Israel shot down 25 more Syrian MiG fighters Thursday and pounded PLO strongholds in southern Beirut, despite U.S. demands that it withdraw from Lebanon, and Syria rejected an Israeli cease-fire offer.

Israeli and Syrian tanks dueled near the strategic Bekaa Valley and infantry backed by other tanks battled the Syrians further north near the Beirut-Damascus highway, Israel Television reported.

Israel dropped leaflets on Beirut warning of an impending assault.

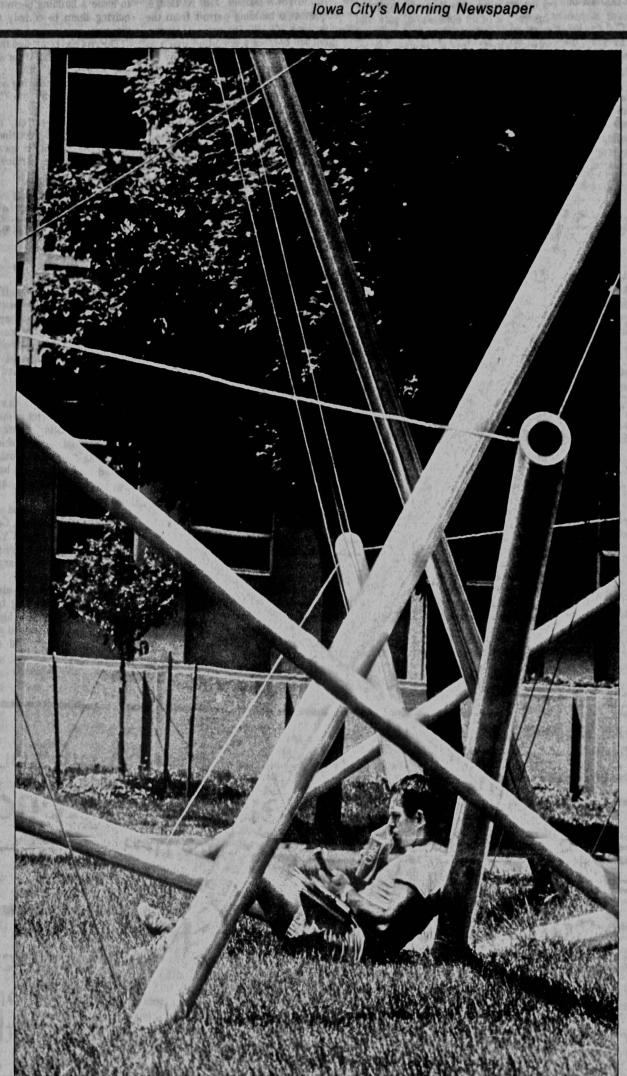

A senior official said Israel, which has control of 666 square miles of Lebanese territory, had achieved most of its objectives. Israel indicated it would accept a cease-fire if Syria stopped attacking its troops and did not attempt to replace destroyed SAM missile bases in eastern Lebanon.

Syrian President Hafez Assad, however, ordered his 40,000 peacekeeping troops in eastern Lebanon and the capital to "remain steadfast until victory."

Assad was quoted by Damascus Radio as saying: "We will not accept any cease-fire as long as there is one Israeli soldier on Lebanese soil."

IN LEBANON, Palestinian Red Crescent officials claimed war casualties had passed 10,000, but it did not break down the number of dead and wounded. Israel reported 45 dead and 308 wounded since Sunday.

President Reagan sent a letter from the NATO summit in Bonn Minister Menachem Begin demanding Israel withdraw its estimated 25,000 troops from Lebanon and accept an immediate cease-fire. Israel Radio reported Begin had replied to Reagan but did not disclose the reply's contents. White House counselor Edwin Meese said there was no plan to cut off war supplies to Israel - which has nearly $1 billion in tanks, missiles, ammunition and spare parts on order from the United States. Reagan also met with Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud Al Faisal who flew to Bonn to explain King Khaled's fear of a Syrian-Israeli confrontation. The president urged Brezhnev and other world leaders with influence in the Mideast "to help bring the bloodshed to an end". He demanded Israel cease fire and pull out of Lehanon

House OK's GOP-backed budget plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) - House Republicans and conservative Democrats, heeding an appeal from President Reagan, resurrected their successful 1982 coalition Thursday to pass a 1983 budget plan with a deficit of at least $99 billion.

The budget resolution now goes to a joint Senate-House conference com-mittee, which will reconcile differences between it and the Senate-passed version with a 1983 deficit of $116 billion

House Budget Committee Chairman James Jones, D-Okla., said he would try to begin the conference as early as Tuesday.

Restoring the coalition that gave Reagan his victories in the Democratic House last year, Republicans and con-servative "Boll Weevil" Democrats voted 225-202 against a $784 billion Democratic budget and then voted 220-207 to substitute the $765 billion Republican alternative for the main budget resolution.

Forty-six Democrats voted for the GOP plan and only 15 moderate Republicans voted against it. The House later nailed down its decision with a 219-206 final passage vote on the resolution.

ONE MODERATE Republican the Democrats were counting on to vote in their favor, Rep. Jim Leach of Iowa, said he "agonized" over his decision to vote for the Republican version instead.

Iowa congressmen said they didn't like the budget that was approved in the House by a 219-206 vote Thursday, but they voted for it anyway. Why?

Tom Tauke said it was "better than nothing.

Fired nurses plan their futures outside the city school system

Democrats, GOP leaders rewrote their original plan to try to hold the deficit under $100 billion, mostly by cutting $8 billion from Medicare, Medicaid, food stamps and Aid to Families to Dependent Children.

And to mollify some moderate Republicans from the industrial Midwest and Northeast, the GOP leaders also added some money back to transportation and other urban-related programs.

THE REPUBLICAN plan would cut about $9 billion from Reagan's request for defense spending in 1983, and raise some $20 bilion in new tax revenue an amount small enough that it would not jeopardize the Reagan-supported tax cuts.

