Test tubes

Before summer term exams get underway this week, some UI students find the time to relax and relieve themselves of the mid-season humidity by tubing down the Iowa River to the UI Canoe House dock. Today's weather may be more conducive to studying, fortunately, with a 40 percent chance of rain.

Bomb threat closes UI building

By Elizabeth McGrory
Staff Writer

The Engineering Building was closed Monday because of a bomb threat reported to police at 8:54 a.m., officials said.

According to an Iowa City police report, someone "with an accent" called the 911 emergency number and said, "Because the people of the United States have not helped El Salvador, we have planted a bomb in the Engineering Building." Records state the call was made from a pay phone in the Iowa City Post Office.

The building was officially closed about 2 p.m. after William S. Tynan, director of UI security and parking, said he received "additional information about the call."

Tynan said, however, he could not comment on the information he received.

The caller did not give the specific location of the bomb. "It was a general bomb threat," Tynan said. But "any type of bomb threat is cause for concern."

AFTER SEARCHING the building Monday morning, Campus Security controlled access to it by restricting all entrances except the Capitol Street entrance and by warning those who entered that the building had received a bomb threat. They also checked the backpacks of people going into the building.

People in the building were not told to leave, but were warned of the threat and told to make their own decision, Tynan said.

But around 2 p.m. Campus Security evacuated the building and conducted a thorough search for the bomb. Some people with keys to the building, such as the personnel from WSUI and KSUI radio stations, were allowed to remain in the building.

In accordance with UI policy, Robert Hering, dean of the College of Engineering, made the decision to close the building until 6 a.m. today. He could not be reached for comment.

SGT. RALPH MOODY of UI Campus Security said the search had to be completed for the second time to make sure the building did not have a bomb. Moody estimated he has participated in at least 100 such searches, including many during the Vietnam days. Yet bomb threats still make him feel "eerie," he said while standing inside the door of the Engineering Building to keep unauthorized people out of the building.

The investigation was completed at 5 p.m., and although no bomb was found, the building remained closed.

Joe Iosbaker, a member of the UI El Salvador Solidarity Committee, said he had not heard of the bomb threat, when contacted at about 4:45 p.m.

He said he did not think there was a "high enough level of involvement at this time on campus" for the solidarity committee to have a hand in the threat.

The Daily Iowan/Dirk VanDerwerker

Joseph Lentz of UI Campus Security inspects a bookbag before allowing entrance to the Engineering Building Monday. Iowa City police received a telephone call that morning indicating a bomb was in the building. The building was searched Monday morning, then evacuated and searched again.

State Department advises Reagan to continue assisting El Salvador

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department's human rights bureau has recommended that President Reagan approve continued arms sales and military aid to El Salvador, despite "instances of torture," government officials said Monday.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan will make a final decision by Wednesday on certifying to Congress that El Salvador is improving its human rights record enough to justify continued U.S. military aid.

Speakes said the human rights bureau reported, "El Salvador is making progress." While decrying the use of torture by the Salvadoran military, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said, "There have been steps taken within the (Salvadoran) government and National Police to eliminate such practices."

"The U.S. government condemns the use of torture under any circumstances," he said. "There have been instances of torture and in each instance that has come to our attention we have made the strongest of representations to the government of El Salvador registering our objections."

"WHILE HUMAN rights abuses such as this have not disappeared," steps have been taken to eliminate them, Fischer said. Commenting on a specific report of a special torture room set up by members of the Salvadoran armed forces, Fischer said, "Any such incident such as that is absolutely inexcusable."

The administration has proposed a total of $61.3 million in security assistance and military aid for El Salvador in the coming fiscal year. Certification to Congress is required every six months before aid can continue, and Wednesday is the next deadline.

The legislators also require confirmation that the Salvadoran government is progressing in investigations of the slayings of three American nuns, a Catholic social worker and two agrarian reform experts.

The Washington Post reported Monday the U.S. embassy in El Salvador has received new evidence of police torture of civilians and that U.S. Ambassador Deane Hinton has warned Salvadoran President Alvaro Magana to end the rights violations.

Assistant Secretary of State for Latin American Affairs Thomas Enders Monday ended an unpublished, two-day visit to El Salvador Monday. A source in the Salvadoran government said the trip "had to do with the approval of economic and military" assistance to the Central American nation.

Sudan willing to receive PLO fighters

United Press International

Israel responded to Yasser Arafat's latest diplomatic maneuvering Monday with a punishing assault on West Beirut, sending two waves of warplanes plus tanks, artillery and gunboats against Palestinian guerrilla targets.

The attacks occurred amid reports of a major breakthrough in efforts of U.S. peace envoy Philip Habib to find a safe exodus for 6,000 PLO guerrillas trapped in the Lebanese capital to other Arab states.

