several protesters were severely beaten and an undetermined number of people seized after truncheon-wielding police used tear gas and water cannons to break up the protest.

IN WASHINGTON, the State Department said the use of force by authorities "is another reminder that what is needed is a return to a genuine dialogue in that troubled country.'

"We deplore (the use of force by authorities) and find it indicative of the deep cleavages which continue to exist in Poland," a spokesman said.

The riot came just as authorities had eased some martial law restrictions.

Witnesses reported clashes in at least four places in the city. Half a dozen ambulances sped to the scene of the main demonstration in Warsaw's Old Town, their sirens wailing.

The historic district was virtually sealed by lumbering military vehicles and the infamous "Zomo" riot police carrying clear plastic shields, long white truncheons, automatic rifles and wearing thick-visored helmets

Police and demonstrators fought running battles in the narrow cobbled streets. The protesters ripped up paving stones and grabbed cafe chairs and tables to build barricades in the picturesque Old Market square. "You are a Pole, how can you do this?" the

"Don't try to educate me," he snapped back. "I am what I am."

The angry crowd tore down red communist banners festooned along side streets from the main demonstration, which was called to mark the signing of Poland's constitution of May 3, 1791 and the Feast Day of Mary.

Falklands

THE ONCOMING South Atlantic winter was bringing thicker cloud cover and the possibility of more rain and high winds in the battle zone where Britain's missile-firing Lynx helicopters attacked two Argentine patrol boats after they fired on a British Sea King helicopter.

"One of the ships was sunk and the other was certainly damaged," the British Defense Ministry said. Argentina made no immediate comment on the claim.

U.N. Secretary-General Perez de Cuellar Monday offered to visit Buenos Aires or London if it would help to solve the Falklands crisis.

EARLIER, Pym told the United Nations that his nation wanted peace, but couldn't halt the fighting until Argentina obeyed U.N. Security Council resolution 502 calling for the withdrawal of Argentine troops and negotiations on the islands sovereignty.

'They (the Argentines) occupied the land unlawfully and they ought to go,' Pym said. "That's the way to bring peace back

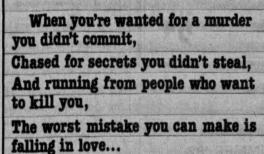

Pym's remarks came as Argentine President Leopoldo Galtieri sent two top aides to Lima to confer with Peruvian President Fernando Balaunde Terry on his peace plan.

A few hours earlier, the junta said it had rejected the proposal because it did not recognize Argentine sovereignty over the Falklands. Government sources said Argentina thought further diplomatic efforts were worth a try, despite the plan's drawbacks.

council is trying to "act fairly, but expeditiously" in rezoning the area because of the delay in enacting the new city zoning ordinance.

"I am sick and tired of the length of time that it's taken to get the new zoning ordinance," she said, adding "I am really angry" that a situation such as the problem at College Hill Park has come before the council because of the delay

Councilor John Balmer said he does not necessarily favor rezoning the entire area because some blocks might need to be zoned for a higher density. But Balmer said he does favor a moratorium on construction similar to one that was placed on the North Side neighborhood.

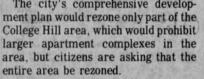

and at a public hearing on the rezoning before the planning commission.

John Cruise, an attorney representing contractor Mike Furman and other contractors, questioned the legality of a moratorium on construction. Cruise said the council was "putting the cart before the horse" because the planning commission, which is the body that makes zoning recommendations to the council, has not reviewed the proposal.

Councilor Clemens Erdahl said the purpose of the moratorium is "to keep the status quo" of an area before a final zoning decision is made.

Mildred Marquis, of 526 S. Johnson St., said the 500 block of South Johnson Street should be omitted from a

Coetzee novel deserves fanfare

By Ken Harper ff Writer

Waiting for the Barbarians by J.M. Coetzee. Penguin Books, 1982, 156 pages.

Occasionally a novel comes along hat deserves all the fanfare that can be drummed up. Waiting for the Barbarians, written by J.M. Coetzee pronounced "Coat-see-uh"), is just such a novel.

It starts slowly but auspiciously: "I have never seen anything like it: two little discs of glass suspended in front of his eyes. Is he blind?" It is the voice of the Magistrate describing Colonel Joss, chief of the "Third Bureau's security police." Colonel Joss's arrival at the Magistrate's outpost, an otherwise quiet, remote, almost forgotten province, signals the exercise of power for power's sake. The "Empire" has arrived. The Colonel, the only character with a name in the book, has heard rumors of an impending uprising by the "barbarians," a tawny, nomadic race who live beyond the stretch of the Empire. There has been a raid nearby. Livestock stolen, property plundered. An old man and a sick young boy - barbarians both are seized. They plead innocence: the old man was seeking medical help for the boy. They were walking on the road when the Empire's soldiers arrested them

THE MAGISTRATE realizes no raiding party would take along an old man and a sick boy to encumber them. He advises Colonel Joss that the old man is probably telling the truth. Yet. the Colonel sends the Magistrate away and then "interrogates" the "prisoners," by torturing them. The Colonel has found them guilty of dies during his interrogation.

