Nancy Reagan is coming to UI to meet drug abuse counselors

By Mark Leonard

First lady Nancy Reagan will come to the UI Aug. 5 to participate in an open group discussion with substance abuse counselors, Betsy Koons, her assistant press secretary, said Thursday.

The approximately 120 counselors attending the alcohol and drug prevention summer school at the UI will meet with Reagan before she travels to Dallas,

Texas, to attend a session of the Palmer Drug Abuse

UI President James O. Freedman said he is "very pleased" about the first lady's plans to visit the UI and added the trip will give her a "wonderful opportunity to see the university.

'We're obviously thrilled that she's coming," said Deputy Director Ron Walter of the Iowa Department of Substance Abuse. "We hope it will bring a lot of atten-

PLO agrees to withdraw from Beirut

The Palestine Liberation Organization signed a six-point document Thursday at a meeting of the Arab League committing the guerrillas for the first time to withdraw "its armed forces" from Beirut, PLO officials at the United Nations and in Lebanon said.

The announcement occurred as U.S. envoy Philip Habib met with Lebanese mediators for the PLO in Beirut to seek an "unequivocal commitment" from PLO chief Yasser Arafat to lead his 6,000 trapped fighters out of

PLO sources said the Arab League statement did not fulfill that commitment, but they said it was "one step" on a "tightrope" toward a possible solution to the Israeli invasion, which began June 6

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin had said Habib promised Wednesday to obtain within 48 hours a PLO commitment to withdraw The six-point Arab League statement was drafted at the end of a two-day ministerial meeting in the Saudi capital of Jeddah and was signed by Arafat's key political adviser, Farouk Kaddoumi, the United Arab Emirates News Agency WAM said.

resolution 14-0 demanding Israel lift its siege of Beirut to let food, medicine and emergency supplies for civilians into the ravaged western half of the city, controlled by the PLO.

The Jeddah communique marked the first time the guerrilla leadership has pledged to withdraw its "armed forces" from the Lebanese capital. Israel, however, has demanded the entire PLO - political and military, leave Lebanon entirely.

The Jeddah statement said the Arab League ministerial committee found 'complete agreement' to "work to lift" the Israeli siege of West Beirut and get the Israelis to withdraw totally from Lebanon.

It also said, "The PLO announced its decision to move its armed forces from Beirut" and the "necessary guarantees" for a safe exodus would be determined in talks between the PLO and the Lebanese government.

Following a withdrawal, the document said the Lebanese government must provide security for Palestinian civilians in refugee camps, with the 'participation of international forces," if necessary.

A PLO SOURCE in Beirut cautioned, however, that the communique was only the opening PLO position in future discussions on an exodus from Lebanon. "It does not even say all armed men, and it only mentions a withdrawal from Beirut," he said. 'Everyone moves a short step at a

At the United Nations, Lebanese Ambassador Ghassan Tueni said it could be assumed that agreement had already been reached on where the PLO forces should move, but the State Department cautioned no agreement existed on "the terms of the departure, the timing and the destinations.

Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Iraq all have told Habib they would accept some of the PLO guerrillas, sources

Lebanese political sources in Beirut said the exact conditions of a PLO departure from Beirut were th ject of talks between Arafat and former Prime Minister Saeb Salam, a key mediator. But publicly, PLO officials continued to insist there would be no withdrawal.

Abu Iyad, deputy chief of Al Fatah, the largest guerrilla group with the PLO, said Habib's negotiations were "back to square one" and the 6,000 guerrillas were ready to fight Israel 'from street to street.

As the seventh cease-fire of the war held, Abu Iyad said Habib returned from Israel Wednesday without provisions for an Israeli withdrawal or an international peace-keeping force sought by the PLO in return for an agreement to leave Beirut.

Students graduating in accounting, cants for a job," he said. computer science and the Masters of Business Administration program generally have better luck than other majors, Lewis said.

But this spring and summer they are having a harder time than usual,"

Lewis said "quite a number" of the graduating students he has talked with who have been unable to land jobs have decided to continue in school.

"THERE HAVE been a lot of people out pounding the pavement with no luck finding a job. One student told me she is going back to school because she is tired of being one of 300 or 400 applilast summer.

Those who are finding work are choosing from one job offer instead of four, as was the case for some majors in past years, he said.

The number of companies and businesses scheduling interviews on campus for next fall is about the same as last year, Lewis said. "But the question is whether or not they will have the same number of job offers. I don't think so."

UI officials expect to issue about 525 undergraduate and 445 graduate degrees. That's just about the same as the 999 students who received degrees

Nuclear fuel dispute settled

WASHINGTON - President Reagan welcomed Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi on a visit to the White House Thursday, and the two nations took the first step toward revitalizing their troubled friendship by resolving a dispute over nuclear fuel.

The problem of nuclear fuel has been one of the stickiest that have plagued Indo-U.S. ties in the last four years. Officials said the compromise agreement will allow India to buy fuel from France for its Tarapur power plant.

Budget bill passage predicted

WASHINGTON - The Senate Thursday rejected several Democratic attempts to alter the proposed balanced budget constitutional amendment, including one to prohibit cuts in Social Security benefits.

Amendment supporters continued to beat back changes they believe would weaken the measure. Senate Republican lea der Howard Baker of Tennessee predicted the measure will pass the Senate next week by the necessary two-thirds vote.

