Israeli forces bombard Beirut

More than 1,200 Americans and Europeans fled war-torn Lebanon Thursday aboard U.S. and British evacuation ships as advancing Israeli troops sliced Syrian lines and jets and gunboats bombarded the heart of Beirut.

Israeli jetfighters pounded Palestinian camps and residential quarters in Moslem west Beirut while Israeli gunboats rained shells along the western coast where the U.S. Embassy and other foreign missions stood

Hope faded for a peaceful solution in the 18-day war. Israel said its troops cut off the key Beirut-Damascus highway and that its jets downed two Syrian planes and destroyed several mobile Soviet-supplied Sam-6 missile

Police said at least five people died and 44 others were wounded in early shelling, but reliable casualty totals were not immediately available.

WHITE HOUSE officials said Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin vowed to President Reagan not to order a final assault on west Beirut, where an estimated 6,000 Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas are trapped.

But Israeli sources said after an emergency cabinet meeting in Jerusalem that there would be no truce or Israeli withdrawal without a total PLO surrender and withdrawal from Beirut. White House officials said U.S. special envoy Philip Habib would be in Israel over the weekend but Lebanese leaders said his peace mission was doomed.

'Now it is over," said the head of a leftist coalition in west Beirut and a key member of Lebanon's Council of National Salvation, Walid Jumblatt. "We have told them to face reality," he said of efforts to secure a PLO

THE WAR escalated fiercely

• Israeli troops and tanks battled their way into the key village of Bhamdoun, severing the Beirut-Damascus highway and cutting Syrian troops off from their main supply bases in the eastern Bekka Valley.

• Israeli jets and Syrian MiGs cartwheeled over the battlefront in a dogfight and Syria admitted losing two planes, raising its aircraft losses so far to more than 85, according to Israel's count. Israel said it knocked out several Sam-6 mobile missile batteries Thursday

• Israeli planes, artillery and gunboats pounded West Beirut, where PLO leader Yasser Arafat and his followers were trapped, raining down shells along the once scenic coast where the now closed U.S. and British Embassies stood facing the Mediterranean Sea.

Ruling exempts president's liability

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A bitterly divided Supreme Court ruled 5-4 Thursday that a U.S. president - in this case Richard Nixon - cannot be sued for his actions as chief executive, even for deliberately violating the rights of Thomas Hartel, also a UI student and a high school classmate of Kissinger's, told Cook County Associate Judge Nicholas T. Pomaro Thursday that although Kissinger, 19, knew about the hate mail campaign, Hartel never saw Kissinger send a mailgram.

Instead, Hartel testified during the first day of the trial, it was Adam Schellenberg, a third member of his high school class attending the UI, who had ordered about 50 bogus mailgrams one Sunday afternoon in November, using a pay phone in the Burge Residence Hall lobby. Those mailgrams were charged to Weiss.

KISSINGER, Hartel, 18, and Schellenberg, 18, have each been charged in a harassment campaign against Weiss. Hartel and Schellenberg elected to begin their trials after Kissinger's concludes. Kissinger faces misdemeanor charges of theft of services and of obtaining service with intent to defraud.

Weiss, 63, testified that in July 1981, Kissinger brought a 1974 Datsun pickup into Weiss' shop for a brake job. The repairs cost twice the estimated $150 because a damaged brake drum had to be removed and replaced, Weiss said.

'Few dull moments' for Richey

By Connie Campana Staff Writer

One month the major issue may be raising student tuition and the next month it could be setting a faculty retirement policy, but no matter what comes up R. Wayne Richey is expected to have all the answers.

Local government only seems complex

By Elizabeth Isham Staff Writer

You may not notice it at first.

But you will, once you get a parking ticket. Or perhaps you glanced out the window this morning, and found a new subdivision blooming next door.

Iowa City has a government and even though it may seem to move quietly, that government affects nearly every Iowa City

At first glance, the city's core may seem complicated. Not only does the city have a mayor, but town fathers threw in a city manager for good measure. And if your address has a "Coralville" on the end, you might find your problems cannot be solved

Coralville has its own government, bus system and post office, although the two cities do share some services. Good luck if you live in University Heights.

You don't live in Iowa City, you're just surrounded by it.

Iowa City's heart is the Civic Center. That building houses the police and fire departments and most basic city offices. This is where that parking ticket gets paid. There are additional city offices across the street in the Davis Building.

The rest of the city offices are scattered throughout the city. Parks and Recreation, the bus department, and the parking office are just a few. The Recreation Center is strategically close to the Civic Center. There, for a fee, any resident can take advantage of game rooms, basketball courts and a swimming pool.

But where should complaints about city bus rate hikes or other pressing problems be Heading up the city flow chart is the Iowa City Council, which is made up of seven members. Four are elected at-large and three come from specific districts. About half of the council members are seated every evennumbered year, and terms last four years.

The council meets informally every other Monday, and formally every other Tuesday, with special meetings called as needed. Any member of the public can attend those meetings held at the Civic Center.

Supporting the council are 28 city boards and commissions. Any member of the public can apply for a seat, and vacancies are filled through appointment by the council.

The council selects a mayor from its membership. That person serves two years; she or he chairs all meetings and acts as the official city spokesperson. Councilor Mary Neuhauser currently serves as mayor,

Grube sentenced as Leslie case closes

By Jennifer Marme-Ruggeberg

Timothy Allan Grube was given a one-year suspended sentence for carrying a concealed weapon and a six-month sentence for obstructing justice Thursday.

Grube's sentencing represents the closing chapter in a murder case that began with the Sept. 19 shooting death of Joylynn Carol

Grube, of Springfield, Ohio, was found innocent March 19 of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of Leslie, his friend and traveling companion

She was shot outside Bart's Place, 826 S. Clinton St., and her body was dumped in rural Johnson County.

