Hinckley tapes indicate obsession

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A psychiatrist testified Thursday that John W. Hinckley Jr. began stalking President Reagan in December 1980, but the murder of Beatle John Lennon "stunned" him into temporarily dropping the idea.

Dr. William Carpenter Jr., who examined Hinckley two dozen times after his arrest for shooting Reagan, told a federal court jury that Hinckley was obsessed with the movie "Taxi Driver," in which an alienated cabbie tries to kill a presidential candidate. and was fascinated by actress Jodie Foster, who played a prostitute in the movie

Iowa farmers can receive funds for soil conservation through state and federal cost-sharing programs, but the amount funded is only a fraction of what is needed to effectively control the state's erosion problem.

In 1980, the state Soil Conservation Service estimated it would cost $7.5 billion to control erosion in Iowa. This would mean keeping erosion to "permissible levels" - erosion rates slow enough to allow soil time to reform and replace eroded soil.

Iowa has approximately $12.5 million for state and federal cost-sharing programs for soil conservation. This is less than two-tenths of one percent of the estimated $7.5 billion needed to institute soil conservation measures to effectively control erosion in the state. Iowa was allocated $7.2 million under the U.S. Department of Agriculture soil conservation program for its current fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, 1981.

Additional funds may be granted before the fiscal year is over from an $8.5 million reserve fund, according to ded under the state program in some

Bill Hawks, USDA agricultural Iowa counties, and only as an exception program specialist in Des Moines.

MOST OF THE GRANTS cover about 50 percent of the cost of soil conservation projects or up to $3,500 annually, Hawks said.

Under the state program, a landowner may receive up to 50 percent of the cost of implementing a permanent soil conservation method, said Bill McGill, field representative for the state Department of Soil Conservation.

But practices that are not considered permanent, such as no-till, are not fun-in others.

Although assistance is available, many landowners feel the subsidies offered are not sufficient given the farreaching effects of erosion and the considerable cost of implementing soil conservation practices.

Phil Winborn, a farmer near Kalona, Iowa, thinks state and federal soil conservation programs are inadequate. 'The state of Iowa is doing more than others, but it's not enough," he said. Lawrence Lacina, a farmer who lives three miles southwest of Iowa City, said he once received a $10-dollaran-acre government subsidy for using no-till on 24 acres of his land. But he said this was not even enough to cover the cost of fertilizer for the land.

Lacina feels more funds are needed to convince landowners to implement soil conservation practices. "It's going to take something to convince the diehards to come out of their shells and try conservation," he said.

STATE conservationists seem to agree that for today's farmers, earnings are the "bottom-line.

'They better be (profit-oriented) or See Soil, page 5

Major concession hinted

Argentine President Leopoldo Galtieri, in what appeared to be a major concession, indicated Thursday he would not demand a guarantee of Argentine sovereignty over the Falkland Islands in advance of negotiations with Britain.

It was the first time Galtieri commented directly on Argentina's negotiating position and follows four days of what Britain said were successful sorties against Argentine positions and jet attacks.

House budget plan approved

WASHINGTON - The Democratic-led House Budget Committee approved a $780.6 billion budget blueprint Thursday that would raise about $52 billion more in taxes and spend $25 billion less on defense than the Senate GOP plan.

President Reagan, in a nationally broadcast news conference late in the day, never mentioned that action but said he believes interest rates would fall if Congress passed the Senate GOP committee version, which is headed for floor debate in the next few days.

Soviet launch successful

MOSCOW - The Soviet Union Thursday launched two 40-year-old cosmonauts into orbit to become the first crew of the new Salyut 7 space station.

The Soyuz-T-5 space capsule took Lt. Col. Anatoly Berezovoy and flight engineer Valentin Lebedev aloft at 6:58 a.m. EDT. Docking with the orbiting laboratory is expected today.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador - Army troops shot to death 20 leftist rebels in heavy fighting near the Pan American Highway, the Defense Ministry said Thursday, but guerrillas denied the losses and reported killing 15 soldiers.

City commission is charged with open meetings violation

By Scott Sonner Staff Writer

An Iowa City police union has charged that the city's Civil Service Commission illegally amended a commission regulation concerning the hiring of former police officers.

A Johnson County Attorney confirmed Thursday he is following up on a complaint from the Iowa City Police Patrolman's Association that states the commission violated the state's Open Meetings Law by voting on a rules change without conducting a meeting

"As with any complaint about an open meetings law, we are conducting a preliminary inquiry to see if the law applies and if any action is appropriate," said J. Patrick White, first assistant county attorney. "I don't think I would call it an investigation, but that's a matter of semantics," he said. White said he hopes the matter will be resolved "within a very few days.