The authors of the GOP plan said it would produce a $99 billion deficit in 1983, but congressional budget experts placed it at $110 billion.

Army engineers offer solution to dispute over reservoir floods

Rock group making 'music television'

About 50 landowners facing the loss of their property met with representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Thursday night and heard a possible solution to a six-month dispute.

The reservoir is a project of the Corps to be used for flood control, but landowners have found water from the reservoir covering their farmland more often than the Corps had predicted.

Corps member Lt. Col. Joe Manzi said he originally thought the only solution was to go to Congress and request money to buy more land, and he expected the landowners to be pleased Instead, Manzi met last January with a group he described as "hostile." Frustrated by accusations from his audience, Manzi told the landowners to contact their congressmen.

THAT'S WHAT THE 50 he met with Thursday night had done. The meeting was arranged by Rep. Cooper See Flood, page 5

That, more than anything, sums up the mission of video artist Julia Heyward. Heyward and her band, led by Raybeats' guitarist/organist Pat Irwin, will be performing their kinescopic rock 'n' roll as part of the Kitchen Touring program which presents new forms of music, theater, dance and multi-media arts.

The performance itself, which 10 years ago would have been called 'multi-media'' - Heyward and her band play songs that are accompanied by an organic mix of slides and video she created - is a live approximation of the form she particularly wants to pioneer: the videodisc.

"I tried a concept album a few years ago (called 360)," Heyward said in a phone interview, "but working on that scale was just suicidal. What I'd really like to get into - and what we're doing on this tour - is doing videodisc 45s, songs that stand on their own with

There are pictures of landscapes, of people sleeping, then of a picnic that erupts into a volcano. It's still highly literal, but much more about nature itself and what nature does than the commercial discs."

One promotional videodisc that Heyward does like is Talking Heads' 'Same As It Ever Was," and the music accompanying her visual work owes something to that group as well.

The City of Iowa City requested Thursday that a petition filed against it May 19 be dismissed.

Home Town Dairies, 1109 N. Dodge, requested a building permit from the city June 30, 1981, to make improvements to correct a condition that was the subject of a health directive by the Johnson County Board of Health.

The request was denied by the city July 10 and the dairy contends that the Large Scale Nonresidential Development ordinance should not be applicable to them because they have used the property "in its same capacity and for the same purpose for more than 50 years.'

The ordinance, which was cited as the reason for the denial, is a land-use planning technique commonly used for orderly growth and development. The dairy asked the court to impose a mandatory injunction forcing the city to issue a building permit without requiring them to comply with the ordinance

The city has requested the court deny the plaintiff's request for an injunction and states that "this court should refrain from interfering until the matter is resolved by the City of Iowa City.'

The city "respectfully requests the court dismiss the petition in its entirety since the city is operating under a valid plan-review ordinance.

Hinckley called an 'exhibitionist'

Local man sues bars, customer

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A government psychiatrist said Thursday John W. Hinckley Jr. is an "exhibitionist" looking for attention, but conceded that his behavior before shooting President Reagan was not that of a "completely rational" man.

Dr. Park Dietz, completing his fifth day on the witness stand, disputed defense psychiatrists' diagnoses of Hinckley as schizophrenic.

However, Dietz said the defendant "clearly is attention-seeking and exhibitionist," and noted, "I've had an opportunity to observe some exhibitionist behavior here in the courtroom.'

Dr. Sally Johnson, a prison psychiatrist who saw Hinckley three days after the shooting, appeared in court to begin testifying about her evaluation of him at the federal correctional facility in Butner, N.C.

Tenure qualifications questioned

By Nancy Lonergan

The UI College of Law's clinical program may have solved its immediate staffing crunch, but conditions that could have prompted the problem will remain.

According to William Hines, dean of the college, a part-time position within the program will "probably" be filled by fall and evolve into a full-time position in January.

But even if a clinician is hired before fall, the program's problem of hiring and keeping good staff members is not over, according to Carroll Lucht, program director and member of the Clinical Program Committee, a committee that studies the UI's clinical program.

The clinical program is designed to give students practical experience by placing them with local attorneys and making them responsible for two cases each semester.

tors will remain until clinicians are given some form of "job security," he said.

QUALIFICATIONS for tenure scholarship and publication - are the same for clinicians and law faculty members. This causes problems for clinicians who want to remain on staff for long periods of time. Because clinicians and regular faculty members spend their time dif-ferently, tenure qualifications should be reconsidered, Lucht said. Clinicians spend most of their time working on briefs and materials for the clinical program.

This takes away from the amount of time they have to do conventional research and publications that are crucial for any instructor seeking tenure.

'Clinicians are more practical-oriented. Traditional professors teach and research more. They have different

The difficulty in attracting instruc- orientations and interests," he said. A recommendation from the Clinical Program Committee, which may ask for a revamping of the tenure considerations, will not be made until this spring at the earliest.

Roll - AND MARTIN

Making tenure standards for law instructors in the traditional teaching role different from those of the clinician is one of the possiblities the committee will consider.

ANOTHER possible solution could be three- to four-year contracts for clinicians with "appeal rights in case of dismissal," Lucht said.

In May, the committee set an agenda to study the entire program during the 1982-83 academic year.

Law faculty members will be able to vote to accept, reject, alter or send back the committee's recommendation, according to law Professor William Buss, committee chairman. "The faculty could also obviously do nothing... that may not necessarily be a bad thing," Buss said. "It is a situation that needs thinking about but does not necessarily need action ... the only thing that has been decided is that things need to be thought through."

ALTHOUGH HINES said the experience is "a very valuable part" of a student's education, he agreed that a change in tenure procedure may not be necessary for the program to continue. He said he likes the present balance of tenure and non-tenure clinicians in the program.

But if that balance cannot be maintained, "then we will have to look at alternatives.'

A change in tenure qualifications is "a possibility," he said, but "we're a long way from (making) that" deci-

Lucht said, "It is imperative they (the committee) deal with that question (of tenure). If they don't they will continue to be faced with a problem."