President Jaafar Nimeiry of Sudan, in an interview with the official Sudan News Agency, said, "Sudan is ready to receive the Palestinian fighters in Lebanon" and have the PLO office in Khartoum become a center for continued Palestinian efforts in Africa.

Sudan thus became the first Arab nation to publicly declare its willingness to accept the guerrillas, apparently without pre-conditions. Egypt has said it would grant asylum to some of the guerrillas if the PLO would first form a government-in-exile. Syria has said it would accept the leaders of the PLO.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT said it had seen the reports but had no direct confirmation from the Sudanese government. "We would obviously welcome an Arab solution to the problem of Palestinian fighters in West Beirut," spokeswoman Susan Pittman said.

Nimeiry did not say if he would accept all 6,000 guerrillas or only part of the PLO force, which Lebanon's president and Israel insist must leave completely.

He called the Israeli invasion "genocide against the Lebanese and Palestinian peoples" and urged other Arab states to rescue the guerrillas as "an honorable symbol for the continuity of the Palestinian revolution."

Sudan was one of the few Arab nations that maintained ties with Egypt after Cairo signed the 1979 peace treaty with Israel.

In combat, the Palestinian news agency Wafa said 54 people were killed or wounded in the fifth straight day of Israeli raids, pushing to 101 the number of casualties within the past 24 hours.

A PALESTINIAN official said the Israeli jets dropped phosphorous and cluster bombs, hitting the Arab University area, three refugee camps and the mainly residential sections of Rauche, Ramlet el Baida and Corniche Mazra.

The Israeli military command said its warplanes twice attacked Beirut, but said only military targets were hit. See Mideast, page 3

Arafat's statement isn't new

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) —

Yasser Arafat's acceptance of "all" U.N. resolutions on the Palestine question is not a change of policy but simply a reaffirmation of previously stated positions, diplomatic and Palestinian sources said Monday.

The document signed by the Palestine Liberation Organization chief for a visiting U.S. congressional delegation Sunday restates a policy officially adopted last year by the Palestinian National Council, the PLO parliament, at a meeting in Damascus.

Furthermore, Arafat accepted "all" U.N. resolutions on the Palestine question, thus including a string of documents specifically calling for a Palestinian homeland.

So Arafat told the congressmen what he has been saying for years — the PLO will recognize Israel when Israel recognizes the Palestinians' rights.

"WHEN WE GET a state, we are willing to recognize Israel," a PLO official said, attempting to clear up confusion over what Arafat had done.

"The PLO is only willing to make this concession in return for an equal concession," the official said. "That means self-determination, that is a state."

The document Arafat signed said, "Chairman Arafat agrees to establish an Arab state alongside a Jewish one in the territories covered by British-mandate Palestine."

The agreement was special, however, because of its timing and audience.

Assistant appointed to Freedman staff

By Scott Sonner
Staff Writer

The appointment of an additional administrative staff member will help make UI President James O. Freedman more accessible to students and faculty, Freedman said Monday.

Robert Engel, UI associate professor of education, will work as a temporary special assistant to Freedman to increase his knowledge of the UI's past and coordinate activities of the president's office.

Freedman said Engel's position will be part-time until Aug. 23 and full time during the fall and spring semesters.

"If he does his job and I do mine, hopefully we won't need him after that," Freedman said.

SINCE ARRIVING at the UI from the University of Pennsylvania Law School April 1, he said he has been trying to learn more about the UI and get a feel for the history of the university and its people.

"In moving into a new university you find you don't have access to institutional memory," he said. Freedman said he didn't realize how much knowledge he had obtained about the history of the University of Pennsylvania during his 18 years there. Engel was asked to take the special assistant position because of his work as a staff aid to former UI President Willard Boyd during the early 1970s, Freedman said.

"There is no need for on-the-job training," he said.

Engel said his guess is the job will "not be a lot different" from his days with Boyd. The "way problems are

Iran steps up war of words

Iran said Monday it fully controls 60 square miles of Iraqi territory and warned that its Air Force could "raze Baghdad and all other Iraqi towns to the ground."

In a day of relative inactivity on the battlefield, Iran stepped up a war of words against Iraq. There was no immediate response from Baghdad to Iran's latest battlefield claims.

U.S. helps transport soldiers

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — U.S. airmen and transport planes began shuttling 1,000 Honduran soldiers, equipment and arms Monday to a new base near the border with Nicaragua.

A U.S. Embassy official said 30 Americans began moving Honduras' 1,000-man Fifth Infantry Battalion to a base in the province of Gracias a Dios to reinforce the border zone, site of several shootouts with Nicaraguan troops.

Troops close in on dissidents

HARARE, Zimbabwe — Government troops using helicopters and planes were closing in Monday on rebels holding six kidnapped foreign tourists — including two Americans — in Zimbabwe's southern bush country, military officials said.

But one official said, "The search is being hampered by the uncooperative attitude of the villagers who appear sympathetic to the dissidents and their cause."

