

The Daily Iowan

Still a dime
© 1982 Student Publications Inc.

Iowa City's Morning Newspaper

Monday, July 19, 1982

Head pett nder

h Open ers

ampett, U.S.	32-35-87
son, U.S.	33-36-89
South Africa	34-35-89
h, Britain	32-38-70
n, Britain	32-38-70
Langer, W. Germany	35-35-79
iller, U.S.	34-37-71
der, U.S.	36-35-71
wards, U.S.	34-37-71
lmer, U.S.	33-38-71
esteros, Spain	34-37-71
Kuramoto, Japan	34-37-71
ia Canizares, Spain	33-38-71

and along with Palmer at 71 asters champion Stadler, the leader on the U.S. earnings list 19,976; Seve Ballesteros and aria Canizares of Spain; Johnny Danny Edwards and Masahiro to of Japan.

Strange was at even par 72 with Britons Mark Thomas and ussell, and among those at 73
ogers were Tom Kite, Fuzzy David Graham and Greg Nor-

OF THE other big names having their problems, though vino, a two-time British Open on, was at 78, including a le bogey eight on the 10th hole; eiskopf, the 1973 winner when in last was held at Troon, had a ce Lietzke, three-under at the ared to 77; and Jerry Pate had ving his round, Pate withdrew e tournament.

pett, yet to win as a pro
h he tied for third in last U.S. Open, had birdie putts of en, 16, seven and 10 feet on the third seventh, eighth and 10th nd saved par with a 15-foot putt ninth.

ays had dreams of playing in ish Open," said Clampett, who ng his first visit to Scotland. "I watch it on television and I it would be something to play

nacker elecasts

BIG TEN package of games has d in nearly all major markets idwest, including to WGN in ESPN has purchased the en-rage of games, and according r, the Big Ten cage action will cast in homes in Los Angeles as other major markets in the ome of the games are also be televised internationally.

ern Iowa, the Iowa Television has purchased the rights to ro games and Bill Bolster of TV in Waterloo, the flagship of the network, said the has not decided whether it will the entire package. The ITN ns exclusive rights to Iowa ll coverage.

aven't reached a decision on to televise the entire package lster said. "We purchased the because they will have Iowa n it."

Poulsen demands rent for city pipe

By Mark Leonard
Staff Writer

Paul Poulsen, an Iowa City man who has gained public attention by calling Johnson County District Court a "nullity," is demanding $1,000 a month rent from the city for a water main that runs under his property at 810 First Ave.

Poulsen said because the city does not have an easement for the 16-inch main he will begin charging rent for the space the pipe takes up.

As of July 1, Poulsen figured the city owed him $8,305.17, which includes interest at an annual rate of 17 percent, compounded monthly, since he purchased the property on January 1, 1982.

In a letter to Iowa City Mayor Mary Neuhouser he questioned the actions of the city.

"Is this situation another example of the incompetence and inept performance of the city manager and legal staff of the city of Iowa City?" the letter asks.

Neuhouser said the city legal staff is looking into the legality of Poulsen's request.

POULSEN IS no stranger to the city legal staff. The city took Poulsen to court because they claimed he was in the process of removing an earthen berm that was built to hide junked cars.

The court's decision to impose an injunction on Poulsen's dirt-moving activities was delayed because Poulsen argued that the city has no power over the land and that the court is "a nullity."

In addition to the berm controversy, Poulsen later requested that the city pay for damages caused to his restaurant when raw sewage backed up from a city sewage line.

In his letter to Neuhouser, Poulsen again indicated that the court system is not an official court of the people.

"I have become aware of the fact that there are no valid, legitimate courts of law or courts of equality in this state because the judges are not elected, as required by the Constitution of the United States..."

If his demands are not met, Poulsen said he will "resort to the common law for further action."

Poulsen could not be reached for comment on the letter.

Wasp and butterfly

As the sun broke through the clouds Sunday afternoon following Saturday night's storm, this monarch and wasp were concentrating on the blossoms along the flooded banks of the Iowa River. In autumn the butterfly will migrate south, then lay eggs and die during its return north in the spring.

The Daily Iowan/Dirk VanDerwerker

Feminists outline future battle plans

By Scott Sonner
Staff Writer

Iowa feminists — claiming they are stronger and wiser as a result of last month's defeat of the Equal Rights Amendment — drew battle plans for the future at the National Organization for Women's state convention in Iowa City over the weekend.

State and national officials used media workshops and inspirational speeches to arm fellow NOW members with the information they will need to carry on their fight for the amendment's eventual passage.

Mary Jean Collins, executive director of Chicago NOW, told about 50 Iowa delegates: "We are the mainstream of American society. We are not fringe radicals.

"America has changed because of ERA activities and it's waiting for your leadership. Now you just have to provide it," Collins said in the convention's keynote address.

SHE SAID the reason she is optimistic is the "strongest women's movement in the nation's history has come away with the skills and confidence we need.

"We simply didn't have the resources or the experience we needed as recently as two years ago. We are now in a different period. We have transformed from a small group
See NOW, page 6

Jane Wells-Schooley, a national vice president for the National Organization for Women, addresses the Iowa NOW state convention Sunday.

U.S. key to peace hopes in Mideast

United Press International

Sporadic fighting flared in Lebanon Sunday, but Israeli officials said they were willing to be patient with U.S. diplomatic efforts to coax the Palestine Liberation Organization out of Beirut.

Senior officials in Tel Aviv said they had no deadline for a PLO withdrawal. Israeli Foreign Ministry Director-General David Kimche expressed hope President Reagan's meetings Tuesday with Arab leaders would produce a haven for the PLO fighters now trapped by Israeli forces in Beirut.

Prince Saud al Faisal, Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, arrived in Washington Sunday for the meeting. Faisal and Syria's foreign minister, Abdel Halim Khaddam, will represent the Arab League in discussions with the president and Secretary of State George Shultz.

"We hope frankly that the president of the United States will be able to convince, to persuade the Syrian foreign minister that Syria or any other Arab government, for that matter, will receive the terrorists from Beirut, because then we will perhaps have a chance to get these political arrangements settled," Kimche said in a radio interview.

So far no Arab country has offered to accept the Palestinians, and diplomats said the issue of where to take the Palestinians would be high on the president's agenda Tuesday.

In other developments, Lebanese Prime Minister Chefik Wazzan ruled out a peace treaty with Israel and fighting flared in eastern Lebanon and around Beirut.

Attacking PLO guerrillas fired rockets and automatic weapons in a Saturday night raid on Israeli positions in the hills east of Beirut that left eight Israelis dead or wounded, the Palestinian news agency Wafa said.

In Tel Aviv, the military command said Israeli troops destroyed a Soviet-built T-55 tank that opened fire on them in southeast Beirut near the besieged city's international airport.

Israel Radio reported the Palestinians fired artillery and small arms at Israeli positions and that the Israeli troops shot back.

The Israelis also exchanged fire with Syrian troops in the eastern sector of Lebanon near Kafr Kuk. The military command said the Syrians fired first and that there were no Israeli casualties.

Despite the reported attacks, the official cease-fire between Palestinian and Israeli forces held for a seventh day.

In Israel, a depot of captured Palestinian ammunition exploded in Galilee, sending shells flying into the outskirts of Tiberias and wounding 11 people.

Wazzan rejected Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's renewed offer for a peace treaty with Lebanon and called on both the Israelis and the PLO to pull their forces out of the war-ravaged country.

"I am certain that Lebanon will not sign a unilateral peace treaty with Israel," Wazzan told the English-language magazine Monday Morning.

In Jerusalem, senior Israeli officials said after a Cabinet meeting the government had decided to give U.S. special envoy Philip Habib time to arrange the withdrawal of an estimated 6,000 PLO guerrillas trapped in West Beirut.

"If Philip Habib needs more than 30 days, he'll have it," the senior official said. "The only condition is that there be progress, that he can show progress in getting the PLO out."

On Saturday, Prime Minister Menachem Begin told a pro-government rally the PLO had less than 30 days to pull out or face an Israeli assault.

The Cabinet meeting followed the U.S. Defense Department's decision to hold up delivery of anti-personnel cluster bombs to Israel, which coincided with reports the Reagan administration was seeking new ways of dealing with both the Lebanese crisis and the issue of Palestinian self-rule.

"Nobody will ever say we didn't give Habib every chance," said one Israeli official, explaining why the Begin government was backing away from earlier threats of an imminent assault on West Beirut.

The Israeli officials acknowledged they were in a quandary over how to keep up pressure against the Palestinians without angering Washington.

Speaker tells tips for handling media

By Scott Sonner
Staff Writer

Learning to play by the rules of the news industry is the key to an organization's survival in a world of media mind-games, a former journalism teacher told Iowa members of the National Organization for Women Saturday.

"It's psychological role-playing. It's all media hype, but it's important media hype," Sarah Wolrabe, past president of Dubuque NOW, said.

In her workshop called "Being Media Wise," she gave Iowa NOW state conventioners tips on press relations, writing press releases and assuming authority positions.

Among other things, Wolrabe suggested commending reporters on articles they write, even if the work is not that good, in an attempt to establish a good relationship with the media.

"That's a lot of B.S. but you have to keep stroking them and stroking them until you get the mileage.

"It's terrible to tell you to do that kind of thing but you have to play the game to win the game," she said.

AFTER LECTURING on topics that ranged from wearing make-up on TV to buttering-up reporters, Wolrabe said in an interview with The Daily Iowan she was somewhat em-
See Media, page 6

Inside

Evans under fire

A national lobbying group is pressuring Iowa Congressman Cooper Evans to vote against funding for the Clinch River Breeder Reactor in Tennessee. Page 3

Weather

Variable cloudiness today with a 30 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms, high in the middle 80s. Partly cloudy tonight with a 30 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms, low in the upper 60s. Partly cloudy Tuesday, high in the upper 80s.

By Jeffrey Miller

Arts/Entertainment Editor

"You can enjoy music in one of two ways. You can sit at home and listen to a record in your shorts with a beer, or you can get dressed up and go to a concert hall. I don't see why after an artist is dead and gone you have to say 'that's it' to concerts."

Stephen Temmer is a great believer in the concert setting, and his audiotape library makes it possible to re-experience the work of great musicians in concert, as those who attend his lecture "Recordings in Concert" tonight will discover.

Temmer, the visiting lecturer for the UI School of Music's Seminar in Audio Recording, has a vast background both in music (he was once a member of the Vienna Boys' Choir and has classical training on three instruments) and in audiotaping (he was a pioneer in taping for radio and was the technical adviser on the Nixon tapes to the Watergate Special Prosecutor).

Profile

HIS INVOLVEMENT with audiotaping itself is little more than a hobby now, but Temmer still keeps up with the industry in his capacity as an importer-exporter of audio hardware.

"The only exciting thing going on now is talk, talk, talk. The recording industry is down over 50 percent, and I think it will never get back to where it was.

"Everyone's talking about how great digital recording is going to be, but I think that's a crock — it's expensive and it just isn't that much better. I wish improvement of product would improve sales, but it won't. The problem is what's being recorded — the music."

Temmer's program tonight exhibits his own use of audiotapes to record and preserve music.

A 1957 recording of Handel's Messiah, performed by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra with Fritz Reiner conducting, begins the program.

"I MADE this tape when I was working at WBAI in New York and was doing the announcing for the symphony.

For this particular performance, I announced, 'With David Lloyd singing baritone.' Very clearly, then — you can hear this on the tape — I heard Fritz Reiner intone, 'Mr. Lloyd is a tenor.' I said, 'Now appearing on stage, Dr. Reiner,' and ran."

Other highlights of tonight's lecture-performance include a 1956 recording of Louis Armstrong made for the Voice of America ("...before Senator McCarthy put a stop to anything that wasn't propaganda...") and a 1944 stereo recording of the Berlin Radio Symphony performing Beethoven's Emperor Concerto with anti-aircraft guns providing part of the percussion.

Of more parochial interest are a tape Temmer has made of Walter (now Wendy) Carlos demonstrating how the synthesizer program for A Clockwork Orange was created and a tape of "...the world's worst opera singer," Florence Foster Jenkins, singing a Mozart aria.

ONE OF THE problems an audiotape concert might seem to have is the lack of any visual stimuli. But Temmer has considered that dilemma: "There will be an artist dressed for the occasion performing on stage to provide visual focus. I won't say any more than that."

Temmer's great hope is that the works of artists like Fritz Reiner and Louis Armstrong can be enjoyed in the setting they once were through the medium of audiotape.

Stephen Temmer and his tapes will be speaking at 8 p.m. in Harper Hall at the School of Music.

Minimum only $500

30 months 16.34% ANNUAL YIELD*

15.25% ANNUAL RATE

HEIGHTS

1818 Lower Muscatine Rd. 338-9443

Briefly

Gulf war battles inconclusive

Iraq and Iran traded heavy fire on the sixth day of renewed fighting in the Persian Gulf Sunday and Iraq claimed to have forced an Iranian retreat. Contrary to a U.S. defense source's prediction of a possible Iranian assault on Basra — Iran's first military objective in the 22-month-old war — both sides seemed to have fought several inconclusive battles since Tuesday.

British rail strike collapses

LONDON — A 2-week-old strike by Britain's locomotive engineers collapsed Sunday after it failed to gain support from other key trade unions. Workers were told to report for work at midnight. The collapse of the strike was a victory for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who had demanded the engineers accept changes in work conditions to upgrade Britain's deficit-ridden national railroad.

Prof's alleged killer caught

SAN IGNACIO, Mexico — Mexican Federal Police caught the man who allegedly masterminded the killing of a University of Colorado professor, state newspapers reported Sunday. Nicholas Schrock disappeared May 30 after driving across the border into Mexico on his way to a summer teaching position in Guadalajara, Mexico. The suspect, Claudio Lamarque, allegedly planned the robbery and killing of Schrock when he saw the economics teacher pay a gasoline bill with a large amount of cash.

Nicaragua businessmen held

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The leftist Sandinista government jailed at least 10 top businessmen on the eve of its third anniversary celebration, a business group charged Sunday. Most of the arrests were in the northern towns of Matagalpa and Jinotega on Saturday, according to a director of the Superior Council of Private Business, the nation's most powerful private business group.

Balanced budget rally slated

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, Vice President George Bush and about 300 members of Congress will attend a rally on the steps of the Capitol this morning for the proposed constitutional amendment to balance the budget. Shortly after the rally, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, a group of senior citizens and some House Democrats will hold a news conference on the east side of the Capitol to express their opposition to the amendment.

