Nagle 'on the road' to bolster campaign

By Rochelle Bozman
Metro Editor

Although the Republican gubernatorial candidate has a lead between 9 and 11 percent in the race, he is running scared from the issue of the state's faltering economy, the Iowa Democratic Party chairman said Monday.

"If I took the budget from a $140 million surplus to a $90 million deficit, I wouldn't want to talk about it either,"

David Nagle:
On the road again.

said David Nagle, party chairman.

Nagle is "on the road again" to try to revive the fading campaign of Terry Branstad's Democratic counterpart, Roxanne Conlin. Although Conlin is behind in the polls — by 11 percent according to the latest Des Moines Register Iowa Poll and by 9 percent according to Conlin's poll-takers — Nagle said she is coming on strong.

"She took a real shot to the body with that tax issue. That was a major blow, but she hung in there. We are still only about 9 percent behind," he said. "At this point I'd rather be behind and moving up, than ahead."

CONLIN WILL come back, he said, by talking about "the major issue of this campaign," or the condition of the state economy.

"The Democrats are going to be talking about the budget and unemployment," Nagle said.

The state budget approved by the Iowa Legislature last session will run into a $90 million deficit, according to Jerry Rankin, director of the Iowa's Legislative Fiscal Bureau.

But because the Iowa constitution prohibits the government from creating deficits, Gov. Robert Ray would have little choice but to implement an across-the-board budget cut or let the budget go in the hole, and then a mandatory property tax would automatically go into effect.

Conlin also focused on the poor economy, and questioned Branstad's role in the dismal budget predictions during Saturday's debate. "You've been lieutenant governor for four years. In two of those four years the state has spent more than it has taken in."

"Right now we are not paying our bills on time. In the first year you were lieutenant governor you were left with a $140 million surplus. That's all been squandered through such foolish gimmicks as a $50 million tax rebate and growth in government of 13 percent during that first year," Conlin said.

THE DEMOCRATS BLAME this budget shortfall on an unrealistic look at the budget predictions by the Republicans. The budget was based "on a projected growth of 9.2 percent over the 1982 budget."

"It turns out that two months into the fiscal year, we are actually down 1.1 percent from a year ago," Nagle said. The Republican leadership is trying to See Nagle, page 6

Senate short on votes again; effort to end filibuster fails

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, despite President Reagan's urging, fell 15 votes short Monday in its second effort to end a liberal filibuster that has been blocking action on anti-abortion legislation.

The vote was 45-35, with conservative supporters of the legislation picking up a handful of votes since last Thursday, when the first effort to limit the two-week filibuster was defeated 41-47.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker, who noted before the vote that a number of senators had not yet returned from the Labor Day recess, called for a third limitation vote this Wednesday.

But even Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., leader of the anti-abortion forces, acknowledged he was "not certain" he would gain the total of 60 votes needed to win on Wednesday.

Baker also said he would seek to bring up today a proposed "federalism" constitutional amendment proposed by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, which would allow Congress and the states to restrict or ban abortion.

BUT BAKER acknowledged it is highly unlikely he will get the unanimous consent required for him to do so.

Reagan had pledged his full effort to winning passage of the anti-abortion legislation, and urged members in See Filibuster, page 6

Council members react strongly to human rights report charges

By Mark Leonard

The city Human Rights Commission's accusation that the Iowa City Council does business with discriminatory groups drew a harsh response from council members Monday.

In its Aug. 23 meeting the commission noted, "It is possible the city council is interacting with one or more civic organizations which are discriminatory in that females are not allowed to become members..."

The commission's decision to investigate the situation drew fire from several councilors during their informal meeting.

"It looks a little like a witch hunt to me," Councilor Larry Lynch said. "I think they're really getting pretty far afield."

Councilor John Balmer, a member of the predominantly-male Kiwanis Club, said, "I'm concerned that they'll be looking into this when there are more blatant discrimination cases in the city."

"Many social organizations in the community are comprised of strictly males and strictly females, but they still contribute money to worthwhile in-city projects," he said.

MAYOR Mary Neuhauser said, "I don't object to them looking into this," but added that she felt it might not be in the best interest of the city to refuse donations from particular groups.

Commissioners said at the August meeting they were not sure which local civic organizations restrict membership on the basis of sex, so they will attempt to obtain that information. Once the groups are determined, Commissioner Edward Raupp will compose a letter listing the organizations and asking the council for a response on whether they interact with these organizations, and if so, to what extent. Post-'Garp' Irving banished to star status

By T. Johnson
Staff Writer

John Irving's "informal" question-and-answer period in Phillips Hall Auditorium Monday afternoon filled the small hall to overflowing. The Writers' Workshop/International Writing Program crowd showed up after the first camera crew, but before the bulk of the audience.

They stood in a large group in the cramped lobby of Phillips Hall Auditorium, talking and laughing and looking anachronistic in hair unstylishly long and wearing clothes bordering on the frumpish.

There was a time not long ago when they would have had Irving to themselves, but that was before The World According to Garp was published, when only those serious about literature and academia cared about his writing.

Things have changed; Irving is a media star. One young woman, fighting her way through the crowd to a class, explained to her friend that Irving was "the guy who wrote that movie, The World According to Garp."

It's been just a few years since fame changed Irving's life. While he was working on Garp he drove an old car — a Volvo, if memory serves — with "GARP" on its license plates. Irving has a fascination with the sounds of different names, and the license plate was a device to gauge public reaction.

AFTER THE BOOK was published, however, people began leaving notes on his windshield and hanging around parking lots to meet him. He changed the plates.

"You shouldn't ask famous writers what it's like to be famous," he said. "You should ask writers who are unknown what that's like. It's difficult being read by the 'wrong' kind of people."

Irving has mellowed considerably in the limelight of national attention. He previously reacted violently to insinuations that his books were autobiographical. In the pop-cult morass he finds himself in today, he has learned to put up with questions about his personal life and its relation to his fiction.

"The degree to which a novel is autobiographical," he said, waxing diplomatic, "is lamentable."

The problem is that it is simply too easy to see Irving as Garp, or as Bogus Trumper, the hapless protagonist of The Water-Method Man. In the minds of many, Irving and his characters are as inseparable as are Jack Kerouac and Sal Paradise.

THE TELEVISION CREW from KCRG left after 15 minutes — Irving spoke for an hour-and-a-half — and a few of the media types up front looked bored and distressed that Irving had asked them please not to take too many pictures, or leave the television lights burning longer than absolutely necessary.

Irving, who started writing his sixth novel last spring, seemed uncomfortable talking about his own work. There is a mystical, private relationship between a writer and his work. A writer knows too well what went into a novel.

"I know how much scissors and paste went into it (Garp). It may read consecutively but it wasn't written that way. I never got to sit down with it for more than two or three hours. I moved eight times during the writing of that book, and had four different jobs."

"It's such a luxury to be a writer full-time. As long as I have a book to write, that's what I should do."

John Irving:
Now a media star.

Bombing heaviest since siege

Waves of Israeli warplanes pounded Palestinian and Syrian targets in Lebanon Monday, striking within 3 miles of the Syrian border in the fiercest bombing in Lebanon since a U.S.-arranged cease-fire took hold a month ago.

In a sharp escalation of force, Israeli warplanes attacked the strategic Bekaa Valley in eastern Lebanon for about eight hours, striking more than a dozen targets. Lebanon's state-run Beirut radio said at least 40 to 50 people died in the attacks, which Israel said were in retaliation for cease-fire violations.

Falklands sanctions to end

LONDON — Argentina's failure to complete necessary legal procedures caused a delay in the lifting of economic sanctions between Britain and Argentina, the government said late Monday.

The sanctions were to be lifted at midnight (6 p.m. Iowa time), according to British officials. But in Buenos Aires, there was no official recognition of the decision, or of any legal problems.

Detroit teachers join strike

Detroit's 11,000 public school teachers rejected pay cuts and went on strike Monday, more than doubling the number of students affected by walkouts across the nation as the 1982-83 school year moved into full swing.

School officials told the 200,000 students in Detroit, the nation's seventh largest school district, to report for classes despite the walkout. In all, nearly 330,000 students had extended summer vacations because of strikes in Michigan, Pennsylvania, Illinois and New Jersey.

Princess Grace breaks leg

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — Princess Grace of Monaco suffered multiple fractures and her 17-year-old daughter Stephanie was slightly injured Monday when a vintage car driven by the former American movie idol lost its brakes, plunged off a winding hillside and caught fire.

The royal palace in Monaco announced that the princess, the former Grace Kelly who gave up a Hollywood career to marry Prince Ranier III in 1956, suffered a fractured right thighbone, a broken rib and a shattered collarbone.

Insanity plea curbs proposed

WASHINGTON — President Reagan sent Congress legislation Monday proposing dramatic curbs on the insanity defense used to acquit John W. Hinckley Jr., who wounded him in an assassination attempt last year.

Reagan's "Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1982" also proposes relaxing the exclusionary rule, which prohibits the introduction of illegally obtained evidence in court, and limiting state criminal cases to federal courts.

Administration OK's jet sale

WASHINGTON — The Commerce Department has licensed the $25 million sale of six small jets — four of which have military application — to Iraq, congressional sources said Monday.

Conservative group head calls Cutler to a debate

DES MOINES (UPI) — Angered by Democrat Lynn Cutler's remarks about his organization's radio advertisement, the chairman of the National Conservative Political Action Committee has challenged the 3rd District congressional candidate to a debate.

John (Terry) Dolan made the challenge Monday to counter what he called Cutler's use of lies and distortions about conservatives.

"You refer to conservatives, myself included, as racists and fascists. You have also accused us of wanting to destroy democracy," Dolan said in a letter addressed to Cutler and released to the media.

Dolan's challenge apparently is a counterattack to Cutler's battle against two NCPAC-sponsored radio ads.

IN THE ADS, the conservative group calls Cutler the most far-out liberal ever to run for office. Cutler's press aide Chris Gresock said. Cutler has labeled the ads "near slanderous" and warned radio stations from airing them.

In addition, her opponent, Rep. Cooper Evans, R-Iowa, has disavowed the spots.

Cutler said Monday she has not received Dolan's challenge and heard about it only through news reports.

"I was supposed to debate him in March at Iowa State (University) but he never showed up," Cutler said. "At this point I don't have time for this stuff."