Five killed in Canada prison

MONTREAL, Canada — More than 100 convicts killed three guards and two inmates in a four-hour rampage that authorities Monday called the bloodiest prison riot in Canadian history.

Wielding handmade knives, the convicts took over the central control area of the maximum-security Archambault federal penitentiary and seized 10 guards late Sunday night. Authorities quelled the riot early Monday with tear gas and water hoses.

Habib's Bechtel link defended

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has no qualms about the link between his special Middle East envoy, Philip Habib, and the giant Bechtel Group that does extensive business with Arab countries, a White House aide said Monday.

In a vigorous defense of Habib, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the revelation that Habib is on the payroll of Bechtel "causes us no concern whatsoever."

Conservatives assail Reagan

WASHINGTON — Prominent members of the American right launched a broadside attack on the Reagan administration Monday, saying in the Conservative Digest they have been betrayed by the president they put in the White House.

The entire 48-page magazine is devoted to articles and interviews critical of Ronald Reagan on every issue, from the economy to national defense and from abortion to school prayer.

Soviet grain pact extended

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has decided to extend the grain agreement with the Soviet Union for another year rather than negotiate a new pact, CBS News said Monday.

A White House official said, "There is no timetable for the decision" on the agreement. An Agriculture Department official said a formal announcement is imminent.

Three banks cut prime rate

NEW YORK — Three major banks Monday cut their prime lending rate to 15½, the lowest level in over a year and a half, but analysts say rising bankruptcies may make further reductions slower in coming.

Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York, the fourth largest U.S. commercial bank, made the move after Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. of Winston-Salem, N.C., cut its rate to 15½ percent. Chemical Bank of New York, sixth largest, also adopted the lower rate.

Collision causes serious injury

A three-car accident Saturday night left one woman in serious condition in UI Hospitals.

Dena Quick, 18, Davenport, a passenger in a car driven by Paul Eugene Arp, 27, rural Kalona, was in serious condition Monday afternoon.

Police records state Arp's car and a car driven by Daleta Christensen, 19, 2036 Ninth St., Coralville, collided when Arp tried to turn onto Highway 6 from Fairmeadows Boulevard.

The collision of the two cars caused Christensen's car to spin around and collide with a car driven by Pamela Emison, 16, 3416 Shamrock Dr. Christensen was waiting at a stop sign on Fairmeadows Boulevard.

Emison and a passenger in her car, Celia Long, 16, 3416 Shamrock Dr., were treated and released.

Arp was charged with reckless driving, failure to yield at a stop sign and driving while intoxicated. He was hospitalized and released Sunday.

A preliminary hearing for Arp in Johnson County District Court is scheduled for Aug. 2.

Power out on UI's west side

Portions of the UI Hospitals and some buildings on the UI campus' west side are without power after an electrical transformer malfunctioned at about 1 p.m. Monday, according to John Houck, director of UI utilities.

Four hours later, power was restored to Boyd Tower and the west side of the hospital. However, the South Wing of the hospital and the Psychiatric Hospital are still operating on emergency power.

The Field House, Westlawn, Medical Research Center and Medical Laboratories are still without power.

Mark Mathis, director of environment and engineering at the hospitals, said emergency power is being used to maintain hospital life support systems.

A spare transformer is to be installed and is expected to restore power this afternoon, according to Houck. The transformer was part of an old electrical system being phased out by UI.

Mathis called the outage the worst in seven years. He said two of the greatest inconveniences are the lack of power for the hospital kitchens and air-conditioning.

Man is charged after accident

A 19-year-old Cedar Rapids man was charged with reckless driving, leaving the scene of an accident, following too closely and improper stopping in connection with an accident in Coralville early Saturday morning.

Johnson County District Court records state Gregory L. Harvieux drove in front of a car driven by Ronald E. Wendler, 18, of rural Iowa City.

Harvieux pulled in front of Wendler's car forcing Wendler to drive into a light pole. The pole fell on his car, damaging the car and injuring Wendler and his two passengers.

Harvieux stopped "briefly" at the scene, was told there were multiple injuries and left without helping. Police found Harvieux 30 minutes later and he admitted he had caused the accident.

Wendler, Kimberly Dawn Briggs, 15, 249 Woolf Ave., and Lisa Lynne River, 15, 1131 Fairchild St., were treated at Mercy Hospital for minor head injuries and released.

Council examines flooding problem

By Mark Leonard
Staff Writer

Although Iowa City Council members could reach no agreement on what to do about the east side residents who were affected by recent rains, some headway was made in the debate Monday night.

In the informal meeting, council members acknowledged the problem and looked at measures that could "minimize" basement floodings until funding for the new waste-sewage treatment plant comes through.

City planners at the meeting said under the best of circumstances the plant is still seven to 10 years away.

As City Manager Neal Berlin said, until the new plant and interceptor line is built, the council had better hope for nice weather.