Reagan statements clarified

WASHINGTON - The State Department issued "clarifications" Thursday to correct impressions left by President Reagan on U.S. policy on China and the Middle East.

Both "clarifications" attempted to say there was no change in U.S. policy toward those areas, despite the president's statements at his Wednesday night news conference that gave another impression.

Dennis Gannon said.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors is responsible for reaching elderly and needy senior citizens for participation in the congregate meals program, it was told at its Thursday formal meeting.

The meal program serves about 150 to 225 meals daily at the Iowa City Senior Center to people who are at least 60 years old and their spouses, said Mike Foster, director of congregate meals in Johnson County.

The program also delivers about 100 'meals on wheels" and 30 meals to Autumn Park Apartments, an independent living complex.

The university offers various programs but students may also help design their own field of study.

Since the university began in the degrees, two master's degrees and one doctorate degree have been awarded.

ATTRACTING STUDENTS is difficult, Burger said. Students do not enroll in the school because they have learned to be suspicious of nontraditional methods.

'It's frustrating to see people suffer-natives." But their inability to break from the formal educational mold is "a sympton of long, chronic dullness ... that is the fruit of" the present educational system, he said.

But Burger is optimistic about the future of the university, he said. There is nothing so powerful as an idea whose time is right. I believe the time is right.'

The present plan for attracting students is to create programs that are so appealing, people will not be able to resist them, he said.

program and a summer class taught in the Idaho National Forest system next year are also goals for the university,

Such plans are only the beginning for the university, which will inevitably attract students because "we realize that nothing gets taught, it only gets learned and you can't force it on a person."

Upward Bound's funding in doubt

By Susan Fisher

Reaganomics is putting a UIsponsored program to help low-income students in jeopardy, according to Philip Hubbard, UI vice president for Student Services.

Hubbard said the federally-funded Upward Bound program may be hurt because President Reagan's adinistration is limiting support to the Office of Education.

Money has been earmarked for the program for the 1982-83 year, but a new grant must be filed by the UI for the following year.

'We are concerned that the program's funds will be reduced or that the program will be eliminated,"

Upward Bound was created in 1964 as a means of increasing the number of backgrounds who go to college.

During the school year, qualified students receive tutoring and attend enrichment sessions, such as campus tours and theater productions.

IN THE SUMMER, students are required to take three academic classes and two special interest classes in the program. The high school graduates in the program may take classes for college credit.

Although most funding is provided by the Office of Education, more than 300 educational institutions help sponsor the program and provide facilities for the students.

The UI has sponsored the program for students living in southeastern Iowa since 1966. Each summer, about 60 students live and eat in UI dormitories while attending classes.

"The program works," said Lowell down on the number of students Jaeger, director of the UI Upward Bound project. He said national statistics indicate 71 percent of Upward Bound students go to college, while only 47 percent of these students' peers continue their education.

"You really do see kids change. You see yourself and counselors making an impact on the kids' lives," Jaeger said. But budget tightening is putting a squeeze on the program. Jaeger said the yearly grant to the program has leveled off at $180,000 for the last two years. If the program receives a grant for the 1983-84 school year, he predicts the funding will not increase.

THIS WILL CAUSE a reduction in the number of students allowed in the program, he said. Jaeger said he predicts some schools will end their programs and other schools will cut allowed in their area's Upward Bound. Limiting the number of students in the program is already a problem, according to Jaeger. "There's a whole lot more kids out there who are eligible for the program, who need it and deserve it, that don't get in." The program is indispensable, said Melody Hobert, a fourth-year Upward Bound student who will enter the UI next year. Hobert said the program gave her incentive to study.

'I knew that if I studied, I could stay in Upward Bound and if I stayed in Upward Bound, I could go to college," she

The value of the program to students cannot be weighed, according to Hubbard. He said, "It's difficult to assess

A researcher at the University of Florida is looking for a link between the menstrual cycle and the problems women may encounter with their voices during menstruation.

Opera singers frequently complain of an inability to hit extremely high or

Brown attributes the voice change to the fluctuation of progesterone and estrogen levels prior to menstruation, causing body tissue to retain water. Vocal cords then become swollen, causing hoarseness. Not only singers are affected by the voice problems, according to Brown. Elementary school teachers, saleswomen, lawyers and anyone who uses her voice professionally may be affected

Rena Panush, a professional singer from Gainesville, Fla., says her voice change during menstruation is "pretty subtle, but it's there. I find my vocal cords get a little thicker."

Time for commitment

The all-too-short break between the end of the summer semester and the beginning of the fall term is traditionally a time for traveling, visiting families, partying and relaxing before returning to the rigors of scholasticism. Even such a short break can also be a time for effective commitment.

Summer news stories have often been depressing. Continued warfare in the Middle East; record national debts despite talk of balancing the budget, and threats of further spending cuts on social programs; the nuclear arms race; unemployment; the possible effects of lost student loan funds; the increasing number of Americans below the poverty level.

Election day 1982 will have an enormous impact on all of the above; that day is just over three months away. Many national, state and local candidates for office will be ensured of success or failure during the next few weeks.