'Mercy hunt' of deer begins

MIAMI — Some 1,000 hunters in airboats milled the Florida Everglades Sunday in a "mercy hunt" to kill 2,200 starving deer. Meanwhile, a small band of conservationists in 10 airboats caught 13 deer and rushed them to a Dade County farm owned by Jack Kassewitz Jr., leader of National Wildlife Refuge, Inc.

Disabled man tops Rainier

SUNRISE, Wash. — A one-legged mountain climber fulfilled a 10-year dream Sunday by "hopping to the top" of glacier-clad 14,408-foot Mount Rainier and planting flags in the name of the handicapped. Don Bennett, 52, who climbed the mountain in 1970 with two legs but lost one of them in a boating accident two years later, reached the summit on specially-built crutches at 11 a.m. local time.

Quoted...

Nancy and Ronnie bought China, (no, no I just mean some plates). A quarter of a million dollars, for the glory of these United States. Now you know what it means, when you sit down to beans. It means you put ketchup on 'em...

—From a song written by UI graduate student Howard Weinberg that he performed at a fund-raiser for gubernatorial candidate Roxanne Conlin. See story, page 3.

Postscripts

Events

The WRAC will sponsor a brown bag luncheon at 12:10 p.m. at 130 N. Madison. The topic is the Big Brother and Big Sister Program of Johnson County.

Stephen F. Temmer will present a guest lecture and demonstration entitled "Recordings in Concert" at 8 p.m. in Harper Hall.

Announcement

"Associated Parts," a display of Kathleen Perry's works, is on exhibit through July 23 at the Eve Drewelowe Gallery in the Fine Arts Building.

USPS 143-360

The Daily Iowan is published by Student Publications Inc., 111 Communications Center, Iowa City, IA, 52242, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, legal holidays and university vacations. Second class postage paid at the post office at Iowa City under the Act of Congress of March 2, 1879. Subscription rates: Iowa City and Coralville, $8-1 semester; $16-2 semesters; $5-summer session only; $21-full year. Out of town: $14-1 semester; $28-2 semesters; $7-summer session only, $35-full year.

Tamie Marie Gilson, 21, left, leaves the Johnson County Courthouse Friday following a bond reduction hearing. Gilson has been charged with wanton neglect of a minor for allegedly abandoning her 4-year-old daughter Bobbie Jo on the steps of the local Congregational United Church of Christ July 9.

Hearing for child's custody postponed

By Jennifer Marme-Ruggeberg Staff Writer

Tamie Marie Gilson, the 21-year-old mother who wants to get out of jail so she can "get work and get custody of her daughter," will have to wait to get custody. A custody hearing, scheduled for Friday afternoon, was postponed until July 30 because according to Gilson's lawyer, Clemens Erdahl, "they won't place her (Bobbie Jo) in her mother's custody if she (Gilson) is in jail."

Erdahl wanted the hearing postponed because Gilson is "still attempting to raise bail at this time." Assistant Johnson County Attorney Dan Bray did not have any objections to delaying the hearing but asked the court to leave Bobbi Jo in the temporary custody of the Department of Social Services.

Bray submitted an amendment to the county's original petition stating that Bobbi Jo's last name is Kirkwood, not Gilson, and her birth date is June 14, 1978. Gilson, charged with wanton neglect of a minor, left her 4-year-old daughter, Bobbi Jo, on the steps of the Congregational United Church of Christ July 9. Police located the child's mother the next morning in front of the church where she had returned to look for her daughter.

BRAY SAID the minister from the Congregational Church is a very important witness in the custody case, but that he may not be back from vacation until August. Although Gilson stated July 12 in a bond reduction hearing that she had not considered leaving Iowa City because "I knew my child was here," Magistrate Leon F. Spies denied her request to reduce her $1,000 bond.

A request to have Bobbi Jo's medical records released to the county attorney's office was denied Friday. Bobbi Jo was examined at UI Hospitals after she was found at the church and Bray wanted to determine whether the examination had been conducted properly. The court said it did not have any reason to believe there was anything wrong with the examination and "had no authority to rule on that."

Erdahl requested that the Department of Social Services allow Gilson to visit with her daughter. Bray objected and said, "I believe Ms. Gilson should have maximum opportunity (to visit with her child) but being in jail does present a problem." He cited Gilson's "transient history" and stated that the Department of Social Services needs to insure the "safety and continued custody" of Bobbi Jo.

Iowa City man charged in two Oxford break-ins

Sheldon K. Evans, 22, 86 Forest View Trailer Court, was charged with second-degree burglary in connection with two break-ins in rural Oxford.

Johnson County District Court records state Evans is charged with the Feb. 25 break-in at the Norma Streng residence and the March 26 break-in at the James S. Spears residence.

According to police records Evans told Rhonda S. Kugley he was going to "hit a schoolteacher's house" and he later returned to Kugley's house with jewelry and other items.

Norma Streng, a teacher, reported those items missing. The items were found at Kugley's house and identified as Streng's.

About a month after the Streng break-in Evans told Kugley he "intended to hit a house" and left dressed in dark clothes and gloves. He returned with guns and other items which have been identified as Spears's.

A preliminary hearing is set for July 23 and Evans has been released on his own recognizance.

Courts

A registered UI Hospitals nurse was charged in Johnson County District Court Friday with obtaining drugs by deception.

Rose-Alice Bertling, 32, rural Solon, was accused of obtaining morphine while she was not on duty.

The drug was discovered missing when a questionable entry on the hospital's controlled substance records was noticed. The entry, dated July 3, listed the patient's name as Lorenz, the nurse's name as Bertling and the doctor's name as Calderwood. Court records state, however, that Gregg Calderwood did not prescribe, or issue an order for, a patient by the name of Lorenz. Bertling has waived a preliminary hearing, a court date is pending and she was released on her own recognizance.

Governors look at farming

DES MOINES (UPI) — Revitalizing the farm economies of 13 Midwestern states will be the number one topic at the Midwestern Governors' Conference, said Kansas Gov. John Carlin.

Carlin, who is chairman of the conference, wasted little time in setting the theme of this year's meeting, which opened Sunday at a posh downtown Des Moines hotel. Carlin, one of the few Democrats in the group, said there is not a state in the region whose economy does not rely on farming and ranching. He said the key to rejuvenating the Midwest's economy lies in the farm sector.

"I believe this conference has the opportunity to send a message to Washington that the future of the American farmer must be made a top priority," he said. "Unless a serious effort is made soon to begin reducing the surplus of grain, there is little for our producers to be optimistic about."

AT A NEWS CONFERENCE Sunday, both Carlin and Iowa Gov. Robert Ray outlined what the chief executives hope to accomplish during the three-day event, which gets down to business Monday with an appearance by U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block.

Additional debates requested by Conlin

DES MOINES (UPI) — Roxanne Conlin said she wants Lt. Gov. Terry Branstad, her Republican gubernatorial opponent, to agree to more debates than the four already scheduled. Conlin Saturday accused Branstad of wanting to limit the face-to-face meetings. She said an open discussion between the candidates was the best way to define their differences on philosophy of government and leadership.

Branstad on Saturday appeared before the Iowa School Board Association to defend the education record of the Iowa Legislature. The GOP-controlled body has been sharply criticized the last two years for failing to support Iowa secondary schools. But Branstad said lawmakers this year gave educators a two-year guarantee on state funding no matter how much enrollment decreases.

He also said state education funding will jump by $2.6 million this year, and that 187 of the state's 441 school districts will be operating under increased budgets this fall.

CENTRAL REXALL PHARMACY
Pabst Blue Ribbon $8.99 case plus deposit student health prescriptions
Davenport at Dodge St 338-3078
Convenient - Low Price - Prompt Service
We honor Rx Cards: IPSC, PCS, PAID, RFX, Title XIX, Mastercard/Visa

INFANT GROWTH & DEVELOPMENT PROJECT
Newborns to participate in 3 year study of oral/facial growth. Parents will be compensated. Call 353-5479 for information. U of I College of Dentistry.

We've Moved!
Hertz
Rent-a-car is now located at Hawkeye Cab
317 S. Gilbert
337-3473
Open Daily 6 am-11 pm—24 hrs. reserv. required

TV today
WEEKDAYS
MORNING
5:00 IMAXI All-Day Movies
5:30 CBS Morning News
6:00 CBS Morning News
6:30 ESPN Sports Center
7:00 Today
7:30 Today
8:00 CBS Morning News
8:30 CBS Morning News
9:00 CBS Morning News
9:30 CBS Morning News
10:00 CBS Morning News
10:30 CBS Morning News
11:00 CBS Morning News
AFTERNOON
12:00 IMAXI All-Day Movies
12:30 CBS Morning News
1:00 CBS Morning News
1:30 CBS Morning News
2:00 CBS Morning News
2:30 CBS Morning News
3:00 CBS Morning News
3:30 CBS Morning News
4:00 CBS Morning News
4:30 CBS Morning News
5:00 CBS Morning News
5:30 CBS Morning News
6:00 CBS Morning News
6:30 CBS Morning News
7:00 CBS Morning News
7:30 CBS Morning News
8:00 CBS Morning News
8:30 CBS Morning News
9:00 CBS Morning News
9:30 CBS Morning News
10:00 CBS Morning News
10:30 CBS Morning News
11:00 CBS Morning News

MONDAY 7/19/82
MORNING
5:00 IMAXI All-Day Movies
5:30 CBS Morning News
6:00 CBS Morning News
6:30 CBS Morning News
7:00 CBS Morning News
7:30 CBS Morning News
8:00 CBS Morning News
8:30 CBS Morning News
9:00 CBS Morning News
9:30 CBS Morning News
10:00 CBS Morning News
10:30 CBS Morning News
11:00 CBS Morning News

AFTERNOON
12:00 IMAXI All-Day Movies
12:30 CBS Morning News
1:00 CBS Morning News
1:30 CBS Morning News
2:00 CBS Morning News
2:30 CBS Morning News
3:00 CBS Morning News
3:30 CBS Morning News
4:00 CBS Morning News
4:30 CBS Morning News
5:00 CBS Morning News
5:30 CBS Morning News
6:00 CBS Morning News
6:30 CBS Morning News
7:00 CBS Morning News
7:30 CBS Morning News
8:00 CBS Morning News
8:30 CBS Morning News
9:00 CBS Morning News
9:30 CBS Morning News
10:00 CBS Morning News
10:30 CBS Morning News
11:00 CBS Morning News

executives hope to accomplish during the three-day event, which gets down to business Monday with an appearance by U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block.

Ray said Block's visit was the best chance the governors would have to pass on their farm concerns to President Reagan.

The governors plan to relay their concerns about the lack of a new long-term grain agreement with the Soviet Union and the need for federal participation in soil conservation programs, Ray said.

On Tuesday the governors will also get a chance to confer with Reagan aide Rich Williamson on the president's New Federalism proposals. Ray said the nation's governors had ongoing discussions with the presidential staff on the plan, which would return several welfare programs to state control.

Ray said Reagan's plan to fund the new programs through a windfall tax would not work in a state like Iowa which does not have such a tax.

Van Shuttle Service to Des Moines Airport contact a travel agent or call 1-396-0429
Adventure Van Charters
Plan, Write, & Organize Your Resume... in a format and style suited to your credentials and the type of employment you are seeking.
Resumes for Success
351-3756

Good Friends Good Books Good Records
Find each other at the Haunted Bookshop
Open M-W-F 2 to 5 pm
Saturday, noon to 5
227 S. Johnson
near corner of Burlington

BEACON means Business!
Let us show you how to save $600 on an Apple II Word Processing System at our

APPLE FEST!
The word processing system includes:
*A 48 K Apple II+ Computer
*Monitor //+
*Apple Printer II
*Disk II with Controller
*DOS Operating System
WHEN: July 26, 9:00 am-9:00 pm
WHERE: Abbey Inn, Spanish Garden Room,
Highway 6 West, Iowa City
FREE SEMINAR: "The Personal Computer Revolution" 6:30 to 8:30 pm
For further information, contact Jeanette Merrill,
(319) 338-8036 or
BEACON MICROCENTER
213 Lincoln Way, Ames
(515) 233-4807

AFTERNOON
12:00 IMAXI All-Day Movies
12:30 CBS Morning News
1:00 CBS Morning News
1:30 CBS Morning News
2:00 CBS Morning News
2:30 CBS Morning News
3:00 CBS Morning News
3:30 CBS Morning News
4:00 CBS Morning News
4:30 CBS Morning News
5:00 CBS Morning News
5:30 CBS Morning News
6:00 CBS Morning News
6:30 CBS Morning News
7:00 CBS Morning News
7:30 CBS Morning News
8:00 CBS Morning News
8:30 CBS Morning News
9:00 CBS Morning News
9:30 CBS Morning News
10:00 CBS Morning News
10:30 CBS Morning News
11:00 CBS Morning News

BIO RESOURCES
"Helping you to help others!"
EARN UP TO $8300 per month
See our FREE Coupon in today's DI.
BIO-RESOURCES
318 E. Bloomington
Open: T, Th, F, 9-3:45 M-W 11-5:45
351-0148

Evans
By Mark Leonard Staff Writer
Iowa Congressman Cooper support for the funding of a Terrestrial breeder reactor has drawn from a national lobbying group. Congress Watch Local wants District Republican to change his vote to stop funding for the billion Clinch River Breeder in Tennessee. Evans said Sunday, "I am not sure this point how I'll vote" on the funding question scheduled to be before the House of Representatives August. "Over the much longer term need breeder reactors and ultimately we will have to tap this form of energy but we also need to save some in the budget this year," he said.

Johnson
By Nancy Lonergan Staff Writer
A dismal economy has triggered nationwide blood shortage, but Johnson is unaffected, according to Michael Liesch, supervisor and technologist of the Elmer L. De Memorial Blood Center Hospitals. "The economy has a significant impact on the blood supply," Liesch Layoffs in the big cities caused drop in blood donations. Often, mobile blood centers go to areas and draw blood from w

Cand...

By Elizabeth McGrory Staff Writer
Both gubernatorial candidates agreed Friday that Iowa's education system is a major concern. Democrat Roxanne Conlin and Republican Terry Branstad both agreed on the present state of that system. Conlin and Branstad both agreed to support School Executive Council providing Iowa with a modern educational system is one of their goals.

The Institute for School Education is a panel of superintendents, school board members set state Board of Regents to communicate between Iowa's primary and secondary schools and the College of Education.

The quality of Iowa's education opportunities is a chief issue of the gubernatorial race, Conlin said. "I don't think that demands to be done."