Michelle Enlow, Grube's 15-year-old girlfriend, and Grube were arrested Dec. 20 near Burns Flat, Okla., and charged with second-degree murder. The charges were later reduced.

Enlow testified that Grube had the gun when it accidentally discharged, but Grube testified Enlow had it.

Eldridge pleaded guilty Feb. 12 to being an accessory after the fact in connection with the death. He was given a two-year suspended sentence and placed on two years probation.

Grube was the only defense witness in his trial. He testified that Enlow, upset after Grube told her that Leslie, a bisexual, was interested in bisexual activity later that night had removed the gun from her purse and was handing it to him when it accidentally fired.

Enlow pleaded guilty Jan. 15 to being an accessory after the fact and was placed on probation March 12. She was ordered to live with her parents in Ohio.

Johnson County District Court Thursday refused Iowa City a temporary injunction against the owner of a local salvage yard, designed to prevent further destruction of an earthen berm located on his property. Instead, the court asked the city to submit a proposal for an injunction by the end of this month

For the second time, Paul Poulsen, owner of Ace Auto Recyclers Inc., 2752 S. Riverside Drive, did not show up in court. Poulsen filed a document Tuesday stating he believes the court has no jurisdiction over his case. He further stated he believes the court lacked the authority to order him to remove the berm. Poulsen did not appear at an earlier hearing scheduled for June 10.

The city, represented by Robert Jansen, presented photographs that show that portions of the earth berm had been removed and that equipment is still on the salvage yard.

POULSEN'S LAND was previously owned by Gordon Russell, who entered into an agreement with the city in 1974 to screen the salvage yard from view. Poulsen signed the same agreement when he took ownership of the land. Court documents filed Thursday state the city has shown the agreement was violated The documents further state it would have been appropriate for the court to issue a temporary injunction.

The court, giving reasons for refusing a temporary injunction, wrote that the "the work in destruction of the earth berm appears to be of continuing nature." The court further states it feels it is necessary for the city to have relief from further destructon of

Matchbook solves wrong number case

A ringing telephone is usually a welcome sound in a freshman dorm room, but the phone in Ann Rothman and Suzanne Lilly's room rings too much for them.

The Radford University freshmen were puzzled by callers who wished to make reservations or ask for gambling advice. A friend solved the mystery of the frequent calls when he found a matchboook from Caesar's Palace in his collection of matchbooks.

The phone number listed on the matchbook differs from the women's number by only one digit in the area

"We usually get about three calls a day and more at night," says Lilly. Sometimes, we get more calls one week than we get on an average and it makes you wonder what's happening at Caesar's Palace.'

Callers are often apologetic, but some are rude or incredulous. "Some people won't believe you when you tell m this is Radford University," says Rothman. The university is in Virginia. -From Collegiate Hedlines.

Pot for fun and profit

Some Texas residents have found a new form of "agri-business" - raising marijuana for fun and profit.

Officials in Texas' Bastrop county confiscated home-grown marijuana valued at approximately $15 million last year. Most of it was high quality seedless or "sinsemilla" marijuana worth about $2,000 per pound.

"Farmers" are very protective of their precious crops because they have invested so much time and money in their product, according to Larry Todd, public relations officer for the Texas Department of Public Safety. Some even use guard dogs and alarms and post "No Trespassing"

Paraquat considered

Law enforcement officials in Florida are considering use of the chemical paraquat to dry up the state's bountiful, but illegal, marijuana fields. Last year, marijuana sales in Florida amounted to about $400 million, making the weed second only to citrus as the state's largest agricultural industry.

Consideration of paraquat use has sparked a controversy about the dangers of the chemical. It has been used for 15 years in Forida to facilitate the harvest of such crops as sugar cane and strawberries by killing surrounding vegetation.

In 1978, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano issued a warning that paraquat-treated marijuana smuggled in from Mexico posed a health risk for

Freedman inauguration planned

By Jeff Beck Staff Writer

This fall UI President James O. Freedman will be inaugurated with publicity and celebration - but little expense, officials say.

The presidental committee of 13 people appointed by the UI Faculty Senate includes high ranking officials such as S.J. Brownlee, state Board of Regents president; Howard Laster, dean of the College of Liberal Arts; and Patty Maher, Student Senate president.

These committee members are in the process of planning an inauguration ceremony for Freedman to be held

Tentative plans call for a formal ceremony, a concert by a UI musical group, the president's annual address to the faculty and several academic symposia, according to Derek Willard, associate professor in the UI College of Willard is convening the committee in the absence of Chairwoman May Brodbeck, a Carver professor of philosophy and former vice president for Academic Affairs, who is on leave.

BRODBECK, who is being kept informed on all committee proceedings while on leave in Stanford, Cal., said she will help coordinate efforts when she returns in the fall.

She said the purpose of the ceremony is "to introduce and welcome the president to the university and the community, and mark the beginning of his term in a memorable way.

Oct. 25 was chosen as the date for the ceremony to avoid scheduling conflicts and to give the committee time to finalize plans and send invitations, according to UI Staff Council member Kim Wall, who is also a committee

Although committee members say they have no idea how much the inauguration ceremony will cost, expenses are, in Brodbeck's words, being kept "at an absolute mininum." Donald Heistad, president of the faculty senate and inauguration committee member, said inaugration expenses have been discussed at both committee meetings, but not even general figures have been derived.

HE SAID the committee will ask UI vice president for Finance and committee member Randall Bezanson during the next meeting to prepare a budget for the event.

Other sources of funding, including the UI Foundation, are being sought for the inauguration, Brodbeck said. Remaining costs will be paid with 'some discretionary UI funds" Brod-Organizers say the event will be kept inexpensive by relying on local speakers and performers, such as UI professors, writers and musicians.