Tradition meets technology in UI Classics Department

By Mary Tabor
Staff Writer

UI classics students expecting to labor over dusty editions of the Iliad and the Odyssey may be surprised to find themselves studying Greek mythology in front of a video display terminal.

Professor Erling Holtmark, UI Classics Department chairman, doesn't see anything wrong with using modern technology to study ancient history.

"I am a strong believer in computers and find them very relevant to my discipline," he said. "In general, people in humanities don't appreciate what computers can do for them."

Holtmark has developed a computer program which helps search Greek and Latin texts for language patterns.

Billie Anderson, a teaching assistant and graduate student in classics, admits the computer search makes it easier: "It is nothing we couldn't do by ourselves, but it saves a lot of time."

"The computer is very appropriate to the classics," said Marcia Lindgren, another teaching assistant and graduate student in the department. "We're interested in language on a word to word basis and the computer is perfect for that."

AS EMPHASIS on communication increases, Holtmark sees students putting more value in foreign languages as a way to understand English. "Our enrollment has grown phenomenally in recent years. It is following a national trend," he said. Total enrollment in all classes in the Classics Department rose from 632 in the fall of 1981 to 935 this fall — an increase of 48 percent. According to Holtmark, classics outstripped the other departments in growth.

"Even if there is a decline in general enrollment, I don't expect our department to be too seriously affected," he said.

He attributes the rise in enrollment to the addition of three classics courses to the UI's new general education requirement possibilities. Also many majors from different departments find Greek and Latin for vocabulary building a useful course, Holtmark said.

ONLY ABOUT SIX or seven students are presently majoring in the classics, he said.

Billie Anderson chose the classics over English for her graduate studies because it is "more esoteric and less competitive."

Holtmark finds the classics "an inherently interesting discipline that holds broader notions about the concerns of mankind." To make this clear to more students he offers them a chance to use the computer in his class.

"I'm surprised at how few take advantage of my offer," Holtmark said. "In this day and age there is such a thing as computer literacy and an educated person should now have no sense of awe toward computers."

UI officials believe salaries still too low despite new rank

By Jane Turnis
Special to The Daily Iowan

Reports that the UI salaries have moved out of the cellar in the ranking of the Big Ten may not be enough to keep faculty members from moving out.

A report of the American Association of University Professors revealed that UI faculty salaries during the 1981-82 academic year rank seventh in the Big Ten Conference, an improvement over a tie with Indiana University for last place previously.

But Randall Bezanson, UI vice president of finance, said, "The salaries are still too low. It's pretty hard to take being seventh in the Big Ten. We feel we're better than that."

The study, which compares 2,500 colleges and universities, shows the average salaries for full-time faculty members, adjusted to a nine-month basis.

According to the report, UI professors earn an average of $36,200 annually; associate professors, $27,200; assistant professors, $22,400 and instructors, $19,100. The average overall salary for UI faculty members is $28,520, compared to a Big Ten overall average of $30,950.

RICHARD REMINGTON, UI vice president for academic affairs, said the move is "positive, but not significant."

"We're dealing with an issue of faculty mobility," he said. "We've lost some top-quality people, and gained a couple, but we've got to be able to hold them here."

The Iowa Board of Regents' Annual Report of Resignations indicated an expected increase in UI faculty resignations for the '80-81 academic year. According to the report, figures for that year and the previous four years are generally consistent, but "an upward trend may emerge with future reports."

Of the 84 UI faculty members who resigned during the '80-81 academic year, 61 percent accepted positions at other universities, the report stated. The '81-82 report has not been released yet.

"MANY PEOPLE, especially younger faculty, leave because they believe they will have better opportunities elsewhere for professional advancement and better salaries."

"Others, particularly more senior faculty, leave to accept administrative appointments or because of the greatly increased income anticipated in other educational institutions."

Donald Heistad, UI faculty council president, said that as well as competing with other educational institutions, faculty salaries are competing more and more with private industry. "People in high technology, for example, are very susceptible to recruitment away from the academic world." In the '81-82 resignation report, 26 percent of those faculty members who left the UI moved into positions with the government or the private sector.

COMPARED TO UNIVERSITIES in the Midwest, the UI faculty salaries are withstanding economic problems well, said R. Wayne Richey, executive secretary of the Iowa Board of Regents.

Council views hotel plans, design approval expected

By Mark Leonard
Staff Writer

Plans for the long-awaited downtown hotel were unveiled at the Iowa City Council's informal meeting Monday night, and will probably be approved at tonight's formal meeting.

Councilors nodded their heads in agreement that the architectural design by Zuchelli, Hunter & Associates Inc. met with their satisfaction. "I think it looks pretty good... let's go," Councilor Larry Lynch said.

Once approval of the prospectus is given, bids on the construction of the hotel will be taken until Nov. 8. Councilor David Perret said the prospectus will probably be sent to about 40 developers.

The minimum bid on the site has been set at $198,000, which includes a refundable deposit of $5,000.

After the bids are in, the council will have 30 to 60 days to select a preferred developer for the hotel.

PLANS CALL FOR a hotel plus a department store to be developed in the heart of the downtown area connected to the pedestrian mall.

Armstrong's Inc. of Cedar Rapids has already been named the preferred developer of the $6.3 million proposed store. On Oct. 1, the council will be meeting with representatives of Armstrong's to give them the go-ahead on the project, if the necessary funding has been obtained.

The hotel will be one of the final steps in the city's 20-year, $26 million downtown renovation project.

Once completed, the hotel will provide conference facilities able to handle 350 guests, a 500-square-foot indoor swimming pool, and a restaurant with dining room seating for at least 150 people.

PERRET SAID HOTEL construction will hopefully begin in late winter or early spring. Armstrong's will possibly delay construction for a year to wait for interest rates to fall, but that decision is still up in the air, he said.

Councilor John Balmer who commented he "really liked the (hotel's) design, had one suggestion for the developers.

"Order the right bricks," he said in reference to the city's recent blunder in which they ordered 48,000 bricks which can't be used on the city plaza because they don't match the ones already in place.

Basketball official requests dismissal of malpractice suit

By Suzanne Johnson
Staff Writer

Big Ten basketball official James Bain Monday entered a motion that the Johnson County District Court dismiss the countersuit filed against him by the owners of Hawkeye John's Trading Post in Coralville, according to District Court records.

Bain's motion is the latest legal development in a civil suit based on calls he made in the UI basketball team's controversial loss to Purdue last March.

In a suit he filed May 4 against John and Karen Gillespie, Bain said the couple injured his reputation and invaded his privacy when they sold clothing which portrayed him as a person who should be hanged.

Bain said he suffered personal embarrassment and humiliation, and is asking for damages which include a sum representing profits the Gillespies "wrongfully obtained." He wants additional compensation for his injured reputation and invaded privacy.

The counterclaim Bain wants dismissed was filed by the Gillespies Sept. 3. In it, the Gillespies accuse Bain of malpractice, saying he made improper foul calls against UI basketball players, and that his conduct was below the required standard of competence.

The Gillespies charge that, because of Bain, they suffered loss of earnings and business advantage, emotional distress and anxiety, loss of goodwill and loss of expected profits.

The Gillespies are asking for $175,000 in addition to legal costs.

A Coralville man was charged early Saturday with third degree criminal mischief, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Bill Fisher, 23, of 402 Sixth St., was arrested after witnesses saw him kick the railing off a second-story balcony at the Scotch Pine Apartments. The wooden railing fell down on two cars and the total damage is estimated to be from $150 to $200.

Fisher made his initial court appearance before Magistrate Theodore L. Kron and was released on personal recognizance.

Seven vying for board seats

Residents of the Iowa City Community School District will go to the polls today to elect three board members to fill two three-year terms and an unexpired one-year spot.

Polling sites in the nine school election precincts will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. The 41 general election precincts are combined to form the nine school precincts.

Candidates for the three-year terms are incumbents Lynne Cannon and Dorsey Phelps and first time contender Karen Dee Vanderhoof, a former substitute school nurse in the district.

Seeking election to the vacated one-year term are Paul Galer, agent for Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States; Michael Goldberg, an Iowa City police officer; Diana Arman-Lundell, editorial associate for UI Hospitals' information service; and David Wooldrik, manager of the Iowa City Credit Bureau.

THE ONE-YEAR TERM opened when Classie Hoyle, former UI director of affirmative action, resigned her board seat to become vice president for academic affairs at Clarke College in Dubuque.

Also up for voter consideration is a referendum to authorize the sale of Central Junior High School. A simple majority is needed for the referendum to pass.

The Johnson County Elections Office changed the Iowa City School District election precincts in April to handle voter turnout more efficiently.

The Daily Iowan/Steve Sedam

The election office encourages residents to check their voter identification cards for precinct number before going to the polls.

PRECINCTS and polling places are:

- Precinct 1-Northwest Jr. High, 1507 8th St. Coralville.
- Precinct 2-North Liberty Town Hall.

- Precinct 3-Horace Mann Elementary School, 521 N. Dodge St.
- Precinct 4-Lincoln Elementary School, 300 Teeters Court.
- Precinct 5-Ernest Horn Elementary School, 600 Koser Ave.
- Precinct 6-Mark Twain Elementary School, 1355 DeForest St.

- Precinct 7-Longfellow Elementary School, 1130 Seymour Ave.
- Precinct 8-Helen Lemme Elementary School, 3100 E. Washington St.
- Precinct 9-Hills Elementary School.

Voters with questions about polling sites should call the elections office at 338-5428.

Incumbents face stiff '82 primary challenges

United Press International

Senators from Vermont and Nevada, a House committee chairman from Wisconsin and the governor of Massachusetts fight for political survival today in the biggest primary elections of 1982, with other incumbents in 12 states appearing secure.

Here are the top races on the primary ballots:

• Massachusetts — Democratic Gov. Edward King is locked in a tight battle with liberal former Gov. Michael Dukakis. Sen. Edward Kennedy is assured of renomination. On the Republican side, John Winthrop Sears is the front-runner in a three-way race.

• Vermont — Republican Sen. Robert Stafford remains the favorite in his three-way race with former White House adviser John McClaughry and former banking and insurance adviser Stewart Ledbetter.

• Nevada — Democratic Sen. Howard Cannon faces Rep. James Santini in what promises to be a close race by primary day.