Van Allen honored at rededication

By Connie Campana Staff Writer

The unveiling of a photo portrait of James A. Van Allen Thursday afternoon highlighted the rededication of Van Allen Hall in honor of the worldrenowned head of the UI Department of Physics and Astronomy.

Van Allen said he was very proud of the occasion that brought together nearly 300 colleagues and former students in a two-day space science symposium held in conjunction with the rededication ceremony.

"I'm having a great time today," he told the audience, though he lightly added that receiving the honor while still alive gave him the burden of good behavior.

Van Allen, discoverer of the Earth's radiation belts that bear his name, has been a member of the UI faculty and head of the UI Physics and Astronomy Department since 1951 and is also the Distinguished Carver Professor of Physics.

SINCE 1958, he has led about two dozen space investigations, including research on the first successful U.S. satellite, Explorer 1, which resulted in he discovery of an area of energy par-

UI physics building, which opened in August 1965 and is now officially Van Allen Hall.

Many of the physicists who had studied under Van Allen and who returned today to congratulate him and participate in the symposium said Van Allen was committed to both education and research and treated his students as worthy colleagues.

'I think he thinks everyone is capable until proven otherwise," said Carl McIlwain, professor of physics at the University of California in San Diego.

McIlwain, who had a master's degree in music and was taking UI undergraduate classes in physics under Van Allen, said he immediately found himself "launching rockets." McIlwain said he enjoyed the challenge of being given more responsibility than most professors assign.

"He throws you kindly to the lions." said Louis A. Frank, a former student and UI professor of physics and astronomy.

Tenants' 'repair and deduct' right outlined

By Mark Leonard , we are belts

Are you one of those people with a leaky faucet that your landlord says will be fixed, but that hasn't been fixed

Well, a little-known section of the lowa code lets the tenant, with a few stipulations, repair the problem at the owner's expense.

The procedure, called "repair and deduct," allows the tenant to act if it is clear that the landlord has either deliberately or negligently failed to provide a service Under the Iowa code, two kinds of services are listed.

The first, essential service, applies to heat, water and hot water. If the landlord has been given an opportunity to correct the problem, but has not, then the tenant may: • Notify the landlord of what service is lacking.

• Obtain service to repair the problem at a reasonable cost. If the problem is with something that is not an essential service, the tenants may act if they:

• Notify the landlord, in writing, of the repair plans at least 14 days before the rent is due.

• Deduct the cost of the repairs not exceeding one month's rent - from the next month's rent.

Mike Hall, a staff worker at the Protective Association for Tenants, said the provisions allowing tenants to make repairs are a step in the right direction

'It makes clear and sets down certain steps that a tenant can take if a landlord does not fulfill his obligation," he said

The 1979 provisions were just one of the recent measures that have added to tenants' rights. As recently as 1972 in Iowa law, landlords did not even have to make sure that apartments they were renting were livable. What the tenant signed for was what the tenant got.

Then the 1972 case of Mease vs. Fox. for the first time, spelled out tenants' rights.

When considering this type of measure, P.A.T. advises that tenants should contact them first.

In conjunction with the United Nation's Second Special Session on Disarmament, Iowa City is having its own "Peace Weekend," featuring special speakers and educators Saturday and Sunday.

Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., will deliver the keynote speech of the conference during a "town meeting" at the Iowa City Public Library at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Also speaking at the meeting, entitled "Waging Peace in a Nuclear Age" will be Lynn Cutler, Democratic candidate for Congress. She will give her speech, entitled "Nuclear Arms Race: A Congressional Issue," at 11 a.m

On Sunday, a forum will be held at Old Brick at 3 p.m., focusing on the United Nations Second Special Session on Disarmament. C. Maxwell Stanley, renowned industrialist and president of the Stanley Foundation, will speak at the forum.

Rodents are infesting ISU

Rats have infested Iowa State University An increase in the rodent population around Lake LaVerne has been detected by physical plant workers there. Traps have proved unsuccessful in the raid on rodents, so poison bait is now being placed along the shores of the lake.

Efforts to eliminate the rats have been satisfactory, says John Harrod Jr., assistant head of building and campus services at the physical plant. The rats were probably attracted by the ducks' onshore food supply, according to Harrod. An over-thewater feeding area is being constructed for the ducks that should be inaccessible to rats.

No disease problem is created by the rats, according to Robert Moorman, an ISU professor of animal ecology. The rats' "distateful presence" is a greater problem, he said, because many people think rats are "a disgrace to see."

Human passersby or adult waterfowl shouldn't be dangered by the rats. However, they may eat eggs or newborn waterfowl if either is left unprotected by adult ducks, according to Harrod. -From the Iowa State Daily.

Generic demonstration held

Generic products have gone beyond supermarket shelves. Students at the University of Minnesota staged the All-Purose (Generic) Demonstration last

The demonstration was the brainstorm of Pete Wagner, a cartoonist and former writer for TV Guide. Wagner said political demonstrations are poorly attended because they aren't enough fun. Too many political groups are steeped in academic tradition, taking themselves too seriously, he said.

His philosophy includes using humor as a demonstration strategy. "You can't use the old ways - there aren't enough martyrs to go around," he says. "Sometimes you're most serious when you're funny."

Few of the several thousand demonstrators sported the traditional black and white generic garb but Universal Product Code stripes were found chalked on a wall near the demonstration area. -From the Minnesota Daily

Noise ordinance

Iowa City's proposed noise ordinance was approved on its first reading by the Iowa City Council at its meeting Tuesday night. The vote was 6-1, and two more readings are needed before the measure becomes law. Such an ordinance is long overdue, as anyone who has had loud neighbors knows. But more to the point than simple irritation, the public interest is served by the regulation of excessive noise within the city.

The ordinance states that "each person has a right to an environment reasonably free from disturbing noise or that which jeopardizes health or welfare or unnecessarily degrades the quality of life." As written and amended, the ordinance provides a good tool with which these goals can be promoted. But it will take more than the letter of the law to make Iowa City a "reasonably" noise-free environment - it will take cooperation between noisegenerating industry, residents and police, who will represent the front line of the law's enforcement.