BUT, SHE SAID, the quality of Iowa's education, which was questioned is threatened today. The state's investment in education has been "damaged by fiscal management in recent years," she said. "The state budget problem has been taken out on our elementary and secondary schools. Had the present leadership state government acted on the principles of prudence and equity, it would have protected the quality of our schools. The quality of Iowa's education opportunities is a chief issue of the gubernatorial race, Conlin said. "I don't think that demands to be done."

Local

By Rochelle Bozman University Editor
The recent rumblings among Iowa officials over the tax cut released by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Roxanne Conlin has little to stifle the excitement Johnson County party leaders are feeling.

Conlin netted more than 100,000 votes in the 1978 election among grassroots party members in a campaign fund-raising Johnson County this week according to Richard Myers, a local party leader. Myers, also a candidate for the Johnson County Board of Supervisors, said all the receipts are in yet, but the tally will be some $50,000 received from held at four homes around the county. "ONE SUCH PARTY," held at home, was an opportunity for Democrats to rally behind the candidates and criticize their opponents while enjoying some good food and drink. The party represented a change in the party's focus.

Evans

By Mark Leonard Staff Writer
Iowa Congressman Cooper support for the funding of a Terrestrial breeder reactor has drawn from a national lobbying group. Congress Watch Local wants District Republican to change his vote to stop funding for the billion Clinch River Breeder in Tennessee.

Evans said Sunday, "I am not sure this point how I'll vote" on the funding question scheduled to be before the House of Representatives August. "Over the much longer term need breeder reactors and ultimately we will have to tap this form of energy but we also need to save some in the budget this year," he said.

BUT DEMOCRAT Lynn Evans' opponent in the upcoming election, said she would work to stop the project. "I would vote to terminate it," she said. "The nation can simply not afford it and I think the whole state of technology is too scary. We need standards in the industry." Breeder reactors are a new type of nuclear power plants designed to produce more fuel than they consume.

Johnson

By Nancy Lonergan Staff Writer
A dismal economy has triggered nationwide blood shortage, but Johnson is unaffected, according to Michael Liesch, supervisor and technologist of the Elmer L. De Memorial Blood Center Hospitals. "The economy has a significant impact on the blood supply," Liesch Layoffs in the big cities caused drop in blood donations. Often, mobile blood centers go to areas and draw blood from w

Candidates focus on education

By Elizabeth McGrory
Staff Writer

Both gubernatorial candidates agreed Friday that Iowa's educational system is a major concern, but Democrat Roxanne Conlin and Republican Terry Branstad disagreed on the present state of that system.

Conlin and Branstad both told the Institute for School Executives that providing Iowa with a first-rate educational system is one of their goals.

The Institute for School Executives is a panel of superintendents and school board members set up by the state Board of Regents to aid communication between Iowa's elementary and secondary schools and the UI College of Education.

The quality of Iowa's educational opportunities is a chief issue of the gubernatorial race, Conlin said. "It's a tough job that demands to be done right."

BUT, SHE SAID, the quality of Iowa's education, which was "once unquestioned is threatened today."

The state's investment in education has been "damaged by fiscal mismanagement in recent years," she said. "The state budget problems have been taken out on our elementary and on our secondary schools."

"Had the present leadership of our state government acted on the principles of prudence and equity, the difficulties you and your students face in the upcoming school years could have been avoided," Conlin said.

But Branstad said Iowa's leadership in education has been preserved and will continue to flourish if he becomes governor.

"Iowa is recognized all over the United States as being at the forefront in educational advances," he said in his speech. "It's had its problems; we made adjustments and we've tinkered with the system."

Roxanne Conlin

Terry Branstad

The state commits 57 percent of its budget to education, he said. "Yet education has had its share of its sacrifices in the past three years."

DESPITE THE 1980 grain embargo, the 20 percent interest rates and the highest unemployment since the 1930s, Iowa still has met a balanced budget, Branstad said.

"It's meant some painful adjustments," he said. "It meant that you, as administrators, were forced to make some tough decisions, and you didn't have the notice that you wanted to have, and I certainly heard that last year when the school aid formula was changed late in the ball game."

While admitting cutting aid was "not a very good thing," he said, "It was one of the few options available; it was either that or pass a general tax increase, and the people in this state did not want a general tax increase."

Branstad said in comparison to other states, "We have handled the economic problems much better than in most of our neighboring states and we're proud of that fact."

Conlin said, "In 1979, the state took back $40 million in school aid that had been promised." If she is elected governor, "prudent budget-making will not be tinkered with to make up for budget mismanagement in other areas."

CITING BRANSTAD'S support of President Reagan's 15 percent cut of funds for student aid, she said, "The most disturbing" aspect about the current legislature is its "underlying disregard" for economic and educational well-being.

"The problem facing government leaders is simple," she said. "Everyone gives lip service to education; everyone believes in it. It's a matter of turning the belief into a reality."

"The reality is, education for all is essential" and deserves steady, unfailing support and should not be dependent on "political whim," she said.

While fielding questions from the 100 school officials in the room, she said she would succumb to a tax increase to fund education only as a last resort. "For any responsible public official, a tax increase is our last resort."

But a tax increase may be necessary to avoid cutting into programs.

In response to the same question after his speech, Branstad also said he would be opposed to a tax increase to help finance education except as a last resort.

HE SAID he hopes the Republican program geared to revitalize Iowa's economy will provide an adequate amount of money for the educational system.

Despite the sluggish economy, "we've made some advances," he said. "We have an ongoing commitment to education, and even in the difficult years are willing to do something about it," he said.

But the future will not be easy, he said. "I'm not here to give you a lot of lavish promises. I'm rather here to say we're going to work with you."

But "unfortunately we're all living in an unstable economy and we all have to adjust."

Branstad said, while "the state has the commitment to guarantee minimum requirements for every school district," most of the "decision making rests with the people at the local level."

Good Friends
Good Books
Good Records
Find each other at the
Haunted Bookshop
Open M-W-F 2 to 5 pm
Saturday, noon to 5
227 S. Johnson
near corner of Burlington

MACON Business!
How to save $600 on an Processing System at our computer

LE FEST!
ing system includes:
computer

12 Ansel Adams
Photographer
12:00 IMAX MOVIE: 'Jana'
9:15 TBS Evening News
9:30 Sing Out America
10:00 2, 7, 3, 10, 10
News
10:00 Twilight Zone
10:15 Over Easy
10:15 Nashville RFD
10:15 ESPN Sports Center
10:15 All in the Family
10:30 2, 7, 3, 10, 10
IMAX MOVIE: 'Raggett'
Man
10:30 7, 3, 10, 10
Tonight Show
10:30 8, Nightline
10:30 Saturday Night
10:30 12 With Ossie and Ruby
10:30 Quincy
10:30 Another Life
10:30 IMAX MOVIE: 'Union City'
10:30 MOVIE: 'Band of Angels'
11:00 2, 7, 3, 10, 10
11:00 9, Sanford and Son
11:00 12 Dick Cavett
11:00 MOVIE: 'The Possession of Joel Delaney'
11:00 Sports Look
11:00 World Championship Tennis: Australia Cup '82 Finals
11:30 7, 3, 10, 10
David Letterman
11:30 8, MOVIE: 'The Possession of Joel Delaney'
11:30 MOVIE: 'The Way West'
11:30 12 Captions ABC News
11:30 MOVIE: 'Columbo: Troubled Waters'
11:30 Jack Benny Show
11:30 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships
12:00 7, 3, 10, 10
Solid Gold
12:00 1 Married Joan
12:00 IMAX MOVIE: 'My Blood Valentine'
12:00 IMAX MOVIE: 'Get Out Your Handkerchiefs'
12:30 7, 3, 10, 10
NBC News Overnight
1:00 My Little Margie
1:00 2, 7, 3, 10, 10
Nightline
1:00 Bachelor Father
1:15 News
1:30 7, 3, 10, 10
Saturday Night
1:30 News Sign Off
MOVIE: 'Now You See It, Now You Don't'
1:30 700 Club
1:45 Life of Riley
1:45 IMAX MOVIE: 'Raging Bull'
1:45 3 Special Force
2:00 News
2:00 Nightline
2:00 700 Club
2:00 ESPN Sports Center
2:00 IMAX MOVIE: 'Foxes'
2:30 7, 3, 10, 10
Family Affair
2:30 William Tell
2:30 PKA Full Contact Karate
3:00 Fight Back
3:30 Mission Impossible
3:30 Ross Bagley
4:00 Sports Probe
4:00 IMAX MOVIE: 'Raggett'
Man
4:00 To Be Announced
4:00 IMAX MOVIE: 'Star Wars'
Wednesday
4:30 Bachelor Father
4:30 Time-Out Theater
4:30 Prog cont'd
4:30 See Hunt
4:30 Hat Patrol
4:30 Another Life
4:30 Australian Rules Football

Local Conlin backers remain lively

By Rochelle Bozman
University Editor

The recent rumblings among top Iowa officials over the tax statement released by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Roxanne Conlin have done little to stifle the excitement of Johnson County party leaders about the candidate.

Conlin netted more than $5,000 among grassroots party members during a campaign fund-raising tour of Johnson County this weekend, according to Richard Myers, a Conlin fund-raiser.

Myers, also a candidate for a seat on the Johnson County Board of Supervisors, said all the receipts are not in yet, but the tally will be somewhere around $5,000 received from parties held at four homes around the county.

ONE SUCH PARTY, held at Myers' home, was an opportunity for the Democrats to rally behind their candidates and criticize their opponents while enjoying some good food and drink.

The party represented a chance to close ranks in preparation for the upcoming offensive that Conlin has promised. Conlin also spoke to the voters without being peppered with questions on the amount of taxes she paid.

Analysis

"Most of the support she has had is holding firm," Myers said. "Most people are waiting for Roxanne to take the offensive in this thing."

Conlin not only got away from questions about her personal tax statement, but also answered questions about what she calls "the real issues of the campaign" on the local level.

Conlin focused on issues that affect Johnson County, such as her support of education, conservation of Iowa's water resources and how she would handle the problems of saving Iowa's soil.

BUT THE PRIMARY purpose of the evening at Myers' was to give the Democrats, who have been taking a beating in the press during the past couple of weeks, a chance to take jobs at the Republicans.

Clearly the hit of the evening came early when Howard Weinberg, a UI graduate student, sang his own song about President Reagan.

The song, entitled "Ketchup," set the tone for the evening of subtle — and sometimes not so subtle — criticism of Republican policies.

The first verse was: "Nancy and Ronnie bought China (no, no I just mean some plates). A quarter of a million dollars for the glory of these United States. Now you know what it means when you sit down to beans."

Followed by the chorus: "It means you put ketchup on 'em. On the top and on the bottom. Don't say you don't want 'em. Just be glad, be glad, be glad you got 'em. Put ketchup on 'em ... eat your vegetables."

ALTHOUGH SHE was told she had a hard act to follow, Conlin had no trouble convincing the 30-or-so Democrats just who controlled the show.

Evans' stand on reactor targeted

By Mark Leonard
Staff Writer

Iowa Congressman Cooper Evans' support for the funding of a Tennessee nuclear breeder reactor has drawn fire from a national lobbying group.

Congress Watch Local wants the 3rd District Republican to change his mind and vote to stop funding for the $3.5 billion Clinch River Breeder Reactor in Tennessee.

Evans said Sunday, "I am not sure at this point how I'll vote" on the breeder funding question scheduled to come before the House of Representatives in August.

"Over the much longer term we will need breeder reactors and ultimately we will have to tap this form of energy, but we also need to save some money in the budget this year," he said.

BUT DEMOCRAT Lynn Cutler, Evans' opponent in the upcoming election, said she would work to stop the project.

"I would vote to terminate it," she said. "The nation can simply not afford it and I think the whole state-of-the-art technology is too scary. We need better standards in the industry."

Breeder reactors are a new generation of nuclear power plants designed to produce more fuel than they consume.

Cooper Evans

When the project was authorized in 1971, it was to be a split venture between private industry and the government, at an estimated cost of $400 million. Now, 11 years later, the taxpayers are responsible for footing the $3.5 billion bill.

Iowa Congressman Tom Harkin, a Democrat, calls it "perhaps the most colossal boondoggle the federal government has ever embarked upon."

Evans said "opposition" to the project and "spending cuts in Congress" delayed the project, which led to higher costs.

SEVERAL LOCAL GROUPS and politicians opposed to the project held a press conference in Iowa City last Friday to announce the formation of a local campaign to stop funding for Clinch River.

State Representative Minnette Doderer pointed her finger at Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee for diverting funds from other public projects and putting them into the reactor.

"We've lost many public service jobs because of the logrolling for one very powerful individual in the Senate," she said. "It will provide public service jobs in Mr. Baker's district, but that's not what I'm interested in."

She said if Evans continues to support Clinch River he will "live to regret it."

"The Clinch River project will breed nothing but increasing taxpayer subsidies, increasing risks of nuclear proliferation and a technology that is both outmoded and dangerous," said Craig McDonald, National Field Organizer for the Coalition Against Clinch River.

BUT EVANS SAID in the future the breeder reactor will "greatly reduce the chance of proliferation of nuclear energy" because it produces thorium instead of uranium.

That, he said, would make it "much more difficult" for the element to be used in nuclear weapons.

McDonald said French technology on similar projects is more advanced.

"Let's let the French have their own problems. We don't need them. If it (Clinch River) comes on line, it will be 16 years out of date," he said.

Evans said charges that the technology is outdated are false.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he said. "We're using excellent technology."

McDonald said because the breeder reactor uses liquid sodium that ignites when contacted by air or water, a generator problem at Clinch River could be "catastrophic."

"We almost lost the city of Detroit in the 1960s due to a breeder reactor accident," he said.

He said the group is also interested in changing the votes of Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, and Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, while "educating the public about the problem."

Johnson County weathers blood shortage

By Nancy Lonergan
Staff Writer

A dismal economy has triggered a nationwide blood shortage, but Johnson County is unaffected, according to Michael Liesch, supervisor and chief technologist of the Elmer L. DeGowin Memorial Blood Center of UI Hospitals.

"The economy has a significant impact on the blood supply," Liesch said. Layoffs in the big cities caused a large drop in blood donations.

Often, mobile blood centers go to factories and draw blood from workers,

Liesch said. "It is good public relations for manufacturers to let workers take an hour and a half off to give blood."

Now, with fewer workers in the factories there is less blood for medical needs in many big cities. Also, numerous layoffs force the remaining workers to pick up the slack — they have less time to give blood while on the job, he said.

Surprisingly, those who do have time to give blood — the unemployed — are not acting as donors.

"YOU'D THINK people who are laid off and just sitting around with nothing to do might respond to an appeal to donate blood," Liesch said. The shortage proves otherwise.