"This ceremony need not be anything lavish or expensive but of high quality. For example, we might have a University of Iowa poet read and have a very quality presentation but not an expensive one," Willard said.

DWIGHT JENSEN, director of UI Office of Public Information, is a consultant to the committee and said many of the this year's inauguration activities are held each year, such as the symposia and the president's address to the faculty. He said the in-auguration is simply "grouping these events together.'

He said, "The cost of the ceremony over holding the regular events separately would be minimal." No plans have been finalized yet,

Reagan flat rate tax plan draws faculty fire

By Cam Smith

A proposal by the Reagan administration to scrap the current income tax system and set a flat rate for all tax brackets has drawn fire from several UI faculty members.

The proposal, if approved, would replace progressive income tax rates with an across-the-board tax rate. The old system would be replaced by a system in which all levels of income would pay between 10 and 20 percent in income taxes.

Those in favor of the proposal say it would simplify filing, end wasteful tax be more fully explained before people shelters and curb "the underground economy.

Those opposed say it would benefit the rich, cutting their taxes much more than those of the poor.

"Our realistic option is to stick with what we have. All the proposal is rhetoric. It has no chance of being passed once people figure out what they'd have to lose," said G.R. Boynton, UI political science deptartment

THOMAS POGUE, a UI professor of economics, said the proposal needs to can make an intelligent decision about

"First of all, it should be determined at what level or how high an income should be before taxes would be ap-

"Secondly, a rate would need to be defined, such as whether the tax should be 10 percent or 20 percent.

"And thirdly, just what is income? It needs to be defined for tax purposes. Deductions that would still be continued would need to be determined also," Pogue said. Not all faculty members found fault Long, an economics professor said, "a proposal like this makes a lot of sense.

"It would be much more efficient and would help the total national in-come increase," said Long. "We would have actual evidence of efficiency because the tax would be cutting down on loopholes that have been dragging the economy down for years.

"I say let's not worry about the equity or fairness end of the proposal because that is always an individual's opinion. What's important is the concrete evidence that would result from the across-the-board tax," Long said.

Housing crisis

"Abominable" is one word commonly encountered while discussing the housing conditions, high rents and scarcity of residential units within Iowa City and the failure of the authorities to deal with the problem.

The overall vacancy rate in Iowa City is 1.5 percent, far below the 5 percent rate considered desirable. There is a shortage of about 500 units, which will increase by 150 units every year if current trends continue. About 1,100 requests for UI housing will be turned down this fall, while juniors, seniors and graduate students will be denied dormitory rooms, forcing them into the already tight market.

One should expect to pay an average of $215 for efficiencies, $250 for one-bedroom and $350 for two-bedroom apartments - more if they are near campus. For the elderly the situation has reached crisis dimensions.

Poor heat and plumbing, inadequate wiring, leaky roofs, dangerous stairways and roaches are common complaints. According to a 1981 survey by the Housing Assistance Plan, 7,305 out of a total of 18,983 houses were found to be substandard, despite the fact that most of the houses have been issued licenses by the Housing Commission, which is supposed to enforce state and city housing codes.

Nothing much is being done to improve the situation. During the last few years the UI, in its yearly 10-year projections, has been predicting a decline in enrollment, indicating no need to invest in new housing. But actual enrollment figures are constantly increasing. Private investment is inadequate and expanded public funding is unlikely due to budget cuts.

The crisis requires city and UI authorities to cooperate in formulating both a short- and long-term housing policy. An effective city-wide tenants' organization, with active participation by the Student Senate, is needed. It could organize tenants, enter into a dialogue with the authorities, litigate Housing Code violations, and prepare and pass rent control laws, thus bringing some relief to the residents of Iowa City.

Mother knows best

So you eat like an average student. Your typical lunch is a cheeseburger, onion rings and a chocolate shake; if you're a brown-bagger, maybe a bologna sandwich and potato chips. At night you pick up some fried chicken or toss a couple of hot-dogs in some boiling water, right? And spoon a little cottage cheese out of a container for balance. Midterm tomorrow; no time to get fancy.

Your mother doesn't understand this. "You eatin' okay?" she asks whenever you call home collect. "You get plenty of vegetables? And fruit?"

Well, now your mother has a National Academy of Sciences' committee report to give her nagging more clout than the old nonsense about carrots helping you see in the dark and apples-aday keeping doctors away.

The latter saying has real validity, you see. The committee's study indicated that certain foods help prevent carcinogens from forming, and thus lower an individual's chances of getting cancer. Many of your old favorites are on the preventive list: brussels sprouts, carrots, squash, spinach, grapefruit - vegetables and

The committee also found that immoderate use of certain edibles increases the risk of cancer. High-fat foods - including fatty meats like hamburger, cheeses and other fatty dairy products, and deep fried foods — were identified by the committee as cancer-increasing agents. Smoked or salt-cured foods including hot dogs, processed luncheon meats, ham, sausage and bacon — were linked with cancer of the stomach.

Of course, mother and the National Academy of Sciences could be wrong. The latter's report has already been publicly criticized

By the American Meat Institute and the National Cattlemen's Association. Think about it.

Dangers of monopoly

The Justice Department recently announced new rules governing corporate mergers. The Reagan administration has from the beginning been tolerant of mergers. Such an attitude is dangerous and costly for the consumer.

The trend toward greater concentration has been accelerating. The 200 largest corporations increased their share of U.S. industry from 45 percent in 1945 to 60 percent in 1979. By 1976, shared monopolies (four or fewer corporations controlling 50 percent or more of a market) had reached the point where, for example, four firms controlled 90 percent of breakfast cereal sales and one firm controlled 90 percent of soup sales.

This concentration has very negative consequences. A Federal Trade Commission study estimated that if industries with the four largest firms were reduced in control from 50 to 40 percent of sales, prices would fall by at least 25 percent. Moreover, overpricing leads to lost output because of fewer sales and excess capacity.