Exceptions to the ordinance's strict provision that noise shall not be allowed to be "plainly audible" across property lines have been made for such things as emergency vehicles and warning sirens, construction activity and "essential services such as electrical substations." Strictly regulated will be such sources as motor vehicles, musical instruments and amplified sound equipment.

Application of the ordinance's provisions should be based on common sense. Everyone, after all, makes noise occasionally, and there are few people who will not be in violation at one time or another. It is to be hoped that complaints will not be made frivolously.

But there is no question that excessive noise is unacceptable, and the law should help eliminate such nuisances.

Media realities

In January, CBS broadcast a documentary entitled "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception." Its premise was that the U.S. commander in Vietnam, Gen. William Westmoreland, had deliberately underestimated enemy troop-strength during the months before the 1968 Tet offensive in order to give a false impression of the successes of the U.S. military presence.

The cover story of the May 29 issue of TV Guide accused CBS's George Crile of improper conduct in producing the documentary.

Was Paige the greatest of all?

Y YOUNG MIGHT have been a better pitcher than Satchel Paige. Maybe Walter Johnson was, too. Sandy Koufax probably wasn't, nor Lefty Grove. Another great pitcher, Dizzy Dean, said that Paige was the best he had ever seen. And Dean, who used his country-boy persona as a carrying case for a gargantuan ego, rarely described anyone as his superior.

But the haunting thing about making such comparisons is that they can't be verified. The records of Paige's greatest years in the Negro Leagues are lost, or were never kept in the first place. He didn't get into the major leagues until he was 42, and his entry was as much an appeal to novelty as it was homage to his brilliance. When Bill Veeck signed Paige in 1948, it was designed as much to bring people into the ball park to see the "old man" as to give Paige his due. Veeck's showmanship is understandable - and Paige was certainly showman enough himself to understand it. But why so late? (Or perhaps it wasn't so late after all. In his 5 year major league career, Ted Williams got one hit off of Paige and Joe DiMaggio got two. Some "old man."

PAIGE WAS NOT the only great black player to be cheated in this way. When Negro League shortstop Judy Johnson was called the "Black Honus Wagner," Wagner, the consensus greatest shortstop of all time, said "It's an honor to be compared to him." Babe Ruth's reputation is based largely on his 60-home-run season; Negro League catcher Josh Gibson hit 70 or more in a season at least twice. To be fair, there were many managers who ached to sign black stars in the days before Branch Rickey signed Jackie Robinson. And there were black players in the majors in the days before the "Modern Era." But commencing with the color line drawn by influential player-owner Cap Anson in the early part of this century, and later abetted and enforced by the first baseball commissioner, the euphoniously named Kennesaw Mountain Landis, the door was shut. And the attitude of many white players, who were probably motivated as much by fear of losing their jobs as by racial prejudice, locked that door.

THE QUESTION exists whether the door is even yet all the way open. There is at present only one black manager in the majors even though there are several more black former players qualified to manage. The chief scout of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Howie Haak, recently said that his team will have to sign more white players if they want to improve sagging attendance. Coming from the man who signed up Willie Stargell and Roberto Clemente, that's a bit odd. It's good teams that draw crowds, not the relative concentration of melanin in the players' skin. If Haak found another Clemente, the ticket sellers would have all the work they needed.

Now Paige is dead, and the men who played with him are old. Those that survive were recently treated to the sight of a President of the United States saying that he favored a rule that would have the effect of giving tax exempt status to racially discriminatory schools because he didn't know such schools still existed. One wonders if he asked anybody. When the man with more sources of information at his disposal than anyone else can say he doesn't know about something that obvious, the color line has not been erased, it has been widened and freshly painted. The great admonition of Satchel Paige certainly applies here: "Don't look back. Something might be gaining on you.'

Cigarette ads and the 'new woman'

ERHAPS YOU KNOW the face. It's young, sharplyfigured and knowingly posed. Hers is not the face of just any woman.

Three fingers curl around a long lowtar cigarette; unforgettable green eyes match the color of the crush-proof box. "Our beautiful menthol," reads the trademark

Sounds familiar? If you've grown accustomed to her face, too, then everything has gone according to plan. UltraWoman's face has been plastered over billboards, ballparks, city buses and back covers of magazines for the last several months, symbolizing the tobacco industry's hope of luring more women into the dwindling ranks of America's regular smokers.

Despite declines in the percentage of Americans who smoke, the share of women who smoke (30 percent) has not fallen as quickly as that of men (37 percent) during the past 14 years.

The article, by Don Kowet and Sally Bedell, was titled "Anatomy of a Smear" - and the teaser on the cover promised it would explain "how CBS News broke the rules and 'got' Gen. Westmoreland."

The principal allegations made against Crile were that he had predetermined what the documentary would reveal, and had edited out all contradictory information; that some sources had been misrepresented by editing; that obvious distinctions had been made in the interviewing of "friendly" and "unfriendly" sources.

Now the June 14 issue of Newsweek charges Kowet, Bedell and TV Guide with having used some of the same tactics they accused CBS Reports of employing, including misrepresenting the views of some sources. Newsweek also suggests that the article was likely influenced by the conservative views of TV Guide owner Walter H. Annenberg.

Does this mean that U.S. media are unreliable? Hardly, What it does reveal is that those who produce the news are fallible, and that those who follow the news need to examine a variety of informed sources to arrive at something approaching objective reality. It is also a refreshing reminder that, in a free society, even the sources of information are free openly to disagree.

Israel in Lebanon

The fighting in Lebanon shows the hazards of complex and passionate problems. The Reagan administration, after virtually ignoring the Middle East, has now been compelled to deal with this new fire. Reagan did so by sending a mediator and telling Israel to withdraw its troops.

But fire-fighting is no substitute for fire prevention. And prevention requires that the parties cease basing their evaluations of the problems on a selective historical memory.