"The only time it happens is during a heavy rain," he said. "That's when we're going to be in a pickle."

The city staff said planning for the east side development depends upon the city's tolerance of the flooding that occurs after heavy rains.

ONE STRATEGY that could be used by the city is the construction of lift stations to pump water from various areas. But the stations have maintenance and long-term problems associated with them, Councilor Clemens Erdahl said.

"We've been approving them despite these problems," he said. Also, Erdahl noted, "It's been a while, but the council did pass a firm and unyielding position to not build lift stations."

Councilor John Balmer said it is a "long, drawn-out problem" and in the future the city will "hopefully be having less lift stations."

There is also a concern that current lift stations might aggravate the east side flooding if they release water at the same time.

The Village Green and Heinz lift stations, if pumped simultaneously, would put a demand of 630 gallons per minute on the sewer trunk that serves the east side.

City planners have suggested diverting the Village Green flow to the Heinz station, which will use pump capacity more efficiently, eliminate one lift station and decrease the flow to the east side sewer trunk.

Councilors David Perret, Larry Lynch and Mayor Mary Neuhauser were all absent from the Monday meeting.

Appeal filed in hate mail conviction

CHICAGO — A former UI student from Wilmette, Ill., convicted of sending hate mail to a Jewish businessman, decided to appeal his conviction just before he was to start serving his sentence, attorneys said.

Daniel Kissinger, 19, was convicted June 29 of two misdemeanor counts of theft of services. Next Saturday he was to begin his sentence of four consecutive weekends from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Cook County Jail.

Serving of the sentence will be delayed by the appeal, which was filed Friday in Illinois Appellate Court, Kissinger's attorney Norman Nelson Jr. said.

The decision to file the appeal came despite earlier indications by Kissinger's father, William J. Kissinger, that an appeal might not be forthcoming because of excess unwanted publicity.

Testimony in a three-day bench trial before Cook County Associate Judge Nicholas T. Pomaro showed Kissinger was linked to more than $500 in fake mailgrams, most of which contained Nazi overtones, sent to Victor Weiss of Kenilworth, owner of Weiss Tire Co.

answered" changes over the years, "but the problems stay the same."

HIS JOB will center on relieving Freedman "of a lot of detailed coordinating work, so he can attend to getting a more comprehensive" understanding of the inner workings of the UI, Engel said.

He said he is looking forward to becoming a part of Freedman's staff and also thinks he will benefit personally from assuming the position.

"I teach in the area of higher education administration ... the primary enticement of the job is a kind of lab experience for me," Engel said.

Freedman said he is "especially grateful to Bob for the special sacrifice" he has made in "giving up his scholarly time" to take the assistant position for a year.

Freedman said he is not concerned that an additional staff member will create a buffer zone that makes it difficult to contact the president personally.

"His job, indeed, is to promote accessibility rather than restrict it," he said. He tries to accept as many invitations from students, faculty and staff as possible.

ENGEL IS the former chairman of the division of foundations, post-secondary and continuing education in the UI College of Education, and a former member of the UI Faculty Senate.

In addition to serving as an assistant to Boyd from 1970-73, he was associate dean of Academic Affairs from 1971-73. From 1969-72 he was assistant director of the UI Summer Session and assistant dean in the UI College of Liberal Arts in 1969-70.

Engel was a member of the Faculty Senate from 1976-82 and a member of the senate's judicial commission from 1979-82. He earned a doctorate from the UI in 1969.

Mideast

It said both strikes were directed against a munitions dump in the Sabra area and that all planes returned safely.

In Washington, the State Department said the foreign ministers of Egypt and Israel will come to Washington on separate visits connected with the fighting in Lebanon. Both men are expected to confer with Secretary of State George Shultz.

While Israeli jets were attacking West Beirut, Israeli gunboats pounded the city's coastline. Artillery and tank battles broke out in the city's southern suburbs between the guerrillas and the Israelis perched in hilltop positions above Beirut airport.

LEBANESE OFFICIALS also said Israeli troops entered Beirut's main electricity station in East Beirut and cut all power to the Palestinian-controlled western sector. A similar cutoff two days ago lasted only overnight.

Arafat Sunday signed a statement recognizing "all" U.N. resolutions on the Palestinian question, convincing U.S. Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., leader of a congressional delegation, that they had achieved a major breakthrough in the Middle East stalemate.

But Palestinian officials said Monday the Arafat statement was merely a reaffirmation of previous positions and both U.S. and Israeli officials rejected it as insufficient to warrant direct negotiations with the PLO.

Committee named to find new dean

Names of seven members of a new committee to select a dean for the UI College of Business Administration were announced July 23.

Daniel Collins, committee chairman, said the committee will continue the work of a past group that met from Sept. 30, 1981, to July 8, 1982, to select a replacement for J. Richard Zecher.