Candidates from all parties welcome — and benefit enormously from - volunteer help. It is during an election campaign that a single dedicated individual can have an exaggerated influence on the final outcome of an election, can mean more than a single vote on election day.

Students are traditionally among the voting interests with least clout. A high percentage of students fails to vote. Student organizations do not have the funds available to have real clout through campaign contributions.

What students do have to offer during the summer break is time, energy, enthusiasm, dedication. Those willing to spend some of their time away from recreation and relaxation will be amazed to find how eagerly candidates and campaign committees will welcome their smallest contributions, how much satisfaction may be derived from working for a worthwhile cause - and how much influence one person can really have.

Habib should go

The news that Philip Habib, President Reagan's special envoy to the Middle East, is a paid consultant for the Bechtel Group Inc. is disquieting. Bechtel, a construction firm that does extensive work in Arab countries, now has four of its alumni working for the administration. Two of them, Secretary of State George Schultz and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, are in top positions.

As a general rule, having members of international firms move into government jobs is risky. Such corporations generally care more about making the world safe for business than making it safe for democracy. They cheerfully do business with any and all governments — Fascist or Communist — as long as they seem

A president of General Motors once said "What's good for General Motors is good for the United States." That the corporations are willing to sacrifice national interests for corporate interests is clear when one looks at the number of businesses relocating out of the country and taking American jobs with them. They are also not above manipulating and interfering in the internal affairs of other countries - ITT in Chile and United Fruits in Central America — with disastrous results for the United States. And when these corporate bosses leave government they go back to the business sector where their first loyalties often lie.

As a general principle, corporate involvemnt in government policy-making is unwise, but asking members of the Bechtel Group to work on Middle East problems is particularly inappropriate. Not only does Bechtel derive much of its income from Arab countries, but Bechtel was charged in 1976 with illegally cooperating with an Arab blacklist of companies doing business with Israel. The case was settled by a consent decree.

Habib has worked hard in dangerous conditions, but he cannot now be seen as impartial. He is not irreplaceable, and in fact should be replaced.

25 years on

The legendary novel of the beat generation, Jack Kerouac's On the Road, was first published 25 years ago. In honor of the book's silver anniversary, the Naropa Institute of Boulder; Colo. has organized a celebration. Among the featured speakers are some of Kerouac's most famous friends, including Allen Ginsburg, William Burroughs, Gary Snyder and Gregory Corso.

Abbie Hoffman and Timothy Leary, heroes of the next generation of youth, have also been invited to lecture. Before Kerouac died, he expressed his dislike of these individuals and the things for which they stood. Kerouac turned reactionary during the 1960s. He supported the draft even though he avoided entering the military during the Korean conflict. He disapproved of the socalled immorality of the young - namely their promiscuous sex practices, drug usage and the struggle for women's liberation.

Kerouac's generation was the first to come of age in the shadow of the bomb. Many of these individuals were politically apathetic perhaps numb is a better term — and just looking for a place in the system to take refuge. This is true of Whyte's Organization Men, Reisman's Lonely Crowd, and the beats themselves.

Members of the next generation were more likely to rebel. Their leaders called for the world to change, rather than the individual to adjust. And as their recent visits to the UI have shown, neither Abbie Hoffman nor Timothy Leary has changed his tune.

Yet this week spokespeople for both generations have banded together to celebrate Kerouac's contribution to American letters and life. His pioneering work inspired many of them, and thanks to his work the state of American literature is much improved.

Help poor: Let them eat garbage

EVERAL MEMBERS of Congress ate garbage this week. So what else is new, right? But it was a new experience, for some of them at least. And it does have the beauty of a closed system - what many of them have spent their careers producing they finally had to eat.

There was, however, a noble purpose behind slopping the solons. A Washington-based humanitarian group salvaged the food, most of which was only slightly damaged or had a broken package, from the waste bins of supermarkets and food wholesalers and fed it to the legislators to show it was good enough for poor people to eat and should be given to them free.

A reasonable person might ask why they just didn't find some poor people and give it to them. But Congress is the last place to look if you want to find a reasonable person.

The only impropriety to the affair was that they used the garbage to make quiche. It's not that I don't like quiche - as a matter of fact I don't, but that's not the point - but making garbage quiche is like making Kool-Aid with Perrier. Besides, quiche tends to be insufferably smug and probably wouldn't be caught dead in a poor person's oven. Poor people have enough problems without having to eat food that thinks they're beneath it.

THIS IS NOTHING new, of course. Rummaging through supermarket refuse containers was how Charles Manson kept body and soul apart. But it's a good idea, all in all. A lot of perfectly good eats get tossed out, both by stores and by restaurants. (I work at a local restaurant, so I know. A lot of you puppies should be taught to clean your plates.) And it's a better idea than giving them surplus cheese and butter. This way they get a chance at three squares a day. All that cheese and butter just gave them a chance at a cholesterol problem.

'DEAR PRESIDENT REAGAN: IS THERE A FOOD-FOR-PEACE LOAN FOR SOCIAL SECURITY RETIREES..?

However, I don't think the garbage should be given to poor people; I think they should have to go and get it. It would give them something to do and work wonders for their morale; they could harangue passers-by with comments like "Hey, you think you got it tough? I'm so poor I have to eat garbage! GARBAGE! And I have to get it is good at already. I mean, if you gave even deliver it! And you think there's any steak in here? Hell, no. It's mostly lettuce! Bunny food! I'm so tired of salad I could spit! What are you gonna do about it!" It could just embarrass the country into economic recovery.