• Wisconsin — A resolution favoring a nuclear arms freeze is endorsed by most candidates and is expected to be approved. Former acting Gov. Martin Schreiber, a Democrat, and Terry Kohler, a Republican, are favored for the governorship nominations. Democratic Rep. Clement Zablocki faces strong primary opposition from state Sen. Lynn Adelman.

• Minnesota — Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy wants his old job back, but the favorite in the Senate Democratic race is Mark Dayton. Sen. David Durenberger is unopposed. For governor, Democrat-endorsed Attorney General Warren Spannus, faces a tough battle against former Gov. Rudy Pich, while Lt. Gov. Louis Wangberg, who has the GOP endorsement, is in an uphill fight against former Wayzata Mayor Wheelock Whitney.

• Maryland — Democratic Gov. Harry Hughes is favored for renomination over Ocean City Mayor Harry Kelly and state Sen. Harry McGuirk of Baltimore. Democratic Sen. Paul Sarbanes faces eight unknowns, and former Rep. Larry Hogan is the favorite to oppose him.

• Colorado — Former astronaut Jack Swigert is seeking the GOP nomination against businessman Norman Sothan in the new congressional district.

• Washington — Democratic Sen. Henry Jackson has only taken opposition. On the Republican side, Seattle City Attorney Doug Jewett and inventor Larry Penberthy are facing off.

• New Hampshire — Democratic Gov. Hugh Gallen is unopposed but eight Republicans are fighting for the right to run against him. The front-runners are Robert Monier, Tufts University professor John Sununu and former executive councilor Lou D'Allesandro.

• Utah — Sen. Orrin Hatch and his Democratic opponent, Salt Lake City Mayor Ted Wilson, are unopposed. Ray Beckham and Howard Nielson, however, are in a tight GOP primary for the new 3rd District House seat.

• Washington, D.C. — A Washington Post poll showed first-term Mayor Marion Barry 20 points in front of former Carter Cabinet official Patricia Harris.

Lewellyn to begin trial today with no defense plan

DES MOINES (UPI) — The attorney for former stockbroker Gary Lewellyn, accused of 15 counts of embezzlement and misappropriation of bank funds, said Monday he has no defense for his client's trial today.

Attorney Gerald Crawford admits Lewellyn has no defense and said he is unsure whether any defense witness will take the stand. The non-jury trial is being held in front of U.S. District Judge William Stuart who said the entire proceeding may last only a couple of hours.

U.S. Attorney Richard Turner plans on calling only one witness to document the flow of millions of dollars in cash and securities from banks in Ames and Humboldt to Lewellyn's brokerage firm.

The real battle will occur in the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis. Crawford will appeal Stuart's decision last month not to allow a compulsive gambling defense. Without that, Crawford admits Lewellyn has no defense.

THE FORMER Humboldt High School standout and Greenfield football coach began a high-stakes stock buying spree a year ago. Under a number of assumed names, Securities and Exchange Commission officials say Lewellyn purchased more than half of the stock of Safeguard Scientifics, a Pennsylvania high-technology firm.

According to federal officials, Lewellyn used $16.7 million entrusted to him from the First National Bank in Humboldt and $2 million from the University Bank in Ames to finance his stock manipulations.

On March 31, with federal investigators closing in, Lewellyn fled his West Des Moines home and wife and two children. During his three-week flight, the Humboldt bank collapsed and was purchased by a Des Moines holding company.

One of the casualties in the bank failure was Lewellyn's father, Clifford, who resigned his post as president.

On April 21, following counseling by former governor Harold Hughes, Lewellyn turned himself in to authorities. He has been a recluse since then, appearing for an occasional court hearing but always taking the Fifth Amendment when asked to testify.

Lewellyn has already pleaded guilty to a contempt of court charge in New York for trying to sell some of his stock after returning from hiding. The sentence for that charge will be combined with whatever sentence he receives from Stuart.

Day later, aides talk to governor

DES MOINES (UPI) — Aides to Iowa Gov. Robert D. Ray say they lost contact with the state's chief executive for a day and a half, but finally talked with him Monday by telephone from flood-plagued Japan.

Crowded phone lines and a delayed flight from Shanghai created the problem, press aide John McCarroll said. Ray was finally reached at his room in the Okura Hotel in Tokyo early this morning, Japan time, McCarroll said.

The governor's staff spent Monday trying to contact him, leaving a standing request with the overseas operator, but crowded phone lines in the wake of Typhoon Judy prevented a connection. Complicating communications is a 13-hour time difference between Des Moines and Tokyo, McCarroll said.

Ray was scheduled to arrive in Tokyo Sunday night Iowa time on a flight from Shanghai, but had not been heard from since Sunday morning.

Ray talked with his executive secretary, Susie Mitschke, shortly before he was due to take off and mentioned that bad weather could delay his flight, McCarroll said.

The typhoon roared into Japan Sunday night, flooding some parts of Tokyo. McCarroll said Ray's flight was delayed eight hours, but the plane was able to land in good weather at the Tokyo airport.

Iowa's governor is on the second leg of a trip to the Orient to promote export trade. Accompanying Ray is Iowa Highway Patrol Sgt. John Neuschwanger and Douglas Gross, one of Ray's administrative aides.

Crash kills

MALAGA. Spain-bound DC-10 jetliner skidded across a takeoff Monday, killing an infant. More than 31 were injured and 31 were killed.

The pilot of Spanair flight 601 had decided to abort the takeoff because of technical problems with the engine, but the plane crashed anyway.

The Ministry of Transport said the crash occurred on the runway at Malaga.

Rescuers called the crash site a "nightmare" and were expected to find the bodies of the victims.

Authorities said the plane was carrying 260 passengers and 13 crew members.

The U.S. Embassy in Madrid said the plane was carrying 260 passengers and 13 crew members.

Passengers said when the plane slid off the runway, it hit a row of greenhouses.

Crash of DC-10 jetliner in Spain kills 46; 210 Americans on board

MALAGA, Spain (UPI) — A New York-bound DC-10 jetliner with 393 people aboard skidded across a highway and crashed on takeoff Monday, killing at least 46 people in an inferno. More than 100 people were injured and 31 were missing.

The pilot of Spantax charter flight 5995 "had decided to abort takeoff because of technical problems" seconds before the crash, Transport Ministry spokesman Luis Gamir said.

The Ministry of Transport said 46 people were confirmed dead, including four who died at a hospital, and 31 were missing.

Rescuers called off work late Monday night and beamed a single search light on the scarred and shattered hulk which was still smoldering.

Authorities said 49 people were hospitalized, 13 on the critical list, and 267 were treated and released or were unharmed.

THE U.S. EMBASSY said 214 survivors left Malaga aboard special flight Iberia 747 and were expected to arrive in New York sometime after midnight.

Passengers said a stampede erupted when people began shouting, "Fire," after the plane slid across the Malaga-Torremolinos highway, plowed through a row of greenhouses and split open in a field.

Rescue workers said many of the dead were trapped in the tail section, where emergency doors apparently could not be opened.

Filled to capacity, the jet carried a Spanish crew of 13 and 380 passengers, including 210 Americans, the U.S. Embassy said. The rest were Canadian and Spanish travelers.

"We all thought we were goners on that plane," passenger Lorraine Surace of Spring Valley, N.Y., said. "When I heard people yell, 'Fire,' I jumped out the (escape) chute," Surace said.

SHE SAID dozens of people tumbled down the chute in a mass of arms and legs. "Once on the ground, we all just ran. We thought the plane was going to explode," she said.

Pilot Juan Perez told Spantax officials he wanted to abort the takeoff when he felt a vibration in the plane as it gunned down the runway.

According to Surace, people who had been aboard the plane when it flew from Madrid into Malaga said "the engines were going in and out, like stalling."

Spantax official Arda van Oppens said, "The plane did not actually take off. It did not actually leave the ground."

The jumbo plane overran the runway, skidded 200 yards and collided with at least one truck parked along the highway. With both engines torn off, the plane stopped and burst into flames.

"I was trampled on as people scrambled to be let out," Amelia Jones of Bradley Beach, N.J., said.

BARBARA YUBLONSKI, of Brooklyn, N.Y., said in a trembling voice: "As I came off the chute, I looked back and saw flames shooting out of the whole back of the plane. My husband was behind me."

"He said, 'Run! Run! Don't stop! The plane is going to explode!'" she said.

"You didn't have a minute to think. You just acted on instinct. When we got to the other side of the road, people were panicking and throwing up," Yublonski said.

Rescuers waded through foam that had been sprayed on the burning plane, picked up the dead and laid them in coffins to be taken to a temporary morgue set up in a nearby hangar.

In Washington, the National Transportation Safety Board said it was sending three investigators to Spain to assist Spanish authorities investigating the crash.

Three of aviation history's worst accidents, including the world's worst single-plane crash and the worst domestic U.S. airplane accident, involved DC-10s built by a division of McDonnell Douglas Corp., of St. Louis.

McDonnell Douglas said it was sending a team of engineers from its Douglas Aircraft Co. division to Malaga to investigate the crash.

Labor Secretary Donovan cleared in second special prosecutor probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A second special prosecutor's investigation reaffirmed Monday there is "insufficient credible evidence" to prosecute Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan on allegations linking him to organized crime, and said there is no cause to connect him with a gangland murder.

White House Counselor Edwin Meese also restated President Reagan's confidence in Donovan — saying he knew of "no reason" the labor secretary would not remain in the Cabinet.

Donovan, his voice quivering with emotion, told Labor Department colleagues several hours after the report was released that he was angry because of what he, his family and friends have had to endure.

"It is tempting — and probably politically orthodox — for me to say how pleased and gratified I am that this entire matter can now be consigned to historians," Donovan said bitterly. "But, ladies and gentlemen, I am not pleased and I am not gratified. I am angry."

"I have always known that the charges against me were lies and I have told you so," he added. "That is why I believe the public, with their American sense of fair play, shares my anger."

DONOVAN LEFT the stage without answering questions from reporters, stopping only to raise a clenched fist to cheering department employees.

In a 111-page report to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, Special Prosecutor Leon Silverman said there appeared to be no connection between Donovan and the Aug. 25 murder of Nathan Masselli in New York City.

Masselli's father, William, had been scheduled to appear before the Silverman grand jury less than 48 hours after the slaying.

Silverman said Nathan Masselli "was not an informant and he never wore any electronic surveillance or eavesdropping devices on his person" as some news reports had claimed.