Zecher resigned last fall, and Collins said the committee will probably not conclude the search within a year of its beginning.

He said the committee will use "whatever time it takes" to select the new dean, but "we would like to have the matter resolved by the end of the fall semester."

Affirmative Action material and the list of prospects in the original search will be retained and expanded by the new committee, Collins said.

Preliminary meetings have been scheduled for this week to review procedure for the selection. The committee will begin meeting weekly during the fall.

The seven members of the committee are Collins, Andrew Daugherty, Nancy Hauserman, Valdean Lembke, Mark Moriarity, Gerald Nordquist and Peter Ries.

Nordquist is the only member returning from the previous committee.

Emmett J. Vaughan is acting as dean of the college until the committee makes its final recommendation to UI President James O. Freedman.

Branstad's loan

It's not exactly a fortune, but gubernatorial candidate Terry Branstad seems eager to hang on to the outstanding $606.78 of the student loan he took out while attending the UI from 1965-69. And well he might be — 3 percent money is hard to come by these days.

Branstad is, quite legally, getting as much mileage out of his loan as he can. Loans usually have to be repaid within 10 years, but this may be delayed when the recipient returns to school or joins the Armed Forces, both of which Branstad did since graduating. Of course there is nothing to prevent a recipient repaying in full at any time, but, as Branstad shrewdly remarked, "I would be pretty stupid to pay back a 3 percent loan when I have some at 18 percent."

"Pretty stupid" — rather like paying state taxes when the tax laws decree that one doesn't owe any. But while Republicans from Gov. Robert Ray downwards have been calling Roxanne Conlin a hypocrite because she took all her tax breaks, Branstad says that the two issues are "absolutely not" similar in scope, a view many Democrats understandably don't share.

The issue would not seem so relevant if Branstad had appeared less happy to coast on the wave of controversy that broke following the Conlin "tax-issue." While not soiling his own hands with direct mud-slinging, Branstad did nothing to discourage it, and now he should expect to find his own affairs under scrutiny.

Branstad claims to support education and has deplored the loss of student loan money. The balance on his loan would hardly see a student through college, but that student's need for the money is arguably greater than Lt. Gov. Branstad's. Branstad said he "couldn't have afforded to go to school without the loan." It's sad that he's come so far since graduating and still cannot afford to repay about $600 from his $57,000 annual income.

One good thing might come out of this. Republicans will probably want to play the issue down, and the inevitable comparison with the Conlin episode will mean they will have to leave that alone, too. Then we might return at last to Iowa's real problems and the two candidates' competency in dealing with them.

Welcome freshmen

Freshman orientation is over. During the past four weeks UI officials and staff members have been helping individuals learn to make the transition from high school to college life. Approximately 3,700 incoming students — over 90 percent of the anticipated freshmen class — attended the two-day training programs.

The first year of college can be a frightening experience. Many individuals are faced with a vast amount of freedom and responsibility they never previously encountered. It is also the first time away from home for many students, and the adjustment needed to live with strangers takes both patience and effort.

"Learning to manage their time is one of the most important things freshmen have to learn," according to Emil Rinderspacher, orientation director. This implies spending more hours studying than a person did in high school, as well as developing a social life. Every upper-class student knows time goes by swiftly, and all the things one planned to do in college go by the wayside unless one is determined and hard working.

As veterans of the freshmen grind we should welcome and direct this year's incoming class when we see them lost on campus or confused in class. Remember all the dumb things you did during your first few years? And while we're at it perhaps we should begin by finding a new term for the sexist freshmen. Freshperson has other connotations and frosh is just too wierd. While we're deciding, maybe we should just call this year's class freshmen instead?

Watt must go

Interior Secretary James Watt is embroiled in another controversy — this time he has intruded into foreign policy. His recently-revealed letter to the Israeli ambassador to the United States is outrageous. In it, he asks the ambassador to warn American Jews that if "liberals of the Jewish community join the other liberals of this nation to oppose these efforts (his energy program, including offshore oil drilling), they will weaken our ability to be a good friend of Israel."

The letter was grossly inappropriate. As Interior Secretary, Watt has no business involving himself, without specific orders from the president, in foreign policy. He did not have such orders — the White House had to repudiate the letter and called it "unfortunate."

Moreover, the assumption underlying the letter is anti-semitic. It assumes that American Jews, unlike other Americans, base their political beliefs and actions on what is good for Israel and not what they believe is in America's best interest. And it assumed that American Jews who believe Watt's environmental policy is damaging the country could be blackmailed into supporting it in order to get political and military support for Israel.

This latest action proves Watt's unfitness. He obviously intends to support business interests and right-wing political dogma instead of protecting the environment. Early in the administration he told national park concessionaires that he planned to eliminate environmental protection regulations by cutting funding for various programs — he and President Reagan have done that. And in a speech last year he divided the country into liberals and Americans.