FOOD ISN'T the only wasted item that should be distributed to the poor. The Treasury Department burns millions of dollars of old money every year. The bucks are still good, if a little worse for wear, so instead of incinerating the stuff, why not just give it to poor people? Of course it should be worthless first, which shouldn't be hard and is something this government out of this garbage can! They don't money to poor people, they wouldn't be poor anymore, and what's the point of that? Then the poor people could spend their free money on the free garbage. Another thing the government throws away is old battleships. They don't exactly throw them away, o course, they put them in drydock, and they just sit there, gathering dust. I think they should be given to poor people, who can live in them and sell rides and have a place to keep their free garbage. I don't think they should be armed, though. Let's not tempt fate.

I hope the Reagan administration will jump on this project. I can't imagine him not liking it. If anyone is an expert at passing out garbage, it's him. Humes is an Iowa City writer. His column

An educated army

To the editor:

Society interprets that the Armed Forces contain all of its nitwits and numbskulls. Not true. I am writing in response to Steve Horowitz's editorial "Ethics of recruitment," (DI, July 20). The writer does not understand that today's services must be sophisticated, and educated armed forces are a must.

Now, why am I responding? Because I have joined the U.S. Army - for the money and its highly regarded training. For an example of the service's willingness to train its recruits, examine the Army's slogan "Be all that you can be." This slogan in itself says that they want their soldiers to grow to their full potential.

Now, I didn't join the all-volunteer Army so I could slug it out in some foxhole. I enlisted under the Army College Fund, where, for four years of service, I will receive $20,000 for college, along with a $3,000 cash bonus upon completion of my Advanced Individual Training.

Anyway, the Army needs intelligent and educated people to run its highly technical equipment. So it's pretty obvious to any person who does her or his research that it must have persons of high caliber just to function as America's ground deterrent.

All in all, this boils down to the Army's effort to change its poor PR, some of which includes influential educators' opinion. John Berry

Evans vote

DOONESBURY

TRIP TO BARBADOS.

To the editor:

The article about Cooper Evans (DI, July 12) seriously underscored the significance of the congressman's actions. Evans' decision to sustain the president's veto of the urgent Supplemental Appropriation Bill (HR 5922) denotes not only disregard for his 3rd District constituents, but for democratic government as well.

On May 12 Evans supported HR 5922, which included the Boland Amendment, a measure to provide immediate funding for the proposed Housing Production Act. However. when Congress voted on June 24, following a presidential veto. Evans reversed his position on the legislation. In effect, White house pressure proved more efficacious than Evans' commitment to his constituents, as he became the only Iowa representative to oppose the bill.

Consequently, the impending collapse of the Housing Production Act now foreshadows higher home costs for Iowans and a continued depression in the housing industry. Obviously, Evans' voting record documents an unequivocal position that his political rhetoric does not; the congressman has sworn his allegiance to the White House rather than to his constituency.

Thus, as the 1982 elections approach, voters will again have another opportunity to opt for responsible representation. The citizens of the 3rd District should remember that a vote for Lynn Cutler is more than a vote for sincere representation; it is a vote against Cooper Evans and Machiavellian politics. Polly Rock

Birth control, abortion

To the editor:

The birth control pill, when acting as an agent that irritates the wall of the uterus, makes the environment hostile to a fertilized egg, and thus the brand new human being dies. The HUD, acting as a device that prevents the fertilized egg from implanting on the wall of the uterus, kills a brand new human being." (Judie Brown, President, American Life to Lobby.)

If the 11 million females using the pill and the IUD in 1981 were forced to switch to other forms of birth control (diaphragm or condom and foam) it is estimated that more than 1.3 million unintended pregnancies would result.

"A proper interpretation of right-tolife would prohibit, on equal protection grounds, a law permitting any abortions. Under the Paramount Amendment, a law permitting abortion to save the life of the mother would be unconstitutional, under the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, because no other innocent non-aggressing person can be intentionally and directly killed even to save the life of the killer." (Charles E. Rice, Member, Human Life Amendment Committee of the national Right to Life Committee. The committee consists solely of men.)

Total prohibition of abortion is the true objective of anti-abortionists. The mother's life would ultimately be of lesser value than the "non-aggressing person" - and even in cases of probable death of the mother, abortion would be denied.

"It is imperative that Congress get these 'exception clauses' for the 'life of the mother' and all other exceptions out of your vocabulary and thinking ... ' (Nellie Gray, President of March for Life, in testimony before the Senate Appropriations Defense Subcommittee.)

Even cases of rape, incest and childpregnancies would be considered 'exceptions' and would be denied abortions.

Frightening? I agree. And would you like to know something even more frightening? Three of our state's representatives adhere to the above philosophies, and have in fact sponsored bills for the federal control of abortion and birth-control. Some of the introduced bills even contain 'peeping tom' clauses that would allow neighbors (or other wellwishers) to bring civil suits against any woman suspected of considering

The names of our three representatvies who are not representing us are Rep. Tom Tauke. Sen. Charles Grassley, and Sen. Roger Jepsen, all Republicans. These three men are trying to open up your bedroom door to the federal government - vote against them and close the door in their faces. Kelly Jean Beard

Clinch River

To the editor:

In response to the article on Rep Cooper Evans' reaction to the local campaign against the Clinch River Breeder Reactor (DI, July 19) I would like to point out that the congressman's statements are either misleading or totally untrue.

