Arafat gives qualified OK to U.N. stand

U.S. wary in interpreting PLO pledge

WASHINGTON (UPI) - If the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) is to be taken at its word, the United States must accept the PLO's interpretation of last week's meeting in London.

Yasser Arafat, chairman of the PLO, made a statement on Wednesday which President Carter has said could be interpreted as "progress." However, if Arafat makes a specific statement, the United States will have to respond in kind.

Despite the perceived progress of the U.S.-PLO talks, no one is prepared to call it a breakthrough. As the United States and the PLO have not yet reached agreement on any substantive issue, it is too early to say whether such a breakthrough has occurred.

President Jimmy Carter, in his own words, is "optimistic." It is up to the United States to determine what the PLO is saying and how it should be interpreted.

The PLO includes the following countries: Algeria, Egypt, Jordan, Morocco, Tunisia, and the United Arab Emirates. It is a political organization that is not an armed force, but it is capable of causing significant damage to the United States and its allies.

Arafat, the chairman, is said to be "very satisfied" with the meeting, but he also warns that the United States must not be "too optimistic." He says that the United States must be "prepared to give up something.

Arafat's statement was greeted with enthusiasm by some U.S. officials, but Carter's response was cautious. Carter said that the United States would not make a decision on the PLO's proposal until it has been carefully studied.

The United States has not yet made a decision on whether to accept the PLO's proposal. However, Carter has said that the United States will not accept the PLO's proposal if it is not based on the will of the people of Palestine.

Carter has said that the United States will not accept the PLO's proposal if it is not based on the will of the people of Palestine. He has also said that the United States will not accept the PLO's proposal if it is not based on the will of the people of Palestine.
Brandanst unveils Iowa economic plan

By Mark Leonard

Cedar Rapids — Gov. Terry Branstad unveiled Monday his administration’s nine-point economic plan.

"I've been impressed with the progress Iowa has made in recent years," Branstad said. "I think it's time we take the next step to make Iowa an economic powerhouse."

Branstad said the state has added 15,000 jobs since he took office in January.

"We've added jobs in every sector of the economy," he said. "We've added jobs in manufacturing, in services, in agriculture. We've added jobs in every sector of the economy, and I think we can do better.""}

Despite the progress, Branstad said the state still has a long way to go to become a national economic leader.

"We've got a lot of work to do," he said. "We've got to be competitive with the rest of the country.""}

Branstad announced a number of initiatives to make Iowa more competitive, including:

- A $10 million economic development loan program for business expansion and retention.
- A $5 million tax credit program for job creation.
- A $2 million education and training program for workforce development.
- A $1 million program to improve transportation infrastructure.
- A $1 million program to improve water quality.
- A $1 million program to improve air quality.
- A $1 million program to improve energy efficiency.
- A $1 million program to improve broadband connectivity.
- A $1 million program to improve public safety.
- A $1 million program to improve energy conservation.

Branstad said the state will also work to improve the state's business climate, including:

- A review of the state's tax structure.
- A review of the state's regulatory system.
- A review of the state's education system.
- A review of the state's workforce development system.
- A review of the state's transportation system.
- A review of the state's water quality system.
- A review of the state's air quality system.
- A review of the state's energy conservation system.
- A review of the state's broadband connectivity system.
- A review of the state's public safety system.
- A review of the state's energy efficiency system.

Branstad said the initiatives are aimed at making Iowa a more competitive state for business and industry.

"We need to be competitive with the rest of the country," he said. "We need to be competitive with the rest of the country, and we need to be competitive with the rest of the world."
Pedestrian campus proposal of '72 now all but forgotten

By Jeff Book

Ten years ago the concept of a pedestrian campus was called "vitally important to the academic community" by J. President William M. But, it has been all but forgotten.