THE SPECIAL prosecutor's conclusion

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan gives a "thumbs up" Monday after he was cleared of any wrongdoing a second time by federal investigators.

about 14 new allegations used the same language of his June 26 report, and noted that some of the new charges in part duplicated or resembled the original ones.

One new allegation, retracted by the source before issuance of Monday's report, said the Teamsters union contributed $20 million to Reagan's election campaign in return for a promise that two underworld figures, Russell Bufalino and Anthony Provenzano, would be pardoned at the end of the first term.

SILVERMAN interviewed several administration officials, including Meese and 33 Teamsters officials. The report said the informant refused to undergo a lie detector test, and later retracted the allegation.

The allegations also included making payoffs to reputed mob figures, offering kickbacks to construction firms, being associated with an assortment of underworld figures, and attending the 1979 Super Bowl football game in Miami with the elder Masselli.

The Massellis were involved in the Jo-Pel Construction and Trucking Co., a subcontractor to Donovan's old Schiavone Construction Co. in New Jersey.

Masselli was shot in the head while driving his car in New York City. After his killing, it was disclosed that the younger Masselli had allowed Silverman to tape several phone calls between him and Schiavone executives.

The Masselli slaying was the second of an individual connected with the Donovan probe.

The body of former New Jersey Teamster union official Fred Furino, who also testified about Donovan, was found in the trunk of a car in June in Manhattan. He was shot once in the head.

Retired U.S. general suing CBS over documentary about Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retired Army Gen. William Westmoreland filed a $120 million libel suit Monday against CBS, Inc., for a "vicious, false and contemptible" documentary that accused him of falsifying reports of enemy troop strength in Vietnam.

"In this program they accused me by name of suppressing and falsifying figures on enemy troop strength ... to present a rosier picture of the war than was the fact," Westmoreland said. He commanded U.S. troops for more than four years during the Vietnam War.

"My family and I were shocked and dismayed and, I must confess, terribly, terribly hurt that I, the military and others should be portrayed on national TV as liars, indeed criminals, to more than 20 million Americans," the 68-year-old, white-haired general said in a crowded news conference.

CBS PRESIDENT Van Gordon Sauter said in a statement the network "will mount a vigorous defense of this lawsuit not only because we see this suit totally devoid of merit, but because it constitutes a serious threat to independent journalism in our society."

He called the documentary "a valid journalistic broadcast about an important issue in the Vietnam War," and declared, "We stand by the broadcast."

Sauter also said he regrets Westmoreland's refusal of a CBS invitation to "present his case directly to the American people" in a 15-minute, unedited statement of his position that would have been followed by a discussion of the issues.

"That offer still stands," Sauter said. Westmoreland said he tried for nine months to get a retraction or apology from CBS, "but they remained intransigent" — so he decided to sue "with the very greatest reluctance and conscious of the long and bitter legal battle I am about to engage in."

EVEN IF the legal proceedings take five years or more, Westmoreland said, he will pursue them to the end.

Westmoreland said if he wins, as he expects to, he will donate his award to charity and retain none for personal use.

The 90-minute documentary, "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception," was shown Jan. 23 over the CBS TV network. According to the legal complaint, the Nielsen Co. estimated the number of viewers as 20,041,920.

Westmoreland's brief said that before the broadcast, CBS published ads in The Washington Post and The New York Times saying the documentary "reveals the shocking decisions made at the highest level of military intelligence to suppress and alter critical information on the number and placement of enemy troops in Vietnam — a deliberate plot to fool the American public, the Congress and perhaps even the White House."

IT ALSO charged the ads included "a drawing of men in uniform, seated around a conference table, with the word 'Conspiracy' superimposed in large letters."

Gen. William Westmoreland

Westmoreland's suit asks $80 million in punitive damages and $40 million in personal damages.

Specifically named in the suit are Sauter; investigative reporter Mike Wallace, who served as narrator and interviewer; program producer George Crile, and paid consultant Samuel Adams.

Westmoreland will be represented by the Capital Legal Foundation, a nonprofit, tax-exempt public interest law firm organized in 1977.

Senate to mull tuition strategy

By Kristine Stemper
Staff Writer

In an effort to fend off a third straight year of tuition increases, the UI Student Senate will consider a resolution calling for a tuition rate freeze at a Thursday meeting.

Senate President Patty Maher said the senate has been looking at quite a few statistics showing an increase in tuition rates will greatly reduce the number of people able to afford college.

For every $100 tuition jump, enrollment falls by 2.5 percent, according to a report from the Policy Platform and Administration Manual of the United States Student Association. "We're concerned about that 2.5 percent," Maher said.

"We don't mind paying more" if the quality of education is improving along with that increase, she explained.

"Tuition has gone up and the quality of education has gone down here in the past two years," said Bruce Hagemann, a member of student senate and New Wave — a UI political group that's getting onto the anti-tuition hike bandwagon. "Most of the students are pretty dry at this point and they're tired of paying more and getting less."

THE SENATE has opposed past tuition increases, but has been unsuccessful in preventing them. Student apathy is partially to blame, Hagemann said.

However, because recent financial aid cuts have prompted an outpouring of student concern over their ability to attend the UI, Hagemann said the regents may pick up this concern.

A leaflet being distributed by New Wave explains the group's belief that an increase is uncalled for.

"Ronald Reagan, everybody's big brother, along with his cohorts, have taken a meat axe to all social programs ...," the leaflet states. It goes on to claim the quality of education at the UI has decreased because some of the best faculty members have "jumped ship" for better salaries elsewhere.

New Wave is planning to organize students to greet the regents when they hold their September meeting at the UI.

Last year students tried unsuccessfully to pack the Hawkeye Room in the Union to argue against the proposed tuition increases. Tuition increases approved by the regents ranged from 9 percent to 33 percent last year.

Board opposes tuition tax credits

By Jeff Beck
Staff Writer

The arrival of today's school board election did not stop the Iowa City school board of directors from making a political statement Monday night — unanimous approval of a resolution against the establishment of tuition tax credits.

The resolution, approved by a 7-0 vote, will be sent to members of Iowa's congressional delegation.

Currently, a bill in the U.S. Senate proposes establishing a tuition tax package that could be approved by the Senate Finance Committee and brought to the floor this fall.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, is a member of the finance committee and supports the bill, but has said there may be a better time than this fall to establish the credits because of the impact on revenue.

BOARD MEMBER Dorsey Phelps said before the vote on the resolution, "I think we have to take a strong stand on this before it gets out of committee and before it gets to the floor."

The legislation in its present form, as proposed by President Reagan, would provide a tax credit of $100 in 1983, increasing to $500 in 1985, for each student enrolled in a private school — kindergarten through 12th grade.

That type of assistance to private institutions would shortchange students in the public school system and put a greater burden on taxpayers, Phelps said.

In fact, the tuition tax credit package would cost the federal government $4 billion annually in lost revenues.

District Superintendent David Cronin wrote in an introduction to the board resolution that, aside from the costs to the federal government, the issue of separation of church and state is an additional argument against the bill.

CRONIN SAID 90 percent of private schools are church-related and tuition tax credits are a form of subsidy. He also cited a recent poll that found most Iowans do not favor tuition tax credits.

Mary Mascher, president of the Iowa City Education Association, spoke in favor of the resolution at the meeting. She said the local group, in conjunction with the Iowa Education Association and the National Education Association, oppose the tax credit legislation.

"I think it would be dramatic, just dramatic as far as the effect on the students" if the bill were passed, she said.

Other action at the meeting included approving: the selection of Stan Aldinger as a delegate at the Grant Wood Area Education Agency Director District I Convention, an agreement to make a contract with the Grant Wood agency to do data processing on payroll and financial statements for the district, and the purchase of $36,788 in data and word-processing equipment for use in personnel records.

Nagle

"paper over" the problems until after the election, but their time is running out, he said.

Because of the dire condition of the budget, the budget will either have to be cut or alternate funding will have to be found to keep the state from running out of money soon.

The budget problems are being covered up, Nagle charged, through deceptive accounting practices that hide the problems. "The comptroller is considering bills that have been mailed out as money in the bank."

IN ADDITION to counting money that is not in their possession, Iowa accountants are not counting debts until they are due, he said. "This gives them an extra 30 to 60 days."

But the Democrats are no longer going to stand by without pointing out the errors of Republican ways, he said.

"It's about time to start dealing with real numbers,"

Nagle said the amount of time these practices can "paper over" the real budget problems is short. "It got us through August, unfortunately it doesn't appear that it's going to get us through September."

were established in 1981. "I am concerned that the problem has gone on so long," Bonney said about the dilapidated sewers.

The compounded problem involves a sanitary sewer system that serves the East side of Iowa City and a storm sewer that tends to back up at the Dearborn and Center Street intersection.

The transportation of sewage from the Iowa City waste water treatment plant is at the heart of the problem, area resident Jim Hynes said.

Hynes said a waste water facilities task force will investigate Creekside sewers and report to the Iowa City Council.

Jennifer Ellsworth said she wants the city to fix the "potholes" on Center Street.

Hynes had an all-inclusive solution to the problem: "Center Street can be fixed when they put the sewer in."

CCN members will make their final assessments of city projects and present budget recommendations to the city council Oct. 13.

Meanwhile, members suggested the neighborhood unite and set its priorities. Residents say they have tried to stir city support before.

Bonney told residents the CCN is sympathetic to the problem. "This neighborhood has some severe problems, we know how frustrated you are."

Council

Assistant City Manager Dale Helling said the Jaycees was one group targeted by the commission. In particular, he said, the commission singled out the fact that the Jaycees now run the annual fireworks display on July 4, a task usually handled by the city.

THE COMMISSION also passed a motion stating that "all public meetings of city boards, commissions and departments be held in a room that is accessible to the handicapped ..."

While some meeting rooms are easily accessible for handicapped people, other areas such as the conference room in the Civic Center provide difficulty for handicapped citizens.

"This building is hard to get around in," Balmer said. But he added that the cost of remodeling the rooms would be too prohibitive.

Balmer suggested getting city employees to help the handicapped get to the meeting rooms, but City Attorney Robert Jansen said, "I would have some concern over policemen and firemen (who are not properly trained) handling wheelchairs."

Councilor David Perret suggested opening up widely-attended meetings to the handicapped. "We have to start someplace," he said.

The city has opened many of the buildings in the past few years, Lynch added. "I think the commission had a worthwhile idea, but it's just not practical."