BUT IOWA CITY Human Relations Director Anne Carroll said the complaint is unfounded because the the three Civil Service Commissioners have not yet formally voted on the rule change. She said formal action will be taken Tuesday, May 18.

The controversy surrounds letters Carroll sent to the three commissioners asking for their reactions on amending a rule that provides for the reinstatement of city police officers who left the force within one year without pre-employment tests and interviews that are required by Civil Service regulations. The amendment would extend the leave period to two years.

CARROLL SAID the letters were not an attempt to resolve the matter by mail, but the police union's president disagrees.

In his letter to White, union President Dan Dreckman charged that the commission "voted on and adopted the rules change without having posted notice of a meeting or even conducting a meeting at

"We sincerely hope that if it is found that the Iowa City Civil Service Commission did violate the open meetings law that the rule that was adopted will be rescinded until they do meet the requirements." White said he sent a letter to Carroll Wednesday requesting her to explain the procedure she used in contacting the commissioners.

Campus Security said they do not have any suspects in the thefts.

AFSCME referendum to be counted

DES MOINES (UPI) - Vote counting will begin today in the referendum among state clerical workers whether they want to be represented by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

About 6,000 workers were eligible to vote in the representational election. Balloting began Monday and closed Thursday afternoon.

A spokesman for the Public Employment Relations Board said turnout appeared to have been "pretty heavy," based on the size of voter sheets. 'We'll begin the vote count at 1 p.m.," the spokesman said

The clerical workers were given about 150 chances to vote during the referendum.

IT WAS THE second time in recent years clerical workers have voted on representation by AFSCME. The margin in the first vote was narrow and enough ballots were challenged so there was no clear win-

It was agreed another vote would be held but AFSCME later dropped the idea.

To call the new election, petitions were needed to show interest among the workers. AFSCME already represents state blue collar workers, white collar professional and technical employees and a variety of other groups.

Three complaints were filed before the referendum over an advertisement used by AFSCME. There were no complaints while voting was under way, the PERB spokesman said.

It may take years to absorb the deficit. but according to Michael Finnegan, UI associate business manager, "There was no time limit set up" for replacing the money taken out of the UI general fund. 'We made adjustments," he said.

Cambus' budget will be reviewed next week, and the UI will have a pretty good idea where the system stands financially. Finnegan said.

Farewell to Hoyle

Another UI administrator is moving on, one who will be missed by many. Classie Hoyle, UI director of Affirmative Action for the last four years, is resigning to accept the position of vice president of Academic Affairs at Clarke College in Dubuque.

Hoyle's decision is not unexpected; as she said in an interview last November, she hoped to move into academic administration. Her stated goal was to become a vice president for Academic Affairs within 10 years, and it is a measure of her ability that she has reached this goal already.

Several UI administrators have paid tribute to Hoyle's achievements. Randall Bezanson, UI vice president for Finance, called her "an extraordinarily able person," wishing her the best while regretting her departure.

Clear figures are not easily available on UI hiring of minorities and women before and after Hoyle's tenure - according to Mary Jo Small, an assistant vice president for Finance, one of her achievements has been a more detailed keeping of records in order to generate hard numbers.

But even without statistics, it is clear that Hoyle has achieved much. "I believe that Classie has made enormous strides in helping academic departments in their efforts to achieve the UI's affirmative action commitments," said Small, adding "she has never allowed us to lose sight of that commitment."

Small said she believed academic departments now have a more conscious commitment to affirmative action - "she never allowed us to lapse into complacency."

Many people are beginning to fear a backlash in the area of affirmative action in the nation as a whole, and it is unfortunate that the UI is losing such a capable and dynamic administrator at this time. But Classie Hoyle has done great good here, and now she is ready for more challenges - we wish her well.

Library thefts

Theft of personal articles from the UI Main Library is a traditional end-of-the-semester problem. Impending finals bring more students to the library to study for exams, and they bring with them wallets full of cash and expensive items such as calculators and tape players.

Nine thefts were reported at the library from Friday through Monday, Sgt. Richard Gordon of UI Security said. One of the missing wallets contained $80 in cash, another $50 and in another incident a cassette tape player was stolen. In all cases the valuables were left unattended for short periods of time.

The presence of thieves in the libraries is distressing but not surprising. What is surprising is the lack of precaution displayed by so many people, not just those whose things are stolen.