Some economists have calculated that, based on 1970 national income, lost production due to shared monopolies cost between $48 and $60 billion annually. Heavily concentrated industries are also a source of inflation, because when consumer demand falls, prices tend to rise instead of falling to stimulate demand.

Finally, the higher profits that result from overpricing by monopolies or shared monopolies transfer money from consumers, most of whom are poor or middle class, to stockholders who are mostly wealthy. As of 1972, 2 percent of all individual stockholders owned about two-thirds of all individuallyowned stocks.

Thus, the result of monopolies is higher inflation because of artifically high prices, loss of jobs, and transfer of money from middle- and lower- class consumers to the already rich.

Fallout compensation inadequate

FTER A GENERATION of public hearings and welldocumented tragedies, the Senate Judiciary Committee is about to finalize a bill that seeks to compensate workers and residents exposed to nuclear fallout during the heyday of Nevada's nuclear bomb tests.

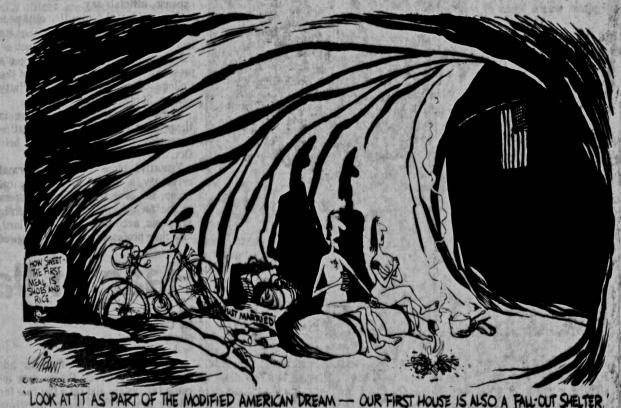

The Atomic Bomb Fallout Compensation Act of 1982 holds much symbolic importance to residents here: It would constitute a long-postponed apology from Uncle Sam to thousands of Westerners who are suffering from cancers, lymphomas and accelerated malfunctions of the central nervous

What's surprising is that the widelysupported legislation is full of defects. And it doesn't begin to address the task of minimizing the number of radiation victims in the future.

Since 1979, residents here have possessed evidence that they were exposed, like so many guinea pigs, to unprecedented doses of radiation week after week during the 1950s and early 1960s. Declassified government documents indicate that residents of Utah. Nevada, New Mexico, and other points "downwind" were - despite federal assurances at the time - living in a virtual wind tunnel of fission byproducts.

But while citizens in many rural Utah communities exhibit cancer rates five times the national average, the bill's sponsor, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, would exclude the vast majority of exposure victims from compensation. Hatch would postpone compensating victims of some cancers, exclude uranium miners and offer no relief to the 250,000 GI's who were sent into ground zero during tests in the Pacific Ocean and at the Nevada Test

As Hatch admitted earlier this month in an interview with our reporter, Michael Duffy, as few as 60 people may receive compensation when the dust settles. "If you extend the bill to its logical limits, you could come up with a $28 billion price tag," said Hatch, who is counting on this legislation to help him in a tough re-election contest this fall. "I'm not forgetting posures with cancers and stipulates a anymore, the problems are still either the veterans or the uranium miners. But it comes down to a pragmatic, political decision of what we can and can not pass."

With its ugly record in the nucleartesting program, the government carries an extraordinary legal liability. Government's failure to have installed fallout monitoring equipment made it impossible to pinpoint how mushroom clouds had dissipated and exposed citizens across the country to radiation. Yet millions of Americans may have been exposed to fallout in the last 35 years. (The United States has, to date, announced about 600 Nevada tests; in 1962 alone, 98 devices were exploded — almost two per week.) Unfortunately, the Hatch bill is far from the compensation people here deserve. It empowers historicallydeceitful federal agencies to link excruelly-low ceiling for the recovery of there."

emerges from the judiciary committee Test Site workers convinced a U.S. dis-mark-up session this month, 'downwinders' will remain unprotected from the continued nuclear testing that occurs underground in Nevada. Since the 1963 ban on atmospheric testing, thew United States has admitted to 474 underground explosions, roughly one per 21 days. The most recent tests occurred last May 6 and May

These tests, though several thousand feet underground, are far from benign. They form surface craters and pulverize the soil with untold amounts of deadly plutonium. The government, moreover, admits to accidental 'ventings," which release materials into the atmosphere, on 10 percent of announced tests.

'Congress has never looked at the whole picture," said Preston Truman, who heads an anti-testing group here. "Compensation has always focused on the tests in the 1950s. Though nobody sees the flash or the mushroom cloud

Were the Senate truly interested in avoiding the high personal cost of radiation, it would seriously examine two treaties that former President Gerald Ford offered for ratification in 1976: the (1974) Threshold Test Ban Treaty, limiting underground tests, and the (1976) Peaceful Nuclear Explosion Treaty, that bans military tests altogether. Ratification of these treaties would be priceless compensation for residents here already at risk from past exposures.

Given the widespread fear of the nuclear arms race, it's regrettable that underground testing doesn't receive more attention. Victims of nuclear tests are graphic examples of how, short of bringing on Armageddon, the dreaded weapons can be horribly destructive.

Hinckley: no time for vengeance

AVE YOU noticed how many people are ticked-off at John Hinckley because he's nuts? All those folks were expecting a nice, vindictive verdict after Michael which they'd get to see Hinckley go into the calaboose on TV, never to come out again. But then along comes this jury, which has the unmitigated gall to decide Hinckley is a bit unstuck beneath the scalp, and sends him to a mental institution instead of the Big House. They're mad at the jury, too, naturally enough, but Hinckley himself seems to be the primary object of their

But this is not the first time this has happened. In 1912, a certain maniac named John Schranck walked up to Theodore Roosevelt, who was in Milwaukee campaigning for the presidency on a third party ticket, and shot him in the chest at near point blank range. The bullet passed through Roosevelt's glasses case and a folded speech, so he was not seriously injured.