This latest act is one too many. He should resign or be fired.

Snow in July? Only in Iowa

WHEN LAST we met in this space, the topic was the race for governor in Iowa this year. It's a cardinal sin to write about the same topic two straight times, but at the risk of a flogging and since it's a hot issue — here we go.

The Democrats are obviously hurting. Party bigwigs have crisscrossed the state, trying to make up for the disclosure that Roxanne Conlin, champion of the little guy, is not only worth a couple of million dollars, but she didn't pay any state income taxes in 1981.

Conlin and her campaign manager, John Fitzpatrick, decided that the more they talked about it, the sooner everyone would tire of the whole mess and forget about it. This worked about as well as gasoline on a raging fire. Instead, more trouble arose, prompting Conlin to clam up on further questions of the sort.

Enter Democratic party chair Dave Nagle, the guy who replaced Ed

Jeff Stein

Campbell when Campbell took off to seek the party's gubernatorial nomination. Here is the first good chance for the Democratic party to take Terrace Hill in 15 years, and he sees it slipping away like a mudslide. So he gets in his plane and flies around the state to smooth feathers ruffled by the recent goings-on.

AND IN THIS corner, meet Terry Branstad. He's the guy you'll find with the large grin on his face and office remodeling plans in his back pocket. For a while there, it looked like he might ask "big brother" Bob Ray to move out early so he could get things ready.

A political bomb like Conlin's taxes couldn't have happened at a better time for Branstad. It stopped Conlin's momentum and gave him a rocket he could fly at her. But I have faith — I think he can still blow it before November.

Having met our Lieutenant Governor on one occasion, I really shouldn't say, but since you forced it out of me ... Terry Branstad seems like the relative you try not to invite to the family gathering. There's nothing wrong with him exactly, but ... As more than one political writer has noted, Branstad will not decide this election. Conlin will. Whether she wins it or loses it, Branstad won't have anything to do with it.

Governor Bob is no fool. (Name someone else with a cushy job that has lasted 14 years, with excellent benefits and few people who want him to leave it.)

RAY SAW THAT the S.S. Branstad seemed to resemble the Titanic at times, and although no one admits it, now is calling the major shots at Branstad-for-Governor headquarters.

But can his magical ability on voters transcend everything?

And then there are the debates. Oh, how this one tends to look like a January in Iowa — a large snow job, Roxanne wants debates. Terry says OK, let's have five; Roxanne wants 12 or 15. Terry wants three of the five in Des Moines; Roxanne wants to spread them across the state. And so on.

Those are both good positions. Branstad can say that a few are plenty, that more would be "overkill." And having them in Des Moines affords greater media attention (whether that is true or not is debatable in itself, but it is a common opinion).

Conlin can say that Branstad refuses to meet her, that he's running scared, and that he wants them close to home, close to the Lt. Governor background to help the cause.

See what I mean? Drag out the shovels, everyone — it's going to be a long winter. Wake me when it's over.

Lebanon

To the editor:

Linda Schuppener's editorial, "U.S. Troops in Lebanon," (DI, July 9) justly points out that sending U.S. troops to Lebanon can only exacerbate the situation and that, instead, the U.N. should be given a more effective role in the mediations.

Schuppener's first point is self-explanatory since the U.S. is not a neutral observer but a hardcore supporter of Israel. It is well known that the cluster and phosphorus bombs and chemical weapons being used in Lebanon are made in the United States. Also known is the fact that American tax money ($400 million in military aid) provides Israel with these deadly weapons. Lastly, it is no secret that the Israeli invasion of Lebanon had the approval of the American administration.

The American people are known for their support of human rights. It is to my great disappointment that American weapons are killing thousands of innocent civilians and are dropped indiscriminately on schools, hospitals, and residential areas. True, many Americans have expressed their indignation at the atrocities committed by Israel, but sympathy towards the Lebanese and Palestinians is not enough.

The American people whose ancestors fought for independence should voice their concern and urge their congressmen to stop the carnage in Lebanon. An even-handed policy, not blind support for Israel, is needed now more than ever, and the administration should be urged to adopt such a policy. With respect to Schuppener's second point, I totally agree with her that the U.N. should take a major role in solving the conflict. But how many U.N. resolutions have gone unheeded by Israel so far? How many resolutions condemning Israel have been vetoed by the United States?

The tragic events in Lebanon should not blind us to the real issue, namely the Palestinian people. It is ridiculous to insist on the PLO withdrawal from Lebanon and ignore the illegal Israeli occupation of that country. And where will Palestinians go? Isn't it time to realize that the only home for the Palestinians is Palestine? The Palestinians, like any other people, have legitimate rights to statehood and no cluster bombs will break their will to attain this noble cause.

The withdrawal of the PLO from Lebanon will aggravate, not solve, the conflict in the Middle East. Unless the real problem is faced, more tragedies are in store for all the people involved in that part of the world.

