Reagan’s top economist resigns

SALT LAKE CITY — Murray Weidenbaum, an economist who once headed President Reagan’s Council of Economic Advisers, has resigned as director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City.

Weidenbaum, 60, said that the decision to leave the Kansas City Fed is part of a personal career shift. He will join the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative think tank, as director of economic policy studies.

Weidenbaum, a trusted economic advisor to the president, has been with the Fed since 1978. He was named director of the Kansas City Fed in 1991, succeeding John S. F. Taylor.

Weidenbaum, a former professor of economics at the University of New Mexico, is a conservative who has long been critical of government intervention in the economy.

He is the latest in a string of high-level departures from the Reagan administration, including Treasury Secretary James Baker, who recently announced his resignation.

Weidenbaum’s resignation is likely to be the first of many more to come, as the administration begins to wind down.

Resident complain about pond flooding

By Jacoba T. Pennington

A pond near Iowa City has been a source of trouble for residents.

At the Iowa City Council meeting Monday night, a Pond located in a field behind the pond house during heavy rain and flooding.

Ronald Hume, who lives near the pond, said it has been a problem for as long as he can remember.

Part of the problem, Jim Hume said, is that the pond is built on top of a large area of wetland, which flood project homes.

"It's more a nuisance than anything," he said.

Residents have also been concerned about the pond flooding onto their property.

A temporary hearing is scheduled for August 22.

Child care guidelines

In Florida a baby-sitter is charged, in connection with the death of five of her foster children. In Colorado a teenager girl ran away with the baby she had been hired to nurse. And in Tel Aviv, Israel, a young mother alleges that she found several children, including her own five-year-old son, locked in a car on a hot day, and that she was not able to identify the baby-sitter in the house of a couple who provided daycare services for a group of students. The high demand among many individuals for child care services has led to the rise of the absolute political as well as economic good, and thus worthy of funding. The problem is that a balanced budget depends not just on the competence in forecasting and good luck. And luck plays a part: oil shortages or embargoes and crop failures can dramatically affect the price of food and the cost of living.

Good evening, viewers. I'm Michael Humes, your host for tonight's Coordinated Child Care. We will take a look at some recent developments in the field, and how they may affect you and your family.

The U.S. community is facing a budget crisis - or is it? As President Reagan urges support for a constitutional amendment to balance the budget, the U.S. government is facing a severe deficit. In the past, federal programs - expenditures for military hardware are routinely off-budget. In the future, the administration either to lie, to cut spending, or to increase taxes. If they have passionately embraced the Constitution, the problems are to be solved, not to be concealed.

The problem is that a balanced budget depends not just on the forecasting and good luck. And luck plays a part: oil shortages or embargoes and crop failures can dramatically affect the price of food and the cost of living.

We have a chance to direct the construction to our purposes, and this opportunity will never be so clearly presented again.

Duncan Banks is having a good month.

Banks, a former Cedar Rapids High School Track team member, has been a star performer for the University of Iowa and the Iowa State Fairgrounds track meet on the track for more than a decade. He first started running in the summer of 1985 and has competed in more than 1,000 meets since then.

"I've been running for as long as I can remember," Banks said. "I started running in the second grade and never stopped."

Banks currently runs for the University of Iowa and the Iowa State Fairgrounds track meet. He has won a number of events at both meets and has broken many records.

"I'm really happy with my season so far," Banks said. "I've had some great performances and I'm looking forward to the rest of the year."

Banks is currently preparing to compete in the upcoming NCAA Outdoor Championships, which will be held in Greensboro, North Carolina.

"I'm really excited to get to the NCAA Championships," Banks said. "I've been working hard all season and I'm ready to give it my best."

Banks is expected to run the 100-meter, 200-meter, and 400-meter events at the NCAA Championships. He is also expected to run in the 4x100-meter relay.

"I'm really looking forward to running in the 4x100-meter relay," Banks said. "I've been running with the same relay team all season and we're really clicking right now."

Banks is a four-year varsity athlete and has been named All-American four times. He is also a three-time National Indoor Champion.