So it begins. The Empire abuses peoe, destroys the land and ultimately kills itself. In the process the civilized people barbarize themselves by inflicting barbarities upon the so-called barbarians. The Magistrate himself is transformed into a barbarian - tortured, humiliated, abused. But this happens only because what little he can do, not so much to change the course of events, but to insure that a human voice of protest is heard, if not recorded. He does what little he can to preserve a sense of humanity.

Yet the Magistrate is not a hero. The Empire refuses to allow him the existential luxury of dying for a principle. The Empire denies him any dignity in the eyes of the populace. The Magistrate pays dearly for his defiance of the law he once served. However, he defies the Empire to crimes and they confess. The old man mundane and pragmatic where indifference is the rule. As Hannah Arendt points out in her study of Adolf Eichmann, 20th century evil is not necessarily malicious, but banal.

> THERE HAVE ALREADY been attempts by critics to assume that Coetzee's novel is a South African allegory. To a degree it is, but the beauty of the book is that it extends beyond strictly defined geo-political constraints. In an interview in 1978, Coetzee said, "...I still tend to see the South African situation as only one manifestation of a wider historical situation having to do with colonialism, late colonialism, neocolonialism." He deftly handles what others elsewhere have overdone. I can think of no other novel written since World War II that approaches the problems of power, position, and conscience as well as Waiting for the ## season bests in gym meet

By Steve Batterson Staff Writer

The two Iowa gymnasts who competed in the United States Gymnastics Federation Mideast Region qualifying meet at Minnesota turned in their best performances of the season.

Kelly Crumley scored a 109.85 to tie for fifth place with former Nebraska gymnast Chuck Chmelka and Iowa junior Brett Garland took ninth place with a 107.65 score.

The event was a qualifying meet for the USGF National Championships, scheduled for June in Syracuse, N.Y. Crumley narrowly missed qualifying for the meet, but will have another chance to qualify when he competes in the U.S. Teams Tournament in Atlantic City, N.J., May 15-16.

Qualifying for the national meet earns the gymnast the title of being a member of the national team, making him eligible for international competition.

IOWA COACH Tom Dunn was pleased with the performance of Crumley and Garland. "I was guessing before the meet that a 110 score would be good enough to qualify, so Kelly should be very, very close," Dunn said. "We'll just have to wait and see how the scores in the other regions went."

Following Friday's compulsory competition, Crumley was in sixth place with a 54.3 score and Garland was in 10th with a 53.3, both season bests for the two gymnasts.

'Kelly missed just one trick in his six routines and he had a fantastic compulsory vault," Dunn said. "He scored a 9.6 to have the highest score of anybody.

Crumley and Garland both moved up in the standings in Saturday's optional competition. Crumley took fourth place with a 55.55 score and Garland finished in a three-way tie for fifth with Chmelka and Jeff Mitchell of Illinois. All three finished with 54.35 scores.

"BOTH OF OUR guys had a good day in the optional competition," Dunn said. "Kelly had a little trouble on his landing on the still rings and just a minor problem on horizontal bar, but they were just little breaks so it was nothing to be to concerned about."

Two gymnasts who have signed national letters of intent to attend Iowa competed in the Eastern Regional held at Southern Connecticut State College. Dan Bachman of Parma, Ohio, finished 10th in the region with a 109.35 score and Stuart Breitenstine of Akron, Ohio, finished 15th in the East with a 99.65.

Ringers only team to repeat as titlists

By Steve Riley Staff Writer

Phi Kappa Psi, Ringers and Milky Way have satisfied their quests for intramural All-University championship trophies awarded to the men's. women's and coed teams that compile the most points throughout the intramural season.

Phi Kappa Psi dethroned last year's men's winner - Pi Kappa Alpha which managed to get third this year. Sigma Chi grabbed second place. The rest of the Greek-dominated men's top 10 reads: Delta Upsilon, fourth place; Delta Tau Delta, fifth; Tau Kappa Epsilon, sixth; Delta Sigma Delta, seventh; Delta Chi, eighth; Beta Theta Pi, ninth and Squadders, tenth.

The intramural manager for Phi Kappa Psi, Pete Vorhes, said the key to his team's title was "getting people to all come together at one time." When asked what kind of athletes his team had, Vorhes said: "We had enough (athletes) to win. We're pretty much just a bunch of drunken, high school flunkie athletes." Phi Kappa Psi used its balance, since it didn't capture any single championship for an event, according to Vorhes.

PHI KAPPA PSI member Rob Dustin said the All-University title was one of the fraternity's goals as was acheiving the highest mean grade point average among social fraternities which it also did.

Ringers won the women's crown for the second straight year. It outdistanced Delta Gamma, Chi Omega, Alpha Phi and Fenton to easily win the title. Team member Jean O'Leary said the Ringers won football, home run derby, track and volleyball championships.