But Johnson County will continue to meet local blood needs. "We haven't had any bad summers for close to 10 years," he said.

Regionalization, depending on more than one area as a blood source, has stabilized the Johnson County blood supply.

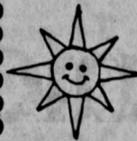

"We don't rely on Iowa City for blood needs," he said. In the United States, approximately 5 percent of the population provides blood for the rest of the country.

"If we had to rely on 5 percent of the Iowa City population, we would fall far short of the 50,000 (blood transfusions) we need a year," Liesch said.

Instead, since about 1940 Johnson County has received regular supplies from blood banks in the nearby Iowa communities Ottumwa and Davenport, and Galesburg, Ill.

Only about 15 percent of the area's entire red blood cell supply comes from Johnson County; the rest is received from regional blood banks.

HOT SUMMER DAYS
COOL SUMMER NIGHTS

Camisole Leotards
Assorted summer colors
$9.00 to $17.00

Rip Stop Pants & Tops
$16.00 to $21.00

Theatrical Shop

Phone Orders Welcome • 338-3330
400 Kirkwood Ave. Branches in Ames & West Des Moines

Help Prevent Birth Defects —
The Nation's Number One Child Health Problem.

Discount Den

Ad expires Thursday July 22nd
Hours: M-F 9 to 9, Sa 9 to 6, Su 12 to 5

117 E. College St.
Phone 351-3543

DEN COUPON

DEN COUPON DIAL BATH SOAP 5.5 oz. 39¢ LIMIT 2	DEN COUPON NEW BIC BRIO PEN 10¢ LIMIT 2	DEN COUPON WONDRA SKIN LOTION 6 oz. 87¢ LIMIT 1
DEN COUPON DRY IDEA ROLL-ON DEODORANT 1.5 oz. $1.69 LIMIT 1	50% OFF RETAIL SUNGLASSES DEN COUPON SUMMIT PAPER TOWELS 100 2 ply 49¢ LIMIT 1	DEN COUPON SUMMIT 4 pk. TOILET TISSUE 87¢ LIMIT 1

CIGARETTES 70¢ PACK + tax

"Try to understand. I still love you universally, I just don't love you specifically anymore."

New Cards from Nicole Hollander
85¢ prairie lights books
100 s. linn

PLAY YOUR CARDS RIGHT, AND YOU CAN EARN UP TO $83⁰⁰ A MONTH

FREE! WITH THIS AD $2.00 EXTRA on your second donation

Must be used during the week of publication 7-19-82 PLUS

We also offer many bonus programs including:

- $5 for 1; bring a friend in and after their first donation, you receive $5⁰⁰
- $5 for 5; after your friend completes their fifth donation they receive $5⁰⁰
- When you fill a chart, receive another $10⁰⁰

HELP OTHERS BY HELPING YOURSELF! LARGE QUANTITIES OF PLASMA ARE NEEDED IN THE MEDICAL FIELD. If you are 18-65 and weigh at least 110 lbs., you can help!

BIO RESOURCES

318 E. Bloomington
T,Th,F 9:00-3:45 M,W 11:00-5:45 351-0148

Arts/entertainment

Volume 115 No. 30 © 1982 Student Publications Inc.

TV viewed as a catalyst to the creation of rock

By Jeffrey Miller
Arts/Entertainment Editor

A little 1956 movie called Shake, Rattle and R-O-C-K stands as one of the more perceptive documents of post-World War II America.

Typical of its genre, Shake, Rattle and R-O-C-K featured a plot that pitted parents against youth over the issue of rock 'n' roll: the old fogeys were convinced that rock music was going to turn their flowers of gentility into juvenile delinquents; the youngsters said it was all good clean fun.

What separated Shake, Rattle and R-O-C-K from its cousins was that the battle was fought in part on television — specifically on an "American Bandstand" prototype whose host was played by Mike "Mannix" Connors. TV, too, was a corrupting influence.

Though the kids won out in the end, of course, and both TV and rock 'n' roll were redeemed, the cultural problems addressed by Shake, Rattle and R-O-C-K

Television

This is the first in a four-part series examining the history and future of rock 'n' roll on television.

K 25 years ago are still with us today: every week a new survey is released showing how TV is turning our brains into haggis; bills are pending in Congress requiring warnings on album covers about "hidden Satanic messages."

Shake, Rattle and R-O-C-K, as nothing else I've ever seen, manages to show the intricate link between TV and rock 'n' roll during the 1950s — a bond that grew stronger over the next 12 years but has since dissolved considerably.

ROCK 'N' ROLL owes its existence in part to television. The shift of the networks to video from audio following World War II presented new possibilities for local and independent radio stations.

These stations lacked the funds and facilities of the networks, so they relied on recorded music that reflected the tastes of the listeners in their areas. If rock 'n' roll was born in Memphis, as many suggest, it's because Memphis was the ideal crossroads for white hillbilly records played on stations in the Appalachians and the Southwest and black blues records played in the rural South.

With television acting as a catalyst to the creation of rock 'n' roll, it was only natural that the rock 'n' roll industry would come to rely in part on television to reach the masses.

At first, rock 'n' roll was the subject of derision by comedians from Ernie Kovacs to Sid Caesar to reprehensible reactionary Steve Allen, who put Elvis Presley through the indignity of singing "Hound Dog" to a basset hound.

BUT THE RIDICULE and censorship (Ed Sullivan's decision to show Elvis only from the waist up) rock 'n' roll had to confront on the network level was more than countered by a friendly, laissez faire approach on the local level.

Local dance shows, like Philadelphia's "American Bandstand," which went national 25 years ago this October, gave teenagers the songs and dances they wanted to know as they gave parents heightened blood pressure: TV had already ruined children with its westerns and crime shows, but now this!

Despite these anguished cries from middle-class parents and the contrary efforts of ABC to build a programming schedule that would appeal to the hormone-inflamed rock 'n' roll market, however, the medium and the music didn't really come together until the engagement, new TV rock 'n' roll shows appeared, both in daytime ("Where the Action Is," "Happening '67") and in prime time ("Hullabaloo," "Shindig," "The Monkees").

Rock 'n' roll performers began to include variety and talk shows as part of their tour schedule — I can remember first seeing the Jefferson Airplane on "The Mike Douglas Show" in 1967.

The relationships between rock 'n' roll, TV and their audiences were bound up in a web of other relationships, however, both political and cultural. Fears of parents, portrayed however stereotypically, in Shake, Rattle and R-O-C-K, seemed to have become realized in the 1960s, as kids raised on rock 'n' roll and TV turned on their elders. The only way to fight back was to pull the plug.

Next: the greatest moments of rock 'n' roll on TV, and the start of the decline.

After the Beatles' "Sullivan" '64 appearance on "Sullivan" was a milestone for both rock 'n' roll and TV (it's still one of the three most requested tapes at New York's Museum of Broadcasting). It legitimized rock 'n' roll as a cultural expression to a prime time audience previously skeptical, if not hostile, and it established TV as a venue for that expression.

Joe Jackson forges strong sound in 'Night and Day'

By Paul Soucek
Staff Writer

Joe Jackson built a following in Europe even before his early albums Look Sharp and I'm the Man. After he won over an American audience, he veered away from his musical formula with Beat Crazy, a spotty effort that took Jackson nowhere and hurt the popularity he was gaining in this country.

He was grilled once again by those who cried "parrotism" over his album of '40s tunes covers, Jumpin' Jive, though many (including this reviewer) found Jumpin' Jive to be an album with a unique, refreshing twist.

Jackson's new album, Night and Day, is as refreshing as his last. Night and Day is by no means an anthology of covered material, but Jackson has again drawn heavily from different musical forms. With this siphoning of styles, he has created a rich compendium of songs that sound as if they are different numbers from stage musicals. Even the mix lends itself to visions of orchestra pits and chorus lines.

Records

IN NO WAY is Joe Jackson buried by the nostalgic texture of Night and Day; if anything, he plays up to that nostalgia and stands out in front of it. Even the simple art deco cover opens up to reveal a photo reinforcing Jackson's "those were the days" philosophy: he looks like a gangster, with baggy slacks, suspenders, and a sucker in hand.

Jackson and band members Graham Maby, Larry Tolfree and Sue Hadjopoulos gaze out from the clutter in the picture as if they have at least one up on us. After listening to the album, I think maybe they do.

The team in this photo makes the album work: no one player stands out from the rest. The trend in music today seems to be each musician working outward from the writing in separate, sometimes arrogant, paths. Jackson's band, however, forms a strong alliance, surrounding his clever songs and working inward.

"Another World," the first cut on the "night" side of the album, gives a gloss of this intense sound, with its percussion/keyboard darts, its builds, its solos, its choruses. Jackson and the band dance through the entire side without any breaks: the conga slink of "Chinatown," the George Clinton-like motion of "TV Age," the Latin jam sound of "Target."

SOME OF THE LICKS on this side are cliches, but the sheen of Jackson's aberrations and the input of his musicians on each song remove the whole from any such generalization: you get the flow and continuous glow of a good stage musical.

Jackson's universal musical hooks paint reminiscent portraits, but his additional seasoning shocks the listener back to the "new wave" era. On the "day" side opener, "Breaking Us in Two," Jackson sounds as if he's on some '50s backlot beach with orchestra tapes rolling, the lights filtered blue, and a teary-eyed babe listening to the words of his sweet ballad. But his clavinet solo suddenly returns us to the modern age.

"Cancer," the next cut, has much the same effect: the music presents an old-fashioned Latin jam while Jackson recounts the current woe: "Everything gives you cancer." The song closes with a fantastic piano solo shut down by the surgeon general's warning: "Hey! And don't play that piano!"

"SLOW SONG" is an apropos ending to Night and Day, as the singer tries to "break through to the DJ" to hear a slow song before he and his date depart and complains about those who treat music as a "savage beast." The song summarizes Jackson's real career problems as well as it does those of the character he portrays here.

If "breaking through" means reverting to his earlier styles, Jackson, I think, would rather break down. He has discovered where he wants to stand as a musician, holding the music and shaping it into his own "hipness."

Jackson won't pierce any arteries of the music market with Night and Day, but then I doubt that he's bloodthirsty. As he says on "Slow Song," he's just looking for a "strong sound." With Night and Day, Joe Jackson has forged not only that strong sound but a smooth one as well.

Artsbriefs

Lecture-demonstration

Stephen Temmer's lecture-demonstration "Recordings In Concert" includes rare audiote recordings of the Berlin Radio Symphony, Louis Armstrong and the Leningrad Dixieland Group. Temmer and his tapes will be performing at 8 p.m. in Harper Hall at the UI School of Music.

'Lady From Shanghai' at Bijou

The Bijou tonight is continuing Alain Tanner's 1971 La Salamandre at 7 p.m. The real treat, however, is Orson Welles' classic Lady From Shanghai, which many critics see as a metaphor for Welles' Hollywood career: the young romantic (Welles) seduced and betrayed by a beautiful, treacherous woman — success? — (played by Rita Hayworth).

The hall-of-mirrors climax is one of the great moments in American film, and Welles' cruel use of Hayworth led in part to their divorce. Lady From Shanghai is showing at 9:15 p.m.

Goodman, Fiedler perform

TV tonight is little more than reruns, with a few shows standing out in retrospect: Benny Goodman performing with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops in a repeat from 1974 (7 p.m., IPBN-12); a typically trauma-torn (strokes, cyclones, injuries) episode of "Little House on the Prairie" (7 p.m., KWWL-7); Rick Moranis and Dave Thomas, a.k.a. Bob and Doug MacKenzie, visiting with David Letterman (11:30 p.m., KWWL-7).

Movie on cable: For its first hour, Raggedy Man is a genuinely charming and interesting little movie about a telephone operator in rural Texas (Sissy Spacek) who takes in and takes up with a sailor (Eric Roberts) who is trapped in town for a week.

But when the sailor leaves, a subplot about two drunken local yokels who want to rape the woman takes over, and the last half-hour is little more than an arty slasher movie.

The creation of milieu by director Jack Fisk is impressive, however, and Spacek turns in one of her usual fine performances — as does Henry (E.T.) Thomas as one of her children. (10:35 p.m., HBO-4).

Smith play selected by Chicago group

By T. Johnson
Staff Writer

A couple of years ago, playwright Charles Smith was spending a lot of time holed up in the tiny Midnight Madness theater on the UI campus, working with a cast of half-enthusiastic amateurs on a production of his play, Is There Music In Paradise? Smith was an undergraduate at the time, a few months away from his entry into the graduate Playwrights Workshop.

Smith's play was bleak in the Tennessee Williams manner, and whatever fun he was having watching his characters come to life on stage for the first time was tempered by the fact that the cast didn't seem to be taking things too seriously.

After that production, Smith took his play back to the typewriter and completely rewrote it. Characters were added; an effort was made to lighten the outlook somewhat.

"IT WAS HARD," Smith explained. "I'd always pictured the characters one way, and then we did that production and when I was rewriting the play, I kept thinking of the characters as looking like those people in the cast."

Theater

Smith's "new" play, entitled Music in Paradise, is one of those to be performed at the Midwest Playwrights' Program in Chicago this summer, a program intended to give talented unknowns the chance to work in a professional circumstance. Plays are rehearsed, performed and reviewed as any Big Time production would be.

Smith describes the selection of his play as the first "really big pat on the back" of his career. Smith is a native of Chicago, from one of those neighborhoods traversed by white people only when in sealed automobiles at high speed.

IT'S A LITTLE hard to believe, talking with him, that he grew up in the inner city. There is none of the wariness that people get when they live in tough neighborhoods. His eyes are bright and friendly, and when he smiles, as he does when he talks about driving back and forth between Iowa City and Chicago, it is an invitation to smile along with him.

"I get along well when I go back, because I don't push them; they don't push me. I don't try to tell anyone how to live." He looked around the room and added as an afterthought, "I don't think my brothers and sisters will even come see the play. My mother will come, I'm sure, but I don't think my brothers and sisters will."

Smith is also working on a new play, a comedy.

"At least, I think it's a comedy. Some people have read it and didn't think it was funny, but I had to do something different. It's a good play that's concrete in a realistic fashion. I wanted to do the same thing but in a lighter mode."

As the conversation is about to end, Smith speaks of the movement to ban certain works of literature. He says those works most often banned are not immoral or anti-American but are the work of black authors or on subjects of minority relevance.

"I would hope mine would be banned if they start banning plays. That would mean that I'd found some truth."