The council then decided to dust off old studies on the matter, to see if any building improvements would now be feasible and cost-effective.

Filibuster

telephone calls and letters last week to vote to crack the filibuster.

Baker told reporters before the session: "My commitment is to a full and thorough debate. That means we'll go the last mile to give proponents (of anti-abortion legislation) every opportunity."

Baker said, however, he will have to "take another look" at the situation if the third cloture attempt fails, saying "we've got to pass a debt limit bill."

Anti-abortion forces actually picked up seven senators Monday — although the final tally did not reflect it because fewer senators voted than did last Thursday.

SEN. JOHN WARNER, R-Va.,

changed his vote to support cloture. Also voting for cloture Monday were Republican Sens. Bob Dole and Nancy Kassebaum, Kansas; Hatch, Mark Hatfield, Oregon; Paul Laxalt, Nevada; and James McClure, Idaho, who were all absent during the first cloture vote Thursday.

The anti-abortion measure is attached to legislation to raise the temporary ceiling on the national debt, which must be passed to provide the government with money in the new fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1.

THE HELMS abortion measure — a key goal of the New Right social conservatives — is in the form of a rider to the debt limit measure.

Agency deserves more

The American Red Cross is an organization that everybody takes for granted, providing a wide range of social services. Yet like all charitable institutions in this age of federal budget cuts and recession economics, it is having difficulty raising the funds needed to run effectively.

Locally, the Johnson County chapter has been doing a remarkable job with limited resources. Last year disaster services alone increased 1,500 percent, mostly because of the harsh winter weather. As a result the local agency had to accept $8,500 from the national organization, plus $3,000 in emergency allocations from the United Way. Bear in mind that the American Red Cross runs on a "trickle-up" basis — it relies on contributions from local chapters to finance the national operation.

In other words, we in Johnson County haven't been paying our own way. Unless we want the quality of services to decline, the Red Cross is going to have to raise more money locally. Luckily, it seems likely the county United Way will again help fund the Red Cross after a one year lapse. The Red Cross and United Way had broken off their association over some differences of opinion, and the Red Cross pulled out in protest. Last spring they decided to return to the fold.

This is in everyone's best interest. The United Way has to cope with funding many worthy social service agencies with limited resources, and can not give each group the money it deserves.

But the American Red Cross is one of the country's most reputable organizations. As columnist Ann Landers wrote, its members are "on the scene whenever disaster strikes. They go everywhere and anywhere, regardless of race, religion or political ideology. The only thing they care about is human beings and how to help them. Consider it a privilege to be part of their heroic efforts." Let us hope the United Way will agree and endow them with the capital necessary to operate properly.

That insanity plea

"Not guilty by reason of insanity" as a reasonable verdict in criminal cases is part of law in most law-abiding countries. Yet in this country the insanity plea is under fire, largely as a result of the John Hinckley verdict. Now a bill being proposed by President Reagan would seek to change the verdict to "guilty and mentally insane."

Common misconceptions are that the insanity plea allows a more or less normal person to get away with all types of crime, that testimonies of psychiatrists and other evidence for insanity are unreliable and easily concocted, and that if criminals judged insane are later released they would be potential menaces to society.

But let's glance at the facts about some of these pleas and the resulting judgments. Of the six assailants of past presidents, two were judged insane — Richard Lawrence believed himself to be King Richard III when he fired on Andrew Jackson in 1835, and John Schrank claimed that the ghost of William McKinley ordered him to shoot Theodore Roosevelt in 1912. Both spent the rest of their lives in mental institutions.

And aside from these celebrated cases, the insanity plea is invoked in only a fraction of 1 percent of criminal cases and fails three out of four times. And, according to Professor John Decker of DePaul University, most of those acquitted "stay in prison."

In response to Gov. Hugh Carey's query on the insanity plea, the New York Law Revision Commission stated that "public dissatisfaction in occasional 'headline' cases does not warrant scrapping the insanity defense."

The commission's opinion seems sound. In cases no less vague than insanity plea cases, such as when the intent to commit crime is to be established, we require a jury's judgment. The verdict "guilty but mentally ill" destroys the concept of culpability, because it entails no longer separating people who are legally responsible for their actions from those who are not.

Useful opening gambit

President Reagan's decision to re-involve the U. S. government in the effort to find a peaceful solution in the Middle East is heartening. His proposal — a Palestinian homeland federated with Jordan, a return of most of the land won by Israel from Jordan in the 1967 war, recognition of and security for Israel, and an undivided Jerusalem — is a modest and reasonable negotiating position that has been advocated by past administrations.

Unfortunately the responses by both the Israeli and the Arab Conference at Fez have not been so heartening. The Begin government, fearing it would lead to an independent Palestinian state controlled by the Palestinian Liberation Organization, rejected the proposal directly and vehemently. The Arabs rejected it by ignoring it and offering their own plan. They refused again to commit themselves unambiguously to recognizing Israel's right to exist and they proposed a PLO-controlled Palestinian state with Jerusalem as its capital.

The Reagan administration must recognize that its proposal is at present just a suggestion, and that any agreement will come only when all parties negotiate a settlement acceptable to all. But as an effort to reassure both Israel and the Arabs that it will offer some support to their goals, the proposal was a reasonable opening gambit.

The administration must also recognize that the subtle rejection by the Arabs and the less subtle rejection by Begin must not be allowed to harden into inflexibility. That will mean continued efforts to induce, not threaten, both parties into negotiation. That will require more than a few speeches — it needs the long-term commitment of the president, the secretary of state and a skilled negotiator who is trusted by both sides.

'Feminist university' is absurd

By M.G. Sweda

I FEEL OBLIGATED to respond to the "Vision of a Feminist University" described by Tess Catalano (DI, Sept. 2). After one has laboriously sifted through the radical rhetoric that abounded in her article, one can discern with difficulty the recommendations for university reform she is calling for. I would like to restate these recommendations in understandable language and then respond to them. Catalano would like to see the following changes made:

1. The UI (and universities in general) should be open institutions without entrance requirements or tuition fees. The open university would provide free services to students in order that each and every student's dignity not be impinged upon. Such services would include free day care for students' children, and presumably would also include free services to other students who have special needs, such as the handicapped and the ill.

2. The current system by which professors are given titles and tenure should be dismantled. According to Catalano, this system impedes the "passionate learner" from learning.

3. The university community should reconsider its role in producing knowledge through research. First, the research abilities of faculty members in a "feminist university" are actually inconsequential; faculty members should be hired and dismissed "solely on the professor's ability to teach." Second, those faculty members who do choose to engage in research must devote a substantial portion of their research efforts to problems of direct concern to the local community.

4. A feminist university will retain the tradition of requiring students to enroll in critically important courses, such as one-year sequences in both "consciousness raising" and "current political issues."

I WILL NOW attempt to respond to each of the above recommendations as a student who plans to spend a good portion of his life in academia, which, with any luck at all, will not resemble Catalano's vision of a feminist university.

1. It is a sad fact of life that education costs money. Professors' meager salaries must be paid. Buildings and laboratories must be built and maintained. Those who use a university's facilities, or in a larger sense, consume the services offered by any individual, corporation, or institution are obligated to pay for them. This is only fair.

It is not enough for Catalano that universities are already heavily funded by state and federal governments. Her case of nausea over the fact that it costs money to be educated will not diminish in intensity until a college education does not cost students a single red cent. I hope that Catalano realizes that the costs of education cannot disappear through the magic intervention of government — someone has to pay.

IN RESPONSE to Catalano's demand that universities "must" provide free day care services, I can only say that it is absurd. The only functions a university must fulfill are the production of new knowledge through research and creative efforts, and the dissemination of this knowledge through publications and classroom teaching. In addition, the separate colleges within the university must make sure they graduate well-educated individuals, and in the case of the professional colleges, competent professionals.

2. Catalano proposes to eliminate the current system by which faculty members are given titles and tenure, but does not offer an alternative system to the current system. No comment.

3. Catalano's statements regarding the university's devotion to research are both ignorant and repugnant. Only sheer ignorance could lead her to assert that between "50 and 75 percent" of the UI's research efforts should be directed toward solving local community problems. Such a proposal ignores that which is at the heart of every dynamic university: academic freedom to investigate anything that interests the researcher, within certain ethical restraints.

ACADEMIC FREEDOM is in large part a highly valued form of remuneration that faculty and graduate students receive for their efforts. Eliminate this form of remuneration by mandating what will be researched and what will not and few individuals indeed would be left to produce the basic scientific knowledge from which a community and a nation can advance.

4. A student's time at a university is far too limited and valuable to be wasted in required formal instruction on how to raise one's level of consciousness (whatever that may mean). I suggest that a student's time could be better spent in acquiring the basic skills necessary to develop a critical, analytical mind capable of rationally solving problems of all kinds.

Sweda is a UI graduate student in clinical psychology.

Black studies

To the editor:

Some years ago, when most of you reading this were trudging off to school for the first time, many of the nation's universities were experiencing their initial exposure to black studies.

Unfortunately, many of these programs were created under duress — as soon as the heat was off, universities wasted little time discarding them.

In 1972 there were still more than 200 well-structured black studies programs across the country. But today, you would be hard-pressed to find half that number that are not ragtag or on the verge of elimination. Which brings me to my point.

Who would have thought in those fiery days of the 1960s that one of the most substantial black studies programs in the 1980s would be at the UI? Well, it's true, and it appears to be getting better.

With an already established nucleus on hand — Jonathan Walton, Peter Nazareth, Alfrieta Parks and the highly esteemed Darwin Turner at the helm — the program is being bolstered this year by two outstanding black poets: Haki Madhubuti and Melba Boyd.

Madhubuti (formerly Don L. Lee), with a list of publications that can reach from here back to his hometown in Chicago, is conducting a poetry seminar at the Afro-American Cultural Center. Boyd, a visiting professor from Detroit and a former managing editor at the Broadside Press, is teaching two courses in the Afro-American Studies department.

In addition, Daniel Brantley, a visiting professor from Georgia, is offering courses in political science.

You would have to combine several black studies programs to match the quality and versatility of the scholars in this line-up. And it is made even stronger when you consider that Nobel Prize winner James Alan McPherson is nearby in the Writers Workshop.

Yep, black studies and black writers are alive and well at the UI, but it is left to you students to ensure the continuance of black studies. Check 'em out — a scholar is a terrible thing to waste.