Lebanon was prosperous and peaceful until the Palestine Liberation Organization, driven from Jordan, settled there in the 1970s. Fighting erupted among the PLO, the Lebanese Moslems and the Lebanese Christians, and the Syrians then invaded "to keep the peace." Israel then invaded several times to protect its towns in the north from PLO attacks.

Thus for Reagan to ask Israel to withdraw, without also requiring the Syrians and the PLO to withdraw would only temporarily damp the fire and ignores Lebanon's right to territorial integrity. But the PLO has no place to go without a Palestinian state. And between them, Jordan and Israel eliminated it.

The Israelis, having served as the world's scapegoat for hundreds of years, are justifiably paranoid about the creation of yet another hostile Arab state. The Palestinians, poorly welcomed in all the Arab countries to which they have gone, remember and teach their children to remember the land and culture they once had.

Neither the Palestinians nor the Israelis are going to fade away. The needs of both must be met. That means that the Reagan administration must understand history as the Israelis and the Palestinians do and must get each to understand the other's view of history. And that means a Palestinian state and a U.N. peacekeeping force that can and will guarantee Israel's security.

Gerald H. Long, president and chief executive officer of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., recently described the women's market to Advertising Age as "probably the largest opportunity for Reynolds.

WISELY, THE INDUSTRY has tuned its advertisements to the growing professionalism among women, as well as their proven inclination to try new products. In the last 18 months the industry has introduced more than 25 new brands of rolled tobacco.

"The industry is certainly on top of the imagery," said Virginia Ernster, a University of California epidemiology researcher who has studied two generations of cigarette ads aimed at women. "The woman in today's ads is thin, attractive, athletic. She's never in the kitchen. More than any other industry, the cigarette folks have really tried to represent the modern woman.

"But," as Ernster says, "look at what they do to her.

Indeed, the cigarette industry's marketing push tests one's knowledge that smoking has been linked to heart disease, emphysema and numerous cancers (larynx, oral cavity, esophagus and bladder). The most recent studies indicate that women smokers face a higher risk of kidney cancer than do men who smoke. By 1984, lung cancer will have surpassed breast cancer as the number one killer of women. Ernster says there are two epidemics: "one of cigarette ads directed at women and a second of increased health risks for women who smoke.

Unfortunately, stark medical data barely compete with chic, upmarket images of women smokers that daily bombard our sensibilities. Highpowered Virginia Slims women in designer fashions make argument difficult with the infamous contention that "You've come a long way, baby."

TOBACCO AND ADVERTISING industry lobbies have also stifled the prospects for advisories from the government. With House members Henry Waxman, D-Calif., and James Scheur, D-N.Y., Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., has introduced a covet.

bill that would require manufacturers to augment the 10-year-old "smoking may be hazardous to your health" ditty with a series of health warnings that are more specific.

Reads one proposed advisory: "The Surgeon General has determined that smoking by pregnant women may result in miscarriage, premature birth and low-weight deficiencies."

But such additional warnings would cost too much, moans the industry (cost whom, we ask?). Senate Democrats also seem too willing to let their Republican colleagues carry the ball. New Jersey's Bill Bradley, Montana's Max Baucus and North Dakota's Quentin Burdick have already withdrawn their names from sponsorship.

Perhaps its up to women themselves to decide how smoking - once the trademark of sexual liberation - is jeopardizing their identity as well as their physical health. In fact, the habit seems to be turning many working women into versions of the Marlboro Man, whose can-do demeanor they

LIKE MEN WHO light up when problems arise, women smokers know that a cigarette in one hand seems to make up for any deficiency they feel in becoming the tough, efficient manager. The filter tip is often a complement to the business suit, that prerequisite for admission to the maleoriented world of success.

Our culture does little to counter the notion that the successful woman of the 1980s is, or should be, a smoker. Only three women's "service" magazines -Seventeen, Good Housekeeping and Spring - refuse cigarette ads (Spring's publisher, Roedale Press, is so adamantly anti-tobacco that it offers employees and their spouses free tuition at Smokenders clinics in New York).

Until more positive images of the working woman prevail, however, we can't expect women to avoid the trap set by industry ad men. The only way for women to learn that cigarettes won't make them beautiful, physically fit or sexy may be to take the tobacco road and watch what happens.

Are you afraid of this?

Don't be.

You love music and want to buy a stereo system, but you don't know watts from ohms. Frankly, you feel a little intimidated when stereo salespeople start talking technicalese at you.

At Audio Odyssey we appreciate this. We do our best to explain things simply and straightforwardly. Audio Odyssey - where you'll be listened to - not lectured at.

Choreographer's work combines rhythm, mood, attitude, texture

By Marcia Butzel Staff Writer

Concerned with "creating a dance structure and mood which allow for direct communication with the audience," dancer Lisa Fox says her choreography has motivations beyond the "mathematical formula" of some post-modern dance.

The work she will perform in Iowa City as part of the Kitchen Tour next week combines "rhythms, moods, personal attitudes and textures." Fox, who has appeared previously here with the Merce Cunningham Dance Company, has been performing her own work in New York since 1980. Pieces like "The Hunt" and "Floored" are marked by their adaptability to different performance settings and audience sizes.

Costume changes are an important part of Fox's performances as are variations in the blocking of chorography for different spaces. Her current material, for example, has been shown in a Swiss art gallery, in front of band equipment at New York's Barnes Casino and at P.S. 122. With sound collaborator Ray West, Fox prepares her own audio tapes for performances.

CHARACTERISTIC of the Kitchen's collective experimentation, Fox collaborates with filmmaker Curt Royston. Her "Puss and Boots" is part of Royston's film In Artificial Life, Self and Fox. The former Cunningham dancer has a background in the major contemporary achievements of experimental dance film, having worked in Fractions, Locale and Roamin', collaborations between filmmaker Charles Atlas and choreographer Merce Cunningham.

A member of Cunningham's company from 1976 to 1980, Fox is a San Francisco native who first trained in classical ballet. She danced with the San Francisco Ballet and discovered Cunningham at Berkeley. Intrigued by what the choreographer was doing for "dance without music," Fox joined the Cunningham troupe and moved to New York.