Charles Smith

'Young Doctors' operates on laughter

By Craig Wyrick
Staff Writer

Maybe comedies were never meant to be criticized. Critics sit in the theater and chuckle along with the audience on occasion. When they emerge to write their reviews, however, they almost always put down a film that gave them a few laughs.

Are they looking for too much from a film made expressly to supply a few laughs? Or is it the audience, as is the popular view among critics, that lowers itself to the crude comedy found in films today?

Most people would say that appreciation of comedy is a matter of taste. But what is taste? Edmund Burke argued that taste is created mostly by experience, and given current circumstances, Burke may have hit it on the nose.

Most people today have been brought up with the skit format, as exemplified by burlesque, TV variety shows and "Saturday Night Live," in which a joke has to fly every

Films

Young Doctors In Love

On a rising scale of one to five stars:

★★

Twentieth Century Fox. Rated R. Written by Michael Elias and Rich Eustis. Directed by Garry Marshall.

Dr. Simon August.....Michael McKean.
Dr. Stephanie Brody.....Sean Young.
Dr. Prange.....Dabney Coleman.
Angie.....Hector Elizondo.

Showing at Campus I.

minute to make the show funny.

BUT IN ADDITION to these forms of entertainment, movie critics and many others have been exposed to the classy, multi-layered comedies of Frank Capra, Preston Sturges and Howard Hawks, which make variety shows pale in comparison.

Many critics enjoy "Saturday Night Live," but almost all film comedies today, from the Cheech and Chong films to Mel Brooks, are merely a series of skits, not necessarily related to the story, filmed to "get a laugh."

Instead of a star system, critics should use a laugh meter to tell the audience how many good jokes are in a film. If it's just a matter of taste, critics shouldn't begrudge the audience its pleasure.

Young Doctors in Love takes the skit format to its extreme, just as the film Airplane! did. In fact, Young Doctors borrows an excessive amount of its plotline and jokes from that aerial delight.

But the stars of this movie (Michael McKean and Sean Young as the lovelorn young doctors; Dabney Coleman as their mentor; Hector Elizondo as a gangster/transvestite) don't capitalize on the potential of its outrageous "gag-a-minute" humor as the all-star cast in Airplane! did. YOUNG DOCTORS also touts a number of cameos by soap opera stars (John Berardino, Stuart Damon and Jacklyn Zeman of "General Hospital"; Steven Ford and Jaime Lyn Bauer of "Young and the Restless," to name a few) but fails to capitalize on numerous chances to parody that genre.

Though it seems to have been a dream film on the part of producer Garry Marshall and 20th Century Fox — a movie cast in the mold of another hit film and advertised as a parody of a hit TV show — Young Doctors is a critic's nightmare.

But perhaps what should be critiqued here is not the producer's intentions or the critic's reactions but the audience response. Most people, including this critic, were laughing during the jokes, whether they were inventive or crude. Young Doctors is a non-stop barrage of those gags, many of which work, some of which don't, that has enough skin and swearing to keep it off TV.

As a film, Young Doctors in Love receives a two-star rating. The laugh meter rating, however, is four stars.

The Daily Iowan

Editor.....Craig Gemoules
News Editor.....Tim Eliason
University Editor.....Rochelle Bozman
Freelance Editor.....Cecily Tobin
Arts/Entertainment Editor.....Jeffrey Miller
Editorial Page Editor.....Liz Bird
Sports Editor.....Jay Christensen
Assistant Sports Editor.....Steve Batterson
Photography Editor.....Dirk VanDerwerker

Publisher, William Casey
Advertising Manager, Jim Leonard
Circulation Manager, Kevin Rogers
Production Superintendent, Dick Wilson

USPS 143-360
Opinions expressed on these pages are the opinions of the signed authors and may not necessarily be those of The Daily Iowan.
Published by Student Publications Inc., 111 Communications Center, Iowa City, Iowa, 52242, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, legal holidays and university vacations. Second-class postage paid at the post office at Iowa City under the Act of Congress of March 2, 1879.

Subscription rates: Iowa City and Coralville, $8-1 semester; $16-2 semesters. $5-summer session only; $21-full year. Out of town: $14-1 semester; $28-2 semesters; $7-summer session only; $35-full year.

DOONESBURY

by Garry Trudeau

Arts twice a week

Arts/entertainment will appear in place of the editorial page on Mondays and Thursdays throughout the summer. The editorial page will appear Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and will resume its normal five-day-per-week schedule again in the fall.

Symposium to age

By Jeff Beck
Staff Writer

There was talk of miracles, predictions and the dawning of Aquarius at a symposium held last weekend.

Hosted by 30 area groups, the Mind/Body/Spirit Symposium on the oneness of mind, body and voice, hopes for the coming of numerous subjects, including from acupuncture to astrology, metaphysical learning, were speakers on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

About 200 people participated in various programs, lectures and sessions at the Union, according to Wegman, an organizer of the and member of the New Age.

She said the symposium — a month of preparation — was to bring speakers to Iowa City to public about "New Age thought." "The New Age movement is she said. "People have fears but equate it with the Moonies."

"There are no dogmas or to love the phrase 'believe in nothing to everything.' We are just trying openings for people. They have

Iran could in OPEC

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The fact that Iran is likely to be a factor in determining the fate of Iran gaining a leadership organization if its forces topple the regime, former Energy Secretary Schlesinger said Sunday.

Schlesinger, interviewed on a week with David Brinkley '77, the Arab countries in the region to "commemorate" Iran in the event of victory over Iraq.

Asked if the Organization of Exporting Countries will be a factor in the Gulf ... It depends on political factors."

Schlesinger said that with a victory over Iraq, Iran "is likely to become the leader of OPEC."

HE SAID, "Already, Gulf Arab nations are preparing to accept Tehran in the event of an Iranian victory, giving Iranians a bigger role in the region's oil production." "I think OPEC is under pressure," said Schlesinger, defense secretary and CIA director under Nixon and Ford administrations secretary in the Carter administration.

Transit

Iowa City transit ridership was up over the previous fiscal year, according to figures provided by the Transit System.

More than 2.4 million passengers used Iowa City's transit system, representing an average of 46 passengers per resident in the Iowa City metropolitan area.

Officials from the transit system said an unusually severe winter could result in a decline in enrollment at the UI and

DOONESBURY

I THINK I'VE GOT THE SITUATION pretty well covered. BASICALLY, THE INVASION WAS A SIMPLE RESPONSE TO LEBANON-BASED P.L.O. TERRORIST ATTACKS ON NORTHERN ISRAELI SETTLEMENTS.

BURGER PALACE LARGER COKE smaller price 121 Iowa Avenue

Turn small change into big MONEY

It's a sure thing! Your junk is bound to be someone's treasure. An ad in this classified will bring out the bargain hunters.

DAILY IOWAN Classified 353-6201

Symposium looks at events leading to age of enlightening thought

By Jeff Beck
Staff Writer

There was talk of miracles, prophecy, predictions and the dawning of the Age of Aquarius at a symposium held in the Union last weekend.

Hosted by 30 area groups, the Mind/Body/Spirit Symposium focused on the oneness of mind, body and spirit and voiced hopes for the coming of a new age.

Numerous subjects, including everything from acupuncture to astrology to metaphysical learning, were addressed by speakers on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

About 200 people participated in the various programs, lectures and rap sessions at the Union, according to Marcia Wegman, an organizer of the symposium and member of the New Age School.

She said the symposium — a product of months of preparation — was organized to bring speakers to Iowa City to inform the public about "New Age thought."

"The New Age movement is not a cult," she said. "People have fears because they equate it with the Moonies."

"There are no dogmas or teachings...I love the phrase 'believe in nothing but open to everything.' We are just trying to make openings for people. They have to make the ultimate decisions if these things are valid for them," Wegman said.

OPENING the symposium was keynote speaker Dr. Joseph Jochmans with a lecture on New Age prophecies. The spiritual anthropologist and author used prophetic writing from the Bible, Saint Malachy, Nostradamus and Edgar Cayce to predict the coming of the New Age.

Jochmans said prophecies of "doom and gloom" pointed toward tremendous physical and geological upheavals at the turn of the 21st century.

He said a shifting of poles such as predicted in The Jupiter Effect could occur, devastating much of the earth.

These events, he said, would act as a transition to a new time, bringing civilization into the Age of Aquarius. He says this period will be a time of enlightenment, peace and invention.

But, Jochmans noted, "prophecy is conditional." Through meditation, love and adjustment to New Age philosophies people can lessen physical strife and bring themselves into the Age of Aquarius, he said.

"In the long run you have the ability to make a difference," he said. "From knowledge comes choice, from choice comes responsibility, from responsibility comes the future." ANOTHER SPEAKER at the conference also made predictions. Gar Osten, an astrologer and author, spoke on the astrological future of the United States.

He too saw the coming of an Aquarian Age after a period of upheaval, but made several more immediate predictions.

Osten said his examination of the U.S. chart and of the individual charts of officials in the Reagan administration shows tough times ahead for the country.

"The period we are entering is a period of crisis. Times such that we haven't seen since 1776 when we were struggling for survival," he said.

Osten predicted Reagan will not finish his term because of death or the disclosure of some incongruities in his administration.

"Things are not what they seem to be (in the administration)," he said.

Other groups at the symposium dealt with methods of physical and spiritual healing. One group demonstrated a system of kinesiology used for testing body functions. Michael Goodman, of Nutrition Testing, showed people how they can diagnose their own health problems simply.

Another group discussed a course in love and mending relationships called "A Course in Miracles."

Iran could become paramount force in OPEC if victory gained over Iraq

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The war between Iran and Iraq is likely to be a decisive factor in determining the fate of OPEC, with Iran gaining a leadership role in the organization if its forces topple the Iraqi regime, former Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said Sunday.

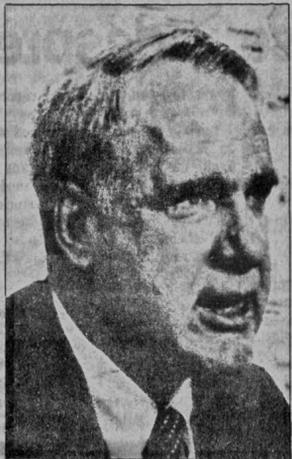

Schlesinger, interviewed on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" program, said the Arab countries in the region would "accommodate" Iran in the event of an Iranian victory over Iraq.

Asked if the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will survive, Schlesinger said, "That depends on the geopolitics of the Gulf... It depends very deeply on political factors."

Schlesinger said that with a victory over Iraq, Iran "is likely to become once again the leader of OPEC."

HE SAID, "Already, Gulf Arabs have indicated they are prepared to accommodate Tehran in the event of an Iranian victory" by giving Iranians a bigger quota and sustaining their own production.

"I think OPEC is under severe pressure," said Schlesinger, who was defense secretary and CIA director in the Nixon and Ford administrations and energy secretary in the Carter administration.

James Schlesinger

Last week Iran, led by Islamic fundamentalist Ayatollah Khomeini, invaded Iraq, led by Sadaam Hussein. The action was in retaliation for Hussein's unsuccessful invasion of Iran two years ago. Khomeini has called for the removal of Hussein and installment of a regime similar to his own in Baghdad.

State Department officials said last week the United States would be willing to hold joint military maneuvers with friendly countries in the Persian Gulf who feel threatened by Iran's military thrust. The United States is officially neutral in the conflict.

SEN. HENRY JACKSON, D-Wash., appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," said there would be little effect on American fuel supplies if Iran were victorious and the fighting stopped there.

"The real danger lies in the possibility that the Iranians might then move into Kuwait and move on down the Gulf. That's the clear and present danger facing not only the United States, but also all the countries getting oil from the Persian Gulf," he said.

Jackson, a member of the Senate's Intelligence, Armed Services and Energy committees, said if there were a total cutoff of Persian Gulf oil, an international agreement about sharing shortages probably would be triggered. That agreement takes effect when shortages among member nations hit 7 percent.

Transit ridership shows increase

Iowa City transit ridership was up 15 percent over the previous fiscal year according to figures provided the Iowa City Transit System.

More than 2.4 million passengers crowded onto Iowa City's transit vehicles, representing an average of 46.6 trips per resident in the Iowa City metropolitan area.

Officials from the transit department said an unusually severe winter, increased enrollment at the UI and increased ridership on evenings and Saturdays contributed to the rise in the figures.

Saturday ridership was up 16.4 percent and evening ridership increased by more than 29 percent.

In other city business, a resolution authorizing the suspension of the liquor license of Micky's bar was included in the Iowa City Council packet.

Micky's, 11 S. Dubuque St., may lose its license for a 14-day period starting Aug. 1 because employee Joyce Taylor pleaded guilty in Johnson County Magistrate Court to a charge of selling beer to a minor on March 26, 1982.

Under the Iowa code, on a first suspension the violator's liquor control license must be suspended for 14 days.

The council will also consider an ordinance to approve the planned development of Walden Wood. The area in question, where 26 condominium dwellings in 13 duplexes are to be built, is located in the northwest quadrant of the intersection of Mormon Trek Road and Rohret Road.

DOONESBURY

by Garry Trudeau

BURGER PALACE LARGER COKE smaller price
121 Iowa Avenue

Turn small change into big MONEY
Parley a glance into a pile in the Classifieds!
It's a sure thing! Your junk is bound to be someone's treasure. An ad in the Classifieds will bring out the bargain hunters.

DAILY IOWAN
Classified
353-6201

ROSSINI'S The Barber of Seville
Sung in English
The University of Iowa
July 22 & 24 at 8:00 p.m.
In Hancher

A lather of good singing...
Tickets on sale at the Hancher Box Office, Iowa City
Ph. 353-6255 or toll-free 1-800-272-6458
$10/$8 ($2 less for UI students) • Special Group Rates Available

Help Prevent Birth Defects — The Nation's Number One Child Health Problem.

Support the March of Dimes BIRTH DEFECTS FOUNDATION

This space contributed by the publisher.

Amtrak

- Economy Individual Fares
- 25% and 50% Family Plan Fares
- Convenient Accommodations

For Information & Reservations Call or See:
Travel Services Inc.
216 First Ave. Coralville, IA
319-354-2424 or 800-272-6451

AMERICA'S GETTING INTO TRAINING

Micky's Bar & Grill
MONDAY
$1.50 Pitchers of Michelob
8-closing

BIJOU
La Salamandre

Bulle Ogier stars as a spacey, kinky woman who may or may not have shot her uncle. Two writers set out to discover the truth, and prose and reality are opposed. Directed by Alain Tanner (Messidor). In French.
Monday 7:00

Orson and Rita reflect on their unfortunate marriage in this story of murder and betrayal.
Mon. 9:15
Tues. 7

THE LADY FROM SHANGHAI

MARGARITA MADNESS

The Sycamore Eating & Drinking Co. wants to thank its customers for a successful 4th Birthday Celebration.