Lebanon suffering

To the editor:

We all know there is a war in Lebanon, but we are only beginning to discover the extent to which that war has inflicted suffering and destruction upon the Lebanese people.

They have had to endure bombing from the land and sea, mortar fire from tanks, strafing and gunfire. Entire towns and villages have been razed. Israeli soldiers have been conducting door-to-door searches and interrogations of the local civilians. Nearly half of Lebanon is now under Israeli occupation.

In Beirut, conditions are even worse. The Israelis have severely curtailed the flow of water, food and power to the city. All these vital supplies — including medical supplies — have been cut off from West Beirut, where there are an estimated 500,000 people still living. Garbage has not been collected for weeks, and uncounted bodies lie buried in the rubble. Health officials fear epidemics of cholera and other diseases.

According to Le Monde, at least 17,000 men, women, and children have been killed in Lebanon since the Israelis invaded their country. Le Monde also estimates that 30,000 people have been wounded and more than 600,000 have been driven from their homes.

The terrorism continues. Israeli bombers swoop down over Beirut, creating sonic booms and dropping smoke bombs — when they are not dropping the real things. The people huddle underground in bomb shelters and basements, living in fear.

What can we do? In the words of a spokeswoman associated with the World Council of Churches: "The need for aid is enormous, but more urgent is the need for a ceasefire and lifting of the siege. We implore you to call, cable and write Congressional and other authorities to deter Israel from its murderous course."

Jean Swift

Correcting record

To the editor:

Recently The Des Moines Register reported that the reason the Iowa Legislature did not approve bonding for a new UI Law School was disagreements between Rep. Minnette Doderer and me. This is not true. The motion to have the resolution considered by the Appropriations Committee was withdrawn by the majority party leadership even though a majority of the House had already voted to send the resolution to committee for action.

The article completely omitted the fact that the vote of the House overrode the voice objection of myself and others to procedural request for unanimous consent of the house to permit committee consideration. There was no need for the appropriations committee to consider the resolution, since there were sufficient votes to approve the resolution on the floor of the House and send it to the governor.

The suggestion that a voice objection to a procedural request was responsible for the defeat of the bond resolution, coupled with the suggestion that my voice objection was prompted by disagreements with Doderer, is incredible. While I had pledged my support for the resolution to Rep. Wally Horn and Doderer, I have always objected and will continue to object to the unnecessary waste of time in the government process.

Over the decade, Doderer and I have differed on some issues, but no more than any of the 150 legislators who work together on hundreds of issues — I consider her an outstanding legislator who serves her constituency well.

It was also implied in the story that there is some "brewing friction" between members of the Higher Education community — namely, community colleges and the UI. While it is true that all of the education groups are interested in support of their various endeavors through state funding, it is not true that there is a movement presently in place to divide these groups. The fact is that community colleges have an excellent working relationship with the regents' universities.

Therefore, to suggest that my procedural objection caused the defeat of the bonding resolution is not only untrue but fails to inquire as to why the majority party leaders withdrew a successful motion which would have led to the passage.

I have no problem defending any of my actions, but I do resent misrepresentation. Richard L. Byerly

Iowa House of Representatives

The wrong gift

To the editor:

After an overwhelming Saturday night performance by the Joffrey II dancers, we were disappointed to see a farmer and a boy walk on stage and present the dance director with a piglet. It stole the professionalism from the show.

A piglet is not a symbol of gratitude and is not characteristic of the entire state of Iowa. The applause was broken by the act and neither the audience nor the dancers seemed to understand the humor.

Joffrey II enriched our community with culture and gave us a performance we will never forget. If it was so necessary to show our appreciation, we should have given them a bouquet of corn stalks.

The young and the wrestlers

The Iowa Field House, site this week for the 12th annual United States Wrestling Federation's national junior tournament, was without power Monday due a malfunction in an electrical transformer. Power is expected to be restored Tuesday afternoon, with tournament action scheduled to start Wednesday at 9 a.m. More than 1,200 wrestlers from around the country will fill the Field House, with competition in freestyle and Greco-Roman. Sixteen mats will be used in the tourney, billed as "the biggest wrestling tournament in the world."

View from outside the cornfields is that grid team was 'a fluke'

It's tough to convince the man on the street, the farmer in the field, or even the prisoner behind the bar differently, "I think we're going to have a down year in football. We're going to get killed this year," they say, slowly sipping their favorite beverage.

Maybe so, but... Reggie Roby is back. So is well, ah... Tom Nichol, or Bill Bailey. Even Lute Olson is back, whatever that means. It's definitely a crucial fall for the team. After its West coast disaster against Washington on national television, the program must regain respect lost outside Iowa's cornfields.