Gordon said thefts can occur "just in a matter of seconds," and suggested that if people have to leave their places they should take everything with them. Study carrels are notoriously unsafe places to leave things, but thefts from tables in open study areas are not unheard of.

Goodbye to all that

It was 1:30 a.m. Aug. 25, just 19 hours before the first paper of the fall semester was scheduled to go to the printer. The computer disks were laden with stories my 60-plus-person staff had been working on for the last several weeks, ready for use in the first fall edition.

But when I tried to "kill" a story from the system, my VDT malfunctioned, and the computer started methodically erasing every story it had. And I didn't know how to stop it. I watched in horror as the memory percentage for the system slowly began to drop. Fifty percent ... 42 percent ... 37 percent. I couldn't believe it ... 23 percent ... those stories just had to be somewhere ... 12 percent ... Anywhere ... 4 percent ... I kept checking the computer files, hoping that they would show up in the directory.

I called our resident computer expert. He got out of bed, came down to the office and called (and got out of bed) The Harris Computer System Man. The Harris Man said the stories were floating irretrievably in video void, and he was sorry, but nothing we could do would get them back.

Cindy Schreuder

HE WAS SORRY? Not nearly as sorry as I was as I began to telephone all those people whose stories were destroyed by a malfunctioning VDT and an editor who didn't catch the goof. What could be worse than the horrid clanging of a telephone at 2 a.m.? A voice on the other end describing the disaster and asking you to to come in and rewrite your stories - at 2 a.m.

Everyone came in, and I realized what a great group of people I had working with me. And their talent has shown through every issue of The Daily Iowan, volume 114.

The reporters, including Rochelle Bozman, Jackie Baylor, Mike Leon, Missy Isaacson, Scott Sonner and Mike Condon, to name a few, who put so much work for so little recognition into this year's paper.

THE DEPARTMENT editors: Roxanne Mueller, arts/entertainment, who focused more attention on the popular arts; Cecily Tobin, freelance, whose patience never wore thin; Dirk Van-Derwerker, photography, who was always willing to go out on one more assignment; Linda Schuppener, editorial page editor, and sidekick Liz Bird, who took an active role in soliciting opinions and articles from area residents; Jay Christensen, sports, so adept at interviewing that we often had to pry the phone from his ear; and a newcomer to print media, Terry Haywood, wire.

But a special note of thanks has to go to the four editors - Craig Gemoules, Joe Hawkins, Howard Hess and Scott Kilman - who logged long hours in pursuit of journalistic excellence and never let me down

It takes more than news/editorial employees to get the paper out. however, and credit is due to the advertising staff, the production staff, publisher Bill Casey and assistant Mary New; they sat through some long department head meetings made longer by my suggestions for change.

Anyone who makes a statement like the one President Reagan just made not knowing that there were still any schools in the country which discriminated on the basis of race - is either naive or a fool. And I question whether we can tolerate an innocent or an idiot in the White House.

Susan Marks, head of circulation services at the library, said there are 140 lockers at the Main Library and others at departmental libraries around the UI. Of these, 100 are semesterloan lockers that can be rented for a full semester, and the other 40 are daily use lockers available to anyone with a quarter in his or her pocket. Power of polls

With election time coming up, polls pitting one candidate against any and all comers are appearing frequently in the media. It is not clear what kind of impact polls have on voters - do they rush to the supposed winner or to the underdog - but the case of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., should provide a cautionary note. Kennedy must really wonder about people sometimes. Ever since he was old enough to run for the office, his name has appeared in public opinion polls asking people about hypothetical presidential elections. In those polls, he almost always comes out on top, as he did in a Gallup Poll released this week. But, when he actually ran for president ... well, you remember what happened. The odd thing is that Kennedy was the only Democrat who beat

Reagan in the poll. Former Vice President Walter Mondale couldn't do better than tie and Jimmy Carter lost again.

So if Ted Kennedy is so popular, what in the world happened in 1980? How could a rather unpopular president who was not even really in control of his own party machinery beat the long-time putative heir-apparent to the presidency? The polls give no answer.

This is not to say that polls are invalid. Politicians do and should pay attention to them, since they are the most trustworthy way to guage public opinion on a particular subject at a particular moment. But that doesn't mean they should act on the information polls provide. Kennedy did in 1980 and came through the experience bruised and bloodied. And look where he is now ahead again.

Vivisection To the editor:

Three cheers for Kathleen Young's letter on vivisection - it opened my mind to some new insights (DI, April 26). You see, I am a vivisectionist; my friends call me Igor.