All week each night til Closing Mon.-Fri.
99¢ Margaritas
99¢ Strawberry Dacquiris

SYCAMORE EATING & DRINKING COMPANY
Sycamore Mall 351-8838

ALL AMERICAN 19¢ 16 oz. COKE

DELI with the purchase of any sandwich or sub or chef salad at our regular price. Offer good thru July 27th.
Old Capitol-I.C./Westdale-C.R./Southridge-D.M.

University Box Office
on sale this week:

- Grateful Dead concert
UI Field House
On sale 11 am to 8 pm M-S, Noon to 5 Su
- Gemini, E.C. Mabie
- Sweet Charity, E.C. Mabie
- Midsummer Night's Dream, E.C. Mabie
- Bijou Films, IMU (tickets on sale 1/2 hour before first film)
- Popcorn (during films only)

Phone 353-4158

Ticket Sale Hours: 11 am-9 pm M-S, Noon-5 pm Sun
Check Cashing Hours: 9 am-9 pm M-S, Noon-5 pm Sun.

IMU
IOWA MEMORIAL UNION

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by EUGENE T. MALESKA

ACROSS

- Explosion
- Waterlily's leaf
- In regard to
- Two below par, to Nicklaus
- Bustle
- Meld
- Corpulent
- Soft drinks
- Poker variety
- Seven —
- Writer St. Johns
- Slalom, e.g.
- Fence in
- Esthetic affection
- Alpine "music"
- Board game
- Touch
- Ancient missile hurler
- Exasperated
- Grande or Bravo
- Criticize unmercifully
- Stadium near LaGuardia Airport
- Poker variety
- "— created equal"
- Kind of eel
- Nitwits
- "— mightiest in the mightiest": Shak.
- Gave an edge to
- Name venerated in Dublin, familiarly
- Corrode

DOWN

- Outwits
- Potter's wheel
- Israeli coin
- Twists sideways
- Henri's head
- State of delight
- Love rapturously
- Scribble
- Early church pulpit
- Perceived
- Guitar part
- Dreadful person
- Lawyer's "thing"
- Fed
- Ale's partner
- Jeer or flier
- Wheel: Prefix
- Norse god of discord
- Lyric literature
- Turkish province
- Actress Lanchester
- Ecclesiastical proceedings
- Nose: Prefix
- Bell sound
- "A Loss of Roses" playwright
- Univ. degree
- Most grating
- Superior group
- Innisfail
- Contribute
- Roman halls
- Ice-cream measure
- Reddish brown
- Fervid
- Battery terminal
- Deer's track
- Drop heavily
- Lake near Tokyo
- Criterion
- Noted N.Y. newspaper publisher
- Missing: Abbr.

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
14					15			16
17					18			19
20					21
22					23
24					25			26	27	28	29	30
31	32	33	34		35			36
37					38			39
40					41
42					43	44	45
46					47			48	49	50	51
52	53	54	55					56
57								58
59								60
62								63

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ROSA LIND MOORE
EMERSON RAVENS
DOWD RICE SHADAN
GIMMEL DOTE
BEST MASTER
LUIS SCONES
OULAN WELLS BIP
LINDOFT HEVALLIN
VAL NOTED VOKEL
DOWALS GENE
DEATED GLEUL
ADME DUDORA
JOHNE LOVHANE
ACTUAL OVERSELL
HAPPY BIRTHDAY

prairie lights books
"best bookstore within hundreds of miles"
—D.M. Register

Arts twice a week

Arts/entertainment will appear in place of the editorial page on Mondays and Thursdays throughout the summer. The editorial page will appear Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and will resume its normal five-day-per-week schedule again in the fall.

NOW encouraged to target opponents

By Scott Sonner
Staff Writer

The Republican Right, the Catholic Church hierarchy and fundamentalists are women's biggest opponents in their struggle to maintain reproductive rights, a national vice president for the National Organization for Women said in a speech Sunday.

Jane Wells-Schooley, who heads NOW's campaign against abortion and birth control, arrived at Iowa's state convention after participating in a 5,000-strong counter-demonstration at the National Right to Life Committee's convention in New Jersey.

She told state conventioners in Iowa City she is not concerned about reports that the opposition is changing its "pickled fetus" tactics in an attempt to gain respectability and popularity.

"IT DOESN'T MATTER what the National Right to Life is doing because they are not really the enemy. They are the visible front for the people who are really the opposition — the people who are doing the funding," Wells-Schooley said.

The Republican Right, the Catholic Church hierarchy, fundamentalists "and those who profit from keeping women barefoot and pregnant" are responsible for the push, she said.

In researching the National Right to Life Committee's convention brochure, Wells-Schooley said half of the 200 advertisements were purchased by Catholic churches or affiliates of Catholic churches.

"We're not necessarily talking about the Catholic people. The Catholic people have never been against reproductive rights. We're talking about the Catholic hierarchy, which is completely male, as you know," she said.

WELLS-SCHOOLEY urged Iowans to continue a mail assault on the other source of opposition: the Republican Right.

All prime sponsors of anti-abortion legislation in the U.S. Senate are Republicans, she said. Signers of such bills in the Senate are 3-1 Republican and in the House the ratio runs about 2-1 Republican.

"President Reagan sent an 8-minute message to the National Right to Life Committee calling for the full protection of the fertilized egg in the eyes of the law," Wells-Schooley said. "And Jerry Fallwell has his 'save the babies' campaign. Everybody is jumping on the bandwagon because it is the kind of issue that brings in the money," she said.

Shelly Bain, an Iowa NOW coordinator, said she contacts Iowa's legislators regularly to find out the status of anti-abortion legislation and express dissatisfaction with the stands of some representatives.

CALLING FOR the removal of politicians who oppose their cause, Wells-Schooley said Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, "in particular is a first-terminer. We should make this his last."

Bain said perhaps more support could be gathered to oppose Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, because of his extreme views.

But Wells-Schooley said she thinks Grassley is more vulnerable because Jepsen is associated with the New Right. "They are more likely to protect Jepsen ... he is a pawn. He is clearly one of their babies."

She told activists to educate women about the opposition's use of "hot" words that evoke emotionalism, such as "killing, murders, slavery and holocaust."

"Our side uses cold words, like 'choice.' Choice versus murder just doesn't make it. If you put 'choice' bumper sticker on your car, the average person behind you would not have the slightest idea what you are talking about," she said.

ONE FIRST-YEAR NOW member said before she joined the group she thought "choice meant USDA choice meat."

Wells-Schooley said the organization should begin using the word "decision" instead of choice because choice leads you into the convenience argument ... Decisions, by their definition, are hard," she said.

The word "decision" is more appropriate because "if you are pregnant and don't want to be, no choice exists. Abortion is the only decision you can make at the time," Wells-Schooley said.

She said the organization's goal "is to create enough controversy and noise in the Senate that they will be afraid to bring it up before the elections."

Media

barrassed that a reporter was present during her comments about manipulating the media.

"I don't mean to purposely or badly manipulate the media. Just teach women that mainline power has to come from the media," she said.

Wolrabe told approximately 15 NOW members not to be discouraged about apparent lack of interest in women's issues.

"When you see the story on page seven instead of page one it makes you think we aren't getting anywhere with the media, but we are," she said. The image of feminists in the news is improving because they are learning "to work with the media instead of against it," Wolrabe said.

"You have to get in the frame of mind that everything you do is newsworthy and if it isn't, you're going to make it newsworthy."

She said, however, the most important thing to remember about dealing with the media is financial considerations.

"YOU CAN GIVE press releases, you can give public service announcements, you can give all the news story information and act like the crazy, ranting and raving up on the soap box, but you have to remember that from every media, at least one time a year, make sure you buy an advertisement," she said.

"It's a payback system so they don't think you are using them," Wolrabe said. It is also a good idea to get to know reporters personally.

"There is nothing wrong with taking a reporter out for a beer. They are dedicated to their job, they work 20 hours a day. I think there are more alcoholics as journalists than any other business ... let them tell you how they are the best reporter on the staff and can't get a promotion," she said.

Wolrabe said she would rather criticize her own group than blame the media for poor coverage. "I have to get mad at us, then there's nobody else to blame — except the Republicans."

NOW

of dedicated feminists to a large group of dedicated feminists," Collins said.

Iowa NOW members told about the lobbying skills they developed while helping Collins and other Illinois activists unsuccessfully work for the amendment's ratification in the Illinois Legislature.

Women's ability to play the games of "power politics" will be the key to the organization's success in the future, Collins said.

Illinois legislators received over 1 million pieces of mail on ERA, and Gov. James Thompson received 17,000 pieces in one week, she said.

"THAT IS A sign of the support for the thing, but it is also a sign of the resistance," Collins said.

The movement's newest, most dedicated opponents are not the people throwing up "smokescreen issues" such as drafting women and bisexual restrooms — rather the resistance comes from big businesses and corporations that realize ERA could hurt them financially, she said.

"Insurance companies and other companies that benefit from sex discrimination had a sound lobby in the capital ... They have figured out the price tag. They are worried people might get equal pay for equal work," she said.

Playing power politics means electing women to state legislatures, but it also means threatening male legislators with a weapon that has become part of the organization's arsenal: the gender gap.

The gender gap refers to the difference in voting behavior between men and women that emerged for the first time two years ago, Collin said.

"WOMEN VOTED differently than men in 1980. For the first time, women were willing to say they wouldn't vote for someone who doesn't stand for the things they believe in. We are getting through to people," she said.

Collins said the gender gap on the popularity of Thompson — "the man who killed the ERA in Illinois" — was running at 18 percent last spring.

NOW's move into a more "political period" may see the group supporting Democratic candidates for office.

"We pride ourselves in being bipartisan. But we have to face up to reality. 80 percent of our votes came from Democrats, 20 percent from Republicans," Collins said. She said NOW members must reward the party that supports them and would probably support a male Democrat over a female Republican.

She warned, however, the "tricky part" of joining efforts with a political party is finding a way to have influence without "becoming just envelope stuffers."

ORGANIZATION at the local, state and federal levels is essential to the movement at this time, Collins said.

It is still a major problem trying to contact NOW members in some cities. "After 15 years, its time that somebody could find us in the phone book," she said.

In a move to bolster Iowa's NOW, state conventioners voted Sunday to create the group's first paid staff position.

Diana Miller Jones, a NOW activist from Iowa City, said the idea for the half-time assistant came from work with staffers in Illinois and the feeling that the "work of this organization is too extensive to be handled only by volunteer time."

"I would have died there without the support of the other women there," she said. The new staffer will begin assisting Miller Jones in research, chapter development and organized lobbying in September.

Lightning, rain cause widespread damage

By Jeff Beck
Staff Writer

Thunderstorms Saturday night dumped about 3 inches of rain on Johnson County, causing damage and generating numerous complaints.

Reports of fallen tree branches, flooded secondary roads and electrical outages were widespread.

Iowa City firefighters responded to two incidents of lightning striking houses, both of which caused considerable damage.

One of the calls occurred at 430 Brown Street, where lightning hit the roof of the house and caused extensive damage to electrical outlets, switches, a fuse panel and a television set.

Lightning also hit the N.B. MacFarlane residence, blowing out an electrical outlet and setting a mattress and bedding on fire.

"IT'S NOT UNUSUAL to have lightning strike, but it is unusual to have damage like that," firefighter Elmer Beckler said about the storm.

There were other accounts at the Iowa City police station of lightning striking in the area. One bolt apparently triggered a civil defense siren in the area surrounding Seville Apartments.

Local electric companies reported outages as a result of the storm, but services were restored to all local customers by Sunday afternoon. Some power lines and poles were reported downed by the storm.

The 3 inches of rain combined with an inch of rain Friday night, causing problems on secondary roads in Johnson County. At 1 a.m. Sunday, there was a report of a vehicle stuck on Sand Road near Iowa City. The road and other gravel and blacktop secondaries were closed Sunday, according to Johnson County officials.

NO MAJOR ROADS in the county were closed, but Highway 6 was flooded outside of the county borders.

Though some communities along the Iowa River were in danger of flooding Sunday night, Iowa City was not, according to Miles Schumacher, a National Weather Service specialist in Des Moines.

He said all but the northern part of Iowa was under a flash flood watch and the English, Iowa and Skunk rivers are at flood stage in some places.

Heavy winds also caused damage in the area. At the corner of Rocky Shore Drive and Highway 6 barricades were strewn and traffic lights were blown into the roadway.

There were also numerous reports in Johnson County of tree branches falling and in one case, a tree fell, blocking a North Liberty road.

Schumacher said additional rain could cause similar problems and aggravate flooding conditions.

the crow's nest
328 e. washington and tony brown present

In Concert
TONIGHT
&
TUESDAY

THE TWINKLE BROS.

Rockers Reggae
Ska

3 FERS
Triple shot bar highballs and 3 draws for the price of one
9-10:30

Let T.G.I.F. help you plan your weekends

Red Stallion Lounge
Live Country-Rock Nightly
This Week:
Larry Martin & Cherry Creek

SPECIALS

Mon. & Tues	Wednesday	Thursday
$1.75 Pitchers	Champagne Night	Margarita Night
	25¢ Glass 8-10 pm

Private Party Accommodations Available.
Exit 242 (1-80) One Block Behind Hawkeye Truck Stop

CAMPUS THEATRES
OLD CAPITOL CENTER

1 Continuous Daily!
1:30, 3:30
5:30, 7:30, 9:30

Young Doctors in Love

2 NOW SHOWING
Continuous Daily!
2:00, 4:30, 7:00, 9:30

SOMEWHERE IN THE DARKEST REACHES OF THE UNIVERSE, A BATTLE IS ABOUT TO BEGIN

STAR TREK II: THE WRATH OF KHAN

3 Continuous Daily!
NOW SHOWING
1:30, 4:00, 6:30, 9:00

SYLVESTER STALLONE
TALIA SHIRE

The Greatest Challenge
ROCKY III

ASIRO
NOW SHOWING!
CONTINUOUS DAILY!

1:30, 3:45
7:00, 9:30

He is afraid. He is totally alone.

E.T. THE EXTRA-TERRESTRIAL

IOWA
Held & Moved!
5th Big Week!

Weeknights at 6:45 & 9:30
Sat & Sun 1:15, 4:00, 6:45, 9:30

FIREFOX
CLINT EASTWOOD
...the most devastating killing machine ever built...