Herb Boyd

Remembrance

To the editor:

Sept. 11 marked nine years of suffering under the Pinochet dictatorship for Chile, my home country. The democratically elected government of Salvador Allende was overthrown by a military coup in 1973.

Along with our president, thousands of innocent people were imprisoned and murdered. This tragic nightmare has become a daily reality for the Chilean people for nine years. In fact, things may be getting worse. This year, the United Nations voted the Chilean junta one of the five worst offenders of human rights in the world.

Many of my friends, imprisoned or killed by the military, cannot speak for themselves, but their courage moves me to speak for them. The love and respect I have for them makes my memories of Chile after six years of exile in the United States very bittersweet.

Many were university people, with the same hopes, dreams, and plans you have, poised on the edge of the fullest part of their lives. The Pinochet dictatorship will never understand that in torturing and murdering these people, the qualities of decency, generosity and wisdom they embodied have been held up as an example for others to follow. Their dreams of a free Chile have been and will be taken up by the millions of women and men who recognize their courage and carry on the struggle.

It is clear that the dictatorship is living on borrowed time. The Chilean economy under Milton Friedman's "free economy" is in shambles.

Unemployment is over 40 percent and rising, and Chilean industry is almost nonexistent. Pinochet desperately tries to improve his international image, and the Reagan administration talks of "restoring" military aid to Chile. But the democratic movement of the people of Chile and the supporting international community is growing stronger daily. Workers, women, students and professionals are uniting behind common interests and against oppression.

If that happens, we can rationally have hope that, as Allende said, "...much sooner than later, great avenues will open through which free people will pass to build a better society." May we channel our collective sorrow for Chile to that end.

Patricio Carrasco

Cars are 'gonzo'

To the editor:

Your recent editorial and article concerning the safety of motorists, pedestrians and cyclists have been most noble (DI, Sept. 2). In support of your call for cooperation and safety, why anyone would prefer driving a car rather than a bike is gonzo. The bicycle rides on.

Baecke fires 81; Hawks in 17th

By Steve Batterson
Assistant Sports Editor

It was just one of those days for the Iowa women's golf team Monday.

The Hawkeyes, coming off of an impressive second-place finish at the Lady Badger open last weekend in Madison, Wis., shot a 332 in the first round of the Susie Maxwell Bering Tournament in Oklahoma City, Okla., placing the Hawks 17th in an 18 team field.

"We just didn't have a good day on the golf course," Iowa Coach Diane Thomason said. "We were nervous, scared and it was windy. We just didn't adjust to the playing conditions like you have to in order to play a respectable round."

THE HAWKS HAD scored rounds of 319 and 311 in the weekend meet at Madison and Thomason said the quick change in climate could have had something to do with Iowa's rustiness on the course Monday.

"We were looking to shoot around 310, but we didn't adapt to the greens well," she said. "They were fast at Wisconsin and they are slow here. At Wisconsin, you could hit the ball and it would roll on to the green. Here that just isn't the case. The grass is entirely different, too. The soil here contains much more clay and that affects the way you play."

"We had a couple of psyche out holes, too. We put in quite a few shots there. Mary Baecke shot well on the front side, but cooled off a bit."

The Hawks were led by Baecke, a freshman, who posted an 81 and by Cookie Rosine who carded an 82 during the opening round.

THE COMPETITION at Oklahoma City is much different from the competition the Hawks are used to facing. Thomason terms it the "toughest we'll see all year." Included in the field are defending national champion Tulsa and Texas Christian, a team that "will probably win it this year," according to Thomason.

The Iowa coach hopes that the Hawks have not dug themselves a grave they can't get out of. "This first day definitely puts us back in the pack and we'll have to play well (today)," Thomason said. "If we play like we did today, it will be tough for us to finish in the top half, but if we shoot around 310, what we're capable of, we can move up."

Although the track and field season is four months away, Iowa fans shouldn't have trouble getting excited about it. When fall practice started last Tuesday, Iowa Men's Coach Ted Wheeler welcomed eight outstanding freshmen. They are:
• Jeffrey Patrick, a sprinter from Roosevelt High School in Gary, Ind. He won the 200 meters at the prestigious International Prep Meet in Chicago this past summer. His time of 20.74 seconds ranked him second among all preps in the nation.

Steelers' passing riddles Dallas

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw and John Stallworth made a mockery of the Dallas secondary Monday night and the Pittsburgh Steelers capitalized on three straight opposition mistakes in the third quarter to defeat the Cowboys, 36-28 and hand them their first opening-game loss since 1964.

The Steelers, beating Dallas for the fifth consecutive time over the last decade, trailed by a point following a wild first half filled with fumbles and big plays.

But two minutes deep in the third quarter Keith Willis broke through to block a would-be punt by Danny White and the Steelers were on their way.

Pittsburgh went ahead six plays later on a one-yard run by Frank Pollard and the Steelers then seized on interceptions by Rick Woods and Jack Ham to set up a 15-yard scoring pass from Bradshaw to Jim Smith and a 26-yard field goal by rookie Gary Anderson.

THAT MADE THE score 30-14 and the Steelers were en route to giving Dallas its first home loss since the 1979 playoffs — 18 games ago.

Even after the Steelers increased their lead to 19 points, Dallas managed to make a game of it on two touchdown passes by White. But a time consuming drive by the Steelers ended with a 40-yard field goal by Anderson with one minute, two seconds to play.

The Cowboys had run off 17-straight season-opening triumphs, an NFL record. But the passing duo of Bradshaw-to-Stallworth brought an end to that string.

The 13-year quarterback threw for 137 yards to Stallworth — most of that yardage coming against beleaguered Dallas cornerback Dennis Thurman. Franco Harris added 103 yards rushing for the Steelers.

STALLWORTH CAUGHT Pittsburgh's first touchdown, an eight-yard throw from Bradshaw, and Bradshaw also hooked up with Smith for a seven-yard scoring toss in the second quarter. Anderson, picked up by the Steelers the week before the game, added a 43-yard field goal early in the final quarter to make it 33-14.

White threw touchdown passes of four yards to Drew Pearson and 12 yards to Doug Cosbie to give Dallas its first-half lead. After Pittsburgh took a 19-point lead, White connected with Tony Hill on a 45-yard scoring effort.

United Press International

Pittsburgh's Loren Towes (51) and Gary Dunn (67) do their most to stop the forward motion of Dallas' Tony Dorsett during first quarter action of the

But White's mistakes in the third quarter helped Pittsburgh ignite the surge that embarked the new-look Steelers to what they hope will be their first playoff appearance in three years.

WHITE, WHO HAS a history of running with the ball from punt formation, seemed to be thinking about running on fourth down after the Cowboys were stopped on their first possession of the second half. But White took one step too many before deciding to punt and that delay allowed Willis to block the kick.

The opening 22 minutes were about as frantic as football can get with fumbles, long passes and scores on four straight possessions keeping the national television audience intrigued in the first prime-time game of the NFL season.

Panthers' grip loosens on No. 1 in poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Pittsburgh, a one-point winner in its season opener last week, retained its No. 1 college football rating Monday by the slimmest of margins over Washington in the first week of regular-season balloting by UPI's Board of Coaches.

The Panthers, who shaded North Carolina 7-6 last Thursday night in a game which featured 230 yards in penalties and four interceptions by Dan Marino, collected 17 first-place votes and 554 points from the 42 coaches who comprise the board.

Washington, which opened its season with a 55-0 shelling of Texas-El Paso, received 12 first-place votes and 551 points, while Nebraska remained at No. 3 but closed in on the leaders with six first-place votes and 544 points.

IN THE PRE-SEASON ratings, Pittsburgh held a 55-point lead over the Huskies and a 105-point cushion over the Cornhuskers.

Alabama, which avenged its only regular-season loss of 1981 with a 45-7 victory over Georgia Tech, held steady at No. 4 with six first-place votes and 508 points.

Georgia, which defeated two members of the Top 20 within a six-day span, moved up two places to No. 5. The Bulldogs opened their season with a 13-7 triumph over defending national champion Clemson before nipping Brigham Young 17-14 last Saturday.

SMU, a 51-7 winner over Tulane, jumped five places to No. 6 and

11. North Carolina (0-1)	149
12. Ohio State (1-0)	145
13. Clemson (0-1)	94

received one first-place vote while Florida leaped nine spots to No. 7 on the strength of its season-opening victory over Miami (Fla.) and last Saturday's 17-9 upset of Southern Cal.

PENN STATE, 2-0 after a 39-31 victory over Maryland, fell two positions to No. 8, followed by No. 9 Michigan, which topped Wisconsin 20-9 and No. 10 Arkansas, a 38-0 winner over Tulsa.

The second 10 consists of No. 11 North Carolina, down five places after losing to Pitt, No. 12 Ohio State, No. 13 Clemson, No. 14 Texas and No. 15 West Virginia.

Miami (Fla.) was rated 16th followed by No. 17 UCLA, No. 18 Mississippi State, No. 19 Notre Dame and No. 20 Brigham Young.

"I wasn't pleased with our overall performance, but North Carolina is a great football team," said Pittsburgh Coach "Foggy" Fazio. "We're very happy just to win by one. We've been saying all along we didn't vote ourselves No. 1, but we can control our own fate if we keep on winning."

FAZIO, IN HIS first year as the Panthers' coach, continued to joke about the pressure being put on him by his fellow coaches.

"First they almost gave me a stroke when they made us No. 1, and now that we're No. 1 again after the North Carolina game, I think they're trying to give me a heart attack this week," he said.

West Virginia, which surprised Oklahoma 41-27 last Saturday at Norman, Okla., is one of two new teams in this week's Top 20. The Sooners, ranked eighth in the pre-season, fell out of the rankings. Also, Mississippi State, 2-0 after a 31-10 triumph over Arkansas State, moved into the ratings.

Texas and Notre Dame open their seasons Saturday. Texas hosts Utah while Michigan travels to Notre Dame for a night game.

TEXAS A&M also dropped from the ratings after a 38-16 loss to Boston College two weeks ago.

The UPI Board consists of six coaches from each of seven geographical sections of the country. Each week they select the Top 15 teams in the country with points awarded on a 15-14-13, etc., basis on votes from one through 15.

Iowa Coach Hayden Fry, a member of the UPI board, said he cast his vote for Nebraska as the No. 1 team after the Cornhuskers dumped the Hawkeyes, 42-7 last Saturday in Lincoln. In the first UPI poll, Fry said he voted for Washington, the team that beat Iowa in the Rose Bowl, 28-0.