William McKinley used to visit him in his room at night, claiming that Roosevelt had been responsible for his murder. And as if to emphasize his point, McKinley used to bring the spirit of Roosevelt along. Since Roosevelt was wearing a monk's habit every time he dropped by, Schranck had all the evidence he needed.

When Schranck was brought to trial, it occurred to the court that they had a real nutburger on their hands. He was, horror of horrors, found not guilty by reason of insanity and committed, which was considered just at the time. He remained there for the rest of his life - until 1960. I am not aware of Schranck, however, was far from all what the penalty for attempted murder right. It seemed that the spirit of was in Wisconsin at that time, but I doubt that it was 48 years.

Which brings me to the furor of exactly when Hinckley is going to get out, if he ever does. He might get out in a couple of years. He might, in the manner of John Schranck, get out in 2030, 48 years after the fact. He will probably not, as is assumed by critics of the verdict, get out some time next week. Indeed, it seems that those critics would almost be disappointed if he doesn't.

One problem is the term used in the Hinckley verdict: not guilty by reason of insanity. The word "insanity" has no medical currency whatsoever. He might as well have been found not guilty by reason of demonic posession or not guilty by reason of being real weird. But that is no reason to abolish that type of plea. Some states are turning to a "guilty but insane" verdict instead. The result of this verdict would be to place the convicted person in a mental institution until they are sane, and then putting them in prison.

Think about that. In so doing, the state would be saying, "We know you did this, but you weren't responsible for your actions at the time, poor fellow. Therefore, we are going to try to make you a socially responsible happy, healthy individual fit for human society. Then we're going to put you in prison, which is full of people who were responsible for their crimes, who will probably commit them again, and will probably commit them against you the first chance they get. Now get outta

I think a lot of people are getting annoyed that there isn't enough meanness in our justice system. Perhaps for their sakes we should just drop all this guilty, not guilty, jury-trial business and return to trial by fire and water. That was a system used by the Vikings wherein a red hot brand was plunged into a bucket of ice cold water. At that moment, the accused party in the trial plunged his hand into the bucket and grabbed the brand. If the horrible burns this inflicted on his hand healed, he was innocent. Now, that's not justice. But neither is vengeance, which is what a

I would have to disagree with McDonald as to the fairness of the grading scale in this particular class. She stated that her grades on the last three tests were in the 80th percentile, but were ranked only in the upper 50 percent of the class. According to the grade boundaries that instructor Eldon Obrecht established, a score in the upper 50 percent of the class would earn a B. Most classes using a regular percentile curve would have the lowest B fall somewhere in the 80th percentile range. Since in this case it wouldn't have made any difference which scale was used, I question McDonald's ability to understand this grading

Masterpieces of Music is taught by an extremely well-qualified professor in the school of music. I'm sure that if Obrecht's curve was unjust, he would listen to criticism. But until someone can find evidence that a grading scale that allows for less than 3 percent of the class to fail is unjust, I hope Obrecht will continue to use his present grading method

Martin said he thinks the prosecution threats do scare college students, "but college students are not the majority of people who aren't registering. The working class and minority people were the groups who fought the draft

Turner said he is not necessarily in favor of placing registration resisters in jail. He said his solution to the problem "is not to prosecute them, but simply to register them.

When told of Turner's plan Thursday, Martin said: "I think that's one of the stupidest things I've heard. It would be blatantly unconstitutional."

Turner said he thinks some of the draft registration resisters have been persuaded not to register against their

"I imagine the kids that age, 18 years old, that haven't registered have probably not done so because their parents have discouraged them, or their older brother or sister, someone close to them," he said.

"My feeling is that the natural instinct of most kids is they would like to fight for their country. But maybe I'm out of touch with that."

Turner said things have changed since World War II's draft. He and his classmates from the class of 1945 "couldn't wait. We just couldn't wait. We had to go and enlist.

"IN 1944 I WENT over to Omaha to enlist I was so anxious to get there," he

"One of the biggest disappointments of my life was that I didn't get to see battle. I always thought it would be a great honor to fight for my country ... so I'm not very sympathetic towards these people," he said.

Political activism during the Vietnam War is responsible for some of to-TURNER'S PLAN is to write day's attitudes about defending the country, Turner said.

'During the Vietnam War we had a lot of traitors ... A lot of people wanted us to lose the war. They wanted our kids not to register and to go to places

Fleischacker said Iowa's registration compliance rate was probably about 98 percent during the Vietnam

"At that time there was really no way of really checking it, but we always thought we were running between 98 and 100 percent," he said.

"It was a different situation in those days. You had to carry a draft registracard. If you were stopped and didn't have it, they would notify the Selective Service office. Having to have that card probably resulted in a good compliance rate.'

But Kissinger had been told of the problem and had approved the additional costs, Weiss added. Kissinger did not dispute the bill, he said.

About one month later, Kissinger returned to the shop with brake trouble. Weiss said an $80 part was replaced - with no labor charge. Kissinger paid that bill, also with no major dispute.

In October, Weiss testified, the harassment began.

"I STARTED getting magazines addressed to Josef Mengele," Weiss said, adding that he didn't recognize the name until later, when he received a magazine addressed to Heinrich Him-

Weiss said he notified the Kennilworth police, the FBI and the Anti-Defamation League. In November, the first of 97 Western Union Mailgrams arrived. Weiss was charged nearly $450 for the mailgrams as part of his telephone bill. There were four groups of mailgrams: • Eighteen sent around the country

signed with Mengele's name, saying

Weiss' firm planned to merge with Uniroyal. Weiss received confirmation copies of these mailgrams.