GINEMA-1
Mail Shopping Center

NOW SHOWING
Weeknights 7:15 & 9:30
Sat & Sun
2:15, 4:30, 7:15, 9:30

"They're here."
IT KNOWS WHAT SCARES YOU
POLTERGEIST

GINEMA-2
Mail Shopping Center

NOW SHOWING
Weeknights 7:00 & 9:20
Sat & Sun
2:00, 4:15, 7:00, 9:20

HARRISON FORD
BLADE RUNNER

MAGOO'S

BAD JOKE NIGHT
$1.50 Pitchers

Tell us your worst groaner to get discount
Free Dental Floss to 1st, 2nd, 3rd Place Winners

206 N. Linn

The Daily Iowan

This is no ordinary get-together!

SUMMER REP '82

A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM
Shakespeare's most popular and captivating comedy.
Dreamers of all ages will be charmed as the story unfolds the complications of love, with magic and mystery, in the enchanted Athenian forest.

FINAL PERFORMANCE JULY 20

All performances are at 8:00 p.m. unless otherwise indicated.
Performance tickets available at Hancher Box Office (319) 353-6255 and toll-free (800) 272-6456 or IMU box office.

American League

East	W	L	Pct.	GB
Milw.	53	35	.602
Balt.	47	39	.547	1 1/2
Detroit	45	42	.517	7 1/2
New York	43	42	.506	8 1/2
Clev.	43	43	.500	9
Toronto	41	47	.466	12
West
Calif.	51	39	.567
Kan. City	48	40	.545	2
Chicago	45	42	.517	4 1/2
Seattle	46	44	.511	5
Oakland	38	54	.413	14
Texas	35	50	.412	13 1/2
Minn.	29	62	.319	22 1/2

Sunday's results

Toronto 5, Texas 4, 10 innings
New York 7, Oakland 3
Baltimore 4, Seattle 3
Minnesota 6, Detroit 1
Kansas City 9, Boston 0
Cleveland 5, California 4
Milwaukee 9, Chicago 3

Monday's games

Kansas City (back 3-2) at Toronto
St. Louis (back 6-3) at Milwaukee
Chicago (Lamp 6-4) at Detroit
Pitt. (Lamp 6-5) at Philadelphia (1-3), 6:35
Texas (Medich 7-7) at Boston

Sportsbriefs

Rohde wins Masters

Mark Rohde survived the waters of Squaw Creek to finish under-par 67 and win the annual Iowa Masters Golf Tournament Sunday at the Veenker golf course in Ames.

Rohde, a professional Marshalltown, who now makes his home in Lake Montezuma, Ariz., the only player to match par in an 18-hole tournament. He recorded 67 for a 207 total and won $25,000.

Three inches of rain Friday Sunday morning swelling Squaw Creek over its banks. Twice on the Sunday morning the water in the Rohde removed his shoes and waded through knee-deep water.

The leader after the first two holes — Gene Elliott, of Bettendorf.

DI

PRELIMINARY NOTES

PUBLISHER'S WARNING
The Daily Iowan recommends that you investigate every phase of investment opportunities. We suggest you consult your own attorney or ask for a free pamphlet and advice from the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, Hoover Building, Des Moines, Iowa 50319. Phone 515-281-5926.

ERRORS
When an advertisement contains an error which is not the fault of the advertiser, the liability of The Daily Iowan shall not exceed supplying a correction letter and a correct insertion for the space occupied by the incorrect item, not the entire advertisement. No responsibility is assumed for more than one incorrect insertion of an advertisement. A correction will be published in a subsequent issue providing the advertiser reports the error or omission on the day that it occurs.

PERSONAL

DAILY ALBUM SPECIAL!
MONDAY
DARYL HALL & JOHN OATES
"Private Eyes" $4.79
STEELY DAN
"Gaucho" $3.99
SMALL FACES
"Playmates" 99¢

All prices drastically reduced!!
Cut-outs as low as 6¢/29¢!
HAWKEYE VACUUM & SEWING
725 South Gilbert

INTERESTING foreign graduate student such of school seeks fun-loving female companion for vacation to anyplace interesting, 2/3 weeks in August. Write in confidence box JJJ-3, The Daily Iowan. 7-23

DECORATE your wedding with ferns, palms, etc. Available for rent from PLANTS ALIVE 354-4463. 7-22

WHAT? Another greeting card? Surprise someone with balloons in a box. Shipped daily in the continental United States. For all occasions. Silver Satellite Express. 354-3471. 9-13

FUN aloner male desires uninhibited attractive female (camping, rafting, fishing, P.O. Box 708, Iowa City, Ia. 7-28

QUIET, intense, goodlooking writer seeks sensitive, attractive, laughing woman, 22-35, for occasional dancing, dining, camping, or films. P.O. Box 1904. 7-23

VACUUM CLEANERS! SAVE up to 50% on new, used and reprocessed. Hoover, Eureka, Kirby, Electrolux and Panasonic. HAWKEYE VACUUM, 725 South Gilbert. 338-9158. 7-20

HAPPILY married couple with much love and security to give desires to adopt white newborn. Confidential. Call collect 1-212-712-3335. 7-30

RED ROSE vintage and good used clothing at terrific prices. In Hall Mall, above Jackson's (downtown plaza area). Stop in! 9-13

Postscripts Column
Mail or bring to Rm. 201 Commons. Items may be edited for length, and events for which admission is charged, except meeting announcements.

Event
Sponsor
Day, date, time
Location
Person to call regarding

American League

Table with columns: Team, W, L, Pct., GB. Rows include Milwaukee, Boston, Baltimore, Detroit, New York, Cleveland, Texas, Toronto, West, Sunday's results, Monday's games.

National League

Table with columns: Team, W, L, Pct., GB. Rows include Philadelphia, St. Louis, Montreal, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Houston, Atlanta, New York, St. Paul, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Oakland, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Chicago.

Sportsbriefs

Rohde wins Masters

Mark Rohde survived the flood waters of Squaw Creek to fire a two-under-par 67 and win the 44th annual Iowa Masters Golf Tournament Sunday at the Venken golf course in Ames.

Firm grip on drugs

A Madison, Wis., firm is scheduled to present a four-day training session this week for UI athletic department personnel on drug and alcohol abuse.

HELP WANTED

DAY CARE DIRECTOR Position available August 1. Melrose Day Care Center is seeking a director with BA in early childhood or elementary education. Teaching - administrative - budgeting experience desirable. Salary range, $12,000 - $15,500. Send resume to Search Committee, c/o 2803 Hillside Drive, Iowa City, IA 52240. 7-21

HELP WANTED

PROFESSIONAL TYPEWRITER. IBM Correcting Service. Call Marlene after 5:30pm. 353-7829. 7-29

LOST & FOUND

LOST Monday - Pentacrest bus - grey/white wool Mexican shawl. Reward: 333-7389, 354-1386. 7-20

DI Classifieds

Room 111 Communications Center 11 am deadline for new ads & cancellations

MISC. FOR SALE

COUCH with matching love seat. $150. Kitchen table with four chairs. $180. Double bed complete. $20. 354-0787. 7-27

APARTMENT FOR RENT

ONE bedroom attic apartment plus study for couple. $335 utilities included. 337-4785. 9-22

HOUSING WANTED

FIVE upperclassmen seek 4-5 bedroom house for August/fall. 351-0572. 7-29

PRELIMINARY NOTES

PUBLISHER'S WARNING The Daily Iowan recommends that you investigate every phase of investment opportunities. We suggest you consult your own attorney or ask for a free pamphlet and advice from the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, Hoover Building, Des Moines, Iowa 50319. Phone 515-281-9296.

PERSONAL

FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE The Daily Iowan now offers Park & Shop Bus & Shop with the purchase of an ad - $5 minimum

PERSONAL SERVICE

HOLISTIC Stress Management Workshop with CEU credit. July 24, Ironman Inn. Pre-registration required. 325.337-6998. 7-23

DI Classifieds

COME see the most impressive selection of out-of-print records for sale in Iowa City. Records added to SENATIONAL COMICS. 314 E. Broadway. 338-8427. 7-23

NEW RENTING FOR FALL

DownTown Brand New Large three bedroom RALSTON CREEK APARTMENTS 351-5391

PERSONAL

DAILY ALBUM SPECIAL! MONDAY DARYL HALL & JOHN OATES "Private Eyes" $4.79 "Gaucho" $3.99 "Playmates" 99c

PERSONAL SERVICE

THE MEDICINE STORE in Coralville where it costs less to keep healthy. 354-4554. 9-22

HELP WANTED

PRODUCER/WRITER University Public Information office seeks experienced (1-3 years) professional to produce and write video and audio messages and news features. Some narration required. Bachelor's Degree required. Send application letter and resume to Tom Bauer, Broadcast News Service, The University of Iowa, Iowa City, IA 52242. The University of Iowa is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. 7-21

DI Classifieds

Have a bike to "Peddle" The Daily Iowan will do it for you

HOUSE FOR RENT

ACREAGE for sale or rent with three bedroom house 10 acres. out-buildings. 15 minutes from Iowa City. Will sell on contract, good terms. 1-629-4447 after 4:30pm. 7-30

PERSONAL

INTERESTING foreign graduate student job of school teacher. Female companion for vacation to anyplace interesting. 2/3 weeks in August. Write in confidence box JU-3. The Daily Iowan. 7-23

HELP WANTED

WE RENT MACHINES! SALES SERVICE RENTALS SUPPLIES We service most all makes STEVE'S TYPEWRITER 816 South Gilbert 351-7929

DI Classifieds

1973 Honda CB550K. Excellent condition, only 5700 miles. $950. Call 338-2841. 7-20

DI Classifieds

1974 Ford Torino, good condition, dependable. 7:30pm. 337-4539. 7-29

DI Classifieds

1977 Chevy Impala 4-door. Very clean, air, cruise, excellent condition. 70,000 miles. $3400 or best offer. Call 338-1564 anytime. 7-26

Postscripting Column Blank

Mail or bring to Rm. 201 Communications Center. Deadline for next-day publication is 3 pm. Items may be edited for length, and in general, will not be published more than once. Notice of events for which admission is charged will not be accepted. Notice of political events will not be accepted, except meeting announcements of recognized student groups. Please print.

THE DAILY IOWAN

has openings in the following areas for summer and fall: Kimball Rd., Whiting *Morningside, College, 7th Ave., Lowell *E. Davenport, E. Bloomington, Cedar, *E. Fairchild *5th St., 14th Ave., Coralville

DI Classifieds

1974 Ford Mustang, Good transportation. 70,000 miles. $2400 or best offer. Call 338-1564 anytime. 7-26

DI Classifieds

1974 Plymouth Arrow GT, air, stereo, 3800 miles. 337-4097 or 338-2464. 7-19

DI Classifieds

1974 Honda CB550K. Excellent condition, only 5700 miles. $950. Call 338-2841. 7-20

Postscripting Column Blank

Mail or bring to Rm. 201 Communications Center. Deadline for next-day publication is 3 pm. Items may be edited for length, and in general, will not be published more than once. Notice of events for which admission is charged will not be accepted. Notice of political events will not be accepted, except meeting announcements of recognized student groups. Please print.

THE DAILY IOWAN

has openings in the following areas for summer and fall: Kimball Rd., Whiting *Morningside, College, 7th Ave., Lowell *E. Davenport, E. Bloomington, Cedar, *E. Fairchild *5th St., 14th Ave., Coralville

DI Classifieds

1974 Ford Torino, good condition, dependable. 7:30pm. 337-4539. 7-29

DI Classifieds

1977 Chevy Impala 4-door. Very clean, air, cruise, excellent condition. 70,000 miles. $3400 or best offer. Call 338-1564 anytime. 7-26

DI Classifieds

1974 Ford Mustang, Good transportation. 70,000 miles. $2400 or best offer. Call 338-1564 anytime. 7-26

Watson bags fourth British Open

TROON, Scotland (UPI) — Accepting an unexpected gift from a most surprising source, Tom Watson completed a rare double Sunday by winning his fourth British Open championship in eight years by one shot.

Watson, the brightest star in golf, assumed he had failed in his bid to add the British Crown to the U.S. Open championship he won a month ago when his 18-foot birdie attempt barely fell short on the final hole.

But a half hour later Watson accepted the championship medal and the $57,600 first prize when longshot Nick Price of South Africa blew a six-foot

British Open scores

At Troon, Scotland (Par 72)
Tom Watson, U.S., $57,600	69-71-74-70—284
Nick Price, S. Africa, 34,740	69-69-74-73—285
Peter Oosterhuis, Brit., 34,740	74-67-74-70—285
Nick Faldo, Brit., 19,800	73-73-71-69—286
Des Smyth, Ire., 19,800	70-69-74-73—286
Masahiro Kurum, Jpn., 19,800	71-73-71-71—286
Tom Purtzer, U.S., 19,800	76-66-75-69—286

putt on the 17th hole.

"My first reaction when I finished was that I didn't expect to be a champion today," Watson said. "When I left that putt short I felt I had an outside chance to get into a playoff. But I didn't expect to be the champion today.

"I DON'T THINK I've ever been in a position where a man has given me a championship from so far ahead."

Watson, who had started the day three shots behind leader Bobby Clampett, needed an eagle on the 11th hole to climb back into contention and he wound up with a two-under-par 70 for a 72-hole total of four-under 284. Price, settling for a 73 despite six birdies, fell back into a tie for second at 285 with Peter Oosterhuis, who had a 70.

Price, listed as a 150-1 shot before the tournament, appeared to take command when he birdied three consecutive holes to start the back nine, giving him a three-shot advantage with only six holes to play.

But although Watson could not get the birdie he so desperately wanted on the last three holes, barely missing on the 16th as well as the 18th, Price yielded to the immense pressure with a double-bogey on the 15th hole, falling back into a tie with Watson.

WITH PROSPECTS looming for an 18-hole playoff Monday, Price bogied the short 17th hole when his six-foot putt rolled to the right. He then missed a desperation 35-foot attempt for a birdie on the final hole.

Clampett, the leader for the first three rounds, fell out of the running early with five bogies in the front nine and he wound up with a 77 for 288, where he was tied with Jack Nicklaus, who closed with a fine 69.

Watson, 31, thus became only the fifth player to win the U.S. and British championships in the same year and the first to do so since Lee Trevino in 1971.

Tom Watson

Federal agents check on Dolphins

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Former Miami Dolphins running backs Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick have been linked to members of a $300 million drug organization, it was reported Sunday.

In a copyright story in the Sunday edition of the Fort Lauderdale NewsSun-Sentinel, the newspaper said federal agents in New Orleans were investigating Csonka and Kiick after their names surfaced in the "Operation Grouper" marijuana bust.