For the past semester, I've been doing research in Med Labs, which I'm now almost hesitant to mention. I have become quite cold-blooded in the last few months, and it was not until Young's reminder that I was jarred by the memory of my first vivisection the first time I had to cut open that poor, defenseless rat with his cute little pink eyes penetrating my soul. But I must say, I've been fortunate -I've only had to murder a couple dozen of the "millions" of rats you mentioned get cut up here in Iowa City. Those closed doors may hide the cruelties that take place, but they can not hide the screams and blood-curdling howls as those doctors and lab techs go to work with their butcher knives and wrenches on dogs, cats, monkeys and yes, even little bunnies.

Being unaware that many of the test animals came from animal shelters, I was appalled on finding that out. If nothing else is done to protect lab animals, this law at least should be appealed. Stray animals should definitely be allowed to live - let the county feed and house them.

Or at least let them go where they can have a chance to make it on their own, and then if they starve a slow death or get hit by a car, they at least had a chance. Anything would be better than letting those damn doctors get their hands on them.

Young, you obviously seem like a person of action, a leader, a person who sticks up for what she believes in. If you were to boycott vivisection, I'm sure others would follow your example. and soon this disgusting practice would come to an end. If your mother is dying from cancer, refuse to let her undergo treatment because much of the research has been done on live animals. They could have just as well given a bunch of bacteria cancer and done their silly research on them.

that have been smuggled in from other countries where anything passes safety inspection. You may end up with a three-headed kid like those ladies in Europe who were taking that birth control medicine that hadn't gotten the USFDA stamp of approval, but at least you wouldn't be supporting those awful vivisectionists. Little sisters To the editor:

We are writing in response to Derek Maurer's editorial on the little sister program (DI, May 10). He writes, "It is hard to say what the idea behind the little sisters program is," but he doesn't even consider that the women may join fraternities for the same reason men do. Is it inconceivable that the women join to make friends and have a group to socialize with? Is a 'mutual admiration society" the only way he can imagine men and women together as friends?

Derek Maurer assumes that the services members of a house do for each other are the singular purpose of the program. In our experiences as little sisters, we have found the services as a nice plus, but the friendships made with the men in the house and the other little sisters are the most important part of the program. The services stem out of friendship and caring for one another. The men don't walk us home at night to reinforce sex roles, but because rape is a frightening reality in Iowa City. At lock-out the women may clean the house, but that is only once a year. The rest of the time the men do, and if the little sisters eat at the house it is the men that wash the dishes. Next time Derek Maurer writes an editorial he might try to be sure of his facts. Did he even ask any women about this "sexism?" Cecilia Ham Tracy Stavros

Cable television

To the editor:

Recently I was interviewed for an article in The Daily Iowan on the value of internships. My phone conversation with the writer was brief, due probably to the fact she had a deadline to meet. and other people to contact.

I would merely like to add that without this internship I think I would be as ignorant as much of the rest of this community as to what is really available through cable, both locally and in nationwide offerings.

Especially in terms of local access cable we now have the most tremendous opportunity for interactive communication the world has yet seen. I am totally confounded by the failure of one of the greatest universities in this country to make use of its own channel to produce and promote censure, including lack of patronage by programs by and for its students and faculty when it has the capability to do George DeMello so sitting unused in its backyard. regardless of the argument over whether or not dormitories are to be wired for cable TV

The UI should be particularly embarrassed to know that with fewer resources in money and personnel. Kirkwood Community College in Cedar Rapids has completely outclassed us in making use of its cable channel. As far as I'm concerned, this situation is more disappointing than losing the Rose Bowl. Cinda Stewart

Movie boycott

To the editor: I would like to inform readers that the movie Heartland, which is yet to be shown in Iowa City. has been rated as 'unacceptable" by the American Humane Association because of the shooting and throat-slashing of a pig by the lead actor. Rip Torn. Those who believe in the rights of all sentient beings, human and non-human alike, to live a life free from cruel and painful exploitation, would be doing animals a great good by refusing to attend this movie. To take the life of an innocent being for the amusement of other. more powerful beings has no place in a truly civilized society.

Recently, animal cruelty in Heaven's Gate, caused a large part of the moviegoing public to boycott the film, with the result that the film was a financial disaster. In movies all effects can be produced with utmost realism without harming any sentient creature. Movie directors and producers who resort to practices which cause pain or death tu animals should receive the severest the movie-going public.

The Pioneer spacecrafts have traveled more than one billion miles each and will be the first manmade spacecrafts to leave the solar system.

These are the most far out spacecraft in all of human history and they are still working beautifully." But Van Allen said there are only a few hundred people in the world who are still interested in the spacecraft, which were launched 10 years ago.