As a soloist producing experimental work in the independent theater territory of New York, Fox is part of the dance boom for which support groups and umbrella organizations like the Kitchen are life-sustaining. In the last decade, the diversity of non-institutional dance being performed in New York has increased as never before. With the proliferation of new kinds of dance and new notions about where dance might be performed have come problems as well innovations.

FOR INSTANCE, although contemporary dance aesthetics make performance in many kinds of areas quite viable, regularly available space in New which features performance artist Jim York is hard to secure. Sponsoring organizations and dancers' collectives have become responsible for numerous financial and mangement services, from dealing with loft landlords to programming computerized address lists, as well as helping to legitimize the new means and ends of performance.

The support system of these presenting organizations varies; some specialize in hiring out production staff, others deal in theatrical real estate. While there is uncontestably a dance boom, it is far from the truth to assume that sponsors and spaces are proliferating at the same rate. There are simply not enough of them.

The Kitchen was concocted in the pantries of an old hotel which housed the Mercer Arts Center. In 1971, a group of video artists known as the Electronic Art Intermix sponsored a series of video workshops and screenings. Eventually, video dance and a music series were included and the Kitchen moved to its present quarters on Broome Street in Soho. In 1978, Eric Bogosian directed the Kitchen's first dance series.

The organization's loft space has its architectural problems, but neither pillars nor holes in the floor have deterred the dancer/choreographers it currently sponsors. Besides monthly dance programs, the Kitchen has also sponsored European trips for its artists. The collective's first American tour will bring them to us.

Kitchen Tour has artistic variety

The seven avant-garde artists who make up The Kitchen Tour will bring their brand of artistry to Iowa City Monday and Tuesday in a series of free performances, workshops and discussions. The New York-based group is known for exploring new expressions in music, theater, dance and multi-media arts.

Those appearing at the UI will be composer-guitarist Rhys Chatham; saxophonist Oliver Lake and his new reggae-funk-jazz band, Jump Up, Lake being one of the nation's leading avantgarde jazz performers, both as a band leader and as a member of the World theater pieces for more than four years in New York;

ALSO APPEARING are solo percussionist David Van Tieghem who has worked with progressive artists such as Steve Reich, Brian Eno and Twyla Tharp and whose performances combine dance, light, pre-recorded tape and explorations of the sounds of everyday objects; dancer Lisa Fox (see story by Marcia Butzel); and rap vocalist and street dance ensemble Fab Five Freddy and Friends. Frederic Brathwaite gained the name Fab Five Freddy as a Blondie and Chic and has influenced rap crossovers by The Clash. In performance, Freddy's rapping accompanies Frosty Freeze and Crazy Legs, two virtuosi street dancers.

THE KITCHEN, the Manhattan performance hall that is sponsoring the tour of these artists, has been a center for unorthodox arts for the last 10 years. As Kitchen member Pat Irwin, who is part of Julia Heyward's band, said in an interview, "You might not like everything; you might not like anything. But I don't think people have had a good

Grant Wood Art Festival

STONE CITY, Iowa - The 10th annual Grant Wood Art Festival will take place here from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. Organized in 1972 to honor the heritage of Stone City's native son, artist Grant Wood, the festival will be held on the hillside area of the Green-Nissen Estate.

Among the activities will be juried arts and crafts exhibits and sales, a puppet theater, martial arts demonstrations, drama and musical presentations, guided bus tours, and historical and educational exhibits

Exhibits of drawings, fiber art, jewelry, leather, painting, printmaking, sculpture, stained glass, wood, photography and pottery will be included. Admission is $2. Those under 16 will be admitted free.

Dancer Gudonov fired

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Former Russian ballet star Alexander Godunov has been dropped from the American Ballet Theater, the company he joined following his 1979 defection from the Soviet Union, it was reported Thursday.

Executive Director Herman Krawitz said Godunov was fired because the company is radically altering its repertory for next season and discontinuing "Giselle" and "Swan Lake," ballets Godunov is best known for.

The Times quoted sources as saying Godunov was fired because the company is facing hard financial

Arts and entertainment Saturday Movies examine breakdown KLYN of modern social relations GHTS By Craig Wyrick MILL Films The first half of Over the Edge has the kind of URANT shocking realism that makes parents shudder and the Moral Majority cringe. New Granada is a developing suburb, but the kids living inside have no urlington room for development — almost everyone in junior high smokes hash, drinks beer and fools around. En-OVER couraged by the sounds of Cheap Trick and Van Halen, the kids create a veritable teen-age Mill Monday Night wasteland where shooting at cars and getting busted Carl by the cops become regular pastimes. Cory But when the realism checks out and the Richie melodrama moves in, the film becomes a resounding Showing at 9:30 disappointment. It seems the second half was created entirely by another person, down to the last detail - the grimy rock 'n' roll music is almost enweekends tirely gone, replaced by a classical dramatic score to it the melodramatic situations, and a ridiculously sappy song at the end tells us, "Child, things are going to get easier."

> AN EXPOSE on vandalism and drugs is one thing, but not even the Moral Majority is going to believe the mass destruction wreaked by the kids at the end. Instead of a social commentary, the film finds an easy escape in two villains - the police chief who shoots teen-ager Richie White (Matt Dillon) and the developer who's more worried about the devalued price of real estate than the real problems of the ids. One of the biggest crimes against the kids is the planned replacement of a bowling alley and drive-in heater with an industrial park. There are no real solutions offered here, but likewise, there are no real uestions asked.

> Censorship threatened Over the Edge filmmaker Jonathan Kaplan when the distributors, despairing that the film could ever find an audience, intended to burn the 60 prints in existence. Given another chance, the film picked up a critical following in the years after its 1979 making.

> Ironically, censorship at times encourages greater creativity within certain boundaries. The last scenes of Andrzej Wajda's epic Man of Marble were severely altered by state censors, so Wajda is no stranger to the ravages of censorship. In Without Anesthesia (1978) Wajda cleverly hides his political and social commentary inside the agonizing story of a separated household.

reaching assignments, only to have his wife immediately leave him. The bulk of the film records the path that leads, finally, to the divorce hearings, where half-truths and lies are used to finalize the divorce. Jerzy goes through all kinds of emotional upheavals - from indignation to forgiveness to hatred to the final inevitable hopelessness.