Evans misled the public with his comment that breeder reactors will be proliferation-resistant because they use thorium instead of plutonium (plutonium is used in nuclear weapons). While it is true that thorium is used in some breeders, it will not be used in the Clinch River reactor. In fact, some of the plutonium waste from the Clinch River project is weaponsgrade plutonium, which is more proliferation-prone than waste from standard light water nuclear reactors.

The other argument Evans presented was that the United States will be needing the energy provided by breeders. The validity of this premise has long since past. When Clinch River was conceived in the early 1970s. projections were that energy needs would rise by 7 percent per year, and uranium fuel for nuclear reactors would become scarce and expensive. The reality of the situation is that energy needs have only risen at about 2 percent per year, and could level off even further. New uranium sources have been discovered, and the price of uranium has dropped from about $40 per pound in 1977 to abvout $23 per pound today.

The fiscal irresponsibility of the Clinch River Breeder Reactor project is so great that it has even been attacked by such conservative magazines as Reader's Digest. Furthermore, the outmoded design of this project is more dangerous than standard nuclear plants, at a cost far above what is economically feasible. If the nuclear industry won't even take a loss on this project, why should the American taxpaver? Marty Hopkinson

Student resister expecting indictment and 'show trial'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Student leader Rusty through resistance we'll be able to stop it." Martin, who has failed to register for the draft, said Thursday he expects to be indicted and put on a 'show trial" to "frighten and terrorize" the more than 600,000 others who have not registered.

Martin, student body president at the University of Northern Iowa in Cedar Falls, said the only reason the government has draft registration "is to test the waters for a draft. The purpose of this draft is to force the American people to fight another war which they don't support.'

Selective Service Director Thomas Turnage told Congress Wednesday 93 percent of the American men born between 1960 and 1963, and 87 percent of those born in 1964, have registered for the draft. He said more than 8 million men have registered and there are about 674,000 non-registrants.

Martin, appearing on the CBS' "Morning News," said non-registration is increasing. "I'd like to point out that those people registered only under threat ... We have strong support from people who registered for the draft because they know that

WHEN ASKED if he expected to be indicted for failing to register, Martin said, "Oh, yes. I think I'll probably be one of the 20 to 40 people who will be indicted in show trials - trials like in the Soviet Union not so much designed to show the guilt or innocence of one person but to frighten and terrorize all these other people because it is impossible to try them all."

In response to a question about what the government can do to change the minds of those opposing registration, Martin said, "They can get people to trust Ronald Reagan and support the principles of his foreign policy, but I think that's impossible."

'People in Iowa just don't identify with what Ronald Reagan has defined as our national interest," he said.

Martin also disagreed with the contention that registration is needed to be prepared in the event of a war. "Part of the reason there is no war is because there is no draft," he said.

Concerts to highlight interim entertainment

Arts/Entertainment Editor

Iowa City can be a very pleasant place in August, at least for the first two weeks. The streets are empty, people aren't throwing up in front of bars, a general calm and relaxation settle over the town.

And there are things to do here and nearby. Entertainment may not be quite as accessible as it is during the school year, but eastern Iowa is far from being the cultural void some might believe it is.

Concerts

The next month offers more than its share of concerts, especially if you have transportation.

Elvis Costello and the Attractions will be appearing at Des Moines' Civic Center next Friday (Aug. 6). It'll be Iowa's first chance to see Elvis, whose last concert tour was praised by all who saw it as being one of the best shows they've ever seen.

Des Moines is also the site Aug. 17 for Talking Heads' Iowa debut, though the specific location has yet to be decided. We've seen the Heads, and we can assure you the trip to catch them will be well worth it.

Closer to home (take it easy, Grand Funk fans), the Five Seasons Center in Cedar Rapids is presenting a concert series through September. Acts coming in August include Kansas (Sunday, Aug. 1) for fans of heavy metal and Kahlil Gibran, Blondie (Thursday, Aug. 5) for fans of heavy meaningfulness and Debbie Harry, and the Doobie Brothers (Saturday, Aug. 14) for fans of heavy memories and the Doobie Brothers who are on their last

Here in Iowa City, anyone who doesn't already know about the Grateful Dead concert Aug. 10 wouldn't go anyway. Four hours at least of mellow vibes, hippie nostalgia and Bob Weir looking cute. Can they do "Dark Star" like they used to? Does anyone here remember "Dark Star"? We'll find out.

Speaking of guitarists, the Iowa Theater is the venue for August concerts by two acclaimed jazz pickers. Larry Coryell is performing with Brian Keane on Aug. 4; John McLaughlin, formerly of Mahavishnu, lately of Shakti, is performing Aug. 16. We've seen both, and though it's been a while, we can still recommend them. Finally, the Iowa State Fair in Des Alabama (Aug. 12), The Statler Aug. 25, when the DI resumes Brothers (Aug. 15), Dolly Parton (Aug. publication. Enjoy your vacations.