Here by sections are the coaches who comprise the UPI football board:

East — Wayne Hardin, Temple; Frank Burns, Rutgers; Ed Cavanaugh, Army; Don Nehlen, West Virginia; Serafino "Foggy" Fazio, Pittsburgh; Dick MacPherson, Syracuse.

Midwest — Earle Bruce, Ohio State; Frank "Muddy" Waters, Michigan State; Gerry Faust, Notre Dame; Mike White, Illinois; Hayden Fry, Iowa; Dan Simrell, Toledo.

South — Paul "Bear" Bryant, Alabama; Vince Dooley, Georgia; Dick Crum, North Carolina; Charley Pell, Florida; Danny Ford, Clemson; Bobby Bowden, Florida State; Midlands — Tom Osborne, Nebraska; Barry Switzer, Oklahoma; Jim Dickey, Kansas State; Warren Powers, Missouri; John Cooper, Tulsa; Donnie Duncan, Iowa State.

Southwest — Fred Akers, Texas; Lou Holtz, Arkansas; Jackie Sherrill, Texas A&M; Sam Robertson, Southwestern Louisiana; Grant Teaff, Baylor; Ray Alborn, Rice.

Mountains — LaVell Edwards, Brigham Young; Ken Hatfield, Air Force; Larry Smith, Arizona; Joe Morrison, New Mexico; Chuck Stobart, Utah; Al Kincaid, Wyoming.

Pacific — John Robinson, Southern California; Rich Brooks, Oregon; Dave Currey, Long Beach State; Jack Elway, San Jose State; Don James, Washington; Terry Donahue, UCLA.

Blue-chippers provide 'security boost' to track team

By Steve Riley
Staff Writer

Although the track and field season is four months away, Iowa fans shouldn't have trouble getting excited about it.

When fall practice started last Tuesday, Iowa Men's Coach Ted Wheeler welcomed eight outstanding freshmen. They are:

• Jeffrey Patrick, a sprinter from Roosevelt High School in Gary, Ind. He won the 200 meters at the prestigious International Prep Meet in Chicago this past summer. His time of 20.74 seconds ranked him second among all preps in the nation.

Iowa Assistant Coach Mike Gilbert said he expects Patrick to be ranked either second or third in the 200 when Track and Field News comes out with its annual prep rankings. Gilbert said, "Jeff's a showy runner; he's got a lot of class."

• Gary Kostrubala, a shot putter and discus thrower from Marist High School in Chicago. He won state championships his senior year in the shot and the discus, in which he set a state meet record.

• Kenneth Williams, a sprinter from Prospects Heights High School in Brooklyn, N.Y. He was the New York City champion in both the 100 and 200 meters.

Williams held the national prep indoor record for 300 meters at one time.

said was the fourth best nationally among preps.

• Caesar Smith, a middle-distance runner from East High School in Des Moines. His winning 800-meter time of 1:52.02 at the state meet set a state record.

Smith had surgery to remove a benign tumor from the side of his head in June.

• Mike Cunningham, a high jumper from Naperville, Ill. He has leaped 6-10.

• Norm Balke, a shot putter and discus thrower from Iowa City. He won the 1980 state championship in the shot. His best was 58-1.

John Dobbs, a distance runner from Maine West High School in Des Plaines, Ill. His two-mile time of 9:09.2 was the best in Illinois last year. Dobbs was also a member of the Hawkeye cross-country team.

• Tom Boge, a hurdler from Crystal Lake, Ill. He placed fifth in the 110-meter high hurdles at the state meet last spring with a time of 14.04.

• Mike Cunningham, a high jumper from Naperville, Ill. He has leaped 6-10.

• Norm Balke, a shot putter and discus thrower from Iowa City. He won the 1980 state championship in the shot. His best was 58-1.

BALKE WAS a member of the Iowa football team last year.

The additions of Balke and Kostrubala are especially important after the loss of Pat O'Connor, the school-record holder in the shot put.

Gilbert, who specializes in coaching field events and hurdle events, said, "The weight events appear to have improved, but a weight man takes time to develop."

He added that "In the Midwest, everybody recruited heavy in the weight events."

Wheeler, who is in his fifth year at the helm, said the freshmen are a "security boost" to the team. "Everbody on the team knows now that we have 11 of 13 events covered, and the other two are potentially covered," he said.

Wheeler said his freshmen are Big-Ten quality athletes. "In this league you can very seldom go with a 'comer.' He's got to be an exceptional athlete," he said.

When asked about Iowa's recruiting rank among other Big Ten teams, Gilbert said, "It's so tough to tell how people recruited until the season comes."

Iowa finished ninth in both the indoor and outdoor conference meets last season.

Youthful net team opens Friday

By Mike Condon
Staff Writer

Iowa Tennis Coach Cathy Ballard, calling her team "youthful yet experienced," hopes togetherness and a strong recruiting year can move Iowa up the Big Ten tennis ladder.

The Hawkeyes will get a good indication of what is to come as they open their season Friday against DePaul at 2:30 p.m. on the recently resurfaced Stadium Courts. Iowa State will be in Iowa City on Saturday for an 8:30 a.m. dual to precede the interstate football clash.

"We're a very close team this season," Ballard said. "The returning players along with the new ones have come back to school in excellent condition and they really want to improve upon last season."

GONE FROM LAST YEAR's squad that finished 14-16 and finished eighth in the Big Ten is Karen Kettenacker, who accumulated a school record 98 wins in her four years as Hawk. Also missing from this year's squad are Kemi Gustafson, who transferred to Iowa State to concentrate on academics after recurring knee problems ended her tennis career and Peggy Kubitz, who was unable to play because she had to do student teaching work for her degree.

Heading the list of returnees are a pair of juniors, Sara Loetscher and Nancy Schumacher and sophomore Mallory Coleman. Loetscher and Schumacher are locked into the No. 1 doubles spot but after that, Ballard says that the competition is fierce.

"THE SITUATION is not like last year when it was known that Karen would be No. 1," she said. "Every spot is wide open and the competition helps to improve the squad."

Loetscher agrees: "We've been doing a lot of drills but we haven't played many matches yet. Every spot is wide open."

Five new players have joined the Hawks this season with very impressive credentials. Sophomore Kim Ruuttila transferred from Wheaton College where she was the Division III national runner-up last season. Another transfer, junior Angela Jones came to Iowa from a junior college in Texas. Three freshmen, Kathy Kansman, Martine Guerin and Rachel McClelland round out the squad.

• Sara Loetscher — Junior from Dubuque who was runner-up to Kettenacker at last year's Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Region VI tournament. "My goal is to play No. 1 this season," Loetscher said. She also teams with Schumacher to form Iowa's No. 1 doubles team.

• Nancy Schumacher — Junior from Beloit, Wis., and is one of the hardest working players on the squad according to Ballard. Schumacher played on a summer circuit in Canada and thinks the extra work will pay off. "My game is getting to the point where I want it," she said. "The work I did this summer in Canada gave me a lot of experience."

• Mallory Coleman — Sophomore from Garland, Texas, who is hoping to have a season free of the nagging leg and thigh injuries that plagued her last fall. "I worked on weights all summer to strengthen my legs," she said. "As for my game, I been working a lot on footwork so far to take more advantage of my quickness."

• Angela Jones — Junior from

Queensland, Australia. She is only 18 years old and believes her game needs work. "I really like the atmosphere around here," she said. "I have to work on showing some consistency."

• Martine Guerin — Freshman from Ottawa, Canada who undoubtedly is the hardest hitter on the squad. "Cathy has been working with me on my footwork," Guerin said. "But my doubles game is very good right now." Loetscher believes that she will remind some people of Kettenacker.

• Kim Ruuttila — Sophomore from Springfield, Ill., who came to Iowa looking for better competition. "I was very impressed with the program when I visited last year," she said. "The tougher competition is bound to make me a better player."

• Kathy Kansman — Freshman from Mt. Clemens, Mich., considered a steady player by Ballard. "I really like the team," she said. "I visited Michigan, Michigan State and North Carolina and Iowa was the best place. The facilities are very good and I was also impressed with the coaching staff."

• Rachel McClelland — Freshman walk-on from Ankeny, Iowa. "I knew I was coming to Iowa and I decided to tryout for the team," she said. "My game has improved a lot since I've gotten here but there's still a lot of room for improvement."

Hawk notes

A TIGHT-LIPPED Hayden Fry called Monday's practice "normal." He revealed no changes in Iowa's depth chart, saying they would be known Tuesday after a coaches' meeting Monday night. Starting linebacker James Erb is wearing a flexible cast on his right knee. Running back Paul McCarty, who had been sidelined with a shoulder injury, returned to practice Monday. When asked what his main concerns are for Saturday's Iowa State game, Fry simply replied, "Winning."

NEBRASKA COACH Tom Osborne said the No. 3-rated Nebraska Cornhuskers were plagued by inconsistency during the second half of their 42-7 romp over defending Big Ten champion Iowa. "We played pretty well the first half, but in the second half, particularly in the third quarter, we were inconsistent on offense and we didn't tackle well on defense. We made some big plays — completing some third down passes — and were able to overcome those mistakes. But that doesn't always work." Osborne said the Huskers came through the Hawkeye contest relatively injury free and quarterback Turner Gill, who started after recovering from an ankle injury, would remain

No. 1 in that position. "We had two or three times on offense Saturday where a player simply pulled the wrong way or did the wrong thing," Osborne said. "On defense, our main problem simply was poor tackling."

KANSAS STATE fullback Masi Toluao knows how to celebrate. Toluao, from the South Pacific island of Samoa, performed a Samoan war dance in front of the student section Saturday following his team's 23-9 victory over Kentucky. Said Toluao, who admitted he had been practicing for such an occasion: "We've been working on the Samoan war chant and the fans wanted it, so I did it." The dance is performed by moving in a circular motion while in a crouching position, pounding your feet on the turf and yelling chants, which are repeated by the crowd.

TULSA COACH John Cooper can only hope things get better. After his team lost to Arkansas 38-0, he said: "You may think this sounds foolish, but I thought we had a good chance to win coming into this game. We didn't know how good Arkansas really was. I hope Arkansas is a great team, because I hope we are better than we looked."