Wajda's hand-held camera and shadowy images chart the path through a failing human relationship that is all too familiar in any country. In fact, this Polish film affects us much more than Over the Edge could ever hope

Thinly veiled behind this moving human story is a simple morality tale that Wajda finds particularly cogent in communist Poland - don't believe everything you hear, because everything is more complicated then it looks. Jerzy, an outspoken social critic, runs into minor trouble with his bosses that is only hinted at, but that is enough for us to realize that the same simple lies that tainted his divorce hearings in court could easily be the basis for evidence at a treason trial. It's no wonder that when the military took over Poland, they immediately JERZY MICHALOWSKI, a famous Polish jour- arrested Wajda. Films can be powerful social

Dancers Eliana Rodrigues Silva and Terry Lehmkuhl are in "lowa, The Fertile Land," a program of music, dance and visual arts. It will be performed Sunday at 2 p.m. at the UI Museum of Art as part of the museum's Summer Sunday Series.

Multi-arts show scheduled

A multi-arts program created by two visiting Brazilian artists will be the first offering of the UI Museum of Art's Summer Sunday Series at 2 p.m. Sunday. The program, "Iowa: The Fertile Land," uses dance, music and the visual arts, and expresses the Brazilian artists' interpretation of the life and landscape of Iowa.

Painter Maria Adair, who exhibited her work "Constellations" in Iowa City earlier this spring, and dancer Eliana Rodrigues Silva will bring physical movement and life to Adair's painting through dance. Adair uses egg shapes in her painting, which she describes as symbols of the origins of life. A stylized flower symbolizes the integration of male and female elements. Tassles are another item Adair puts in her work, tassles being the male element in the corn plant which drops pollen and starts the fertilization process.

Best year ever completed in women's gym recruiting

By Steve Batterson

Assistant Sports Editor

Iowa Women's Gymnastics Coach Diane Chapela received some good news when one of the top allarounders in Iowa announced her intentions to compete for the Hawkeyes as a walk-on.

Joining Iowa team next season will be Tammy Droste of Clinton, a fourth-place finisher in the all-around at the Iowa Girls High School Athletic Union state championship meet this past season.

In choosing Iowa, Droste turned down scholarship offers from other schools, including Illinois-Chicago Circle

"I am elated," Chapela said. "She is a high quality individual and is one of the finest high school gymnasts in Iowa. We're really looking forward to having Tammy on our team."

DROSTE IS AN all-arounder and Chapela is looking for her to be an asset on the balance beam and the uneven bars. She has been a member of the Clinton High School team that has won the state team title the past three years.

"She will give us some strong depth, especially in those two events," Chapela said. "She has a few areas that she needs to work on and she will be training intensely this summer. We're confident that she will improve in those areas."

The announcement by Droste rounds out what Chapela describes as her "best recruiting year without a doubt." Three gymnasts who have signed Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women national letters of intent also will join the Iowa program this fall.

THEY INCLUDE Yonce Gardner, the secondplace finisher in the all-around at the 1980 Ameteur Athletic Union Junior National Championships. Gardner, from Tallahassee, Fla., also won the vault competition during the same meet.

Patrice Fazio of Wooddale, Ill., the 1981 Illinois balance beam champion and a qualifier for the United States Gymnastics Federation National Championships last year, will join the Hawks.

Chapela's third signee is Allison Greene of Milwaukee, Wis., the 1981 Wisconsin state high school all-around titlist.

Fight Holmes. The key according to Mark Graettinger, a graduate assistant coach for the Iowa women's swimming team last season, is Holmes not becoming careless. "Snipes showed that Holmes can be put down," Graettinger said. "Holmes has the superior boxing skill but if he lets Cooney slip in that one big punch it could be all over very fast."

THE FACT THAT the champion is black and the challenger is white has been a big hype by the promoters, according to Atty. He feels that the fighters are not too concerned with Cooney's status as a "Great White Hope."

Of the four, Graettinger is the only one that might be willing to shell out the $20 for a ticket to view a closed-circuit telecast of the fight. "I still haven't decided if I am going up to CR (Cedar Rapids) on Friday vet or not

Holmes, Cooney to square off for WBC crown

Conditioning may well be key to fight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) - Larry Holmes has been heavyweight champion longer than any man since the days of Joe Louis and Friday night he makes his most important title defense, facing the mystique of No. 1 contender Gerry Cooney. Holmes, who is 39-0 with 29 knockouts, won the title four years ago and will be making his 12th title defense. And while Holmes has faced what might be considered tougher opposition, his duel against Cooney at Caesars Palace probably will be one of his most memorable defenses.

The fight, which will be held in a specially built 32,000-seat stadium erected in the parking lot at Caesars Palace, has generated world-wide attention despite the fact that Cooney really never has been tested against quality competition. It could become the richest fight in boxing history, surpassing the $37 million grossed in last September's world welterweight title fight between Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns.

THE FIGHT IS scheduled to begin shortly after 10 p.m. It will be televised world-wide on closed circuit. There will be no home television or radio coverage.

Cooney, who has fought less than six rounds in the past two years, has captured the public fancy, much to Holmes' chagrin. The reason is fairly simple - Cooney is white, Holmes is probably will have the more vocal Temperatures are expected in the mid-black and there has not been a white champion in 20 years. Both fighters will receive identical purses, a rarity in title fights. Promoters claim $10 million purses for each fighter but, realistically, they figure to make about $7 million each.

Cooney is 25-0 with 21 knockouts, but he has never faced a ranked fighter. His last three victories - a four-round TKO of Jimmy Young and first-round knockouts of Ron Lyle and Ken Norton came against "name" fighters who were considered past their prime. Cooney has fought only 86 rounds in his entire career.