Van Allen has a device on board each of the Pioneers that measures radiation levels around the planets. He said monitoring the spacecraft costs about $2 million a year. "The shuttle people spill that much every day, so the comparison is almost ludicrous." he pointed out

'This is not strikingly less and is perhaps somewhat more" than the cost of using the conventional expendable boosters that the shuttle was designed to replace. Van Allen said. And although some predict life will

There is a $2 billion annual expenditure even if you don't fly that it's been so economically anything ... It's the overhead that makes it outrageously expensive at the present time.

Van Allen explained that because maintenance costs for the shuttle are relatively stable, as the number of shuttle flights per year increases, the cost per flight decreases. Shuttle planners initially predicted the shuttle would make 52 flights a year, but a recent forecast of 10 to 12 flights annually by 1986 is much more realistic. Van Allen said

Arts and entertainment Area arts, entertainment schedule can provide outlet for 'test-iness'

By Roxanne T. Mueller Arts/Entertainment Editor

Now that you've finally got some time to breathe with finals over (or almost), you might be looking for the proverbial 'something to do." A line-up of arts events and entertainment activities is available in outlying areas over the next few weeks that you might want to check out.

Music, dance, theater, mime, art and creative writing are all highlighted in the Fourth Annual All-Arts Dubuquefest May 19 through 23 in Dubuque. A modern dance troupe from Des Moines called Dance Co'Motion will kick off the first of 67 artsrelated events the night of May 19. Among the other performers will be the Eulenspiegel puppet troupe from Iowa City on May 21.

A parade that begins at 10 a.m. May 22 will coincide with a Farmers' Market in downtown Dubuque. An International Biergarten, called "the hub of Dubuquefest," will offer ethnic food and beverages, booths selling imported gifts, and continuous entertainment.

For a full rundown on Dubuquefest, call 319-583-6201 or write 422 Loras Blvd., Dubuque, 52001.

. . . Culminating the Mid-States Regional Ballet Festival in Cedar Rapids this week will be a "Gala Concert" featuring works from six companies. The performance is set for 8 p.m. Saturday at Cedar Rapids' Paramount Theater.

nam star cele leav "" prin her Bob Ahe

If you missed The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas at Hancher Auditorium, or for some reason want to see it again, the national touring company stops at the Paramount Theater for three performances at the end of the month. Show times are 8 p.m. May 29 and 3 and 8 p.m. May 30. For ticket information, call 398-5340 in Cedar Rapids.

In June, there will be "A Celebration of the Arts at Brucemore" sponsored by the Cedar Rapids/Marion Arts Council. The event, the first of what will be an annual celebration, begins at 10 a.m. June 19 on the grounds of Brucemore, the former residence of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hall and now part of the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Arts organizations, including the Cedar Rapids Community Theater, the Cedar Rapids Museum of Art, the Children's Theater of Cedar Rapids and various dance groups will be participating during the day. Original art work from area artists will be on view at the Carriage House. There will also be a juried art fair where area artists will be showing and selling their works.

The day will be topped off with "An Evening of Pops" by the Cedar Rapids Symphony on the front lawn of Brucemore. The concert will be conducted by Christian Tiemeyer, the newly appointed conductor of the symphony. Pre-sale prices are $3 for individuals and $10 for family admissions of five. Tickets the day of the event will be

$3.50 and $12.50. Brucemore is located at 2160 Linden Drive S.E. in Cedar Rapids.

Burlington will celebrate its heritage as river town in the 20th annual Steamboa Days American Music Festival June through 20. Headliners at the festival an John Hartford, Junior Walker and the Al Stars, Jethro Burns with the Warre County String Ticklers, the Johnson Count Landmark Band, Pat Hazell, Monterey an the South Dallas County Crewcut Cowbo Band

All the things that make up a festival fireworks, a beer garden, a carnival an home-cooked meals - will be in evidence

Finally, a whole line-up of theater w unroll at the Old Creamery Theater in Ga rison. On the main stage through June 6 the comedy A Gentleman and a Scoundre to be followed by Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Weber's musical Joseph and th Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat June 1 through July 25.

The chiller-thriller Wait Until Dark takes over the stage July 29 through Aug. 29 and another musical, Once Upon a Mattress will end the season Sept. 2 through Oct. 10. On the Brenton Stage at the same theater, a variety revue called Midnight Cabaret will be presented July 1 through 25, while The Gin Game unfolds Sept. 2 through Sept. 26.

For times and reservations, call the Old Creamery box office at 1-800-332-5200.