Sportsbriefs

Podolak to speak

Former Iowa football great and WHO-Radio football color commentator Ed Podolak will be the master of ceremonies for the National I Lettermen's club banquet after the Iowa State game Saturday.

Tickets for the banquet are $15 and available at Bremers and Malcolm Jewelers.

A Hawkeye breakfast

The Johnson County I-Club will, for the ninth-straight year, be sponsoring pregame breakfasts for home games at the Highlander Inn.

The first of these will be Sept. 17. Breakfast is $5 and begins at 6:30 a.m. Iowa Head Coach Hayden Fry will be the keynote speaker.

Badminton club meeting

The UI Badminton Club will hold a meeting, Sept. 17 at 7 p.m. in Room 200 of the Field House. Anyone is welcome. For more information, call Kelly at 353-1409.

Recreational trips

The UI Division of Recreational Services is sponsoring three trips within the next month.

A breakfast-horseback ride will be held before the Iowa State football game Saturday at Pleasant View Stables between 7-10 a.m. The cost is $10. Those interested can sign-up Friday in Room 111 of the Fieldhouse.

• A whitewater canoe trip to the Flambeau River in north central Wisconsin is scheduled for Sept. 24-26. The cost is $50. Canoeing experience is helpful, but not required. For more information call 353-3494.

• A whitewater kayaking trip to the Wolfe River in Wisconsin has been planned for Oct. 8-10. No previous experience is required, but pool lessons on kayaking will be given Oct. 4, 5 and 7. The cost is $55. For more information call 353-3494.

Women's soccer practice

The UI Women's Soccer team will practice at 5 p.m. today on the field southwest of the Field House. Newcomers are welcome.

NCAA youth meeting

The NCAA Volunteers For Youth will hold an informational-recruiting meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Lettermen's Lounge of the Field House. All interested student-athletes are invited to attend.

Rugby squad splits

The Iowa City Women's Rugby team won one and lost one at Madison, Wis. last weekend. The first game, played against the Madison club, ended in a 26-0 loss for the Iowa City team.

Iowa City won the second game against LaCrosse, Wis., 8-6.

Two-under par

UI Physical Education Professor Don Casady shot a hole-in-one at Elk's Country Club last weekend. He used a driver on the 230-yard No. 5 hole while Len Feldt and Al Stone watched.

Ruggers ruffed-up

The University of Iowa Rugby Club A team lost, 15-10, to the Madison Rugby Club at Madison, Wis., Saturday. Mike Regan snagged a try and Hiram Melendez had two penalty kicks for the UI. "We had a few mental mistakes and it cost us," Melendez said.

Last week the UI Rugby Club A team successfully opened its season against Dubuque, 31-0. Melendez scored a goal kick and three conversions. Joe Nelson, Spider Gilliam, Mike Freeman and Jungle Johnny Walsch scored tries.

The B side didn't fare as well, losing to Dubuque, 4-0. All people interested in playing rugby are still invited to come out.

Powell IM medalist

Tau Kappa Epsilon won the intramural golf tournament Saturday with a three-man total of 225. Capitalist Pools took second place in the competition, which fielded 33 teams.

Steve Powell was medalist in the tournament, with a 73. TKE was paced by John Leonard and Chris Farwell, who each carded 74. Mike Wahl had a 74 for TKE.

K.C. Kauth smashed the ball 330 yards on the sixth hole for the longest drive of the tourney. John Dodd, representing Beta Theta Pi, had the longest putt of the meet when he dropped a long one on the 18th hole. Kevin Schmidt had the closest shot to the pin when he missed the hole by only four-feet on the fourth hole.

On the line

The Daily Iowan sports staff has snuck off with the prize for this week's On the Line contest and you are challenged to wrestle it back from them.

The prize, an eight-gallon keg from the Fieldhouse bar in downtown Iowa City, has been carefully stashed away and the only way you can claim it is to be the winner of this week's contest.

Marvin Sammons figured out the problem and took home last week's prize and this week the prize could be yours, provided you are over 19 years old, are not a DI employee and you follow the rules.

The rules are rules and if they're not followed, the trained staff of ballot counters at the DI will file your entry in the appropriate file — the circular one.

All they ask is that you circle the team that you believe will win the game and enter the final score of tiebreaker game in the appropriate blanks. All entries must be turned in to Room 111 of the Communications Center by 5 p.m. on Thursday.

Should you choose to accept this assignment, good luck.

This week's winners

Washington at Arizona
Pittsburgh at Florida State
Iowa State at Iowa
Ohio State at Michigan State
Alabama at Mississippi
Michigan at Notre Dame
Minnesota at Purdue
Illinois at Syracuse
UCLA at Wisconsin

Tiebreaker

Rockets win ruling in Malone case

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Houston Rockets received a favorable ruling Monday in the controversy surrounding free agent center Moses Malone.

Kingman Brewster, the NBA's Special Master, ruled the Rockets have the right of first refusal. He also invalidated one clause of the $14 million offer sheet Malone signed with the Philadelphia 76ers.

Brewster ruled that the 76ers' offer sheet did not meet the guidelines set by the Robertson Agreement between the NBA and the Players Association.

Brewster, appointed by the court to oversee disputes under the Robertson Agreement, will rule on the NBA's and the Rockets' contention that four other clauses of the offer sheet were illegal because they were designed to prevent Houston from matching Philadelphia's offer.

AT THE BIJOU: Howard Hawks' I Was a Male War Bride stars Cary Grant as a French Army officer married to WAC Ann Sheridan. Grant wants to get back to the U.S. with his wife, but in order to do so he has to wear a dress uniform — literally.

This classic comedy of role reversal might be seen as the bridge between cinematic screwball comedy and the hijinks Uncle Miltie, Sid Caesar and others were ready to unleash on the tube. (What gets more laughs than men in drag?) Grant has rarely been better, and Sheridan, whose promising career was unfortunately superseded by those of more "feminine" actresses, is perfect as the officer who makes a lady out of the gentleman. 8:45 p.m.

• Jean Renoir's *The Southerner is a kind and realistic portrayal of the horrors and wonders of the lives of a tenant farming family. Neither too gritty nor too sentimental, The Southerner is one of the few examples of an American story told better from the distance of a foreign perspective that the cinema has to offer. 7 p.m.

• In response to Christianne Balk's letter yesterday concerning the closed showing of Richard Pryor Live in Concert, it should be noted that the Bijou does not control ticket sales. Those are handled by the Union Box Office, and any questions or problems one has with tickets should be addressed to the proper authorities at the Union. Whoever is responsible for turning people away when seats are available, however, should be turned away from a job.

TV: Yesterday we ignored the rerun of "Murder in Texas," yet another fact-based melodrama miniseries. In what could be an episode from Houston Babylon, wealthy Texas playboy doctor John Hill (Sam Elliott) is indicted for the murder of his socialite wife Joan Robinson Hill (Farrah Fawcett).

As far as these things go, "Murder in Texas" is pretty good: Sam Elliott is more than believable as the sleazy surgeon, and Farrah Fawcett hasn't been so good since "Harry O." She's only a memory tonight, but there are also Katherine Ross, as writer Ann Kurth, and Andy Griffith, as Joan Robinson's father, to watch. You could do far worse. 8 p.m., KWWL-7.

• Tonight on "The David Letterman Show," Indiana's favorite talk show host welcomes New Yorker wit, raconteur and taste-tester Calvin Trillin. Trillin is at least as funny as Letterman, and he probably reads his notes better. A great guest for what should be a funny show. 11:30 p.m., KWWL-7.

• Speaking of talk shows: now that CBS Cable (the Cultural Network) is seeping through the Hawkeye Cablevision mesh, Iowa City gets the chance to see the most-talked-about talk show since "Donahue" — "Signature." The gimmick (yes, kids, even Culture has gimmicks) is that you never see the interviewer — just lots of closeups of the guest's talking head.

Tonight's talking head is former Nixon hit man and current Allen Ginsberg groupie John Ehrlichman. Will he show his home movies of Nixon at the pool as he did on Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow?" Probably not — they weren't directed by Truffaut. But as the Watergate 10th anniversary celebration continues, it should be nice to see one of our finest public servants holding forth in a pleasant, genteel surrounding. 9:30 p.m., CBS Cable-1.

MOVIE ON CABLE: Breaker Morant is one of the most acclaimed films to come out of the New Australian Cinema movement. The story of three Australian officers court-martialed for murder during the Boer War, Breaker Morant addresses issues of race and justice in a fashion that makes it clear that Australians can no longer be typified by the Monty Python caricature of Foster's-swilling billabong hoppers. 5 p.m., Cinemax-13.

Ratings up too late; 'Lou Grant' off air

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Los Angeles Tribune made its final press run Monday with the last network airing of "Lou Grant," ironically after the TV newspaper show moved up to a strong No. 6 in last week's Nielsen ratings.

CBS canceled the Emmy-winning show earlier this year because of low ratings. Series star Ed Asner claimed the show was dropped because of his controversial personal political stands.

Asner, who is nominated this year for his third best actor award for his role as the crusty city editor, holds the record for the most Emmys won by a performer. He won seven awards for his continuing roles in the "Lou Grant" and "Mary Tyler Moore" series and appearances in the mini-series "Roots," and "Rich Man, Poor Man."

Asner, president of the Screen Actors Guild, caused a stir by joining a group to raise money for aid to El Salvador's insurgents and by announcing plans to politicize the Guild.

THE OUTSPOKEN ASNER made more headlines than Lou Grant did, in his confrontation with Charlton Heston, former Guild president who challenged Asner's political stances.

The final original episode of "Lou Grant," filmed last spring, involved a story in which Grant, managing editor of the fictional Los Angeles Tribune, is recovering from gunshot wounds and settling squabbles on his news staff.

Asner, who bitterly accused the network of personal bias when the show was canceled, has mellowed somewhat.

The actor was in New York rehearsing for a new Sidney Lumet movie, Daniel, in which he will play a defense attorney.

"I had five wonderful years of the most marvelous company I've ever been in," Asner said. "I want to show my appreciation for the dent we made during the five years we were allowed to practice."

ASNER ADDED he would like to have had the opportunity for a farewell episode, such as "Barney Miller" enjoyed last season, instead of bowing out with a run-of-the-line episode.

"We were offered the chance and we didn't take it lightly," he said. "We would have done it if it had been offered at the appropriate time."

According to Asner, the appropriate time would have been after another few seasons when he believes "Lou Grant" would have run its natural course.