Movies

Though the movie schedule for Iowa City in August is at this point uncertain (though E.T. will certainly be around when everyone returns), a few movies that might come, and which are available in other cities now, include:

 Walt Disney Studio's Tron, which boldly goes where no animation has gone before.

 Woody Allen's A Midsummer Night's Sex Comedy, in which the Woodman pays more homage to Ingmar Bergman, but with more laughs than his past two tributes.

 An Officer and a Gentleman, with Richard Gere and Debra Winger, a story of love in the military that got the best review in Variety we've read in a • John Carpenter's The Thing, a thriller with more than a pinch of Alien . The World According to Garp. George Roy Hill's screen adaptation of John Irving's novel. We found this disappointing, but you might not.

gory remake of Howard Hawks' 1951

For those who prefer the quiet of a museum, the Cedar Rapids Art Museum's Twentieth Century American Masters display still impresses us with its scope. Many of works from artists including Bellows, Demuth, Dickinson, Marin, O'Keeffe, Ray and Sheeler come from the early stages of their careers. You get an idea, then, of how those artists progressed and how the schools they came to represent (Ashcan realism, cubo-futurism, precisionism) developed. The show runs throughout

Theater

Theater in eastern Iowa is at a lull in August. But the Old Creamery Theater in Garrison keeps some life on the boards with their production of Wait Until Dark. We never thought the movie was that scary, but everyone we knew did, and the translation to stage could provide its own kind of chills. Wait Until Dark is playing at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and at 2 and 7 p.m. Sundays until Aug. 29.

States ban vehicle headset use

Authorities around the country are passing tough laws to keep music freaks from walking, jogging and driving in the "never-never land" of Woodbridge, N.J., recently banned the use of the earphone-casette players by drivers of cars. motorcycles and mopeds, as well as by joggers on roadways.

When the ordinance takes effect Aug. 29, even pedestrians will have to remove the headsets to cross the street.

In Massachusetts, it is illegal to operate a motor vehicle while wearing a stereo headset.

The fine is $25 for a first offense and can go as high as $100 for subsequent violations.

"The reason for this law is obvious." Massachusetts Public Safety Director George Luciano said. "Next to sight, hearing is the most important sense used when driving.'

The Newport, R.I., City Council is considering an ordinance that would ban the use of headsets while driving, motorcycling or biking. Joggers and pedestrians would have to remove the earphones while crossing streets.

The Woodbridge, N.J., law carries a $50 fine and 15 days in jail. Several similar bills are pending in other cities.

Wonder cancels Chicago show CHICAGO (UPI) - Singer-musician

Stevie Wonder has canceled his Aug. 7 appearance at ChicagoFest in the wake of an announcement of a black boycott at the festival

But attorneys for Wonder, the first black entertainer to cancel his festival appearance since the Rev. Jesse Jackson called for a black boycott of the event, cited the threat of "civil disorder" as the reason.

Jackson, national president of Operation PUSH, called for the boycott earlier this week to protest the appointment of a white majority to the Chicago Housing Authority board.

Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne has said such a boycott would hurt blacks more than anyone else because the festival provides several hundred jobs for the black community.

Clark adds that this is not a children's show: "Which is really nice for Eulenspiegel - it gives them an opportunity to do adult material they don't get to do that often.

Music for the show will be provided by the O'Prirohdye Balalaika troupe. Couples and Puppets will be presented at 7:30 tonight at the Children's Gym on the College Street Mall Plaza.

'Plan 9' to invade TV

Movies on TV: Voted the Worst Movie Ever Made in the Golden Turkey Awards, Edward D. Wood's Plan Nine From Outer Space stars Bela Lugosi, who died during the filming, a bald Swedish strongman named Tor Johnson, the inimitable Vampira and the imitable Lyle Talbot. It's all about space aliens and zombies and laboratories (accent second syllable) and other neat things. Not even Count Floyd can figure this one out. 12:15 a.m. Sunday, KGAN-2.

Guys and Dolls, Frank Loesser's musical based on the works of Damon Runyon, punctured the pomposity of Rodgers and Hammerstein's quasioperas. But in Joseph Mankiewicz' screen adaptation, the comedy comes more from the casting than it does the book or the music.

Method meets madness in Marlon Brando's portrayal of sharpie Sky Masterson — if he isn't suffering from constipation when he sings "Luck Be a Lady," there's no excuse. Fortunately, Sinatra (for whom the Masterson role was written - here he plays Nathan Detroit), Vivian Blaine and Stubby Kaye do the material some justice. 3:30 p.m. Sunday, WGN-10.

What's Up, Doc? is Peter Bogdanovich's homage to the screwball comedies of Frank Capra and Preston Sturges, and it's one of his strongest movies. Barbra Streisand and Ryan O'Neal are the incompatible lovers thrown together here, with Madeleine Kahn hilarious as the jilted third wheel. Don't miss the ending - it may be the best tagline in movie history. 10:30 p.m. Sunday, KWWL-7.

Dailey's troubles end Don program

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) -The walls of University of San Francisco's highly successful basketball program have come tumbling down in the wake of allegations that All-America guard Quintin Dailey was paid by an alumnus for a job he never

The Board of Trustees, which made its own investigation into the alleged charges, voted in a closed session Wednesday night to suspend the university's highly successful basketball program for a least "a couple of years."