Dangerfield show like him — deliberately dumpy

By Jeffrey Miller Staff Writer

- Like its star, ABC's "The Rodney 213 Dangerfield Show." which aired Wednesday night on KCRG-9, achieved much of its success through its deliberately dumpy look.
- Producer Harold Ramis (formerly of "SCTV" and writer-director of Dangerfield's movie Caddyshack) trotted out some of the hoariest variety ... show cliches imaginable: the monologue performed on stage in front of a curtain; non sequitur song-anddance routines: a troupe of dancers doing ridiculous choreography in outlanlish costumes (like "SCTV's" Jools Havemeyer Dancers).

Television

Ramis' understanding of television served Dangerfield well. The monologue was framed by a setting reminiscent of great TV comics from George Burns to Carol Burnett. And a skit featuring Dangerfield and guest Bill Murray as singer Nick Fury (performing a polka medley) tied the old vaudeville-variety show together with the post-"Saturday Night Live" comic consciousness better than anything this

UNFORTUNATELY, the form of the show far surpassed its content. Many of the skits (written by Ramis, Brian Dovle-Murray and Elayne Boosler, among others) were flaccid to the point being boring, and guests Aretha Franklin and tap-dancing great Honi Coles (who wasn't even billed) were largely wasted in their brief appearances.

The variety show format demonstrated more than anything Dangerfield's strength in the fading art of stand-up comedy. While current comics like Richard Prvor and Steve Martin have built their careers on the side of "SCTV's" "Sammy Maudlin more modern form of funny stories punctuated with gags. Dangerfield is virtually the sole remaining practitioner of the rapid-fire one-liner routine

人的人的常知及30月 MALE RE NO

Dangerfield's monologue, which included jokes like: "My doctor - he doesn't like me - I told him I'd taken an overdose of sleeping pills - he told me to take a couple of drinks and get some rest." was easily the funniest part of the show. Even the oldest gags around (how old are they? Three of them are in a joke book I have that was published in 1952) sound fresh when recycled through Dangerfield's eternal-loser persona.

THAT PERSONA, however, goes beyond simple middle-age schlephood.

While most comics base an extraordinary part of their material on sexual frustration (only "Star Trek" seems more popular as a source of routines). Dangerfield has managed to personify that frustration. His sweating, his bulging eves and his yanking at his tie (what would Freud say?) make visual the internal torment of the man who wants desperately to get laid but can't figure out how

Most of the show's skits played directly off its star's sexual insecurities: guest Valerie Perrine has a clause in her contract that Dangerfield can't touch her: Dangerfield changes his image and his name (to Chubby Wells) to attract women, who of course brush him off even faster than before: in order to escape his woesomely lackluster life, he takes his dog on a Caribbean vacation.

It's too bad the skits weren't better written - they could have been major resources in the study of sexual paranoia. Oddly enough. however. the commercials that interrupted the show - scantily clad young women giggling and making dates on the phone, a lusty couple testing a hotel bed and then ordering room service - almost ... managed to make Dangerfield's frustration the art form it deserved to Respect, it seems, cannot be won it can only be bought.

Search for musical experiences . yields moments of perfect bliss

By T. Johnson

This column has become, over the last four or five months, a column about music in bars. That was its original intention; to provide a regular spot to talk about the nusicians forgotten by music writers in the deluge of very professional promotional material and perks that flow in from record companies and promoters of big-time con-Ci certs

As such, the column has succeeded. But it has also showed its tremendous limitations. lowa City has maybe 15 places that feature live music. and 10 of those could be thrown out because they're not very serious about it. In such an area there is only so much that can be said: the same talented faces show up regularly, and there are only so many times you can talk about the nuances of someone who gets slicker and slicker with each passing dollar.

MY FAVORITE columns to write are the ones that deviate from the norm of introducing various musicians to a new audience. They are broad, overview columns - generalities culled from years of bar-hopping in search of that great, musical religious experience.

This is not a deviation of generalities. however. This is a deviation of mood; there are two powerful forces at work on my psyche. and seemingly no way to meld them together into a single coherent column. One of the forces is the street musicians

Down by the fountain a band was setting up. They were an odd assortment of people really: a bass player, a woman with long straight hair wearing an India print sun dress, a couple of percussionists and a guy playing some kind of simple finger piano run through the bass player's amp.