• Forty-nine sent to persons with Jewish names across the country, claiming they owed Weiss' firm $400. Again, Weiss received confirmation copies bearing the Mengele name.

• Twenty-five sent to residents of Wilmette, Ill., stating they were classified as semitic, and Weiss' firm would not do business with them signed J. Mengele, president.

• Weiss received reply mailgrams from three firms, including confirmation of an order for 500 gallons of chocolate chip ice cream from Columbus, Ohio, and confirmation of orders for 10,000 printed swastikas each from firms in Iowa City and Spokane, Wash.

In addition, a bogus advertisement in the Nov. 26 Chicago Tribune stated that Weiss' firm was buying used tires for $5 each. Resulting calls caused "terrific disruption. Just no end to it," Weiss testified

During his testimony, Hartel said he was present on three occasions when the mailgrams were sent. He testified that Schellenberg was the only person he saw sending mailgrams. Hartel was not present, however, on at least two occasions when mailgrams were sent, he testified.

WHEN ASKED by Judge Pomaro why Schellenberg was harassing Weiss when Kissinger was the person who felt wronged - Hartel gave a complicated explanation that alluded to 'various harassment' Schellenberg may have been involved in while in high school. On the first occasion that Hartel heard Kissinger discuss Weiss' firm the last week of September 1981 -Schellenberg was dictating a scholarship application letter to New Trier East High School; Kissinger was writing it down longhand. Hartel explained that Schellenberg did not want his handwriting to be sent to New Trier, since the handwriting was to be analyzed to see if Schellenberg was responsible for harassment at New Trier East. "Adam (Schellenberg) would start to harass Mr. Weiss," Hartel said.

"Why?" the judge asked.
"Because Dan (Kissinger) was writing the letters."

Under further questioning, though, Hartel said he never heard Kissinger ask Schellenberg to harass Weiss.

HARTEL TESTIFIED that in late lovember, Kissinger and Schellengerg were chuckling about the mailgrams.

Hartel recalled one evening in December when the three were in Kissinger's room in Burge: "There were definite, um, you know, Jew jokes" between Schellenberg and Kissinger.

After their arrest in Illinois in January 1982, Hartel said, his lawyer advised him to avoid Schellenberg and Kissinger. But the first week back to the UI, he overheard them in the Burge lobby "talking and still joking" that Weiss deserved the harassment Kissinger's trial recessed Thursday, and will resume Monday at 11 a.m. in Cook County Circuit Court in Evanston.

The court majority accepted Nixon's claim that the controversial immunity doctrine gave him blanket protection from having to pay money damages for his official actions while chief executive. Reagan vetoes crucial money bill because of housing aid provision

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan vetoed a crucial money bill Thursday because it contained a $3 billion housing aid program he opposes, and prepared another veto of a stripped-down bill rushed through Congress as a substitute.

Reagan stuck to his guns, vetoing the $8.9-billion 1982 urgent supplemental appropriations bill because it contained the housing aid program he has opposed as inflationary. The House failed to override Reagan's fifth veto as president.

'We want to serve notice here and now the president will not tolerate deficitdefying budget-busters," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

He said Reagan planned a prompt veto of the substitute approved by the House and Senate without the housing provision because it failed to cut out other "nonessential" expenditures.

After failing to override Reagan's veto, the House passed and sent the Senate two substitutes - both without the housing program but one $1.3 billion over the amount Reagan requested.

Said House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas, "We have given the choice to the Senate and the president and if they wish to quarrel about it, the quarrel is between them."

THE SENATE THEN approved the larger of the two substitutes, 59-26, and adjourned until Tuesday to take up the other. Speakes said Reagan would cast another veto as soon as the "fat" bill reached his

He said the measure still contains $1 billion in "non-urgent" funds. "We've got 10 agencies waiting for requested funds that are urgent," he said. "I would anticipate that the president would veto this bill promptly.

In his veto message, Reagan singled out for criticism the housing aid provision pushed by GOP senators, saying, "We cannot justify singling out one industry for special relief." But he also asked Congress to delete a long list of other unrequested programs.

Some form of stopgap funding bill is needed to keep several government agencies from running out of money in the next

The House vote to override Reagan's veto was 253-151, 17 short of the needed twothirds majority of those voting. That precluded any action by the Senate to

The House later passed the "fat" substitute bill on a 267-106 vote, and followed by passing the "skinny" bill on a 345-25

In his veto message, Reagan urged Congress to delete a long list of items in addition to the housing program.

"THE BILL ALSO establishes a housing subsidy program that sets a bad precedent for other federal programs," he said. "For these reasons, I cannot approve this legislation. I urge the Congress to act quickly to send me a clean bill for signature containing only those items urgently needed to continue 1982 activities.

"I share the heartfelt congressional concerns about the particular problems confronting the housing industry. But we will not promote a housing recovery by going even deeper in debt. More red-ink spending will only make the housing recession

Senate committee approves cuts in Medicare, Medicaid programs

Congress enacted the 1983 budget resolution, the Senate Finance Committee took the first step to implement it Thursday by approving $3.7 billion in Medicare and Medicaid program cuts.

The Republican-led committee voted 13-6 for a package of changes — many of them requested by President Reagan earlier this year - that affect both beneficiaries and providers of the subsidized health care programs for the elderly and the poor.

The panel also agreed to several eligibility and benefit changes totaling more than $700 in Aid to Families with Dependent Children, the principal welfare program. But committee Chairman Bob Dole, R-

Kan., who had managed to beat back several Democratic attempts to modify the welfare and medical cuts throughout the day-long session, hit a snag in late after-

Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., moved to restore the veterans' eligibility for unemployment compensation, and when it appeared the poposal might be approved, Dole adjourned the meeting and promised to take it up next Tuesday.