Neither Csonka nor Kiick has been charged with any wrongdoing and the newspaper said federal authorities had no immediate plans to bring charges against them.

"Operation Grouper" was the code name of a massive federal investigation that led to 165 indictments last year. Police said the ring operated in Louisiana, Georgia and Florida and grossed some $300 million a year.

THE PROBE BEGAN in the fall of 1978 and involved both federal and state agents posing as experts in getting marijuana ashore. The undercover agents offered drug smugglers secure harbors to dock their marijuana-laden ships and work crews to unload the illegal weed.

The newspaper said investigators do not believe Csonka and Kiick were involved in the ring, but sought independently to set up their own smuggling operation.

An undercover agent was quoted as saying he was contacted by Csonka and Kiick in November 1980 about "putting together a marijuana deal."

"We met them and they wanted to use our off-loading services," the agent said. "But the deal fell through. We told them to come back when they had it all set up. I can't tell you any more about it."

THE NEWSPAPER SAID the telephone call and meeting were taped.

The newspaper said their alleged involvement was first revealed on April 8, 1981 — three weeks after the Grouper indictments — by a New Orleans television station.

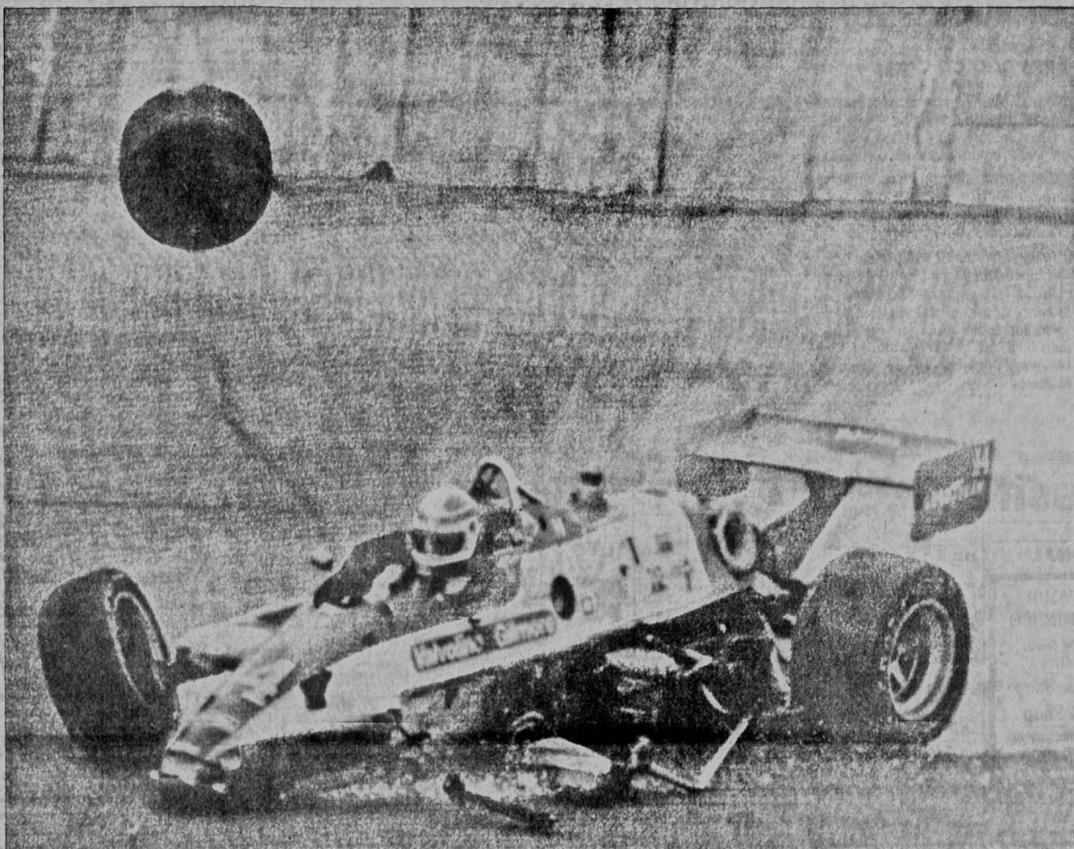

The copyright story quoted Assistant U.S. Attorney Patrick Fanning, chief of the narcotics section in New Orleans, as saying the year-old investigation of Csonka and Kiick involves people who were indicted in the "Operation Grouper" case.

"We haven't been able to devote much time to it (the Csonka-Kiick probe) but it is an open case and we are continuing our investigation. Beyond that I cannot comment."

Reached at his Ohio farm, Csonka told the newspaper he was not aware of the investigation.

"I WASN'T AWARE there ever was a case," Csonka said. "I talked to the U.S. attorney in New Orleans, they sent me a subpoena to appear before the grand jury and I made that appearance. That's all the contact I've had with them. What else would you want me to say? It would be silly for me to comment on such a one-sided story."

The newspaper story said Kiick was in Denver and unavailable for comment.

United Press International

A tiring day

A race car driven by A.J. Foyt slides into the infield of the Michigan International Speedway Sunday moments after it was struck by a car driven by Hector Rebaque. The accident occurred on the 148th lap of the Norton 500-mile CART race, won by Gordon Johncock. Foyt suffered a puncture wound to his left leg, a sore ankle and a bruised tailbone but was treated and released from the infield hospital. Mario Andretti finished second in the race.

Book shows ugly side of sports

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Tates Locke's on-again, off-again basketball coaching career is off again, and this time he thinks it's for good because of his controversial book "Caught in the Net" about the ugly side of college sports — cheating in recruiting.

But five months after the book hit the streets, Locke says it was all worth it. Telling his story about a five-year career at Clemson that led to NCAA penalties and cost him his job has made him "feel good about myself."

"I think a lot of people overreacted when the book first came out. They didn't realize that the book was not a point finger. It was about myself. I knew from the beginning that by publishing it I was more inclined to self-destruct than anything else," said Locke by telephone from his home in Jacksonville Beach, Fla.

"I'M SURE THERE'S a lot of people at Clemson who didn't like it. The only real negative reaction has been from friends who said 'you've shut the door to coaching because no one else will touch you.'"

Locke, 44, recently quit as an assistant at Nevada-Las Vegas. He has moved to Jacksonville Beach with no immediate plans other than to renovate his beach house and "settle down and get my family together."

"I just resigned from Las Vegas for personal reasons. I just didn't particularly care for a lot of things. I really don't know what I'm going to do. I'd like to be involved in athletics, but not teaching and coaching."

"I can't get on my hands and knees (to get a coaching job)," he added. "I'm not any worse coach, and I'm probably a lot better person. I just have a black mark on my name right now."

IF LOCKE'S CAREER is over, it will certainly go down as one of the most controversial.

He left Clemson in 1975 when the school drew a three-year NCAA probation for the recruiting violations detailed in the book, which has a subtitle describing it as an account of "The high-pressure world of college basketball — recruiting violations, drugs, alcohol, alumni involvement — written by a nationally successful coach who experienced them all (and more) and was caught."

Prior to Clemson, he coached at Army under Bobby Knight, and at Miami of Ohio. In the five years at Clemson, he made progress, coaching Clemson to its best ever record, but also came the NCAA and Locke was shown the door. He went to the NBA, coaching at Buffalo, and then to Jacksonville University, where he coached the team into the NCAA playoffs. He resigned under pressure, filing suit against the school over his contract. From there, he went to Nevada-Las Vegas.

IF HIS COACHING career is over, so is his writing career.

"People think I'm making a lot of money (off the book) but I'm not," he said. "It wasn't a lucrative contract. I didn't do it for the money. It was written for coaches and a lot of other people in this business who are cheating. I know it's not going to stop it."

Locke said he has had a lot of favorable reaction from coaches.

"Most of the ones I know who are actively involved in cheating and so on can't look you in the eye," Locke said. "The other ones say we're glad you've said the things you did."

The publisher, Dr. Jim Peterson of Leisure Press in West Point, N.Y., said the book has sold "real well" in areas of the country where Locke has coached and in "basketball hotbeds."

He refused to name any names, but said the company has received a number of favorable responses from coaches, and some unfavorable reaction from Clemson supporters.

Bowlsby wrestles with new responsibilities

John Bowlsby

By Matt Gallo
Staff Writer

To some, home is a sort of magnet pulling them. Apparently this was the case with former Iowa heavyweight wrestler John Bowlsby.

Bowlsby, a star wrestler for Gary Kurdelmeier and Dan Gable's championship wrestling machine between 1975-79, has returned to the UI after a two-year stint as Assistant Director of Recreation at Texas Tech.

The former All-American, who last week took over as supervisor of the Union recreation area, said he is glad to be back in Iowa City. "I like Iowa City. This is basically my area," he said. "I enjoyed my time down there and enjoyed my job, but I saw an opportunity to move back home and took it."

BOWLSBY ADDED that in his opinion, while Iowa City is smaller than Lubbock, home of Texas Tech University, there is a better atmosphere here.

He said Lubbock, situated in West Texas, is "really dry and flat, with few trees and lots of brown dirt. Lubbock has lots of big city problems but it doesn't have the advantages of the big city," he said. "Texas Tech is very conservative and the students there reflect that. In Iowa City the people are more on the liberal side."

Another big difference Bowlsby mentioned was the difference in the quality of wrestling. "Wrestling in Texas is very low key. In the colleges it is a club sport (although Texas and Texas A&M are adding wrestling as a varsity sport this year), and in the high schools wrestling isn't sanctioned by the state athletic federation," he said. "A good Iowa high school team wouldn't have too much trouble competing with a college team there. As a matter of fact, it wouldn't even be close."

IT LOOKS AS IF Bowlsby's competitive future on the mat is over. The last time he wrestled competitively was in February, 1980, when he hurt a knee competing in Cuba. "I'm not that far out of shape right now, but I'm not like I was," he said. "Right now I wouldn't want to get on the mat and wrestle hard."

Although his competitive future is over, he plans on doing some working out with the Iowa wrestling team. "I'm sure I'll get over there and roll around with Lou (Banach) and Steve (Wilber)," Bowlsby, who predicted yet another national championship for the Hawkeyes, said. "I'll do anything I can to help out, but my first responsibility lies at the Union."

When the Union supervisor position opened, Bowlsby immediately was interested in the job. "I talked to as many people as I could who could help," he said, mentioning Gable, Recreation Services Director Harry Ostrander and Bob Froeschle, the man Bowlsby replaced.

IOWA WRESTLING secretary Helen

Rookie Stewart pockets $36,000

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (UPI) — Payne Stewart had chance to set a tournament record en route to his victory in the $200,000 Quad Cities Open Sunday, but the rookie bogeyed the 18th hole and settled for a record-tying seven-under par-63 for his maiden PGA Tour win.

Stewart, who drew gallery attention by wearing traditional 1920s style knickers and argyle socks, pocketed $36,000 for a four-round total of 12-under par-268.

Brad Bryant who was four-under par-66 Sunday, and Pat McGowan, who shot a three-under par-67, were tied for second at two strokes behind Stewart. They won $17,600 each for their 10-under par-270 in the tournament.

JIM THORPE WAS alone in fourth place with a nine-under par-271, worth $9,600, on the par-70, 6,514-yard Oakwood Country Club Course.

After a five-and-a-half-hour rain delay, Stewart birdied seven holes, including a spectacular 35-foot putt on the 17th hole, en route to the victory under hot and humid conditions.

Stewart, wearing a pink and purple shirt and grey knickers said the rain delay allowed him to visit a local chiropractor who eliminated the back pain that forced him to withdraw from the Milwaukee Open last week.

"The back's great," he said. "I'm feeling no pain. He (chiropractor) adjusted me a little bit."

STEWART, WHO WON the Magnolia Classic but failed to gain any exemptions with that victory, said he felt he had clinched this tournament after completing the 17th hole.

"I knew if I didn't break my leg on the way to the green, I'd win," he said. "I don't know what happened on my putt (on the 18th green) I flat out missed it. I'm very glad it wasn't for all the bucks."

"I just made three good putts in a row then I get up here and have a one-and-a-half to two-foot putt for par and I just miss it," he said.

Stewart, who joined the PGA tour in June 1981, has won $88,000 in his career — $74,688 this year. The 25-year-old Springfield, Mo., native is a 1979 graduate of Southern Methodist University.

Illinois Gov. James Thompson, who presented Stewart with the winning check, said he was glad the tournament is held on the Illinois side of the Quad Cities because two-and-a-half percent of Stewart's winnings will go into the state coffers.

Quad Cities Open defending champion Dave Barr shot a two-over par-72 to finish a disappointing three-over par-283 for the tournament.

Historic records of bridge planned

By Elizabeth McGrory
Staff Writer

A Johnson County historical significance demolished because of hazards, but will be preserved documentation if all goes well.

The Sutliff bridge, nestled in rolling terrain of Cedar was built in 1898 — the first over the Cedar River — a only bridge to cross the Johnson County. Concern in recent years because it is "structurally" and "functionally" deficient, according to the Iowa Department of Transportation.

It is in "very deterioration and has been a conservation problem for County," the report states.

A 1979 report stated the bridge was in excess of 100 years old and beyond repair. It was pushing its 4-ton limit. "All pushing our fortune by mending the bridge..." a letter said.

THE NEED for replacement bridge was recognized in 1970s, but no funds were available for the project.

Since then, funds have been available; now the only standing in the way of a new bridge is the old bridge's history.

Because it is a historical structure, there is "a big building the new bridge, according to Betty Ockenfels, chairwoman of Johnson County Board of Supervisors.

But the county would like to see the bridge replaced by October. The county had the construct a new bridge last year. Bud Gode, county engineer because the funds were from federal sources necessary to assess the historical significance.

Now the county must wait for a final draft of DOT report that explains the issues surrounding the bridge, including a portion explaining the bridge could be preserved, photographs and drawings or copying of drawings, Gode said.

See Bridge

Council

By Mark Leonard
Staff Writer

Santa Claus was officially gaily Monday when the Iowa City Council decided it would be too dangerous to land at Sycamore Municipal Airport.

In connection with sidewalk the mall, Santa was supposed to arrive about 11 a.m. in the mall's parking lot and give out gifts to children. Mayor Mary Neuhouser said she was "what a frivolous reasons" would be.

Inside

'Sense of mission'
As the new principal of Rialto High School, Sister Lois E. believes she is "being sent on a mission"..... P

Art is a blast
One UI art student is 'exploding' onto the art scene — literally. He has developed a method to work with firecrackers..... F

Weather
Partly cloudy, warm and bright today and Wednesday with a 50 percent chance of thunderstorms in the afternoons and evenings. High around 90, low around 70.