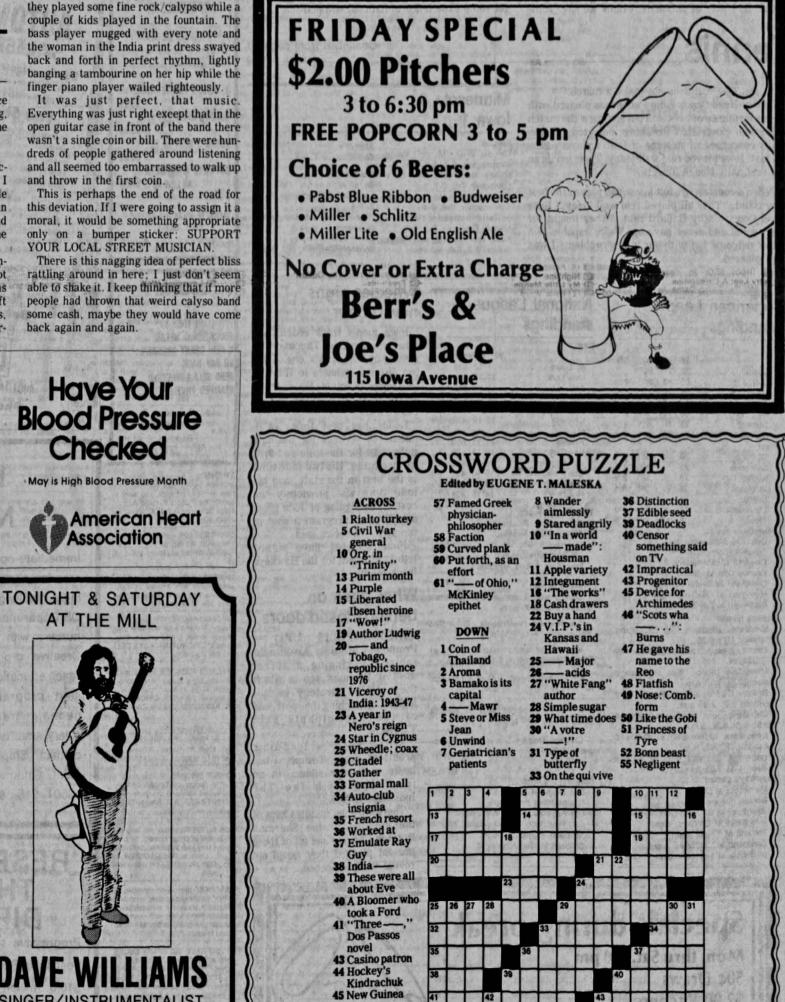

I SAT DOWN in the perfect afternoon and they played some fine rock/calypso while a couple of kids played in the fountain. The bass player mugged with every note and the woman in the India print dress swayed back and forth in perfect rhythm, lightly banging a tambourine on her hip while the finger piano player wailed righteously.

It was just perfect, that music. Everything was just right except that in the open guitar case in front of the band there wasn't a single coin or bill. There were hundreds of people gathered around listening and all seemed too embarrassed to walk up and throw in the first coin.

This is perhaps the end of the road for this deviation. If I were going to assign it a moral, it would be something appropriate only on a bumper sticker: SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL STREET MUSICIAN.

Ohio State heavy favorite for conference golf crown

By Thomas W. Jargo Staff Writer

The Iowa men's golf team will try to achieve two goals as they travel to West Lafayette, Ind., for the Big Ten Golf Tournament this weekend on the Purdue University course.

The 72-hole tournament will begin with 18 holes today, followed by 36 holes Saturday, and ending with a final 18 on Sunday. Par for the Purdue course is 71. Iowa's first goal is to bounce back from a disastrous Northern Intercollegiate Tournament two weeks ago where they finished 11th in a 15-team field, despite playing on their home course. Their second goal will definitely be harder then the first: to relinquish Ohio State's dominance over the Big Ten conference. The Buckeyes are led by Chris Perry, who has won two major individual titles this year - the Kepler Open and the Northern. He is the son of former baseball great Jim Perry, and the nephew of Gaylord Perry, who recently won his 300th Major League game.

With a solid six-man line-up, Ohio State won both the Kepler and Northern golf meets. They are the heavy favorite in the conference meet.

Iowa will definitely play better this weekend than indoor place," he said, referring to Iowa's sixthplace finish at the conference indoor meet last March. "That's how competitive the conference is." Hassard says his team has a "better shot" at doing well at the outdoor national meet, May 27-29, at College Station, Texas, on the campus of Texas A&M University. Iowa will be sending a record 13 individuals in 17 events to the national meet.

"I'm pretty optimistic," he said. "Providing what the injury situation is after the Big Ten meet, we should do better at nationals. I think we have some third set. One call does not make a match."