USF president Father John LoSchiavo announced the "painful decision" at a news conference Thursday on campus.

LoSchiavo placed much of the blame for the program being suspended on alumnus J. Luis Zabala, whose Salinas, Calif., firm employed Dailey over the summer, paying him $1,000 a month for a job he never showed up for.

"AN ALUMNUS for whose actions the NCAA holds the university responsible has paid money on numerous occasions to an enrolled student athlete who did not work for it," LoSchiavo said when asked about Dailey, who received probation last month after pleading guilty to assaulting a nursing student in a dormitory

It was during a probation hearing in connection with those charges that the first hints of a possible pay-to-play situation at USF came to the surface. Dailey told probation officer Michael Pearcy about the job with Zabala's firm.

LoSchiavo said as far as he knew, Zabala was the only person involved in the payment to Alumni Association President Dr. John Grimes said the decision shocked him. "As far as I see it the board of trustees had little else they could do," Grimes said. "The reputation of the university is what is important."

GRIMES SAID to his knowledge Zabala had acted independently in his dealings with Dailey.

The Dailey charges were not the first such violations that have plagued the program, which has been a showcase for college basketball for the past six decades. The team, with Bill Russell and K.C. Jones, had won the NCAA titles in the fifties once defeating Iowa 83-71 in the 1956 championship game - and since then the club has been a yearly participant in the NCAA post-season play.

In 1980 the team was placed on probation for one year for recruiting violations. Similar violations, involving the recruitment of North Carolina star Sam Perkins, led to the resignation of coach Dan Belluomini the following year and brought unofficial sanctions from the NCAA.

Bush Wackers rally to IM title

The Bush Wackers, behind the batting of shortstop Ed McDermott, scored a 14-9 victory over Raw Scores Thursday night to win the 1982 coed intramural softball title.

McDermott ripped a 2-1 pitch from the Raw Scores' Kevin Spratt for a grand slam home run in the sixth inning, which saw the Bush Wackers rally from a 8-7 deficit to a 13-8 lead.

Then some fancy defensive plays in the final two innings allowed the Bush Wackers to claim the championship.

'We're a good defensive team," Mike Jenn, Bush Wackers' team captain, said. "We rallied like that in our first playoff game." That came last Tuesday night when Bush Wackers edged The Blue Newts, 8-7, in the firstround of the playoffs.

McDERMOTT HIT for the cycle - a single, double, triple and his homer — in five at-bats. He scored three runs and drove home five more. Three of his hits were to the opposite field.

"I was just trying to get a single," McDermott said of his home run. "I don't like the rover (short fielder) playing on the left side. I tried to hit the ball to right and just got lucky, I

"But the key to winning coed softball is having good women. We had some good players.

Spratt, who boldly predicted victory before the game, still felt Raw Scores was the better team. "I think if we played them 10 times, we would win six," he said. "But every now and then you have a bad inning and lose a game. Again, I thought we played well.'

RAW SCORES finished third in the tournament last year and most of the team members work for the Iowa Testing Program, which Spratt explained was how the team got its name.

Raw Scores did test Bush Wackers early, jumping out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning. The game was tied, 4-4, when Raw Scores' Harold Schoen belted a grand slam home run off Jenn. That came in the fourth inning with one out, as Jenn filled the bases by walking three-straight batters.

"I was a little nervous," Jenn admitted. "I was stepping to far when I delievered the pitch.

Bush Wackers then scored three times in the fifth inning, with McDermott leading off with a double and scoring on a fielder's choice. Jim Baker and Linda Black later followed with RBI singles off Spratt, making the score 8-7 and setting up McDermott's heroics the next inning.

AFTER THE Bush Wackers took the 13-8 lead, Raw Scores pushed across a run in the sixth inning. But a potential rally was thwarted when Spratt, who had reached on a walk, was doubled off first. Jenn made a superb catch of Lois time get force Steffen. Kabela's line drive and easily completed the double play by simply throwing to first

In the seventh, Manfred Steffen lead off with a single for Raw Scores. Roxanne Miller then lined the ball in front who quickly threw to second, just in the game.

The next Raw Scores' batter, Scott McNabb, blasted a Jenn pitch deep to left. But defensive replacement Steve Polz made a spectacular one-handed catch for the second out of the inning. After a single by Jan Albrecht, Spratt of centerfielder Brain McDermott, flied out to Brian McDermott, ending

Players expect no change with Johnson

ARLINGTON, Texas (UPI) - Just because the Texas Rangers' 10th manager - Don Zimmer - has been replaced by their 11th - Darrell Johnson — there is no reason to expect the team to suddenly start winning baseball games with regularity.

Not even the players expect that. "It's about like an expansion team," said Rangers' third baseman Buddy Bell. "All I'm saying is that it is a shabbily run organization. During the past decade the Texas Rangers have gained a reputation for doing things the hard way, leaving themselves consistently at or near the bottom of the standings. But this time the consensus among baseball people was that the Rangers had outdone even

That is quite an achievement in just a year's time and the man in charge of the whole operation steadfastly refuses to even talk about why he thinks this

"Don't you think the people who pay their money to come to the games deserve to know what's going on?" Rangers' owner Eddie Chiles was asked Wednesday at the late-night news conference at which Zimmer's dismissal became official.