MANY OF the Medicare changes adopted by the panel — such as delaying initial Medicare coverage for recipiencts from the first day of the month they turn 65 to the month after they turn 65 - would affect individuals.

The committee package also would require patients who now receive free home care services under Medicare to contribute 5 percent of the cost of each visit.

In addition, the package outlines changes aimed at reimbursement costs for doctors,

Now, in the second phase of the budget battle, Capitol Hill panels such as the Finance committee must make the tough legislative decisions necessary to pare specific programs to match broad spending targets, and raise the $21 billion in taxes called for by the budget blueprint.

The Senate panel's $3.7 billion package of Medicare-Medicaid cuts is slightly below the $3.8 billion required by the budget plan, but its three-year savings projection of $15.2 billion is more than the blueprint re-

Squeeze loses wit in 'Sweets'

By Aften Hogg Special to The Daily Iowan

cial to The Daily Iowan

Few contemporary films are as eager to explore detail as Prince of the City. Based on the true story of a New York narcotics detective who went undercover to expose links between organized crime and political corruption in New York City, the film is at once an intensive character analysis of a man torn between shaky personal ethics and the higher good, and a refutation of conventional Hollywood techniques to tell a "police" story.

Directed by Sidney Lumet, whose fondness for street people has been evident in the similarly-themed Serpico and Dog Day Afternoon, Prince of the City is nearly devoid of the kind of glamorous but empty mayhem that characterizes so many movies in the cops-and-robbers genre.

Almost documentary in style, the film follows the progress of Detective

Danny Ciello (Treat Williams), who, perhaps out of guilt, perhaps out of disgust at the kind of comparatively penny-ante graft he himself engages in,

goes undercover to help a commission

As anyone who listens to Top 40 radio stations surely knows, today's pop songwriting is marred by an incredible lack of wit. What little there is seems always to come from veteran rockers like Pete Townshend, Ray Davies, the J. Geils Band and the Rolling Stones. Attempts by newer artists almost inevitably come out sounding like the for-ced studio humor of "Pac-Man Fever." This is why Squeeze's fourth album, East Side Story, was one of last year's pleasant surprises. Powered by the single "Tempted," the LP was the group's biggest commercial success and drew comparisons to Lennon and McCartney for Squeeze songwriters Glenn Tilbrook and Chris Difford.

newest album, Sweets From a Stranger, is somewhat disappointing. Although expertly produced, the LP lacks the effervescent drive of East Side Story. Whereas Squeeze has previously been criticized for being too bubbly, they have now replaced this happy wit with self-pity and discontent.

Sweets contains 12 songs about broken romance, unrequited love, more broken romance, adultery and still more broken romance. The tone is set with the opening lines of the very first song, a driving rocker entitled "Out of Touch": "You find a hair on my jacket/And you know it's not This is also why the British quintet's mine/You look at my pillow/But you're

THERE IS NOT, in fact, a truly happy song on the album. This isn't necessarily bad - very few bands can make a career out of eternal optimism - but Tilbrook's sugar-sweet voice is not conducive to Sweets' angst-ridden rock. He's a better singer than

The LP's best song is probably the slowest, a smoky blues number called "When the Hangover Strikes." On this, Tilbrook shows his true forte may be '40s-style crooning. It's a shame the song is too out-of-date to get on the

Of course, there are other highlights as well (Elvis Costello's background "doo-waps" on "Black Coffee in Bed"

Overall, the record leaves you dissatisfied. You wonder, since it is indeed a Squeeze album, where the happy ending is. It becomes more disturbing when the group seems to try for one. The lyrics of the final two cuts express upbeat themes: In "The Very First Dance," the Squeeze persona finally makes it with a stripper; "The Elephant Ride" describes a night-long sexual encounter. But the former song is too weird musically to force any emotion at all, and the latter is constantly interrupted by the rather haunting message: "Today is none of our concern.

That message can be applied to the group itself. Today's Squeeze is none of our concern, and we can only hope that and newcomer Don Snow's keyboard tomorrow the group will return to its work), but nothing here equals the witty, more winning ways.

Novelist Kinsella reads tonight

Former UI Writers' Workshop student and devout baseball fan W.P. Kinsella returns to Iowa City tonight to read from his award-winning novel Kinsella's novel is based on a short story called "Shoeless Joe Jackson Comes To Iowa." The tale of a farmer (named Ray Kinsella) who builds a baseball stadium in his corn field and is rewarded with a visitation from the spirits of Shoeless Joe Jackson and his teammates (the infamous Chicago Black Sox, who threw the World Series in 1919), "Shoeless Joe Jackson" was published in an obscure Canadian anthology a few years ago.

The story came to the attention of an editor at Houghton Mifflin Publishers.

tale that he asked Kinsella to expand it into a novel. To further the author's progress, Houghton Mifflin awarded Kinsella a $10,000 literary fellowship.

In Shoeless Joe, Kinsella's final product, the original story is enlarged by a plot in which the farmer goes on a search for author J.D. Salinger, whom he wants to bring to Iowa to see a baseball game. Other new characters, including farmer Ray's charming wife, daughter and unscrupulous brother-inlaw, are introduced and developed.

Kinsella's reading, sponsored by The Spirit That Moves Us Press, will be held at 8 p.m. tonight in Phillips Hall Auditorium

64 lifts Gilder to lead

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) -Bob Gilder, whose consistency has landed him among the top 15 money winners on the PGA tour this year, birdied two of the final three holes Thursday to take the lead after the first round of the $400,000 Westchester Classic with a six-under-par 64.

One stroke back of Gilder were surprising Chip Beck, a third-year pro who has never won a PGA event, and 15-year veteran Dave Eichelberger. Former UI golfer Lon Nielsen fired an even-Gilder has finished in the money in all 17 tournaments he has entered this year, including his third career victory at the Byron Nelson Classic and a fourth place finish at Tuscon, Ariz. The 31-year-old from Corvallis, Ore., did not register a single bogey in his round Thursday and came up with seven consecutive pars before birdying holes 16 and 18.