Milky Way won its title by the biggest margin. They defeated South Quad, Phi Rho Sigma, Pilchen's Pagens and Alpha Phi. Last year's champion was Carroll Hawkeyes.

The trophies will be presented at an awards ceremony in the Kinnick Stadium press box Wednesday from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. The outstanding 1981-82 intramural manager will also be named at that time.

The final intramural champions were decided last Thursday with the conclusion of the men's and coed volleyball tournament.

SYSTEMS III WON the men's tournament by defeating Jollyballers, 16-14, 15-7, in the championship game. The coed winner was Dig It via a 15-9, 15-12, win over One Step Slower in the final. The year's oustanding officials have been named by Leroy Hackley, who is in charge of intramural officiating. Dan Sheehan was named the overall best official.

The other award winners and the sports they won the awards for are: Kevin Koepnick, football; Scott Van Beck, basketball; Deana Bodnar and Jill Sokol, volleyball.

Hackley named Randy Howard as a special service award winner. Hackley said Howard "was almost like my right-hand man."

> Iowa Head Baseball Coach Duane Banks is still baffled following his team's three weekend losses to Wisconsin, which eliminated the Hawks from title contention in the Big Ten's Western Division.

"It's frustrating as heck to us," he said. "We definitely should have beaten Wisconsin three out of four, but we didn't get the job done.'

Entering last weekend, Banks' team had won 10 out of its last 12 games. But the Hawkeyes, 27-19, were completely shut down by the Badgers. The weekend losses put Iowa in last place in the Western Division at 1-7.

"I'm very disappointed with the seniors. I really thought they'd provide leadership, but they haven't done it," Banks said. "I guess it's understandable because none of them are going to play pro ball and their minds are on other things."

Besides blaming the seniors for the disappointing season, Banks has shouldered much of the blame. "I have frustrated. It's just so frustrating.'

THE BELEAGUERED Hawks will try to bounce back from the Wisconsin series today when they face NAIA foe St. Xavier at the Iowa Diamond in a double-header. Starting time is 1 p.m.

St. Xavier, a Catholic college with 2.300 students, offers scholarships and recruits heavily in the talent-rich Chicago area. The Cougars are members of the Chicagoland Collegiate Athletic Conference and compete in to take the blame, I'm totally basketball and baseball. They are coached by John Morrey, a former coach at St. Francis College in Joliet, Ill. The Cougars have been on the Iowa schedule in previous years, but because of rain outs, the two teams have never met. St. Xavier is no pushover, boasting seven straight 40-win seasons and playing a schedule that is easily as tough as Iowa's. They have an 80-plus game schedule and have already played such teams as Western Kentucky, Florida, Alabama, Indiana, Florida, Purdue, Southern Illinois, Northwestern, Florida State and Bradley. Banks is worried about the Cougars, especially after the disastrous weekend. "They (St. Xavier) will be a good team. They're very tough," he said. "I don't really know what it's going to take to beat them other than some mental toughness."

The Daily Iowan/Dirk VanDerwerke

Because the Hawks are out of contention in the Big Ten and will receive no post-season bids, Iowa will be playing for honor. "Maybe we'll start playing loose and the kids will show some pride," Banks said.

Quebec vows not to throw in the towel

Waving a white towel, now a rallying cry for the Vancouver Canucks and their fans, may make its debut Tuesday in Quebec City as a gesture of surrender.

The Nordiques, trailing the two-time Stanley Cup champion New York Islanders three games to none, face elimination Tuesday night in their bestof-seven semifinal series at the Colisee.

roundup

In Saturday's 4-3 victory over the Black Hawks, several thousand Vancouver fans brought white towels to the game or bought them at concession stands and used them to salute their heroes and scold the officials.

Nordiques Coach Michel Bergeron, however, says his team won't go down without a fight.

"WE CAN'T THINK about our losses. We have a proud team,' Bergeron said. "We don't want to lose in four games and we won't give up.'

The Islanders, with Wayne Merrick scoring at 16 minutes, 52 seconds of overtime, prevailed 5-4 in game three and left wing Clark Gillies looking for another tight game.

"I think we'd like to play the same kind of game we played (Saturday). Maybe reduce our mistakes a little and play the body a little more," Gillies a crowd that Stan Smyl says "sends said. "Hopefully, we can get an early lead and take a bit of the starch out of them. Then we can go from there.'

Islanders defenseman Denis Potvin is not overconfident, but says his team has the upper hand. "Certainly we have the advantage, he said. "The pressure will be on their club. But they're playing at home and they're a team with a lot of pride. They certainly showed that."

While the Canucks plan to appeal the fine, they have given their fans something to cheer about. Vancouver will be shooting for its ninth-straight victory at home against Chicago before shivers up your spine.'

"They're playing football out there," he said. "The fans bring out the white flags and the ref doesn't call it (infractions). They (the Canucks) put two arms around (Chicago center Denis) Savard and followed him around. I don't know how the referee can let them do that.