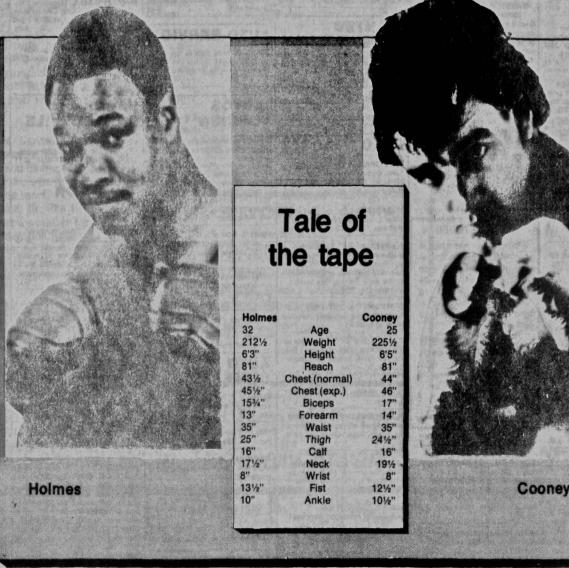

"THE THING THAT bothers me about Gerry Cooney is that he stepped over a lot of people to get where he is," Holmes said. "I don't think he deserves the No. 1 ranking. He hasn't fought anyone. He hasn't paid his dues. I don't want to be called a racist but let's be realistic. If he wasn't white, do you think he'd be the No. 1 contender for beating Dino Dennis?

"I consider Gerry Cooney a glorified amateur. He hasn't beaten anyone but old men and nobodies. He's never faced anybody who can box like I can. He's never gone more than eight rounds with anyone. He's never been hit."

Cooney has tried to downplay the racial aspects of the fight but he hasn't tried to hide his bad feelings toward Holmes

'He's the champion of the world but he doesn't act like it," Cooney said. "I don't think he has lived up to the title of champion. I really don't even like to talk about the man. He's 39-0, he's undefeated and he's a great fighter. But I don't respect him as a person."

HOLMES IS A strong favorite to defeat Cooney, though the challenger

The concensus of a few boxing fans around the Iowa Field House this week was that Larry Holmes will retain his WBC World Heavyweight title against Gerry Cooney on Friday, but most will be rooting for the challenger.

"I don't know if Cooney has the stamina to keep up with Holmes," said UI Hospital employee Jim Atty. 'Holmes has shown in his last fight (against Renaldo Snipes) that he can be put down. But if Cooney doesn't get him early, Holmes will probably outlast him.

UI senior Brian Heyer doesn't really care who wins because he does not follow professional boxing. "I don't really care about the pros. I prefer to watch Olympic style boxing.'

BUT HE DOES have an opinion on the outcome. "Holmes will kill him," Heyer said. He's a good boxer and he has never been unprepared in any of his fights. He comes to win.

Dan Sheehan, a graduate student in the Recreational Services department, feels that Holmes has had more time in the ring and that should give him the edge. "His fights have gone much longer than Cooneys', but Cooney has the power to rock him (Holmes) and take the title. I really hope Cooney wins but I would have to bet on See Fight, page 8

Hobaugh, a 24th-round pick of Minnesota in the baseball draft, is talking as if he will opt for the pros rather than return for his final year with the Hawkeyes.

Hobaugh, Iowa's top hurler last spring, compiled a 5-3 record and 2.15 ERA in 10 games. In Big Ten play, he allowed only 14 hits in 27 innings and posted an ERA of 1.00. His main problem last season was control, where he walked 30 batters in 58 inn-

'Being drafted in the 24th round doesn't bother me and being drafted by the Twins doesn't bother me either,' Hobaugh said. "I'm really thinking seriously about going right now. I don't think I have much to prove back in Iowa City."

THE TWINS ARE currently guy and see what kind of deal we can

"I had heard I would be drafted, but I wasn't expecting Minnesota to pick me," he said, "but I think it would help my chances. I might be able to move up faster.' Twins' scout Marv Olson watched Hobaugh pitch this season and recommended Minnesota draft the 6-foot-3, 195 pounder, according to Jim Rantz, assistant farm director for the Twins.

As a freshman, Hobaugh won two of four games while posting a 2.54 ERA. But in 1981, he was bothered by arm trouble while suffering through a 1-3 year and an ERA of 7.52.

"I'M REALLY NOT sure right now what I'm going to do," Hobaugh said. "I'll have to sit down with the (Twins)

Iowa, he again would have a full-ride scholarship. Iowa Head Coach Duane Banks was in Springfield, Ill., watching the state high school tournament and could not be reached for comment.

Hobaugh has been working out with his father, Ed, since he returned home to Ford City, Pa. Ed was a former major league pitcher with the Chicago White Sox and the old Washington Senators. Brian said he plans to sit down with his father and talk about his future in the next few days.

Last year, three Iowa players were drafted - third baseman Ed Garton, second baseman Tony Burley and pitcher Mike Darby. Darby was still in high school but elected to attend Iowa rather than turn professional.

Hobaugh completed six games last spring, including four in Big Ten play. Brian Hobaugh

NCAA leaders lear unlimited televising could turn college football into a "studio sport" dominated by a half dozen superpowers, NCAA chief Walter Byers testified Thursday

Byers, NCAA executive director for 31 years, said the NCAA has controlled showing of games on television since the 1950s to prevent an adverse effect on gate receipts. Testifying as the first defense witness in an anti-trust lawsuit filed against the NCAA by Oklahoma and Georgia universities, Byers and Oklahoma attorney Andy Coats clashed frequen-

AS THE NUMBER of televised games increases, he said, "You're taking away some of those people who would be going to games."

Byers said the NCAA's TV plan for 1982-1985 greatly expands the number of games which can be televised. The NCAA, he said, plans "to provide more television as long as our attendance continues going up

Byers said the romance of college football is the crowded stadium and the pageantry surrounding the game "We certainly don't want to end up with a studio sport," he said. Byers said he and other NCAA leaders fear unrestricted televising of the games would result in a 'very narrow TV aristocracy."