"I HAD MORE control today after a half hour of practice in the morning then I have had since I won the Nelson," Gilder said. "I wanted to play smart, make pars, and make no mistakes. And I did just that."

Possibly Gilder's most important shot came on number 16 when he nailed a four-iron to within seven feet of the pin and sank the putt. He two putted from 15 feet away on the par-5 18.

"The key here is to keep it in the fairway," said Gilder, who has earned $124,198 this season and is shooting for the $72,000 first prize in this tournament. "I feel I can win. My goal for this year is to win $200,000."

Beck, 25, whose best previous finish on the tour was third place in this year's Hawaiian Open. rolled off five consecutive birdies on the front nine - fourth through eighth - and eight in the first 14 holes en route to his 65.

said Beck, of Fayetteville, N.C., "that I really had no trouble all day."

Six-under Connors advances with four-set victory

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Jimmy Connors and Billie Jean King, two sentimental favorites from the past with little time to waste on memories, both made memorable impressions on a rare sunny day at Wimbledon Thursday.
Connors, acutely determined to add a second men's title to the one he won in 1974, enjoyed an excellent workout against a strong grass court opponent when he beat Australian John Alexander, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 7-6, to reach the third

For King, it was an historic occasion as well as a marvelous performance

when she won her second-round match from Claudia Pasquale of Switzerland,

At 38, this was King's 100th singles match at Wimbledon, a record, since her first appearance in 1961, and to commemorate the occasion she was presented a china plate. Including doubles, King has played 210 matches at Wimbledon and won a record 20 titles, including six in singles.

"WHEN I HIT 100 it makes me very tired, but I'm not tired," King said. "I guess that's a contradiction, but it's wonderful I lasted this long.'

Three seeded players, including No. 5 Hana Mandlikova, were knocked out of the womens singles, a surprising occurrence inasmuch as form almost always holds up in the early rounds of women's play.

Mandlikova lost to American Candy Reynolds, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4; No. 8 seed Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia lost to Joanne Russell, 6-7, 6-3, 7-5; and No. 16 Evonne Cawley of Australia, a two-time Wimbledon champion, was bounced by Zina Garrison, 6-4, 6-2.

IN ADDITION, No. 4 Andrea Jaeger, round with a 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 victory over 6-4, 4-6, 6-2. Korean Duk Hee Lee.

"If it wasn't Wimbledon I probably wouldn't be playing," said Jaeger, who added that she had "to gut it out."

Joining Connors in the third round among the men were No. 4 Sandy Mayer, No. 7 Mats Wilander of Sweden, and No. 11 Brian Teacher.

Mayer enjoyed a comfortable 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Colin Dowdeswell of Switzerland; Wilander beat Nduka Odizor of Nigeria, 7-6, 6-4, 6-0; and last week because of a pulled groin the second set tie-breaker to overcome muscle, barely made it to the third Israeli Shlomo Glickstein, 3-6, 7-6 (9-7), THIRD SEED Tracy Austin had a bit of a workout to win her second round match from Alycia Moulton, a 1979 Wimbledon junior finalist, 6-4, 7-5. After blowing a 4-1 lead in the second set, Austin achieved the clinching break in the 11th game. Also winning among the women seeds were No. 6 Wendy Turnbull of Australia, No. 7 Pam Shriver, No. 9 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany and

All-stars looking to stop streak in VIP softball

By Steve Batterson

Riding a three-game losing streak, the UI Athletic All-Stars are looking for that elusive victory in Sunday's Amana VIP softball game against the VIP celebrities.

But even if it becomes a four-game losing streak, don't look for anyone to become too upset. The game, just for fun and for the benefit of the college scholarship fund, will feature one of the nation's top softball pitchers, Eddie "The King" Feigner. In his 30-year career, Feigner has struck out 107,520 batters in over 6,900 games. He has pitched 781 no-hitters and averages 24 strikeouts per nine inning game.

THE UI TEAM dropped a 20-11 decision last year and Harry Ostrander of the UI Rec Services Office, who is organizing the UI team, is expecting a better game this year. "That losing streak is going to end," Ostrander said. 'We've got Eddie Feigner pitching for

"We're going to make it a little dif-ferent this year, too. We've combined the men's and women's coaches with some of our better athletes," he said. Joining the coaches will be Mel Cole, Lon Olejniczak, Dave Moritz and Reggie Roby of Iowa's Big Ten Champion football team and Steve Carfino of the Hawkeye basketball team. "We're expecting some other players, including some of the new recruits, but we haven't received confirmation from them yet," Ostrander said. "We're not so sure how good the football players are in softball, but we know that Carfino is an excellent baseball player and getting some youth into our line-up should be a help to us."

AND ONCE THAT youth steps onto the basepaths, look for first and third base coaches, Men's Athletic Director Bump Elliott and Women's Athletic Director Christine Grant, to provide

Zweiner: Finkbine in best shape ever

Barring any extremities in the weather, Finkbine Golf Course should be in excellent shape when golfers tee it up for the Amana VIP golf tournament Monday.

Finkbine golf pro Chuck Zweiner talked in superlatives when discussing he condition of the links for Monday It's real good. We could use some rain on the fairways because they're pretty hard right now," he said. "But basically it's the best it's ever been."

Zweiner, who also coaches the UI men's golf team, said Finkbine is designed to take heavy rains and that last weeks' deluges were not detrimental to the course. "Our golf course handles rains very well. If it rains Sunday night, we can play the VIP on Monday, as long as it doesn't rain too hard,"

HEAD GREENSKEEPER at Finkbine, Ted Thorn, also said the course will be in good shape but stop-See Finkbine, page 8