FOR INSTANCE, in Columbus, Ohio, the team Iowa didn't have to play last year, the Hawks are being regarded as "a fluke." For example, Paul Hornung, writing in Street and Smith's Official College Football Yearbook, said this, "A lot of things had to fall into place for the Hawkeyes to land in the Rose Bowl — on their embarrassed faces, as it turned out."

And, "Fry would rather not open the season at Nebraska, but otherwise

Iowa's schedule is favorable, with Illinois and Michigan at Iowa City — and Ohio State missing. Gee, so will Evy on WHO.

The joke told in Ames about Hawkeye fans goes something like this, "Well, I thought it might be another 23 years before Iowa went to the Rose Bowl, so I decided to go at the last minute. I had a good time anyway."

NO, IOWA'S program is not among the nation's best. To say it ranks with Oklahoma, Southern California or Alabama would be best titled, "Pure Insanity."

Despite what is said, in magazines or by Jim Zabel, prior to kickoff Sept. 11 in Lincoln, Neb., the Hawkeyes are in desperate need of a winning season. Besides, money spent on preseason magazines could be best put to use buying a six-pack.

But regardless of excuses, past statistics, fancy flowery quotes from players and coaches, comma, one thing is crystal clear — the pressure will be on the Hawkeyes this fall not to tumble — even though many of the team's fans don't think they'll be worth two times and a nickel defense.

HOPEFULLY, for Iowa fans, Fry, who can't be reached by man or beast in the off-season, hasn't been involved in any "Texas Death Matches." Last year's Coach of the Year will have enough pressure resting on his shoulders come Sept. 11.

While the popular belief is that this will be a down year for Iowa football, the pressure to win is increased. All the claims, true or false, of "a fluke" in Iowa City last year will only come to rest if the Hawks win more than they lose.

Semifinal pairings decided in IM play

The field was narrowed to four following first and quarterfinal-round action in the intramural men's softball tournament Monday, with semifinal and final round play scheduled for Wednesday.

In the opening-round Monday, The Blue Ribbon Club defeated No Poofers, 14-11, and Wild Poofers remained undefeated by knocking off The Great White Hype, 12-8.

In quarterfinal action, The Stallion Battalion crushed The Blue Ribbon Club, 22-9. Raw Scores handed The Club its first loss of the season, 11-10. Feinberg blew by The Bloomington Street Bongers, 12-1, and Wild Poofers defeated Herbies Heros, 4-1.

Wednesday's semifinals will feature The Stallion Battalion (4-0) meeting Raw Scores (4-1) at 5 p.m. at RB1 and two undefeated teams, Feinberg (5-0) and Wild Poofers (5-0), meeting at 5 p.m. at RB2 to determine the other finalist.

FINALS ARE scheduled for 6:15 p.m., Wednesday at RB2.

Tonight, action begins in coed play, with the opening round of the coed tourney. The Blue News (3-1) challenge the Bush Wackers (4-1) and The Peppers (4-0) face Win or Lose, we Booze. Both games are scheduled for 5 p.m.

Sophists (5-0) will meet Raw Scores (3-1) and LYNX (4-1) takes on Melanges (2-2) in other first-round action, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Winners of each respective section in men's competition were The Blue Ribbon Club, Herbies Heros, Stallion Battalion II and Wild Poofers (tie), The Club and Feinberg.

In coed competition, the section winners were, The Blue News, The Peppers, Sophists, and the Bush Wackers and LYNX (tie).

Semifinal and final-round action in the coed tournament is scheduled for Thursday night.

Marshall homicide remains unsolved

By Steve Batterson
Assistant Sports Editor

It has been nearly three-and-a-half months since the body of former Iowa swimmer star Jim Marshall was found in a pick-up truck in Sunnyvale, Calif., and Detective Jim Brice of the Sunnyvale Police Department said virtually no ground has been gained during that time.

"We're still working on it and it is still an active case," Brice said. "We are still interviewing people and double-checking clues, but basically we're still baffled about the whole thing."

Marshall, who was the first Hawkeye swimmer to win a Big Ten title since 1959 when he took the 50-yard freestyle championship in 1980, was found stabbed to death in the front end of his pickup in the parking lot of Marie Callender's Pies, a Sunnyvale restaurant, on the morning of April 14 by a gardener who was cleaning the lot.

THE HOMICIDE IS the only one so far this year in the Santa Clara County city of 100,000, located approximately 50 miles southeast of San Francisco.

"We don't have a high crime city," Brice said. "Usually when we have a murder it is of the smoking gun variety where the person is still standing there with the gun when we get there."

Marshall had been employed by a San Jose, Calif., construction firm and had been missing nearly two days when his body was found. The Santa Clara County Coroner's office determined that Marshall had been stabbed in the chest and back several times and had been dead for at least eight hours before his body was found. He died from knife wounds to the chest.

"I'm really stymied on this," Brice said. "We are continuing our investigation and we hope to solve this case, but right now we really don't have anything to go on."