The proposed idea was presented to President Freeman on March 31, 1972 and a check was run on the campus. The proposal was then placed in a file on the campus. The next year, the proposal was brought to the surface by J. President Freeman and the campus was discussed in the Board of Regents meetings. But, the idea was never taken seriously and remained in the file.

According to President Freeman, the proposal was made to the Board of Regents because it was felt that the pedestrian campus would be a positive step in the development of the campus. However, the idea never gained any momentum and was forgotten.

Despite the proposal's lack of interest, the idea of a pedestrian campus has not been entirely forgotten. In 1982, the campus was again discussed by the Board of Regents, but the idea was never pursued.

In conclusion, the idea of a pedestrian campus has been largely forgotten in ten years. The proposal was never taken seriously and the idea has not been pursued. It is unlikely that the idea will ever be revisited.

Council to discuss ordinance to establish city rental codes

By Mark Lember

The council is expected to discuss and possibly adopt an ordinance that would establish city rental codes.

The ordinance is needed to regulate rental units in the city and ensure that they meet certain standards. The ordinance would provide for the establishment of a rental code commission, which would be responsible for developing and enforcing the code.

The proposed ordinance would also include provisions for the inspection of rental units and the issuance of permits for rental units.

If adopted, the ordinance would likely result in an increase in the cost of rental units, as landlords would be required to meet the new standards. However, the ordinance is necessary to protect the health and safety of tenants and ensure that rental units are safe and sanitary.

Housing assistance program aids low-income and elderly

By Jonathan Breed

The Housing and Urban Development Administration (HUD) has announced a new program to assist low-income and elderly residents with housing costs.

The program, known as the Housing Assistance Program, will provide funding to help low-income and elderly residents with rental expenses and allow them to maintain their homes.

HUD estimates that approximately 30% of low-income and elderly households are unable to pay their rent and are at risk of losing their homes.

The program will be administered by local housing authorities, which will determine the eligibility of applicants and decide how the funding will be distributed.

County fair offers variety

By Susan Fisher

The county fair offers a wide variety of events and attractions for the entire family. From livestock shows to midway games, there is something for everyone.

Livestock shows are a highlight of the fair, with various animals on display and competitors vying for prizes. In addition, there are educational exhibits and demonstrations, providing an opportunity for visitors to learn more about the animals and the agricultural industry.

The midway is also a popular feature of the fair, with rides and games for all ages. The fair also includes a Fine Arts Building, where visitors can view a range of artwork and crafts created by local artists.

In addition to the main events, the fair also offers a variety of food options, including fair foods like corn dogs and deep-fried pickles, as well as more traditional fare like hamburgers and hot dogs.

Networks cashed in on ’70s rock

By Jeffrey Miller

The networks, quick to respond upon the knowledge of demographics problems, advertised and became involved with the stars who made the music that their audience most wanted to see. So, they began to produce "rock 'n roll on television." This was followed by the development of new television personalities who were primarily concerned with the music and the fashion of the rock 'n roll generation.

The networks had to find a way to capitalize on the music and the fashion of the rock 'n roll generation, and the only sure way was to produce "rock 'n roll on television." This was followed by the development of new television personalities who were primarily concerned with the music and the fashion of the rock 'n roll generation.

SAN FRANCISCO—Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. joined San Francisco Chronicle editor Dean Baker in calling for the resignation of Energy Secretary James E. Watt, who wrote to him earlier this week.

Mr. Watt, you should be ashamed of yourself," referring to a letter Watt wrote to the liberal American Jews did not back the Reagan administration's energy policies.

To the Jewish community and implying a weakening of American support for Israel are outrageous," Brown said.

Iowa field hockey standout Sax determined to return after injury

By Ninie Gordon

Although the Iowa Field Hockey team went three games in a row without a point, in the end, the team's performances remained strong. Now, with the possible return of their star player, the team continues to strive towards their goals. Their win over Columbia has not only brought them closer to the championship, but it has also given them hope for the future. The team's determination and resilience shine through in their games, and they remain confident in their capabilities.