"They know enough," Chiles said.

Last month Chiles fired General Manager Eddie Robinson, who he said was a good friend. Now he has fired Zimmer and he says that Zimmer is a anybody except the press for daring to report the inner workings of his disarrayed front office. There was disbelief among Ranger players, and even from Zimmer himself, that Chiles would fire him last Monday and then ask him to stay on and manage the three-game series against Milwaukee which concluded Wednesday night.

"You don't fire a guy and then tell him to go to work," Zimmer said.

Chiles saw nothing wrong with it. "I heard people saying on the radio and television that we handled all this badly." Chiles said. "I feel we had the matter set up to be handled as best we could until the press got involved where they are not entitled or supposed

Bell, a consistent all-star and perhaps the most respected member of the team, does not have a reputation as an agitator. So when Bell talks, the rest of the team is apt to listen.

"Mr. Chiles is listening to people who don't know what the hell they are talking about." Bell said. "They tell him what he wants to hear. If you are going to build, then build.

"BUT YOU HAVE to keep people who can do the job and care about the

'A few years ago things were really bad here. Then they got better. We were real close. And now we have gone backwards.

The future for the Rangers is obviously bleak. The team has no general manager, an owner who admits he knows little about baseball and has gone about proving it for the past year. and a team that sees nothing but chaos in the front office.

Three golfers shoot 67 to tie for the lead at Canadian Open has all come about

OAKVILLE, Ontario (UPI) - Brad Bryant, admitted to the Canadian Open golf tournament just hours before the start, shot a 4-under-par 67 Thursday to share the first-round lead with Bruce Douglass and Greg Nor-

Bryant qualified at midnight Wednesday as the ninth and next to last alternate in the field of 156 players.

On Thursday, he led a charge of the obscure and lightly regarded, holding the lead with Douglass, 100th on the PGA Tour's money winnings list, and Norman, an Australian who has been successful on the Asian Tour but an also-ran in major events.

Bryant chipped his way through the normally demanding 7,060-yard Glenn Abbey layout with four birdies and no bogeys to share a delicate one-shot edge over eight others who occupied second place at 68.

LITTLE WIND, generous pin placements and quick greens made par almost as easy to break as glass. Twenty-seven players bettered par on a day when play was agonizingly slow with some needing five-and-a-half Those at 68 were David Graham and Lou Graham, Bruce Lietzke, seeking his first victory of the year, Keith Fergus, Wayne Levi, Pat Lindsey, three-time British PGA champ Nick Faldo and 1980 U.S. amateur champion Hal Sutton of Shreveport, La.

THE FIFTH-YEAR pro was grouped with Jack Nicklaus and Graham but he played as if he belonged. Bryant seemed more upset he had broken his fishing rod but was happy to bag more birdies than he did trout.

"I did not think I would be playing," said Bryant, who has won $68,795 and is having his best year on the tour. "I had gone fishing (Wednesday) and did not get back until about midnight and found a note on the door of my motor home saying I would be playing. I was surprised but I was more worried that I had broken my fishing

Women's athletics set $300,000 as goal for 1982 fund raising

By Amy Kraushaar Special to The Daily Iowan

Athletic fund raising for the UI women's athletic department nearly tripled in 1981, with contributions reaching $150,000, according to Lucy Broadston, assistant women's athletic director in charge of fund raising.

The department's goal for 1982 is $300,000, a dramatic increase from the 1980 total of $55,000.

Several reasons were given for the increase by Broadston.

"We use a combination of methods to raise money," she said. "There is a mailing every February to all season ticket holders and possible contributors and we get a substantial gift from the Amana VIP golf tournament. All the money raised goes to athletic scholarships.

IN COMPARISON, the UI men's athletic fund raising efforts for 1981 raised $1.9 million, with a goal of $2.25 million in 1982.

always been more popular and that's where the benefits are given." Broadston said. "At first, the men's department was skeptical that we would take money away from them. But that has not been the case."

Bud Callahan, director of men's fund raising, said women's fund raising efforts has not damaged contributions to men's athletics. "This has not taken away any contributions to men's athletics. This is all new money coming in to the women."

Several methods were used to aid the women's fund raising efforts, including four cocktail receptions by invitation for would-be contributors only in four Iowa cities.

THE PARTIES, held in Davenport, Cedar Rapids, Des Moines and Iowa City, were held in private homes of selected contributors.

'We were looking for a community leader with an attachment to the university and with a psychological or mental investment in the university "Historically, men's sports have and its students," Broadston said.

Guests at the receptions were carefully selected. "We didn't just ask friends," Broadston said. "It was very obviously a money-making thing. The invitation RSVP had three replies: yes. I will attend; no. I won't attend and no. but here's my contribution.

Each reception had an attendance of about 75 guests, according to Broadston. Women's Athletic Director Dr. Christine Grant attended all four receptions and UI President James 0. Freedman made an appearance at

"I think people are starting to realize that athletic opportunities are being opened to women as well as men. Grant said. "And with the new arena and a better budget, we can attract the top scholar athletes and better our program competitively."

Women's athletics has been at the UI for 10 years and currently involves 180 athletes and 33 staff members. After completion of the Carver-Hawkeye Sports Arena, both the men's and women's athletic offices will be located there.