Gopher Head Coach Ellie Peden was pleased with they did at the Northern, according to Head Coach Chuck Zwiener. But beating Ohio State may be a different story

'We can't help but do better than what we did in the last tournament," Zwiener said. "We're a lot better team than we showed. I hope to have a high finish

Zwiener said beating the Buckeyes would probably be an "accident," but added, "If anyone were to beat Ohio State, the Purdue golf course would be the place to do it."

Zwiener says the Purdue course is very tight and not very long. He believes no one will run away with the championship.

Iowa sophomore Eugene Elliott said the Northern tournament was a "down experience." He says the team's attitude is good, and they will bounce back this weekend.

Can they upset the Buckeyes? "I would like to do that more than anything else in the world," Elliott said.

Elliott played golf against several golfers he'll face in the conference meet. He has met Ohio State's Greg Ladehoff, Perry and others while playing for Bettendorf High School. He said he doesn't particularly like losing to those golfers, and that is enough incentive for him.

people with a lot of scoring potential."

Some of the scoring potential will come from Iowa's veteran national competitors Kay Stormo and Doak. Kathy Gillespie and Smith should give some added punch.

Spangler, Jodi Hershberger, Chris Davenport, Janet Adams, Jenny Hayden, Angela Menson, Mary

Reborn Iowa baseball team entertains Wildcats

By Melissa Isaacson Staff Writer

The Iowa baseball team's outside chance of qualifying for the Big Ten playoffs proves once again that the most predictable element of the American pastime is unpredictability.

The Hawkeyes, deep in the conference cellar two weeks ago after dropping three of four games to the upstart Wisconsin Badgers, surprised neapolis. We were just awesome against Minnesota," said Iowa Head Coach Duane Banks. "We had a rebirth last and the Hawkeyes' chance of getting weekend. We played as well against the second spot is remote - but still Minnesota as any team has ever played for me. And against Wisconsin, they played as bad as any team has ever played for me."

"We're pretty surprised with the IOWA, NOW 4-8 in league play, faces situation we're in right now and being

'But at the same time, we're happy we still have a chance

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Iowa are all alive for that last playoff spot. The Hawkeyes and the Wildcats are in the same situation: They need to sweep this weekend's games after the Gophers and Badgers split Thursday.

Wisconsin won the first game, 2-1 with Minnesota taking the second, 5-2.

Those two teams play another double- until we get out there.' header today.

"WE'LL KNOW ON Saturday what we have to do," Turelli said. This strategy could, however, have the reverse effect. If the Hawks go into this weekend's contests knowing that this year. "If we go out ready to play their chances are slim, what will that do to their intensity level?

"It could hurt us too." Turelli admitted, "if we're too uptight for the big games. I guess we really won't know 90 percent between the ears."

Turelli descibed the Wildcats as a young team that "likes to swing the hats

The Hawkeyes split with the Wildcats last season, and Banks said the two teams are very comparable this weekend, it'll be very interesting."

Asked why the his club played so differently in the span of seven days last week. Banks replied, "Attitude - it's Frustration might be the best way to describe the plight of the Iowa tennis team in an 8-1 loss to Minnesota in the first round of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Region VI tournament Thursday in the Recreation Building.

The Gophers will meet Wichita State today at 8:30 a.m. on the Stadium Courts for the team title. Individual titles will be up for grabs starting at 1

The Hawks found themselves ahead in many matches only to let leads slip No. 2 singles player Sara away. Loetscher was ahead 5-2 in both the first and second sets and Minnesota's Nancy Rost was able to fight back and force both sets into tiebreakers. Rost won the first-set tiebreaker, with the help of a questionable interpetation of the rules that allowed her to win the tiebreaker, 7-5.

With Rost leading 6-5, Loetscher's serve was returned into the net, which

Hassard picks Badgers, again

By Thomas W. Jargo Staff Writer

Wisconsin has dominated the Big Ten women's outdoor track meet the last six years, and Iowa Head Coach Jerry Hassard doesn't think his team is in the position to put an end to that domination this weekend in Champaign, Ill.

last six conference championships. including the last four. The last team to upend the Badgers and win the title was Michigan State in 1977. Wisconsin will probably win it again." Hassard said. "I thought we were in a position to win it. but injuries and other limitations have put us out of the title chase."

Iowa high jumper Mary Mol has The Badgers have won five of the been out of action with a stress fracture in her foot. Also, world-class distance runner Nan Doak and shot putter Gail Smith have been out for various lengths of time with injuries.

HASSARD SAYS THE league has improved since last year and the competition will be very stiff. "It will be hard for us to duplicate our See Track, page 8
